THE Salvation Army have just appointed a new General. I do not know anything about the new General's wife, if indeed he has one. Should he be married, I am sure that the General's wife will be a source of strength and inspiration to her husband.

I have read much about Mrs. Catherine Booth, the wife of the first General. She had some things to say about prayer and in particular conditions for effectual prayer. I think you would like to read it for yourself, so I include it in this column.

"Do you want to have your prayers answered?

Walk so that your own heart condemns you not. The obedient child who lives in complacent affection with its parent has no fear in coming up to ask for favours. It knows it will get them. Its own heart does not condemn it. 'If our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God'. I defy any man to separate confidence from obedience. If you will not be obedient, you cannot have confidence.

"I challenge any Christian to tell me that he can go up to the throne of God in faith for any blessing when his own heart condemns him. He knows he cannot. He has first to get that state of condemnation taken away before he can exercise faith for any blessing. Walk in the light and then you will have fellowship with Him and His blood will cleanse you from all sin. The Spirit will teach you how to pray and what to pray for, which the great mass of professors know nothing about".

Well, there you have what Catherine Booth had to say about conditions for effectual prayer. Both she and her husband had many answers to prayer.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

10. "I am Jehovah" (Exodus 6:3, RV)

by F. Lavender,

Pastor of our Croydon Church

EXODUS 6:3 brings to us two wonderful names of God: "El-Shaddai", God almighty, who made covenant with Abraham; "Jehovah", "I AM", the self-existing One renewing covenant with Moses. "Self-existing" means that He is the only Being independent of all others for His existence; all others depend finally upon Him for their being, but He depends upon no other for His being. Because of this there is no outside compulsion that can force Him into a course of action; His activities are determined by Himself alone. Take as an example His covenant with Abraham (Genesis 15). No external pressure made Him enter into this covenant; it was an act of His own sovereign will.

Because He is free from all outside pressure He is also the unchanging One. He declared through Malachi: "I am Jehovah, I change not" (Malachi 3:6). James calls Him: "The Father of lights, with whom can be no variation, neither shadow that is cast by turning" (James 1:17, RV). Jehovah's unchangeable purpose was to deliver Israel from Egypt and to fulfil His covenant with Abraham by bringing His people into the land of Canaan, therefore Moses could go to Pharaoh with full confidence in the final success of his mission.

We are living in a rapidly changing, unstable world. Many old values and standards are being swept away and Christian morality, in particular, is mocked and criticised. We realise the awful uncertainty which hangs over our generation, the threat of total destruction which could overtake this age. Yet, in days such as these, the Word of God still declares: "I am Jehovah, I change not"! Here is the assurance which people need, the only Rock for our feet. He has not changed. He can never be de-throned. No-one can pressurize Him. His Word is sure and trustworthy. Those who place their trust in Him will never be put to shame.

Is your confidence placed in the unchanging Jehovah?

"My glory and the lifter up of mine head"

Psalm 3:3

I SUPPOSE that we are all creatures of moods and changing feelings. The pressures of life and the daily demands stretch our patience and sometimes our endurance almost to breaking point. A young housewife wrote to me and revealed how easily we can slip from a mood of discouragement when we wallow in the slough of despond into a mood of exaltation as we view the handiwork of God.

I think that her soliloquy in prayer is very genuine and will be a help to other workers in the service of the Lord:

"Oh Lord, I'm feeling harrassed; the children's work is worrying me at this minute. You know all about it, Lord, but let me just get it off my chest. Two of our most valuable older workers have suddenly disappeared without explanation, or even goodbye and I can't seem to contact them. Did I hurt their feelings, Lord? My other right-hand worker is ill and only you know, Lord, how much I miss her. The children are grumbling because I've cut down on their more ambitious projects. On top of it all, my shamefully thin skin is quivering with hurt because of criticism that I've just heard. Oh Lord, I've worked for you long enough to know that I won't escape criticism. I know I'm not perfect, but, Lord, how I wish that people would show other's faults the same mercy that they show their own. Well, there it is Lord, the whole miserable catalogue; I'm flattened!

"But then, Lord, it's good to tell You about it, for You had the same bothers, so You understand. You don't mind my grouses, neither do they put You off Your stride! It's not completely black, Lord. My young workers are treasures and I do love working with them. My children may be grumbling, but they're still here, bless 'em.

'Lord, You haven't said a word to me, but You've answered me fully. I feel peaceful about it. The problems are still there, but how different I feel. Oh God, You are good to grouse to!'"

In contrast to the foregoing, my correspondent wrote also of her delight and wonder when watching from her window the slow sweep of the plough crossing and re-crossing the wide field, closely attended by a flock of birds. She had heard the old farmer remark, "The fields are just right now, nice and soft after the rain, but not too muddy". Again I quote from her pen: "This little scrap of conversation reminded me of the most beautiful verses of Scripture — Psalm 65:9, 10:6 Thou visitest the earth and waterest it: Thou greatly enrichest it with the river of God, which is full of water: Thou preparest them corn, when Thou hast so provided for it. Thou waterest the ridges therof abundantly: Thou makest it soft with showers: Thou blessest the springing thereof". Apart from the satisfying beauty of this piece of Hebrew poetry there is a homely authenticity about it. I'm sure that David must have helped with the plough, as well as with his father's sheep. He knew so well what every good gardener knows— the feel of the soil after a light shower, spongy and easy to turn over. It's late spring now and the fields, trees and the birds are in an ecstasy of activity. Trees are putting on new leaf and bird song is full throated and loud. I can hear the praise of God in every joyous trill of the mistle thrush".

Thank God, in every trusting believer, there comes the moment when despondency gives way to praise when God directs our thoughts away from our own failings and inadequacy to His perfect works and complete sufficiency. We can thus say with David, "Why are you cast down, O my inner self? And why should you moan over me and be disquieted within me? Hope you in God and wait expectantly for Him, for I shall yet praise Him, my help and my God"

(Psalm 42:5, Amplified Bible).

DEAR GOD, THANK-YOU FOR

our homes and family, and all the good things they give us. Thankyou for sending your only Son into this world to die for us, and save us from our sins. Thankyou for the Bible, and help us to understand the wonderful message that it gives us. Thankyou for helping us, and let us spread your Word throughout the world. Thankyou for helping when we are sad or people mock us, help us to love them, and tell them about your love for us. Thankyou for the missionaries who go to far-off countries to tell people of Your love. Thankyou for animals and make us kind to them.

Thankyou Lord for all you do for us,

Amen.

from Nikki

sending your only Son to die for us, that we may not die but live for ever. Helping me when I am in need and cheering me up when I am upset. Answering my prayers. Giving me a loving pair of parents and friends. There are lots of different things I can thank You for Lord, big and small.

I thank You that I am able to worship you freely; I'm not stopped by my parents or law.

Thankyou, Lord Jesus, for giving me a Bible which I may read whenever I want. Thankyou, Lord, that no harm has come to me despite all the bombs and wars.

Jacqui.

FOR

in the beginning making our world. Most of all we thank You for sending us your only begotten Son, Jesus. Thankyou for our families and our homes in which we live. We think of the other children in foreign lands who have no families and no home. We thank You for letting us be so fortunate as to have enough food and water for everybody, not like so many people who are starving. We thank You for all the trees and plants in the world which make it so beautiful and lovely to live in. We thank You for our schools and teachers which help us to learn to read and write. We thankyou for the church where we learn about God, and also the Bible where we can learn to love and believe in God's Son, Jesus.

Amen

from Jane

THE three girls who wrote these thanksgivings come from our Gosport Church. Here is what their Pastor wrote to your Editor:

Dear Brother,

The leader of our Wednesday Club, our local equivalent of Junior Cursaders, suggested that I send you the enclosed letters. They were the result of one of the meetings where the children were asked to write and thank God for what He has done for them.

I have also enclosed a photograph of the three girls. They are (from left to right): Jacqui Vick (14 years); Nikki Cox (13 years); Jane Partington (14 years).

The leader of our Wednesday Club is Miss Janet Wilson.

Yours sincerely in Jesus,

PHILIP T. NIBLETT

BOOK REVIEW

Above Acorn Terrace, by Rosemary Patrick, published by Victory Press, price 50p, postage and packing 10p extra.

THIS readable adventure story about four children who meet a blind girl and try to help her to find new hope and life would be enjoyed by children of 9 to 11, especially girls. When Jonathon's family move into an old house near his young cousins it is not long before the children are exploring the attics above the whole terrace of houses where Jonathon lives. Their secret friendship with Amy, a blind girl living with an old grandmother, helps her to find Jesus as her Saviour and to be reunited with her parents. The book is recommended for its good value and enjoyable reading.

Monday, June 17th

"Thy heart is not right in the sight of God" (v.21).

SIMON is a sharp reminder that no external profession of Christ is acceptable without heart knowledge. Convinced of the truth by Philip's ministry and miracles and the fact that many presented themselves for believers' baptism, Simon joined them and was immersed himself. Other motives worked within, however, for he identified himself with Christianity for what use he could make of it (vv.18,19). This is not uncommon in any revival of religion. We must not blame Philip for letting Simon through, nor any modern evangelist for that matter when similar occurrences take place. Simon's moment of truth came. So will it to all those hearts that are not right with God.

Tuesday, June 18th

Acts 8:26-40

"Then the Spirit said. . . Go. . . And Philip ran" (vv.29,30).

IS there a clue here to the dearth in the salvation of souls today? Could it be that, unlike Philip, we close our minds to the promptings of the Spirit when it concerns speaking to others? Can we learn to make ourselves available to God and without hesitation or debate to respond as did Philip? Had he reflected, doubts could have hindered the work of God. For instance, the man was a stranger, he looked wealthy and important, and it meant interrupting his reading a book. He who hesitates is lost. Philip gave instant willing obedience and the outcome was glorious.

Wednesday, June 19th

Acts 9:1-19a

"Brother Saul" (v.17).

CONVERSION, then acceptance by believers, are of no small importance in the life of any new convert. Ananias was not too keen in this direction. His first thoughts suggest amazement and reluctance to fulfil a special, necessary friendship, acceptance of Saul (vv.13,14). After divine assurances, however, he demonstrated an attitude which is a lesson to us all, that of recognition, acceptance and friendship of the newly converted.

"Straightway he preached Christ" (v.20).

PAUL wasted no time in showing the genuineness of his new-found faith. He entered the synagogues and boldly proclaimed that Christ is the Son of God. Having believed in his heart, he now boldly confessed with his mouth his new-found Saviour and Lord. There is no greater proof of the reality of conversion than the desire to tell others. So powerful and effective was Paul's witness that he aroused the fury of the Jews, who plotted his death (v.23). "No-one persecutes a man who is ineffective and who obviously does not matter" (Barclay).

Friday, June 21st

"A disciple. . . full of good works" (v.36).

THIS lovely story of Tabitha reminds us of the practical character of the early Christians. We do not know much about her, but what we know glorifies God and comes as a challenge and a reminder. She was a disciple. She loved Jesus. Like her Saviour before her, Tabitha was "full of good works and almsdeeds". As we read this story let us remember that we have been "created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them" (Ephesians 2:10). Tabitha was known for her good works; it was a distinguishing mark in her life. Can this be said of you?

Saturday, June 22nd

Acts 10:1-16

"What is it, Lord,? And he said. . . Thy prayers and thine alms are come up. . . before God" (v.4).

CORNELIUS, a devout Roman captain, was constant in almsgiving and prayer. His piety influenced his entire household. Here we have an account of the preparation of this great man to receive the gospel. Acts 11:14 suggest that his prayer was for great knowledge of God and His will. It shows the concern that God has for genuine seekers after Himself and the dignity and honour that He has placed on mortal men as custodians of the gospel. God did not let the angel preach the gospel to the great man, but directed Cornelius to Peter and at almost the same time prepared His servant (vv.9-16).

Sunday, June 23rd

Acts 19:17-33

"Now here we are, waiting before the Lord, anxious to hear what He has told you to tell us" (v.33, Living Bible).

HOW thrilling to have a prepared congregation waiting with hungry hearts to hear what the preacher has to say — this must be every pastor's dream! Help to fulfil it today! Jesus said in his sermon on the mount: "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled" (Matthew 5:6). Not only the Spirit-anointed Word, but also the open, waiting heart ready to "receive with meekness the engrafted word" bring blessing. The household of Cornelius knew much of the presence and power of God that day. Was it because they came with prepared, open hearts?

To be Faithful

by Philip Gray

"Let not loyalty and faithfulness forsake you; bind them about your neck, write them on the tablet of your heart. So you will find favour and good repute in the sight of God and man" (Proverbs 3:3,4, RSV).

It is God's desire that every Christian should be faithful, true and loyal, thus to be more like God and our Lord Jesus Christ. The Scriptures tell us that "God is faithful", (1 Corinthians 1:9), and through His faithfulness we receive victory over temptation and forgiveness of sins (1 Corinthians 10:13; 1 John 1:9). Jesus Christ is our merciful and faithful high priest (Hebrews 2:17), for He "was faithful to Him that appointed Him" (Hebrews 3:2) and delighted in His Father's will (Psalm 40:8).

Concerning the Ministry

The Apostle Paul wrote under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, "It is required in stewards (of the mysteries of God) that a man be found faithful" (1 Corinthians 4:1, 2), and his own testimony was that God counted him faithful, putting him in the ministry (1 Timothy 1:12). He spoke of Timothy, his fellow-worker in the gospel, that he was "faithful in the Lord" (1 Corinthians 4:17), and gave him a recommendation that any minister of the gospel would desire: "I have no man like-minded who will naturally care for your state (the Christians at Philippi). For all seek their own, not the things which are Jesus Christ's" (Philippians 2:20, 21). Here we have a man who laboured for his Lord, went or stayed where the need arose, and as such was counted to be faithful.

Concerning the Believer

Writing to the Christians at Ephesus and Colosse, Paul refers to them as being faithful in the Lord (Ephesians 1:1; Colossians 1:2) and those who are mentioned in the Revelation as being with the Lord of lords and King of kings are considered to be "called and chosen, and faithful" (17:14). The extent of faithfulness is "unto death", and the prize "a crown of life". (Revelation 2:10).

Our first desire should be like that of Lydia: "to be faithful to the Lord" (Acts 16:15) and to keep His Word (Revelation 3:8). There were those in the times of Jeremiah the prophet who claimed that the Lord was speaking through them, but they were living a lie. The Lord was against such people, but concerning those who had the Word of God He said, "Let him speak My Word faithfully: What is the chaff to the wheat?" (Jeremiah 23:28). Paul did not shun to declare the whole counsel of God (Acts 20:27) and we are told earnestly to contend for the faith (Jude v. 3), living a life of obedience to the Word (John 14:15) and hating every false way (Psalm 119:128).

We should be faithful to the church to which we belong, "not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together. . . considering one another to provoke unto love and to good works" (Hebrews 10:24, 25), excelling to the edifying of the church (1 Corinthians 14:12), visiting the widows and fatherless in their affliction (James 1:27), praying for and forgiving one another (James 5:16; Ephesians 4:32), supplying those in need (John 3:17), endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace (Ephesians 4:3), for such is the desire of our Lord (John 7:21). Is it possible for those who are unfaithful to their own church to be faithful and of service to God in the universal Body of Christ?

Those who have been made overseers by the Holy Spirit should feed the Church of God (Acts 20:28) and follow the example of Him who said, "I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth His life for the sheep" (John 10:11). Likewise, every Christian should be faithful to those who minister and labour among them and "esteem them highly in love for their work's sake" (1 Thessalonians 5:12, 13).

A CHURCH in Greater Birmingham where I minister occasionally thought up a scheme for attracting outsiders into their Sunday night meetings. The building lies near to some popular hills and open spaces. They made arrangements to offer refreshments to passers-by and made plans for having tea, coffee, etc., available. They were very disappointed with the results. The last straw seemed to be when a man accepted refreshment, but screwed up the proffered tract and threw it into the road with an expression of disdain.

The very next Sunday, a lady came to the church and told how that she was seeking God. She was pointed to the Saviour and found her rest, peace and joy in Him.

What is amazing is that she told the friends that she had been walking down the road feeling so anxious to find somebody or some way, anything that would help her to discover a way to meet the need of her heart and life.

She noticed a screwed-up piece of paper in the gutter, picked it up, read it, found on it an invitation to the church and went there the following Sunday.

It is certain that this was the very leaflet that the man threw away.

You never know, do you?

WE hear of a number of friends who were healed and of many who were baptised in the Holy Spirit at our Conference. If you were one of those who were thus blessed, please let us hear from you. Your testimony could be of great help to others.

Front cover picture: Cardiff City Temple elders Bill Price (left) and Ted Morgan (right) had a pleasant surprise at what they thought was an ordinary annual Elim Boys' Club old boys' reunion. They were presented with a Bible each and their wives with flowers for their services as the Club's leaders. Over fifty people, mostly old boys, cheered the two men as they received their Bibles. Afterwards Mr. Price said: "I can't express how I feel. It came as a complete surprise". Mr. Morgan added: "It was embarrassing, but a wonderful surprise". Making the presentation, Pastor Ramon Hunston (centre) said: "I know how much the boys and the other leaders appreciate your ministry to the boys". He described the two men as "men of the Book". Before the presentation, Mr. Morgan and Mr. Price sang a duet which they stressed was by special request and unrehearsed. In one of a number of testimonies, old boy David Edwards recalled the annual boys' camp which had a big effect on his life.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

ELIM YOUTH WEEKEND

THE Friday evening saw a great start to a great weekend at Bolton. As parties from the various churches arrived, everyone got to know everyone. Pastor J.A. Austin spoke on Psalm 119. We had a session of chorus singing, followed by supper, after which the girls were sent to sleep in the homes of the Bolton members while the men prepared to sleep in the church.

Everyone met again for breakfast, after which Pastor P.A. Epton from Birkenhead gave a talk on walking in the Spirit. This was followed by a tarrying meeting in which two boys received the baptism in the holy spirit.

After lunch we broke up into small groups for door to door work and street evangelism. We all gathered for tea later, after which we assembled in church for the evening rally which seventy-nine people attended. Groups from Bolton and Birkenhead sang, a testimony was given by a Wigan member and the message was given by Pastor D.S. Williams from Silverdale. One person decided for Christ.

On the Sunday we all attended the Communion service. A film was shown in the afternoon and in the evening we attended the gospel service. Youth from all the churches represented formed sang two hymns, two testimonies were given and Pastor Ivan Potts from Accrington interviewed some of the young folk about their Christian witness. Pastor Potts ministered from Luke 15. Several young people signified their desire to follow our Lord. All were personally counselled afterwards. Everyone felt that a great work had been accomplished over this weekend.

Thanks are expressed to Pastor and Mrs. Austin and all their helpers.

IT was a unique day for our Sunday School and branch Sunday School, at neighbouring Wyrley Birch, for it was "Bulb Sunday". Some weeks previously every Sunday school scholar had been given a pot containing bulb fibre and a crocus bulb, the name of which was "Remembrance", which they were instructed to bury in the ground — the spot to be marked with a stick. At a later date they were told to lift the pot, and two or three weeks later to bring it along to the service, where all the entrants were judged by Pastor W.J. Patterson. A fine display of purple crocus bulbs were arrayed on a table and boys and girls from three different age groups were awarded prizes.

Pastor Patterson had a few words to say about the origin of the word, "Crocus", and the children were later enthralled by his imitation of the sounds of various birds and animals. His talk concluded with the subject of families.

Special thanks must be given to Mr. Burton, our photographer, and to the firm of Proffitt and Westwood Ltd., Boldmere, from whom the pots, fibre and bulbs were purchased, and who showed such interest in our "project".

Pastor: G.J. Fearn

OUR fourth baptismal service in eighteen months proved to be a time of great blessing. There were eight candidates, six young men and two young ladies. Before their immersion, each gave a splendid testimony to a congregation of more than 100. After an inspiring address by our Pastor, eight people signified their desire to know the Lord. The result has been a great influx to our Tuesday night prayer meetings where we are having much blessing.

At the presentation of the film, "The Cross and the Switchblade" in the main hall of the Technical College to a gathering of over 450 people, an appeal was made at the close and a number made enquiries concerning the way of salvation.

Our gracious Lord is doing a mighty work here.

Pastor: G.R. Knight

THE visit of Pastor Joseph Smith for a special series of Bible studies proved to be a much-needed uplift in these days of stress and strain. The meetings were well attended and were convened by our Pastor.

Pastor J. Lancaster (President) was with us for one night and his ministry was much appreciated.

Two babies were recently dedicated by Pastor L.W. Green, one being the infant son of Pastor and Mrs. Knight.

As the Bridgend Church has no baptistry, Pastor

R.A. Holdstock held a baptismal service at Barry when twelve young people obeyed the Lord by following Him through the waters. On the following Sunday a party of nine Barry young people participated in a similar service.

(Mrs.) E. HIGGS

BURTON UPON TRENT Pastor: D.C. Crawford
RIGHT from the start, we were conscious of the Lord's presence at our sisterhood weekend. Our speaker was Mrs. Smeeton, wife of the A.O.G. Pastor at Uttoxeter. We were greatly blessed by her anointed ministry each evening. Our soloist on Saturday was Mrs. Brown, wife of the local Pattern Church Pastor and we were richly blessed by her singing. Our duet-tists on Sunday were our two young organists, who also brought blessing with both items.

The ladies of the sisterhood took part each evening with readings, testimonies, recitations etc., and all took part on the Sunday in a singing item entitled, "The Light of the old rugged Cross", a really lovely piece.

We praise God for the souls saved in the last few weeks and for the blessing on the services. We give God all the glory.

(Mrs.) V. SHIPLEY

ASHINGDON, Essex Pastor: C.D. Stockdale
WHAT a variety of needs God met when Patrick G. Rose from Clacton-on-Sea ministered nightly during our nine-day campaign. Many were convicted, many received a greater experience of the working of the Holy Spirit and several were healed.

One young man who had been suffering with recurring pain in his knee since a motor-bike accident several years ago had an instantaneous healing while receiving the infilling of the Spirit and manifesting the Gift of Tongues.

In an area where material needs are few it is proving to be a difficult task to reveal to the unsaved their deep spiritual need of a Saviour, but some unconverted folk attended the meetings and were clearly shown their need by the prayerful, challenging preaching of Pastor Rose.

A childrens campaign, with filmstrips, quizzes, competitions and prizes was also held each evening of the week by Pastor John Harrison of Lowestoft. Over 140 different children came during the week and several received Jesus Christ into their hearts. We thank God because we now have contact with a further sixty-six families in the area.

The meetings ended on Mother's Day when a family service was held and many parents came to hear the gospel, several of whom afterwards asked for literature about the Christian life.

We were thankful to the local newspaper for including an article about the campaign and also to the Spurling family, Rosalind and Alan, "Connection", Anna and Myra and the Twilley sisters for bringing much blessing through the ministry of song.

WE recently concluded a five day missionary exhibition which the Lord made a great blessing. We will long remember it. Under the leadership of our Missionary Secretary, Leslie Wigglesworth, and Chairman, R.B. Chapman. The ministry of both our brethren was much appreciated; it was a challenge and a spiritual uplift to all. It was delightful to have fellowship with some of our missionaries home on furlough. Miss Vera McGillivray, an old friend of the Croydon Church, Henry Jeffery, who brought us encouraging news of how the Lord is working in Brazil, (it is surprising how little we know of this great country) and David and Margaret Kilpatrick, who came straight from London Airport. The missionary pageant on the Saturday was performed very well and was greatly appreciated. The missionary exhibition and the personal fellowship with our missionaries have brought the work closer to our hearts. We praise God for all the blessings received and pray that the Lord will bless and guide our missionaries and the Missionary Council.

DRIFFIELD

Pastor: D.B. Tinnion

OUR One-way week crusade lasted only one week, but work began months ago. The town and district were divided into seven districts; each area had its file for names and addresses of contacts young and old. Over 2,000 houses were personally visited and to many more were sent invitations. Altogether thousands of people were invited.

Pastor David G. Woodfield and Mrs. Carol Horner joined us for the special week. Their ministries were much appreciated and most nights our church was packed; on some nights it was standing room only. The children's meetings were well attended. There were so many children that we had to clear the chairs away and let the children sit on the floor. On some evenings the youth group held after-services with Pastors Woodfield and Tinnion. We praise the Lord that all our youth group are now baptised in the Holy Spirit.

After the Sunday evening service, when the church was again full, our Pastor led us in a time of praise and testimony. It was good to hear so many people testify of the Lord's goodness during the week. Families had been saved, girl friends had come to know the Lord, boy friends had been baptised in the Spirit. God had answered our prayers.

RUTH WATSON

HOVE

FOR Pastor T.W. Thomson, it was just another day. He knew that he was due at the church at 4 p.m., but he thought that it was just a few of the young people getting together. They were — with about 150 other guests, friends and relations taking part in a "This is your Life" story to commemorate the retirement of Mr. Thomson at the end of March. By the evening, he had had so many surprises, that the day became "the most memorable day in my life" (to use his own words).

Mrs. Thomson played a very important part in supplying names and addresses to be contacted. Members and friends were given a letter the week before giving details and were asked to keep the secret.

Pastor Thomson was ushered in at the pulpit end of the church. Even then he was unaware of a church full of well-wishers sitting in the dark awaiting his entry to be picked out by a spot-light and cameras from the local press to capture his surprise.

Mr. Alan Jarred, Church Secretary, was the presenter. He also worked hard and long on the presentation book, letters, photographs, taped messages and arranging guests, some of whom had travelled many miles for the event. Guests included the bridesmaids at Pastor and Mrs. Thomson's wedding, treasurers and secretaries from some of the churches that he had pastored. Relations included Mr. and Mrs. Thomson's daughter, Thelma, and son-in-law Pastor Jim Ritchie from Weston super Mare. At the end of the programme, having heard a taped greeting from their son, Graeme, and thinking, no doubt, that they had had enough surprises for one day, Alan announced one last special guest — Graeme, flown over from Ireland for the weekend and kept in hiding at a member's home. The atmosphere was electric!

After tea, prepared by Hove members, items were rendered by friends from the International Bible Institute, Thelma Ritchie, and Chrys Brotherton, whose poems are a constant blessing to the church.

The members and friends of Hove thank the Lord for five years of faithful ministry and pray God's richest blessing on Pastor and Mrs. Thomson in the future.

BILL HOLDSTOCK

BRIGHTON, The Lanes

Pastor: F.A. Hodge

IN the past year we have seen miracle upon miracle happening. During the winter 1972-73 we had no proper heating. Special prayer was made in this connection and in an amazingly short time an efficient, modern central heating system was installed and paid for. Then a proposal was made to renovate the church. We again committed this matter to the Lord. Plans were put forth, a colour scheme was approved and a definite date set for the work to commence. Parts of the building had not been painted for more than 150 years. Some of the pews had a similar number of years of paint and varnish on them. Weeks and weeks of washing and cleaning off the old varnish and re-varnishing transformed these pews. All the seat cushions were re-covered for which many yards of cloth were used. New lighting was installed and this with the lovely colour scheme has restored its former beauty to this church. The dome is now seen at its best. The Lord has certainly done more than we could ask or think. Praise His wonderful name!

In no smaller measure, God's spiritual blessing has rested on the members of the church. The rededication service was conducted by the then President, J. Lancaster. It set the seal on our fellowship in Christ Jesus, which had been progressing as we worked together for long hours in the evenings.

Attendances at services is increasing. The youth group is growing and is evangelistic in its outlook under the dedicated leadership of Colin Hirst, who ably assists our Pastor.

We recently had a baptismal service when six young members went through the waters, witnessing afterwards of the worldly life that they had given up, and the joy and peace that they had found in Christ.

Our Pastor had been in great demand for broadcasting religious programmes from the local radio station and these have been very well received by listeners.

H. BARRETT

ANTRIM, N. Ireland

Pastor: R.L. Kerr

OUR first four-day convention was held in the Methodist Church Hall and was convened by our Church Leader, R.L. Kerr. Good numbers attended and we saw God move in a wonderful way. Our hearts were moved by the spiritual ministry from God's Word by the two visiting Pastors, W.G. Mullan and A.D. Sandford. On the Monday and Tuesday nights, as our convention came to an end, it was evident that God was speaking. Many expressed their enjoyment of the services and the tremendous ministry.

Tyre Trouble

by Archie Nicolson

SUDDENLY the car was out of control on the dual carriageway. It mounted the kerb of the nearside reservation, then shot across the carriageway, crossing the central reservation and going on to the wrong side of the dual carriageway. It was nothing short of a miracle that the driver managed to get off the road and on to the central reservation again without causing what might have been a very serious accident. The car was at an angle with about a third of it projecting on to the road on the correct side of the carriageway when another car skidded on the wet surface and hit the stationary vehicle.

It all began as a result of one of the front tyres deflating suddenly on a greasy road. The amazing thing is that no-one was killed or even injured. Some people would say, "Sheer luck, old chap". Others might suggest that the driver's stars were in the right position for his protection. One ought to mention that the driver and his wife, who was also in the car, are Christians. I quote from a letter which a ministerial friend, in whose church the driver had been preaching that day, sent to them on hearing the news: "When I announced the contents of your letter to the church one woman exclaimed, 'Now I know why I had to pray for them when I got home from the service'."

It was not my luck, not the stars, but the protecting care of a heavenly Father, into whose hands my wife and I commit ourselves daily.

By the way, if you get an urge to pray for someone, please do not ignore it; it could mean so much to them!

Religion

by A. S. F. Horne,
Pastor of our Ipswich Church

I HAVE heard it said that it is not religion that is needed, but Christ. I am not going to argue with anyone about that, but I often wonder what people think religion means. It is a word that is easily spoken or written, but its meaning is not so easily conceived. Whatever it means, I believe that there must be earnestness. We must be earnest in whatever we do. I believe that the religious man must be more earnest than anyone else.

Religion is one of the most comprehensive words in the English language. It includes God and man, time and eternity, heaven and hell.

In the Anglo-Saxon, it signified to hold, to bind, to tie fast, and it is very appropriately applied to the principle that binds us to God and to everything pure and spiritual for His sake.

Connected with religion are:—

Conviction of sin, for religious life begins with sorrow — sorrow for sin. It does not begin with experience, but with truth. Dr. Stephen Olford told 120 ministers at Croydon, "We are moving from experience to make our own truth, instead of moving from truth to claim our own experience". What consciousness of sin, what deep sense of guilt are implied in the expression!

"To this man will I look, saith the Lord, even to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and that trembleth at My word". The sacrifices acceptable to God are "a broken and contrite heart". I pray that more often we shall hear the prayer, "God be merciful to me a sinner".

There must be repentance. This repentance includes the forsaking and loathing of anything that we know to be sinful and an earnest desire to serve God fully.

Faith comes next. This is not a simple assent to the truth of certain doctrines, but a full trust and reliance on Christ for pardon, peace and eternal life. "Whoever believes in (trusts, clings to, relies on) Him shall not perish (come to destruction, be lost) but have eternal (everlasting) life" (John 3:16, Amp.).

Peace and Joy follow. "Being justified by faith, we have peace with God" and our peace and our joy will be proportionate to our trust in the Saviour. Strong faith will produce great peace and settled joy. He who believes fully and rests firmly on Christ will have peace like a river and the joy of the Lord will be his strength.

Love, love that includes loving the Lord supremely and love to all mankind for His sake, not in word only, but in deed and in truth. The love of God is shed abroad (or poured) into our hearts.

Many have forgotten that prayer is connected with religion. We are to pray always, to continue instant in prayer, to live a life of prayer, to pray in the Holy Spirit; everything is to be a channel for prayer.

The Great Creator

by Sam Lacey

*If you have seen a beautiful dawn or a twilight glow,
Did you think of the Architect who made it look just so?*

*The valleys so green, the sky oh, so blue,
Birds of all colours, flowers of all hue,
The wonderful stars, the sunshine so bright,
Light in the daytime, darkness at night.*

*Who was the Planner who was so divine?
Who turned water into beautiful wine?
He made the small insects and birds to fly,
Rising aloft to pattern the sky.*

*The great rolling ocean, the smallest stream,
Man and woman – a wonderful team,
Small and big fishes, the lobster, the prawn,
Without the Creator could not have been born:*

*He sees our sadness and hears our mirth,
Lovingly watches what we do on Earth.
Yes, it's wonderful Jesus and that's what He's done—
Even high in the heavens, placed stars, moon and sun.
Oh! King of kings, in Thy home high above,
We send You our thanks, our praise and our love.*

Stirchley, Birmingham).

GLEANINGS

The Central Christ

by S. E. Petts

"They crucified Him, and two other with Him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst"
(John 19:18).

THE tabernacle in the wilderness was set up at the command of God. Every detail was precisely explained. The Ark of the Covenant which reposed in the Most Holy Place represented the presence of God Himself. Around the tabernacle were the camps of the twelve tribes of the chilren of Israel, three to the north, three to the east, three to the south and three to the west, so that the camp as a whole was in the form of a cross with God in the midst.

This was a picture of the cross of our Lord.
On the hill of Calvary there were three crosses and He was in the centre. So it must be in our lives; unless Christ is in the middle, they are wasted, useless in God's sight. So many hopeless, depressed, lost folk today lack just this:
Christ in the heart. It is not enough just to give Him a place there; He must be given the central place. It is not enough to give consideration to the claims of Christ, to take Him into account, or to decide that a philosophy based on His life is worth trying to follow; Christ must be central, right at the very heart of things, controlling all.
If He is to come into our lives He must come in to reign. He will not patch up, but recreate the whole.

It makes you think...

If some used the excuses on the job that they use about not going to church, they would be telling the boss too many hypocrites are working for him so they think they will quit!

It is easier to acquire a good reputation than to lose a bad one.

Object Lesson on Sin. Lowell Dowdy, missionary to Ecuador, told how a guide called their attention to a tree that had been killed by a vine known as Mata Palo (kill the stick). The seed of this vine, very small, is carried by the wind and finds lodging in the forks of trees. Then, like an octopus, the branches of this vine entwine around and around the tree, and it sucks the life out of its victim.

When a man has no good reason for doing a thing, he has one good reason for leaving it alone.—Sir Walter Scott.

Talking organs?

..talk to Roland Friday at Sharon

Nationwide churches choose Sharon Music for their new and second hand electronic organs because Sharon offers selection and service second to none.

Over 200 successfully completed installations prove that no church is too big, too small, nor too far away to be beyond the Sharon service.

Advice and delivery are absolutely free and we can offer special finance facilities tailor made to help any church purchase the instrument of its choice. With over 200 organs always in stock Sharon have a selection second to none – and remember Hammond organs start at under £400.

So if you're talking organs – talk to the specialists – we're only a letter or telephone call away.

A unique opportunity...

With a current trend towards "automatic", and "easy play" features in so many organs the Hammond N100 has a welcome absence of such gimmickery and represents an ideal instrument for many churches.

The N100 produces adequate sound to fill most churches with a wide variety of tones and effects selected with simplicity of operation. The famous Leslie Speaker completes a comprehensive specification.

At only £786 this Hammond is a fine and unique opportunity for your church to purchase a new organ through a special purchasing scheme available on this particular model. For full details send in the coupon or telephone Roland Friday on 0227 54848.

The Christian Ordinance of Baptism

by W. J. Maybin, D.Th., Pastor of our Southampton Church

THE Christian ordinance of baptism is based on the New Testament for its theology and practice. The two basic ordinances, baptism and the Lord's Supper, have an Old Testament background and a New Testament institution. It is impossible, therefore, to separate these ordinances from the Word, as A.M. Stibbs states so clearly in his book Understanding The Sacraments: "Detached from this Word the sacraments are meaningless and assure us of nothing. The Word of God and its ministry are therefore primary; the sacraments are complementary and subservient to the Word. While one may get much profit from the reading and hearing of God's Word without any use of the sacraments, one can get no true profit from the use of the sacraments without God's Word".

Augustine wisely remarked, "Let the Word come to the element and you shall have a sacrament". These ordinances are of value only when coupled with the Word of God and such is the position of the churches of the Reformation. The Word and the sacraments belong together.

The New Testament teaches, and our experience confirms, that the repentant, believing sinner is begotten through the Word of God and the work of the Holy Spirit (James 1:18; 1 Peter 1:23-25). The outcome and expression of faith are submission to baptism. As James Denny avered, "Baptism and faith are but the outside and the inside of the same thing". The New Testament shows baptism to have been a step of obedience and surrender that helped the convert to develop in the faith. Nowhere in the New Testament is it ever presented as an optional extra to discipleship; it was an accepted step following confession of faith in Christ, as Peter says, "the answer of a good conscience" (1 Peter 3:21).

The Institution of the Ordinance

The use of water in religious ceremonial is a matter of antiquity. A study of the Graeco-Roman world will show that the religions of that period were no exception. Among the Hebrews we meet with ceremonial washings (though they were not endowed with any sacramental significance) in the Pentateuchal writings, but in the prophets stress is laid on moral (internal) purity (Isaiah 1:16; Jeremiah 4:14). These references admit the insufficiency of outward ablutions, but they also anticipate inward renewal through Christ, when the shadow would have given place to the substance.

Jewish proselyte baptism, which made provision for Gentiles to enter the fold of Judaism, required the candidate not only to become subject to the demands of the Law and receive circumcision, but also to be baptised in the presence of witnesses.

In the ministry of John the Baptist, referred to by the Jewish historian of the first century, Josephus, as "John the Baptiser", Jesus submitted to his baptism, meeting the rugged evangelist's reluctance with the words, "Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness" (Matthew 3:15). A. Gilmour in his excellent treatise on Christian Baptism, referring to Jesus being baptised by John, says: "He ensured that the rite could never be the same again. By virtue of His participation in it, it was, at one and the same time, broken and remade, negated and fulfilled".

In submitting to John's baptism, which was in effect sinner's baptism, Jesus showed His willingness in the end to submit to the sinner's judgment i.e., death on a cross. This He did and, in His triumphant exit from the place of death, He fulfilled Johannine baptism, negated it, and, vested by God with the fulness of His mediatorial authority, instituted what we now know as believer's baptism (Matthew 28:19, 20). Recognising this complete authority, Peter commanded the Pentecostal converts to repent and to be baptised in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and they would receive the gift of the Holy Ghost (Acts 2:38). Peter linked baptism with repentance, the forgiveness of sins and the fulness of the Holy Spirit.

The Formula of the Ordinance Prescribed by Jesus, according to Matthew 28:19 it was baptism "into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost". Authorities differ in their interpretation of these words, some contending that they simply imply baptism on the authority of the triune name. Others feel that the Greek construction of the Master's words infer that the subject baptised, according to L. Berkhof, “was symbolically introduced ‘into the name of Christ’, that is, became His disciple, that is, entered into a state of allegiance to and fellowship with Him”. So, when we read in Acts 2:38; 10:48 of baptism in the name of Jesus Christ, or in the name of the Lord, a part is put for the whole. Calvin contended that, when the New Testament speaks of baptism in the name of Christ, it should be remembered that “Christ is the matter or rather the life-blood of all the Sacraments”. It was baptism upon the authority of Jesus Christ.

The Mode of Baptism

Christendom is generally agreed that water is necessary for the administration of the rite, but division of opinion has come as to the quantity used and the mode to be employed. Is it sprinkling, pouring or immersion in deep water?

Some hold that, provided the significance of the rite is observed, the mode, and therefore the quantity of the water used, are of secondary importance. They contend that the mode is not clearly stated in the New Testament, a point with which we are bound to differ. If we look at the story of the Ethiopian eunuch, it seems quite clear that “they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch: and he baptised him. . . And when they were come up out of the water. . .” (Acts 8:38, 39).

I find myself in agreement with those who believe that total immersion in deep water is in accord with the meaning of the Greek verb baptizo, that it fits with the account just cited, and lines up with the picture employed by Paul in Romans 6:4, that of death and burial. Strong in his Systematic Theology argues for “immersion and immersion only”.

If proselyte baptism and that of John the Baptist were by total immersion in order to show complete dedication, is it likely that the New Testament rite would be less diligent in its demands? Reference to Early Church writings reveals that immersion was the norm for the first four centuries of the Church. Martin Luther averred that immersion suited the meaning of the word, while Dean Stanley had to admit, “There can be no question that the original form of baptism — the very meaning of the word — was complete immersion in the deep baptismal waters”.

The writer recalls with delight hearing the late Dr. Alexander Frazer of Scotland address an Irish Keswick Convention gathering in the late 'forties. He told his great congregation in his own inimitable way that he had recently made a study of the Greek verb baptizō and said that his advice to any of Presbyterian persuasion present was not to look at the matter too closely or they might find themselves in deep water! Indeed, the word translated correctly means to “immerse” or “dip”.

The Subjects of Baptism

If the mode has divided Christendom, so has the question as to whether baptism should be confined to those who are capable of personal faith in Christ and publically confess the same, or whether children of such believers should be included. Can a satisfactory case be presented for one or the other?

Take the practice of infant baptism. The Roman Catholic Church holds that this rite is necessary for the removal of original sin. Since a child cannot of itself exercise faith, baptism in the faith of the church is essential, therefore unbaptised infants are excluded from heaven if they die in such a condition, God in His mercy providing the Limbus Infantum for such. It is a case of one wrong doctrine making another wrong doctrine necessary.

The Lutheran Church defends the practice chiefly in the interests of church tradition. The Anglican position is framed in Article XXVII “as most agreeable with the institution of Christ”, while the Westminster Confession of Faith reads, “But the infants descending from parents, either both, or but one of them, professing faith in Christ, and obedience to Him are in that respect within the covenant, and to be baptised”. Both Anglican and Reformed Churches argue from the premise that, since baptism is represented in the New Testament as a divinely-appointed sign or token of God’s covenant with His people, and that, throughout the Bible, a man’s children are included with him in that covenant, then infant baptism is permissible. When we study the New Testament, however, the position seems clear that baptism was never administered to those who were not already professed believers.

About A.D. 200, Tertullian of Carthage strongly denounced infant baptism, which was just beginning to come into fashion, and Karl Barth argues: “In the sphere of the New Testament one is not brought to baptism; one comes to baptism”. That statement is a telling one and leads us to consider adult or believer’s baptism. There can be no doubt, if one takes an honest look at the New Testament, that adults constitute the normal case. The key-word in the New Testament is “believe”, and such verses as Mark 16:16; Acts 2:41; 8:21 show that faith was regarded as prior to baptism. One can only enter the kingdom by personal commitment and the overwhelming evidence of the New Testament is that baptism was the rite by which the convert was admitted to the Church. Such an act was a symbol for all who performed it of God’s grace towards them and at the same time involved them in personal union with Christ, a witness to their faith in Him, a pledge of their loyalty to Him, and a willingness to share fellowship with those of like faith.

Our Cheltenham Church

Researcher: P. G. Parsons

IN 1943, Mrs. Dorothea Dangerfield, daughter of a Church of England Clergyman, and author of Homely Talks on Divine Healing contributions to THE ELIM EVANGEL, introduced the Pentecostal Witness to Cheltenham. The first services were held in the Old Manse Hall, Oxford Passage, and for about a year were under the auspices of The Highways and Hedges Mission. They then joined with the Elim Pentecostal Churches of Essex under the supervision of Pastor George Kingston. In 1948 the meetings were moved to premises in Winchcombe Street, where Pastor S. Rawlings succeeded Pastor H. Speakman.

Open-air witness and tent campaigns brought blessing and increase down the years. In 1954, for administration's sake, the fellowship merged with the main body, the Elim Foursquare Gospel Alliance, and, in 1957, a local convert and son-in-law of Pastor Rawlings, Pastor A.D. Sandford, took the pastorate. A building fund was launched, the house-premises being too small, and by 1962 £1,000 had been raised. The Church again moved to large house premises with garden frontage, at 117 St. Georges Road, which became the site for the present lovely Elim Pentecostal Church and Headquarters' office, which were opened in 1968.

In 1970, Pastor A.D. Sandford was appointed to our Ballymena Church in N. Ireland on the retirement of Pastor A.J.K. Magee. Mr. Magee, however, was invited to take the pastorate of our Cheltenham Church. This he did and with his wife entered enthusiastically

A. D. Sandford

siastically into the work of ministering to the Church. Mr. Magee's ministry was widely recognised throughout the Movement and many churches profited from it. Cheltenham was now ready to share the blessing of his ministry. God blessed in a remarkable way. Many who sat under his ministry did so with much spiritual profit, but probably his ability to attract young people was the outstanding feature of his work. Many were saved under Pastor Magee's preaching. Unfortunately his health began to fail, but he struggled on until he could no longer minister. After two years of faithful service God called His servant home to his well-merited reward.

Pastor A.J. Downes was called from Guernsey to take over the pastorate. He has addressed himself to the task with aplomb, energy, courage and blessing. The work of God continues to prosper under his ministry. By his graciousness he has won his way into the hearts of the people. With his wife, and daughter Ruth, he has been in charge since July 1972 and they are seeing a work of consolidation taking place which gives cause for praise and which augurs well for the future.

A story that Jesus told

UNCLE John and I have produced this Bible story in pictures. I wonder if you can tell what it is all about and where it is found in the Bible? If you do this and explain the meaning behind the final picture and send it to me: Uncle Archie, 80 Kimbolton Road, Copnor, Portsmouth, I will put your name in this column.

An Outline

God's united Nations

Revelation 9:9-17

HOW was this wonderful unity achieved? Here are what the symbols suggest.

1. The Robe: purity, the righteousness of the saints (Isaiah 61:10; Revelation 9:17, 8). Impurities cannot cohere (1 John 1:7).
2. The Palm: victory, the symbol of conquest; "taking the palm" over self, sin and Satan (Romans 5:17; Revelation 12:11).
3. The Song: joy and gladness; the unifying influence of the common song; a new song (Revelation 5:9; 14:3; Psalm 40:3) "a song of deliverance, of courage and strength"; for the stain of sin, the robe, for despair and defeat, the palm, and for sadness, a song.

A Quotation

Always more to follow

In his A Theology of the Holy Spirit, Frederick Dale Brunner says, "The Pentecostal's passion for 'more' is, for us, the most persuasively interesting feature in the Pentecostal testimonia reviewed above". He further quotes: T.B. Barratt (In the Days of the Latter Rain) — "I felt the need of a still greater blessing over my own soul. I knew there must be a still deeper word"; Levi Pethrus, (of Philadelphia Church, Sweden) — "I felt there must be more for me, otherwise my Christian life would be a failure. I was fully convinced there was more to be had"; Donald Gee (A.O.G, England) — "The Pentecostal Movement attracted hungry hearts among the most spiritual ranks of Christians. They longed for more of God"; Carl Brumback (U.S.A.) — "Long prayerful hours spent in searching the Books of the Acts and the Epistles convinced these believers that the early Christians enjoyed a much richer and fuller experience than they themselves had yet received".

A Prayer

Sweet Hour of Prayer

LORD, what a change within us
One short hour in Thy presence will avail to make.
What heavy burdens from our bosoms take,
What parched ground refreshed, as with a shower.
We kneel, and all around us seems to lower.
We rise, and all the distant and the near Stands forth in sunny outline, brave and clear.
We kneel, how weak; we rise, how full of power.
Why therefore should we do ourselves this wrong,

Or others, that we are not always strong;
That we are sometimes overborne with care;
That we should weak or heartless be?
Archbishop R.C. Trench, D.D.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

11. The Assurance of Jehovah (Exodus 6:5-8)

by F. Lavender,

Pastor of our Croydon Church

DO any other four verses of Scripture contain as many assurances as Exodus 6:5-8? This passage commences with two assurances in the past tense, then continues with seven which relate to the future. Moses was cast down following the initial failure of his mission to Pharaoh and the Word of the Lord was designed to lift him up and to give him courage. How could Moses fail to be cheered by this overwhelming catalogue of divine assurances?

Basically the Lord assured Moses of five things. First, that He had heard the cry of the people of Israel; He knew of their distress and was not indifferent. Second, that His covenant with Abraham was always before Him; He would never go back on His pledged word. Third, He would deliver Israel, the children of Abraham, from bondage to Egypt and would break the power of their oppressors. Fourth, He would not deliver them and then forsake them, leaving them as orphans, but His redeeming love would make Him their God for ever and they would be His own people. Finally, He would guide them through the wilderness to the promised land; having redeemed them He would bring them to the place of blessing which He had prepared for them.

What a glorious and thrilling word this is! God is not indifferent to us in our times of distress. When our hearts cry out to Him, His heart reaches out to us. The covenant which He has made with us is always before Him, for it is infinitely costly because it has been sealed with the precious blood of His Son. He has brought us out of the bondage to sin for His dear Son's sake, and has broken sin's power and crushed our murderous adversary, the Devil. He is both our God and our Father; we are His own children. He has not left us as orphans, but has promised never to leave nor forsake us. He has said that He will guide us on our journey and bring us safely to our heavenly home.

If He has given His precious Son for us, will He withhold one good thing from us? We can gladly cry: "If God be for us, who can be against us?" (Romans 8:31,32).

Margaret M. Laddow's page

Tell it to the Generation following

MAY I refresh your memory of, and re-kindle your interest in, the discovery of the three newspapers hidden in a bottle in 1880 recently found in the wall of our Church at Salisbury. I have now had time to read much of their contents — quite a task, as the type is very small and the lines close together. The advertisements and trade notices caused me considerable amusement, but what impressed me most was that all three papers gave prominence to church affairs. Each newspaper allotted a whole page to an almost verbatim account of a great diocesan mission festival.

The proceedings commenced with a children's service at the Cathedral. Almost 1,000 children gathered, bringing with them bunches of flowers and, if possible, a penny each for the missionary funds. It must have been a delightful scene. The occasion was enhanced by the singing of their fresh young voices. The preacher was a missionary and an excerpt from the newspaper will interest my readers and prove that the Victorians knew a thing or two about getting through to children. Here I quote:

"The preacher was The Ven. W.W. Kirkby, Archdeacon of York, Hudson's Bay, whose text was part of the 36th verse of the 12th chapter of John — "While ye have light believe in the light, that ye may be children of light". The Archdeacon's discourse was a thoroughly practical one and was to a great extent of an interrogative character, questions being put to the children at intervals, which were readily and intelligently answered. In the course of his address the Ven. Archdeacon pointed out that children were always ready to receive the truth, if calmly, patiently, and reverently set before them; also that the children of today were destined to play a very important part in church life as they grew older. . . On leaving the Cathedral, the children deposited their flowers in baskets provided for the purpose at the West door. The contents were packed and sent to London by the earliest available train, to gladden the hearts of many who perchance have never seen a flower garden or a green field in their lives".

After reading this and the detailed account of the rest of the festival services I felt a wonderful joy, a satisfaction and a unity with those of a previous generation of Christians, who are with us still as an integral part of the Body of Christ and of the Church universal. The amazing work and missionary zeal of the four missionaries who gave reports of their respective fields made fascinating reading. We shall never know even a fraction of the sacrificial service and devotion of the gospel pioneers. The speakers told of the triumphs of the gospel from the Arctic Circle to the humidity of British Guiana, from the island of Madagascar to the great empire of China. I felt a justifiable pride in the marvellous power of God.

To return to the present, I must put a query on my page. In these days of so-called freedom and the advocating of free expression, are we in danger of neglecting our children by refraining from impressing on them the facts of a great inheritance of missionary endeavour? The future and the present should be seen in the light of the past. We owe it to our youth to tell them something of the past and then our children and young people will get a true perspective of life and the value of Christian service.

Godly Asaph, David's songleader, must have felt the same when he penned the words of Psalm 78:4-8. He insisted that the strength and the wonderful works of the Lord must be recounted from generation to generation. Let us never descend to the trivial or the flippant, but, when speaking to our children and teenagers, both at home and in church, let us remember to relate always the stories of the heroes of faith and of the mighty acts of our God.

Using your Camera for God

by David Butcher, Elim Missionary, Nelspruit, S. Africa

"PASTOR, what can I do?" How often these words must be spoken! At the same time, how often we fail to take our own abilities and use them for the glory of God and the benefit of the Church.

I have noticed that this year there is a competition for Crusaders' photographs. Fine, and have plenty of fun, but have you ever thought of using your camera for His glory? With a camera and a little skill you can save pounds for your church as far as adverts go. Each week your local paper is looking for good material and each article that is published draws the attention of the public to your church or to a specific event in your church.

Have I stirred your interest? Well maybe I can also give you a few helpful tips.

Choosing useful Equipment

Cameras

Don't be put off by high camera prices. It's not necessary to pay fantastic amounts to achieve results, although obviously you need to aim a little higher than a simple camera. I have had two twin lens reflex cameras. These are very suitable for black and white, having a negative size of $2\frac{1}{4} \times 2\frac{1}{4}$. Both cost approximately £20 second-hand. Shop around and see what is on the market as far as bargains go. Maybe you will think 35 mm a better choice because you want slides. If this is the case don't ignore the automatic cameras which are available. They are very good, though naturally they cost more. Take care if you buy second-hand; there is more to go wrong. The thing to remember is: the larger the negative, the easier it is to work with.

Flash Guns

A flash is very useful and you have a choice of bulbs, viz. cubes or electronic flash. Think carefully how often you will use the flash. If you use it often then electronic will be cheaper. I notice that you can buy small units in England for about £7 (don't buy second-hand). For the affluent Crusader there is a computerised flash which works very well. If you use your unit often, it is worth the extra.

Tripod

In places such as large services a tripod is more useful than a flash. Remember that a flash has an effective range measured in feet. It is no use using one in, say, the Royal Albert Hall. The only thing that you will illuminate is the lady's hat just in front of you! A word of warning; whereas everything is being made smaller, this cannot apply to tripods. Buy the largest and heaviest that you can afford. Lightweight ones that fold up to about ten inches will wobble almost as much as you do.

What to take

When you have your equipment, what should you take? Try just about anything: crowds, preferably not simply lined up, door-to-door work, work in the church, singers, your minister, visiting preachers, etc., etc. Use your imagination and see what your local paper likes. You must add captions to the photos and get someone to write brief, snappy articles to go with them. Naturally, work in co-operation with your pastor. Let him deal with the paper unless he asks you to do so. They might even agree to accept negatives and make the prints themselves.

You might think that I am being stupid telling you how to behave, but the sad thing is that some photographers simply do not know how to.

Please remember to speak to your pastor before you start taking photos and remember that he is a busy man particularly five minutes before a service starts. If you feel that you would like to work in this way go and have a talk to him, specially mentioning the use of a flash. Sometimes you have to use one, but, if possible, do without. It's a distraction in services and possibly your pastor will not allow its use anyway.

Distractions of any sort should be avoided. The photographer should be seen as little as possible and certainly not heard. Do your homework. Find out what is going on. Can you get from the back of the church to the front without tramping down the aisle? If you are going to use a back door to get to a different position, is the door open? Do everything possible to avoid disturbing the services. Your photos are of minor importance compared with the services.

These are simply a few tips. There are many more. Teach yourself by reading books from your local library. Whatever you do, do it for His glory.

Notes
by Peter Watson

Monday, June 24th

Acts 10:34-48

"I perceive that God is no respecter of persons" (v.3).
UP to now the gospel had centred mainly around the Jews. From this point it reaches out to bring its blessings to the Gentile world. Peter's address shows how well he had learned the lesson given to him on the housetop and how well he adapted to a new situation. Such adaptability is very necessary at times in order for God's plans and purposes to be carried out. May we never be so set and prejudiced that we restrict the work of God.

Tuesday, June 25th

"Contended with him" (v.2).
THIS is a risk that we all have to take if we are as obedient to the heavenly vision as was Peter. He had broken new ground and faced contention from some of his less enlightened brethren. Learn from this incident not to fear or faint if we are misunderstood and opposed when we launch out in some God-directed service. Be it ours patiently and truthfully to expound the reason for our action as did Peter (v.4) and trust that God will honour us with similar results (v. 18).

Wednesday, June 26th

Acts 11:19-30

"The disciples were called Christians first in Antioch" (v.26).
"CHRISTIAN" was not a self-appointed designation of those early believers, but was a term given to them by unbelieving outsiders. They lived in such a way as to merit the title. Do we? Would you go through life unrecognised as a Christian if it were left only to the way that you lived? It is not the profession we make to the world, but the impression we make on it. May the world know us for what we are and not only by what we say that we are.

Thursday, June 27th

Acts 12:1-11

"Prayer was made without ceasing of the church... for him" (v.5).
WE shall never understand some things this side of eternity. Why did James have to die (v.2) while Peter was delivered (v.11)? Perhaps there is some consolation in the tradition that the officer who accused him and brought him to trial was so influenced by the confession that he made of Christ, that he "avowed himself a Christian" and was beheaded along with James. Such a sacrifice is well worth while if only one soul is saved from the misery of hell. There are some things, however, that we are assured of, one being that prayer changes things. It really is the miracle-working power of the Church.

Friday, June 28th

Acts 12:12-25

"She opened not the gate...but ran in" (v.14).
RHODA'S feelings could have cost Peter his life. In the emotion of the moment she forgot to open the gate. So overjoyed at recognising his voice, her first reaction was to rush back inside and break the news to the others. It was quite natural; we all like being the first with good news. It could have proved fatal to Peter; his "continued knocking" suggests the urgency of the situation. It is easy sometimes to let our feelings get the better of us and inadvertently endanger the work of God. Our priority is to fulfil our duty and not to allow ourselves to go to pieces either through joy or sorrow.

Proverbs 6:1-19

"The ant...consider her ways" (v.6).
THIS lowly creature has many lessons for us. There are the wisdom of thinking about and making provision for the future while we can, the benefits of unitedly working together thus helping both our success and safety, and the value of perseverance. A man, through forced imprisonment, watched an ant struggle up a high wall with a load bigger than itself. Sixty-nine times the ant dropped its load, but then it persevered and at the seventieth attempt scaled that wall. It gave that man much encouragement. Learn from this little creature today. Encourage your heart to a steady perseverance, knowing that "we shall reap, if we faint not" (Galatians 6:9).

Sunday, June 30th

Proverbs 6:20-35

"The commandment is a lamp" (v.23).
IN the darkness, a lamp is a great boon. To be able to see ahead, to be guarded from pitfalls, to know where you are going are the blessed, worthwhile functions of a lamp and happy and wise is the man who keeps one with him. Just so is the Word of God in this dark world of sin. David could say, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path" (Psalm 119:105). Our safety and security lie in our walking in the light of His Word.

With these notes we end the quarter's contributions by Peter Watson and thank him for his encouraging, challenging ministry. The next quarter's notes are by S.E. Petts who is in fellowship with our Winton Church and is the writer of "Gleanings" and the author of several books.
EDITOR

10. Living in Adversity

*They climbed the steep ascent of heaven
Through peril, toil, and pain:
O God, to us may grace be given
To make the trip by train.*

THIS parody of Heber's stirring hymn aptly expresses the popular modern preference for the soft option. We have been conditioned into thinking that the easy way is the ideal way. Our homes are full of gadgets designed to make life easy. Our work has been emptied of interest as machines have taken over the complexities and left us with buttons to push. Our children are frustrated by the wealth of toys that play by themselves with the child an onlooking winder-up. Small wonder that some are so bored that they erupt in violence and vandalism at times.

Even in our Christian lives we can fall into the same trap of always chossing the easy way out. It is so much easier to compromise our principles than to stand alone against the current standards of morality. From all sides we are pressured to go with the crowd. The fact that "everybody's doing it" does not make it any more right than an epidemic makes disease preferable to sound health. The way of life is narrow, hard and unpopular, whereas the way leading to destruction is broad, easy and popular (compare Matthew 7:13, 14).

It is no harder to live a holy life today than it was in the past.

Tribulation

Paul warned his young converts that "through many tribulations we must enter the kingdom of God" (Acts 14:22). Considering the treatment meted out to the Son of God, we should not be surprised if we face opposition. The Lord Himself said: "If the world hate you, ye know that it hated Me before it hated you. If ye were of the world, the world would love his own; but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you. . . If they have persecuted Me, they will persecute you" (John 15:18-20). The Bible summarised the situation: "In fact, everyone who wants to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will be persecuted" (2 Timothy 3:12, N.Int.V.).

In different ages and lands the persecution may differ in form from outright physical torture to subtle psychological pressures, but it is nonetheless real and in the hands of the arch-deceiver, Satan. It is planned to divert the believer from his faith. From the moment that we acknowledge allegiance to Christ,

by Ian R. Hall,
Pastor of our
Ryde Church

we are the objects of Satan's wrath. The intensity of his opposition is such that even the common trials of life assume a malevolent significance. This adversary would persuade us that our troubles are unique to us, "but man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward" (Job 5:7).

Temptation

This is the greater threat to holy living.

From that first attack in the garden which resulted in the fall of Adam and Eve, Satan has been launching assaults upon mankind seeking to turn them from the paths of righteousness. For the Christian, temptation is a dread reality. At no time can we relax our guard if we would preserve our integrity. Sometimes the attack is blatant and obvious, but more often it is subtle, playing upon our natural appetites, promising us good ends by wrong means, but always planning for our downfall.

Since Christ "in every respect has been tempted as we are, yet without sinning" (Hebrews 4:15), it is obvious that to be tempted is no barrier to holy living, nor is it a reflection on our spirituality. In fact the closer we draw to God the more liable are we to the enemy's assaults.

Triumph

We are, however, promised ultimate victory over Satan's devices. "God is faithful, and He will not let you be tempted beyond your strength, but with the temptation will also provide the way of escape, that you may be able to endure it" (1 Corinthians 10:13). No matter what the trial, whether "tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword. . . in all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us" (Romans 8:35, 37). In this battle the issues are already settled. The follower of the Lord Jesus is assured of triumph.

Not for nothing has the holy life been called the overcoming life, for it is only as we experience the triumph of the Saviour in the daily conflicts of tribulation and temptation that we become strong saints of God.

Editorial

MY period as Editor of THE ELIM EVANGEL comes to an end with this issue. I take this opportunity to welcome my successor, Desmond W. Cartwright, who takes over as Editor with the next issue.

Your new Editor has served as an Elim minister for some twenty-two years, latterly at Rowley Regis, Warley. He has been a member of a number of committees and is a lecturer at Elim Bible College. Mrs. Lilian Cartwright hails from Cardiff and was saved at our famous Church there. She and her husband have one son, Christopher.

In addition to editing our official organ, Mr. Cartwright takes over as Director of Publications, which includes responsibility for the Bookroom.

I have been greatly blessed in my four years in office by the great interest which is shown in our magazine and I am certain that you will uphold the new Editor in prayer. The ministry of literature is getting ever more widespread and the part played by the EVANGEL is of vital importance to Elim. It is my prayer that my successor will find great joy and blessing in his new sphere of work.

It has been a pleasure to work with my colleagues at Headquarters and Greahurst Press during these past four years. Special thanks must go to Pastor J.T. Bradley. His untiring interest in the publications' side of our movement has been of tremendous help and encouragement. His readiness to proof read, often at very busy times, has greatly assisted in keeping to deadlines. I am very grateful to him for his continual personal encouragement.

Friends will know that I am succeeding Pastor R.B. Chapman as Field Superintendent. He and his wife will soon be going to take up a very responsible missionary position in Africa on our behalf. I would express thanks for Mr. Chapman's unflagging zeal in his six years in office. He and Mrs. Chapman will always be in our thoughts and intercession.

Tribute must also go to the friends of Greahurst Press. Since our own Press took over printing the EVANGEL at such short notice, I have had every co-operation from the staff, Pastor Gordon A. Wright, Bob Washington, Mike Curtis and Rodney Wedlake, as well as the ladies who have worked so hard setting up and despatching our magazine. I would also warmly thank Mrs. Joan Brown who is the secretary to the Director of Publications and who will therefore assist my successor in future.

THERE are many happy signs of ever-increasing fellowship between Elim and Assemblies of God. One very blessed feature has been the conferences when ministers of both movements have shared in prayer, worship and Bible study. Another such get-together is planned for November 11th-14th D.V. (see advert. on page 11). We would ask our members to pray for a rich anointing to rest on these days of holy convocation and we would urge as many of our ministers as possible to be present. Those who have shared the previous conferences have found them to be sources of great spiritual blessing, challenge and uplift.

Bexhill-on-Sea Crusade Report

RESULTS did not entirely match our expectations, nevertheless the Bexhill Crusade gave much cause for rejoicing. We had evidence of the enemy's activity in the difficulties we encountered from the inception. My house was burgled when I went to Bexhill to inspect the hall that had been booked and to formulate plans. Musicians, singers, cars, all posed problems, and we were grateful to the guest organists from Eastbourne who so willingly and capably filled the gap. The Elizabeth Room at the De la Warr Pavilion, where the Crusade was initially held, had to be entered through the public bar, yet we had evidence of God's blessing and His presence was very real in every service. Some Christians of long-standing declared that they had not felt the power of God so unmistakably for a very long time.

Thirty responded to the appeal and several healings were claimed including Mrs. Atkinson of Eastbourne, who was healed of foot and ankle trouble and the young man mentioned in the report below.

A children's meeting was started on the last Wednesday and over 100 children attended. Regular meetings are continuing under the capable oversight of Pastor Eric Gaudion who acted as song leader and who did much efficient, splendid work both before and during the Crusade.

Our thanks are due to all who prayed for us. Keep praying for the follow up. All glory goes to God for what was accomplished; we count it a privilege to serve the Lord Christ.

J. OSMAN

A YOUNG man claimed that the sight of one of his eyes had been restored during an evangelists campaign held at the De La Warr Pavilion recently.

The man who claimed the cure told 150 people at the meeting that his sight had been restored in one eye during prayers.

Other testimonies of healing were also given.

The musical evangelistic crusade was conducted by Rev. Jack Osman. Mildred Rainey and Pam Osman were the guitarists and singers.

The crusade switched from the De La Warr Pavilion to the Barrack Road Pentecostal Church until May 16.

Song leader Pastor Eric Gaudion will be taking charge of the newly-formed Elim Church which will meet at Barrack Road. Prayers for the sick will be a feature of the new church.

WATFORD

Pastor: R. Rees

THERE are many unnamed men in the Bible whom one could call "God's anonymous men". Brother Leon Tooley was one of these, though he was known by many Elim ministers, church members, the London Presbyteries, and our annual Conferences. Maybe he was unknown to many others in the Elim Family, but, as a personal friend, I must say that we have lost a loyal, loving brother in Christ. During the ministry of J.C. Kennedy in 1928 Leon became a Christian and a fellow-labourer in the Watford Church, faithful to God and to the Church. We had a twofold relationship. His name was Leonard like mine and his birthday was on 21st September, the same date as mine. For years we remembered each other's birthdays. His faithfulness as member, treasurer and trustee was encouraging to every minister and church member. It can be said of him that, like Barnabas, he was full of love, sympathy and faith.

My family enjoyed his fellowship in the Church and in his home. My daughter, Ruth, now in Newfoundland, had a large place in her heart for him and for his wife. Now Leon and his wife are together with the Lord. Our prayers are for Pastor and Mrs. W.G. Blackler. His grandchildren, too, will miss him.

Spirit-filled Leon Tooley is now with the Lord. May God raise up more men like him to be loyal and loving as he was.

Pastor: L. Jones

WALTER Richard Laws, aged seventy, has gone to be with the Lord. A founder member of the Elim work here, he remained faithful to the end. Those who knew brother Laws have deep memories of his faithfulness to the house of God, his loyalty to each minister, his prayer life, and above all, his intense love for the Lord Jesus Christ. Mr. Laws held office as a Sunday school teacher, acting Sunday school superintendent, treasurer, and as a deacon. Blessed of God, he used the office of a deacon well, purchased to himself a good degree, and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus (1 Timothy 3:13).

When Brother Laws was a Sunday school teacher, the writer of this appreciation was in his class. He recalls how Mr. Laws told of some of his experiences with God. He made a lasting impression when confiding in us. He often rose at 4 a.m. to pray, having been wakened out of sleep by the Lord calling him by name. One such occasion was early in November some years back. As he began to pray, he heard the sound of fire crackling and, looking out of the window, saw a huge bonfire alight. As the wood etc. was piled against the end wall of a house there was a real danger that the house might be burned down. He was able to raise the alarm and no damage was done. How much more by his faithful prayer life at the throne of Grace each day were others rescued from the flames of hell. He will be missed and remembered most as a man of prayer. May I commend his dear wife to your prayers, that the God of all comfort will sustain her throughout the coming days.

"Help, Lord; for the godly man ceaseth; for the faithful fail from among the children of men" (Psalm 12:1).

ST. PETER PORT, GUERNSEY

Pastor: P.E. Stormont

OUR Pastor had the happy duty of making a presentation to Mr. H.E. Bourgaize on the occasion of his retirement as deacon, secretary and trustee of the church for twenty-two years. Mr. Stormont read a written tribute from the diaconate which especially thanked Mr. Bourgaize for his dedication to duty and faithfulness throughout the years. Mr. Bourgaize, after being presented with a pen and pencil set on which his name has been inscribed, said what a privilege it had been for him to serve the Lord in Eldad Elim Church, and paid tribute to the faithfulness of God and the constant help of Mrs. Bourgaize, who was presented with a bouquet of flowers.

CHORLTON-CUM-HARDY, Manchester

Pastor: J.T. Glass

PASTOR and Mrs. J. Glass recently completed twenty years in the pastorate of the Chorlton-cum-Hardy Assembly. Their anniversary was a very special event as it marked the re-opening of the church building following extensive renovations necessitated by dry rot.

To celebrate the occasion, special services were arranged. Pastor J.B. Coleman was the visiting preacher and his ministry was much appreciated. Refreshments were provided after the Saturday meeting. One of the members baked an anniversary cake for the occasion.

The work on the building was completed by members and friends of the church, together with Pastor Glass. The new pulpit and communion area were built by Pastor Glass, who has worked extremely hard in recent months to get the church building into good condition. To mark their esteem and their appreciation for their labours and faithfulness to the work of the Lord, the Assembly presented a watch to Pastor Glass and a bouquet and a tea service and matching tea-pot to Mrs. Glass.

EXETER

Pastor: J.H. Sainsbury

A RECENT Sunday marked the fifth anniversary in Exeter and the twenty-fifth anniversary in the ministry of our Pastor. The day was blessed by the ministry of Pastor E.J. Thomas. He and his wife sang the gospel with effect which brought blessing. Pastor Sainsbury was presented with a Scofield Reference Bible. We were assured that in future the ministry of the Word would be richer for this presentation. We hasten to add that we have no cause for complaint in this direction! The presentation was a mark of our deep appreciation for five year's faithful ministry, during which time our assembly has grown under his guidance in numbers, vision and, we trust, in grace and maturity. The presentation was made by Mr. L. Stanton (senior deacon). A bouquet was presented to Mrs. Sainsbury by three-years-old Claire Rockey. Mrs. Sainsbury is held in high affection by all in the assembly. She has been a very real support to her husband during these five years. Many in the assembly and Sunday school know her to be a "mother in Israel". A book token was also presented to Julie, Pastor and Mrs. Sainsbury's daughter, whom we hold in affection.

We would all like to take this opportunity to thank Pastor Sainsbury once again for five loyal years in His service, and wish him many more fruitful years "til He come".

A LARGE congregation gathered for the farewell service of our Pastor R.J. Mackenzie. We can hardly believe that it is just over six years since we welcomed our brother into our midst and here we were to say good bye to him and his family: Looking back we can say that God has really blessed us through his ministry. Our congregation has more than doubled during these past years and new projects have been started.

Our meeting opened with choruses and a grand opening hymn. Items were provided by our own group The Christettes who sang the Pastor's favourite, "All that you need is a miracle". Peter Bakewell gave us a solo, "One found new life". The reading was by B. Davis.

It was good to see three friends received into fellowship on our Pastor's last night. The Pastor gave us a timely word from Joshua 24:14, 15. The Deacons presented Pastor with a cheque and the Crusaders gave him a tape recorder. Mrs. Mackenzie and the children also received gifts. After the meeting we had a get-together in the minor hall where a spread of sandwiches, cakes etc., had been provided by the deacon's wives. All we can say is: "God bless you brother in your new church!".

Pastor: G.J. Fearn

THE youth of the church conducted another coffee bar evening when over seventy young people heard the Gospel in song, testimony and the Word, and eight young people gave their lives to Christ. The feature of these coffee bars is not the music, but the personal witnessing and counselling which the young people are encouraged to do themselves. The coffee bar continued on Saturday evening, again with a good response.

At special Mothers' Day service approximately 120 people gathered. Some of the Church mothers gave their testimonies in song and Scripture, and then the children presented bunches of flowers to their mothers. Following an inspiring address, there was a good response to the appeal, when eight people, whose ages were from eighty-five downwards, committed their lives to Christ.

The weekend closed with a marvellous coffee bar service when the young people spontaneously sang choruses and gave testimonies and different groups praised the Lord. It was thrilling to see sixty or so young people staying after the usual church service.

SALFORD

Pastor: A. Lambie

THE eighth anniversary of our Pastor's ministry at Salford was celebrated by special weekend services, the visiting preacher being Pastor Aubrey R.T. Whittall. The Saturday evening meeting was well supported by neighbouring Elim churches, especially Stockport and Chorlton-cum-Hardy and every seat was filled. Mrs. June Richards and her three young daughters delighted us with their singing. Three brethren were put into the witness box to testify to their faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Church Secretary A. Moore presented a love gift to Pastor Lambie and a bouquet of flowers was presented to Mrs. Lambie by Miss M. Jones, the leader of the Junior Church. A surprise gift of a wallet came from the Junior Crusaders.

Pastor Whittall's inspiring message was on the river of God's blessing. On the Sunday Pastor Whittall ministered at the morning and evening services on the Pentecostal fulness. The soloist was Mrs. Mabel Millward. At the end of both evenings several seeking the baptism in the Holy Spirit were filled to overflowing.

A number of students from Salford College of Advanced Technology were present as a result of Pastor Lambie's visits to speak at their Christian fellowship. One young lady who was converted on that occasion was among those filled with the Holy Spirit, while another young lady found the Lord and really rejoiced with her newly-saved boy friend.

The Crusaders had their own special celebration on the Monday evening in appreciation of the Pastor's instructive ministry week by week.

A few days later we had a visit by Mrs. Vera McGillivray, whose word and slides were an encouragement to us to pray for all those who labour in foreign fields.

Pastor: I.R. Hall

EASTER in Ryde is a time of spiritual feasting and this year's convention lived up to expectations. The guest speakers were Pastor and Mrs. A.V. Gorton. Their many years of active ministry added richness to their fine expositions of the Word of God and from the opening united communion service on Maundy Thursday the blessing of God rested upon the congregations.

Throughout the Convention Pastor Gorton took us on a voyage with the "Ships of Faith", friendship, discipleship, lordship, worship and citizenship. Mrs. Gorton ministered on "Why?" and "Jesus Himself drew near" with a real anointing. Together they ministered in song during the weekend. Members of the congregation also contributed singing items.

On Saturday and Sunday evenings waiting meetings were held for those seeking the fulness of the Holy Spirit. A number received a deep anointing and one was baptised in the Holy Spirit. Falling as it did during a month of special emphasis on spiritual maturity this convention has deepened the experience of God in many lives to the glory of the Lord.

11. Living in the Present

*Dream not too much of what you'll do tomorrow,
How well you'll work another day.
Tomorrow's chance you do not need to borrow,
TODAY IS HERE.
Swear not some day to break some fetter
When this old year is dead and passed away.
If you have need of living wiser, better,

ONE of the most subtle temptations that we must face is procrastination — the idea that tomorrow will do. Satan lulls the unconverted into thinking that there will be plenty of time tomorrow to get right with God. He persuades careless Christians that tomorrow is soon enough to have done with sin and start living for God. The Bible declares: "Right now God is ready to welcome you. Today he is ready to save you" (2 Corinthians 6:2, Living Bible).

NOW is the only time that is truly ours. Yesterday has already slipped from our grasp and tomorrow has not yet come. We do not even know that we will have tomorrow. James reminded the Jewish Christians: "You do not know about tomorrow. What is your life? For you are a mist that appears for a little time and then vanishes" (James 4:14). This should impress upon us the urgency of action now.

The theory of Evolution is built on the premise that, given enough time, anything can happen, and so some have the idea that eventually they will grow out of sinning and begin to live holy lives. In fact, the passage of time simply makes a sinful habit harder to break. The longer you continue doing it the more difficult stopping becomes, because you get accustomed to it. Whereas once you repented bitterly of your failure to master that craving and sought deliverance, now your conscience hardly troubles you and you cease even to think of victory over it.

While some may call this the "now generation" a more appropriate term would be the "deferred payment generation". So many want to enjoy today what they will pay for tomorrow. It does not work like this in Christianity. Victorious Christian living demands triumph in today's battle. The pre-match forecast may be confirmed or disproved by the event. The event itself determines the winner. Christian, you only become an overcomer by overcoming and the blessings of Revelation chapters 2 and 3 are promised to those who have overcome. If you know that you

by Ian R. Hall,
Pastor of our

need victory over some sin claim it now; to put it off to another day does not qualify you for the victor's crown.

The efficacy of God's promises now. A once-popular idea was that holy living is reserved for eternity and is not to be expected in time. No doubt the enemy of God was delighted with the readiness of some Christians to postpone God's promises of victory to a future dispensation. Paul, however, declared to the Galatian believers: "Our Lord Jesus Christ gave Himself to deliver us from the present evil age, according to the will of our God and Father" (Galatians 1:4). Thank God that salvation, deliverance, victory and holiness are NOW experiences!

Far from suggesting that death is a deliverer, Jesus taught us to pray to our heavenly Father to "deliver us from evil" (Matthew 6:13). To limit God's ability to answer that prayer to death and beyond seems a far cry from Paul's exultant: "Thanks to be God, who in Christ always leads us in triumph and through us spreads the fragrance of the knowledge of Him everywhere" (2 Corinthians 2:14). Bible faith suggests that holy, sin-defeating, devil-defying, God-glorifying living starts now.

If I believe that God can keep me from sin for one minute, then He can keep me for sixty times one minute, if for one hour then for twenty-four hours, if for one day then for one week, one month, one year and a lifetime. If all starts with that first minute of trusting God for victory over sin. As a young convert some sixteen years ago, I was shattered to hear an aged saint, now in glory, testify: "I thank God that I have not stopped sinning since the day when I was saved over thirty years ago. It has kept me humble!". Then Jude spoke to my soul: "Now to Him who is able to keep you from falling and to present you without blemish before the presence of His glory with rejoicing" (Jude 24).

Holy living is for NOW! We can prove God's power NOW!

Games

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

"LET'S play ring-a-ring-a-roses!" Jenny said.

The children held hands and skipped round and singing as they went, "Atishoo! Atishoo! all fall down!". They all fell down except Barbara. "I don't want to fall down!" she cried. "I don't want to play this game at all!" She sat down on the step and began to sulk and pout.

"You are a spoilsport", Jenny told her. "You never join in any of our games!"

Jesus, as a child, played games in the market-place with His brothers and His friends. They played the same sort of games that you play, perhaps with toys that Joseph made for them in His carpenter's shop. As they played, they sang the same sort of rhymes that children do today.

One day the children were playing at weddings. They made music with simple flutes that they had made from reeds near the river. Jesus watched them playing and He noticed that some children would not join in the game. Later, when the children played at funerals, the results were just the same. Some boys and girls just would not play at all and they spoiled the game for others.

Many years later, when Jesus was a man, He remembered these games of weddings and funerals when He was preaching to the people. They had been behaving rather selfishly and Jesus was blaming them for their foolishness. "You are just like the children playing in the market-place", He told them, "calling to one another 'We have piped and you have not danced. We have mourned and you have not wept'".

Jesus is sad when selfish, unkind children spoil one another's games. He loves to see children playing happily together.

Jesus, the Lord of heaven, who was once a child and played at His games just as you do, is the children's Friend. He knows and understands, as no-one else can, the feelings and ways of children.

"Pour out your heart before Him"

by Christopher J. Sawyer

"POUR out my heart before You, Lord — You of all people? Let it all tumble out as it will? Shouldn't I sort things out a little? Praise and thanksgiving, yes, that will pass. But doubts and fears and unbelief? — not those! Complaint, frustration and bitterness? — not those. Thoughts I am ashamed to own? — no, He can't want to hear all these", might well express our thoughts.

Yet He once went out of His way to show that He does want to hear.

The two Emmaus disciples often smiled at the recollection. As they trudged home on that darkest of days, it was plain to anyone that something was seriously wrong. The Stranger who joined them somehow inspired their confidence, and, before they realised it, they were pouring out to Him the whole story of frustration and despair. There was no need to gloss things over. He was such a listener. He understood. He had the answer. Long before they had finished their journey a new hope was flooding their hearts with joy.

Not until suppertime did they recognise Him, and at that very moment, He was gone. How like Him that was, too! He left them no time to make embarrassed excuses for the things that they would not have said had they known Him.

Strangely, they were glad they had told Him everything. Strangely, too, they no longer felt that they had to make excuses, even if they could. Everything was out, they were forgiven, their burden was lifted, their hearts were full of joy.

"Pour out your heart before Him".

Little Boy Laughing

by Philip E. Streeter

I SAT in my study, Lord,

Suddenly captivated by the rush of bubbly laughter from my little boy downstairs;

Laughter so beautifully innocent that hot tears began pricking at my eyelids;

Laughter that embodied bewitching melodies of mountain streams chinkling and giggling over smooth, coloured pebbles, sifting seas sucking and chortling among funny-faced rocks, in fact, the whole of nature itself, laughing and sobbing through the seasons;

Laughter deliciously naif and gloriously unspoiled by the world's professionalism and sophistication;

Laughter crisp with the freshness of divine humour and conjuring up pictures of You, Jesus, snuggling contentedly in Your cot, cooing, gurgling, dribbling, chuckling,

As gently Mary stroked Your tiny cheek with worn, slender fingers; Laughter reminding me of a small raven-haired boy, grubby hand clasped over mouth, sniggering with glee at the ecclesiastical antics of portly Pharisees,

Or prancing with pals over windswept hills, whooping, shouting and chasing after coloured butterflies;

Laughter provoking visions of You and Your twelve friends relaxing in the warm sunshine of Caesarea Philippi, laughing, talking, throwing stones far out to sea and paddling through swimming waves and kissing foam;

Laughter recalling sunset suppers with Lazarus and sisters – the twinkle in Your eye, the smile on Your lips as You shared the jaunty anecdotes of eternity.

O, Jesus, why haven't I heard laughter like this before?

I guess I have, but I have been too stupid to listen or too busy reading endless reams of religious irrelevancy to bother.

Consequently, an integral part of my education has been neglected and here I am the worse off for it, for, in ignoring a child's lyrical laughter, I have missed the music of Yours.

All tools should have been dropped long ago in order to drink in this rippled revelry, for more wisdom and more language splash from an infant's cry, yell and laughter than man can tell in words.

Jesus, if mankind enters Your kingdom by becoming a little child,* then laughter must be the mother tongue of heaven.

* Mark 10:15

Gleanings

The spiritually Poor

by S. E. Petts

"Elisha said, Give unto the people that they may eat" (2 Kings 4:42).

THERE was a famine in the land around Gilgal and a man came from Baal-shalisha with twenty loaves for Elisha. His first thought was, for the sons of the prophets whom he was teaching, so he told his servant to give the bread to them. The servant protested that there would be none left for Elisha. The prophet said that there would be, and so it was. There was enough for all and to spare.

Jesus told His disciples not to send the multitude away for food, but to supply it themselves. Again there was more than enough.

It is unfortunately true that even in the Church today there are those who spiritually hunger because they have not enough to meet their spiritual needs. It is the task of the spiritually rich to feed such. Generally the reason for the spiritual poverty among believers is their avoidance of the loving chastisement of the Lord. They try to dodge the trials and the tribulations that He permits for the building up of their spirits, seeking comfort and material security. As a result they have nothing to offer to others. Those who accept this discipline become spiritually rich and are always willing and able to impart to the needy and their own spirits are enriched in the process of giving.

It is our duty to be spiritually rich so that we can give to the poor in spirit.

"Popcorn and Sawdust"

by H. Spencer

AT the end of his commentary on an American film, "The greatest Show on Earth", a broadcaster remarked: "So ends the glitter and the glamour, the popcorn and the sawdust", an apt description of life on a purely materialistic level.

Need this be the epitaph of all living and being?

We live in a mad, mad world. Not only are our mental institutions overcrowded, but society generally shows signs of suffering from an outsize nervous breakdown. How much further can we go without becoming completely crazy?

It is estimated that one person in every five families in the U.K. is either receiving, or has received, psychiatric treatment. "What will the end of these things be?". The boundaries between sanity and insanity are becoming difficult to define. There are a morbid preoccupation with unreality, experimentation with drugs, like L.S.D, Methadrine, heroin, a retreat into fantasy and neurotic obsession with black magic, witchcraft, mystery cults and religious emphasis on unreality.

Minds are being invaded by bright, flashing lights, big beat music (so-called), howling, screaming noise that passes for entertainment, "go-go", sensually writhing bodies and an avalanche of outside stimuli. Sensation is emphasised to the exclusion of everything else. Whatever your view of the situation may be, the fact remains that people are being pushed beyond their limits. This tidal wave is more than the average person can take.

Someone has coined the word "nego". A "nego" is a nothing, and the human race is being pulverized into "nothingness". Many are retreating into it. One thing — illusion and reality, rationality and irrationality are all mixed up in one frightening mass.

The mass media are devoting more and more time and space to this disturbing problem as mankind rushes headlong into bedlam. In his play, "Marat Sade", Peter Weiss looks at life through the eyes of an inmate of an asylum. The movie, "Morgan" suggest that life in a mental institution is to be preferred to life outside. The film, "Blowup" comes to its climax with the hero playing tennis with a non-existent ball.

There is no distinction between the real and the unreal. Futurologist Alvin Tofler thinks that we have become confused by accelerated chain rates. When a wheel begins to turn you can see the separate spokes; speed it up and they become blurred. Eventually they disappear altogether and it is impossible to tell which way the wheel is turning.

The assertion that the world is crazy, the graffiti slogan that "reality is a crutch", the interest in hallucinogenic drugs, the enthusiasm for astrology and the occult, the search for truth in sensation, estasy and "peak" experiences, all reflect the mood of those who find that they can no longer cope rationally with change.

Where do we go from here? It's not much use yelling, "Stop the world! I want to get off" when the pace quickens every moment. The impetus is tremendous and there is no sign of any let-up. There was a time when one could count on a fairly stable sort of life with the same routine, home, friends, loved-ones, job. NOT ANY MORE, for a mad frenzy seems to have taken hold of everyone. Nothing is for keeps anymore. In and out of one sub-culture after another, new faces, new fads, new fashions: why, now it's even fashionable to be unfashionable. Just how crazy can man get? The family disintegrates; everyone goes his own way. "Change and decay in all around I see".

Modern man is not the first to notice this fluid condition in the world. Times are always changing, though we have speeded up the process. Wise men of old saw it all millenniums ago.

Before the hurly-burly grinds us into the dust of insanity and complete madness, we would do well to pause and heed the voices from the past and reflect on what they saw and have to say to us.

The Bible records the thoughts and visions of these wise, inspired men of old. To the Hebrew and the Christian alike, the God of the Bible is an anchor for the soul, the absolute you can depend on and can be sure of. HE is not subject to the play of passing shadows moving across our brief mortal span. He is Someone whom you can count on, always "the same, yesterday, and today and for ever" the ultimate point of reference. In one of Charles Schultz's cartoons of Charlie Brown, the following dialogue takes place between Charlie and his friend, Lucy. Charlie has been doing some serious thinking and he decided to sound out his little friend on a matter which to him is of some importance, so he plunges into the deep waters of religion. He asks, "Do you think that the world will come to an end in our time?". "I try not to think about such things", the pert little Miss replies. "Well, now that I've brought it to your attention" pursues the earnest Charlie. "When things that I try not to think about are brought to my attention, I try not to think about them", snaps back the impervious Lucy. Wavering, but still game, Charlies bravely soldiers on: "Well, when things that a . . . r . . . e", but Lucy's flinty expression forbids further discussion. Charlie is unnerved. "O, forget it", he says, and he surrenders.

This ostrich-like attitude of mind is typical of much of our present-day thinking. Nevertheless, the theme of the end of the world is, at long last, beginning to break through into the fuddled minds of men. Serious-thinking people (and there are still a few about), are beginning to realise that the world-trends are on an unavoidable collision course, and that the situation deteriorates daily. To the Christian comes the clear message from the very courts of heaven: "I am the Lord, I change not" (Malachi 3:6). With this message in mind, there is no need to fear the changing scene. Our God gives stability in the ebb and flow of life. He provides a sure foundation for human hopes and a goal for human aspirations. His rest is assured in the mad rush of competitive living. His peace is promised in the cut and thrust for survival. His love is constant amid fickle affections and transient desires.

The turbulent flow of everyday life can besteadied if we are prepared to enter into a serious relationship with the One who is changeless. Man needs inner confidence that comes from knowing that certain absolutes are true, that there is Someone who never changes.

The God of the Bible is the hinge of sanity! "In life, in death, O Lord, abide with me".

So, where do we go from here? If we live in a mad, mad world, and if people do act crazily, the person who has found solace, comfort and assurance in the experience of Psalm 91 possesses a great secret, one which provides him with the source of life, meaning, the quiet mind, the blithe spirit. He is the only really sane person in the world.

The ever-recurring crises of national and world fortune leave him unmoved, untroubled, for he has no abiding place here, but looks for new heavens and a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness (2 Peter 3:13).

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

A BROTHER-IN-LAW of mine has a large fish tank in which he placed an upturned plant pot with the hope that two of the fish would breed in it, but the fish chose instead a more secluded spot under a rock where they couldn't be viewed by human eye. The fact is that we humans just don't understand fish. It takes a fish to understand a fish.

Did you know, likewise, that it takes a spiritual person to understand spiritual things? Paul puts it like this: "Only those who have the Holy Spirit within them can understand what the Holy Spirit means. Others just can't take it in. . . But strange as it seems, we Christians actually do have within us something of the very thoughts and mind of Christ" (1 Corinthians 2:14, 16, Living Bible). To be a Christian is to have the Holy Spirit dwelling within us, and then a whole new world opens to us. Prayer takes on a new importance. We are not so much taught how to pray; rather the Holy Spirit within us drives us to prayer. The Bible, too, becomes a new book. The Spirit-inspired Book has a very real meaning and place in the lives of those who are Spirit-indwelt. There is an immediate affinity and the same becomes true of everything else in the Christian life. The Holy Spirit, dwelling within the Christian, makes all the difference.

Music with a Message

Life in the London Crusader Choir

I AM a member of the London Crusader Choir. I want to tell you a little about it. Perhaps the best way to start would be to show how it affects me during an average week in my life.

Tuesday. I have to be away from work very sharply this evening in order to arrive at rehearsal in time for the fifteen-minute devotional period which precedes each practice. It is a full evening this time. Next week there is a recording session on the normal rehearsal evening and the following week is the Choir's bi-monthly Communion service, so tonight is three weeks' practice in one. The rehearsal finishes half an hour late (not unusual!) and for nearly twenty minutes after that members stand around talking, but soon they are on their way home, some with nearly forty miles to travel.

Wednesday. Tea wasn't ready when I arrived home, so I spent time at the piano going over the new music that was rehearsed on Tuesday evening. After tea I'm off to the youth meeting at my local church. With so much giving out in the Choir ministry one learns to grasp every opportunity to take in.

Thursday. I had lunch today with another member of the Choir who works nearby. We reminisced about things that had happened during some of the Choir's tours in the British Isles, Europe, and North America. When I consider the many, many thousands of miles that the Choir has travelled even in the five short years that I've been a member, I marvel at the protection that God has afforded us. Within the Choir at any one time several smaller groups (trios, quartets, etc.) operate. This evening I hope to witness the commencement of another group. If the evening is a success it will mean another free night less each week and another night devoted to rehearsing.

Friday. Being the last Friday of the month there is a rehearsal for the London and South of England male voice choirs this evening. Any gentleman who joins the London Crusader Choir will be "invited" to attend these rehearsals. I must dash away as soon as it's over tonight though; I still have to pack for the weekend away with the L.C.C.

Douglas B. Gray conducts the massed choirs in the Royal Albert Hall, London, last Easter Monday, with the London Crusader Choir in the centre.

Saturday. I was up bright and early (well, early anyway) to be on the coach by 7 a.m., bound for a West country town well over 200 miles from London for an evening meeting. After the meeting we will be allocated to various members of the church who will take us to their homes for the night.

Sunday. By 8 a.m. the Choir has assembled at the church and is ready to move off. The destination is a prison in the bleakest, wildest part of the west of England. To an audience of several hundred unfortunate men, the Choir presents a ninety-minute programme of Christian music. The persuasive tones of Douglas B. Gray (the Choir's Founder and Leader) as he chats to the audience between each item brings a warmth to the atmosphere and makes the hardest hearts receptive to the message. After tea and some biscuits at the prison officers' club the Choir is on the road once more. The destination is another west country prison, but, before reaching it, a hasty stop is made for a quick lunch. It is now six hours since we have eaten. Arriving at our next venue, Exeter, we are met by the prison chaplain. It is largely through the kindness and co-operation of this dedicated group of men that the Choir is able to carry out its extensive prison evangelism. The meeting follows very much the pattern of the morning service. It is not unusual for audiences to applaud vigorously.

Eventually we are on the road again. There is no evening engagement, so we are heading straight for London. It will be well after midnight when some members arrive home at the end of a weekend during which they will have travelled nearly 500 miles.

Monday. I go back to work, but not with the Monday blues. Instead there is the satisfaction of having spent a weekend in His service.

Having tried to illumine you a little as to the how and when of the L.C.C. let me now try to deal with the why and wherefore.

The aim of the Choir is to sing forth the honour of Jesus' name. Music of every type within the capabilities of the Choir is used for presenting the gospel of Jesus Christ.

The Choir provides a channel for people of even limited musical ability to serve God in an interesting, exciting and unique way. Sunday after Sunday the Choir visits prisons and borstals all over the British Isles. Every week the gospel of Jesus Christ is presented to audiences with a high percentage of unconverted people in a way that leaves no doubt as to the purpose of the visit.

Only one qualification needed for membership of the L.C.C.: a personal knowledge of Jesus Christ as Saviour. Not even a voice test is made. There is a very good reason. Only those with changed hearts and a passion for the souls of men and women are suitable to help the Choir to fulfil its purpose. It will mean missing meetings at one's own church, seeing less of friends, having fewer free evenings, and frequently arriving home in the early hours of Monday mornings.

It is not compulsory for prisoners to attend the services conducted by the Choir, yet there is always a good audience. Some come because they wish to be entertained. Some come reasoning that anything is better than nothing. Some come for a chance to have a chat with other prisoners. Some (and we might as well be honest) come because they've heard that there are some pretty girls in the Choir. Whatever their reason for coming they go away with far more to think about than they bargained for. Many have ultimately accepted Christ as Saviour.

There is no financial reward; rather it will cost you money. If the Choir is to be your vocation for God, there is certainly no personal glory attached to it. There is, however, the satisfaction of knowing that one's time and talent are usefully employed in glorifying the Lord and extending His kingdom.

If you feel that this is a ministry to which you could and would make some contribution, why not get in touch with the Choir? Address your enquiries to: The Secretary, London Crusader Choir, 15 Rodenhurst Road, Clapham Park, London SW 4 8AE.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

12. No Self-Confidence (Exodus 6:12,30)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

MOSES had just passed through a shattering experience. Following the assurances given to him by the Lord he had returned to speak to the elders of Israel. They would not listen to him and turned angrily away from him. They wanted to be left in peace as slaves of the Egyptians. What, then, was the purpose of Moses' delivering mission? The people had lost their vision of freedom; it was proving to be too costly. How could Moses demand freedom for people who did not want it? If Israel refused to hear Moses, then why should Pharaoh listen to him?

Moses lost all self-confidence. He was shattered by his hostile reception, yet it was at that time that the Lord said to Him: "Go to Pharaoh!". Was He ignorant of the position? Could He not understand Moses' state of mind? Surely He should first have built up Moses' confidence and made him feel a person of importance so that he could speak to the king of Egypt as an equal?

Human pride and power give no pleasure to God. He cannot bless self-confidence. He will honour only a humble trust in Himself. It had taken the Lord many years to break Moses' trust in self, but at last he had realised the futility and failure of all self-effort. He was, therefore, in the place where God could begin to use him.

The disciples were full of pride and self-importance before Calvary. While the Lord was preparing for the agony of the cross, the disciples were arguing about positions in His kingdom and as to who was greatest of them. Calvary humbled the disciples and destroyed their pride. Only when their own plans were shattered were they able to see the will and purpose of God.

Pride is very close to the human heart and we, too, may have had illusions of our own glory. We have wanted men to applaud us and to tell us how successful we were, not recognising that we were in this way taking to ourselves that glory which belongs to God alone. For this reason the Lord has had to bring us along the Calvary road, to an experience which has humiliated us and destroyed our self-confidence. We have said with the hymn-writer "My ambitions, plans and wishes, at my feet in ashes lay".

Our ambitions have been shattered, our self-confidence has been brought to an end, so that we may trust the Lord completely and seek His glory alone.

PRAYER AND PRAISE

by F. H. Coleman

GEORGE Muller passed on to his reward many years ago, but he is still remembered for his great faith in God and His promises. The orphanages at Bristol stand as a concrete memorial to his faith in God.

Muller was a man of prayer and his biography reveals that, when they had no provision for the next morning's breakfast, he spent the whole night in prayer. He once wrote of the need to pray on and, in seeking to understand the conditions for successful prayer, he gave a number of points, the last dealing with the need to wait on God until the answer comes. Here is what Muller said:

"Here we frequently break down. We begin well, but we do not go on. If month after month and year after year we have been praying, and our petitions have not been granted, the thought comes, will God answer? Many break down because the petition is not granted as quickly as they expected. Parents pray for their children. They begin to do so, but we should never forget that we have to continue, day after day, week after week, month after month, and year after year, until the answer comes. For God knows the best time for us and He will in His own time give us our requests.

"Young workers ask God for the conversion of many souls. They go on praying and preaching, but do not get answers. It may be that they are not prepared for the blessing. If their petitions were granted, it might be an injury to their souls. Therefore He waits until they are prepared to receive the blessing. So with Sunday school teachers. They ask good things for their children, yet do not receive the answer. Now let us go on, and patiently, quietly wait on the Lord. The blessing most assuredly will come.

"Then let us set out afresh with renewed earnestness and faith. If our petitions are according to the will of God, and in the name of the Lord Jesus, and with faith in the willingness of God to give what we have asked, the answers must come. I have myself had to wait for a long time to get certain blessings. In many instances the answer has come instantaneously, or in the same hour on the same day; yet in other things I have had to wait years — ten years, fifteen years, twenty years and upwards — yet at last the answer has come.

"Therefore, let us begin afresh with greater earnestness than ever, and you will receive the answers at last".

In safe hands

"BEEN packing in his job for 55 years" reads the rather enigmatic caption in the local paper and there to my surprise above it is a photo of Mr. Ernest Romain, who worships with the folk at our Salisbury Church. Brother Romain still works for Watson & Co., proprietors of the china shop in the historical old house of John a'Port, built in 1425. He commenced as an errand boy on leaving school and one day was given a test crate on which to try his skill. He unpacked it and then replaced the pieces as he found them. The crate was sent to Andover. It arrived intact and from then on Mr. Romain became an official packer.

Every working day he handles items worth hundreds of pounds, many of them destined for homes in other parts of the world. He is certainly the firm's best "insurance policy" for their export drive and he can hardly remember ever dropping or chipping any articles. The second crate he packed was shipped to India and a letter came from the buyer saying how well it had been packed. He still uses his original methods to pack the boxes nicely and tightly and characteristically he explains: "The rougher I handle it, the safer any antique piece seems to be — the value doesn't matter either. Everything is treated the same way by me". He can surely lay claim to having the safest pair of hands in Salisbury and to be an expert in his own line of work.

We can all be thankful for our own pair of hands. God did a wonderful job when He made our hands and we cannot begin to list their skills in every phase of life, work, activity and art. I like the poetic description of the work of God's hands found in Isaiah 40. In v.10 we are told of His strong hand, in v.11 of His gentle handling of His flock, and in vv. 12-15 of the skill and power of His hand in creation. China may be in the safest hands when packed by Mr. Romain, but God's children are in the safest hands of all, for, says Jesus, "No man is able to pluck them out of My Father's hand".

The hands of Jesus also must have been strong and capable, — a carpenters' hands, the great Healer's hands, the very hands which were extended on the cross, eager to embrace all mankind. I can still remember how, when as a child, I was deeply moved by a verse from a Sunday school hymn telling of the Saviour's death on Calvary.

*But such a cruel death He died—
By wicked men was crucified!
And those kind hands that did such good
They nailed them to a cross of wood.*

What wonderful hands — none ever had hands like His on earth and none in heaven have nailed-scarred hands such as His! With absolute confidence we can submit ourselves to Him and allow His hands to hold guide and shape our lives. Peter's words are wise and well worth heeding, "Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God".

David knew the blessedness of trusting his all to the capable hands of God. In Psalm 31 he says: "In thee, O Lord do I put my trust . . . for Thy name's sake lead and guide me. . . for Thou art my strength. Into Thine hand I commit my spirit". I am given to understand that, down the centuries, Hebrew children were taught to end their evening prayers with these words of David. Is it not significant that on the cross our Lord ended His life uttering these same words and so concluded His last day on earth in a physical body in the same way that He had ended every day since His infancy? I would suggest that the surest way to find a victorious life is daily to commit our all into the Father's hand.

CHURCH REPORTS

ANDOVER

Pastor: D.H. Bass

THE Lord's blessing was upon us in a very special way on Easter Sunday. During the communion service we had the great joy of receiving into membership a young married couple who have been with us for about four months. Our Pastor's message dealt with our attitudes as Christians and church members to the Lord, the unsaved, fellow-members, the Pastor, the sick, the widowed, those overtaken in a fault and backsliders, stressing that our attitude to and love for the Lord Jesus Christ affect right relationships on all other levels.

Our two new members, Mr. and Mrs. Theobald, were once drug addicts, but are now rejoicing in the power of Christ to deliver. Our brother and sister brought their baby, Faith, to the evening meeting for dedication. Also dedicated were Shirley and Gillian Porter and Sarah Griffiths. There was a very real anointing upon the whole day.

PALMERS GREEN, London Pastor: A.L. Hawkes

THE three years of happy ministry of Pastor and Mrs. J.G. Patterson and Marella came to an end on Sunday, April 26th. A large congregation gathered in a local Church on the preceding Saturday to witness five candidates passing through the waters of baptism, and it was very blessed to see husband and wife, Malcolm and Sarah Wilkinson, standing in the pool together. Tokens of appreciation were presented to Pastor and Mrs. Patterson and Marella during the evening service on their farewell day. Many more friends arrived for the after service for the showing of a "Come Together" film and a repeat of the television appearance of Pastor Patterson some months ago. It was thrilling to see the Church to well filled.

Pastor and Mrs. Patterson have laboured very faithfully, not sparing themselves one bit in their outreach for the lost and to enlarge the scope of the local Church. We wish them God speed as they follow the leading of the Lord to make Jesus known in that needy land of Ireland.

F. BENSON

"I haven't found anything more satisfying"

says Doreen Alderson (Grangetown)

HOW many times have you wished that your mother hadn't pushed you into taking up a particular hobby or interest?

At the age of eight I was asked if I would like to take up music lessons. Having never thought about it before, my first reaction was: "NO!". After being told, "You'll never regret it. You won't get another chance. You'll wish you had when you're older", I decided that I would learn music, if only to keep the peace. That was the beginning. As with most people who take up this particular interest, there were times when I regretted the seemingly endless practice sessions and the times when my fingers seemed to hit every note except the right ones.

During their lifetime I think that most Christians wonder if they're doing everything that they can for the Lord. 1 Peter 4:10 says, "When you realise your own worthlessness before the Lord, He will lift you up, encourage and help you". Isn't this where the Lord wants us to be first, before He can use us? It's amazing what the Lord does with talents and interests, however small or unused, when they are given to Him. It must only have been the Lord who kept me going during those gruelling practice sessions and at the same time gave me the encouragement that a gift given to Him would be used.

Little did I realise what would happen when I took my guitar to an Elim youth camp last year. After changing key every other song and playing every night for a week trying to keep up with Commie on the accordeon I think that anything would have been simple. Though it cost me a huge blister on my thumb I praise the Lord, because without the experience I would probably still be playing in one key and using the same old chords.

The first time that I was asked to lead the choruses at church I thought to myself, "Why didn't you keep your big mouth shut?", but it's amazing how the Lord helps and encourages you.

For me there's nothing like working for the Lord. Wouldn't it be great if we all used our talents (however small) in our churches! A gift given to the Lord must yield fruit.

So far I haven't found anything more satisfying than being used of the Lord and I'm sure you won't.

An idea for Jubilee Year:

Christ's Crusaders

by C. Chadwick

Christ's Crusaders, Christ's Crusaders, Christ's Crusaders are we,
Marching in the light of Jesus,
Marching to victory,
On then, Crusaders, on with Christ
Your King eternally!
In the strength of Jesus marching,
Lift His banner high.
Tell the world His love unfailing,
Tell it far, and wide.
Christ the Saviour lives and reigns
Today and eternally.

Christ the Conqueror goes before us,
Forward we will go.
He will guard and safely lead us,
To our Heavenly Home.
On then, Crusaders, on with Christ
Your King eternally.

This is the year of Jubilee
We'll shout and praise and sing –
Fifty years of witnessing
For Jesus Christ our King
On then, Crusaders, on
With Christ your King, ever witnessing!

Proverbs 8:1-21

"Wisdom is better than rubies and all the things that may be desired are not to be compared to it" (v.11).

IN these days of falling values in most things, it is interesting to note that the possessors of rubies are increasing their wealth comparatively. This is equally true spiritually. Those who look upon their previous virtues as of less value are the poorer in spirit, but those who continue to look upon the wisdom of God as the most priceless of jewels to be continually preserved enhance daily their spiritual capital. Wisdom that places its trust in God's values, goodness, truth, justice, understanding and mercy, will build up a spiritual bank-balance that will stand in the day of adversity. Jesus promised that treasures stored in heaven would never lose their value.

"The Lord possessed me (wisdom) in the beginning of his way, before his works of old" (v.22); "Whoso findeth me findeth life" (v.35).

GOD, who is essential goodness and possesses all knowledge, is by nature wise, for wisdom is the use of empirical knowledge to effect goodness. This wisdom was possessed by God from the very beginning, before man, the earth or the heavens were created by him. When God made man in his own image he desired him to be wise and to use all things for universal good. Man chose instead personal, earthly benefits, the paradox of a worldly wisdom which to God is always foolishness. God's wisdom, manifested in Jesus, is available to man once more through his Holy Spirit, bringing the full, abundant and blessed life that God always intended for mankind.

"Wise men lay up knowledge; but the mouth of the foolish is near destruction" (v.14).

ALL that has gone before is but an introduction to the individual proverbs that begin here. Knowledge alone is not enough. Moral values are needed to make intelligence of real worth. From many angles Solomon contrasts wisdom with folly; not intelligence with stupidity, but righteousness with sin. These are not just sensible reflections on life's problems, but a divine collection of wise statements leading to a holy life. Those who treasure this knowledge and experience its truth utter only words of wisdom, for this is all that their hearts contain. In so doing they preserve their souls. Not to do so is foolishness and can only end in disaster.

Proverbs 11:1-5, 18-31

"The fruit of righteousness is a tree of life; and he that winneth souls is wise" (v.30).

WHILE earthly riches diminish and fail, righteousness ever grows stronger. Those who put down their roots in earthly things wither and fade away, but those who choose righteousness flourish, for they are like trees planted by Christ beside living waters, certain to increase in strength and vigour. They cannot help but deepen the spiritual lives of many by their influence. Others who are grafted into the root-stock of Christ draw power and wisdom purposely to increase the Kingdom of God. This winning of souls is the sign of that wisdom. I may be righteous; am I also wise?

"A fool despiseth his father's instruction, but he that regardeth reproof is prudent" (v.5).

THE business of parents and teachers is to impart knowledge, but that is not all. Caring instructors also seek to impart wisdom, the proper use of knowledge. When this tends to be disregarded by the children, some reproof must be brought to bear upon them. The wisest of men advocates this. Soft-hearted people hesitate, having no desire to create uneasiness, but this is to be preferred to seeing children going astray and bringing greater pain upon themselves. When reprimands are administered fairly but firmly, with loving concern yet with authority, they will generally be accepted prudently.

"Better it is to be of an humble spirit. . . than to divide the spoil with the proud" (v.19).

SOLOMON spoke from personal experience. After the great reign of his father David, he said to God, "I am but a little child. I know not how to go out or come in". Then, instead of requesting fame, honour or riches, he asked for an understanding heart to deal justly with his people. Such humility was rewarded with the wisdom that he required and with greatness and wealth also. Jesus, the greatest of all, became the humblest of servants. "Knowing that He came from God and went to God, He took a towel and began to wash the disciples' feet".

"Better is a dry morsel and quietness therewith, than a house full of sacrifices with strife" (v.1).

WHICH do you prefer: a sumptuous meal interspersed with the host's account of the sacrifices involved to present it in these days of rising costs, or a humble meal given in silence with love? A poor home with barely enough food, but with thankful hearts to God at each meal for needs met, is conducive to quietness. Concern for each other and help in their essential labours make for unity. A simple desire to serve God humbly with trust in His loving care brings tranquility. Even hard work for long hours to earn a livelihood helps to produce the silence so essential for rest. Do you seek riches? Give me peace!

by David Butcher

The overall result of any union, regardless of whether it is a union of men or materials is strength. Any observer of the present day British scene can see the strength of the unions being wielded to obtain results. Power is their aim and their goal has been achieved.

Christians, though, are members of the greatest union of all times. The union that we have with Christ produces all that the world wants, only far better. In Christ we have a LIVING, LASTING, FRUITFUL and a LOVING union. This blessed union gives us all the power we need for everyday life. He is everything that you need!

LIVING UNION.

In Ephesians 1 there is a prayer that we, the believers, might have a deeper insight into the things of God. Christ is portrayed to the reader in all His majesty and power. vv20-21 "Far above all, King of Kings and Lord of Lords". Paul's prayer develops into instruction, we humble ordinary believers are joined in union with the Saviour, the mighty God. He is the head, we (the church) the body.

Colossians 2:18-19 is another of Paul's instructional pictures. He shows the body in bad health, the reason is simple, "not holding fast to the head". What a tragedy it is when an accident causes a healthy body to receive only limited instructions from the brain. Life all but stops and becomes merely an existence. The spiritual life of the believer must be more than this, spiritually we need to be healthy and developing, not simply existing. Verse 19 is clear that only through union with the head can the body have this life. Is your union with Christ a real living one or has it, through sad neglect, become a mere spiritual existence?

LASTING UNION.

All good things come to an end—so they say, things that we wait an age for seemingly flash past in minutes. Not so with Christ, our union is everlasting, permanent and strong in HIS might. The plans for this "Lasting Union" were not hastily made or executed. Isaiah 28:16 tells of the "machinery" of the eternal plan already in motion. "I am laying in Zion for a foundation a stone." (Ephesians 2:19-22). The cornerstone is laid and the building commenced. It is growing into "a holy temple in the Lord; in whom you also are built into it for a dwelling place of God in the Spirit". It is a building far stronger and lasting, more glorious and splendid than any castle or monument. This building is constructed through the lasting union with Christ. It is eternal and through Christ we have a part in it, we are part of it.

FRUITFUL UNION.

Jesus uses the illustration of a vine growing profusely and bearing a wonderful crop. What a thought! Lush clusters of grapes, lovely to look at and nicer to eat; the produce of the vine! Christ uses this word picture to present Himself (the vine), God (the gardener) and the believer (the branches), working together to produce good fruit. He talks of pruning, a needy operation to produce more and in every Christians life there must be this growth. There is also a warning given. Destruction will be the lot of those who perhaps look part of the vine, yet are not. There is no mercy for the counterfeit there must be genuineness that only true joining to the vine can bring about. To be part of the vine we have to LIVE in Christ (vv.4,5) drawing from Him, receiving all the goodness of the vine so that we produce the necessary fruit.

Is the quality of the fruit in your life as good as it should be? The life of the Christian should be a lovely thing, showing something of the quality of the vine that it came from.

LOVING UNION.

A wedding day, the special day in the life of a couple, remembered year after year with special reverence and happiness. A day when two are joined, become as one, a loving union.

Matthew 9:15 describes Christ as the bridegroom, the one in love with his bride — and yet to be removed, to be taken away. Later (chapter 25) the bridegroom returns, the glorious day that the bride (the church) longs for. Paul's desire is to present the bride "holy and pure" to Him (2 Corinthians 11:2). The result is quite simple to understand; it will be the perfect union, eternal, with no more separation!

PERFECT RESULTS FROM A PERFECT UNION.

The Living Union gives life activity and health, the Lasting Union, strength, safety and security. From the fruitful union we reap blessings and spiritual profit and the Loving Union produces permanent, eternal happiness and joy in the bridegroom's presence.

All that we want is found in Jesus! The Bible says that the pleasures (good things) of this world last only for a short while. Is this the case in your life or have you looked to Jesus who can meet your every need?

As this is my first EDITORIAL, I suppose that it is the right time to introduce myself to our readers.

I was born in Britain's second city some forty years ago. My first contact with the Pentecostal Church was exactly twenty-five years ago when I was taken along to a Sunday night meeting at our GRAHAM STREET church. Before the night was over I had been led to the LORD.

Every Editor must have a few ideas of his own which distinguish him from his predecessor, but every Editor is also dependent on his contributors. It might be as well at this point to explain what we feel are the main objects of a magazine such as ours.

First and foremost it is to keep our people in touch with each other and to show what the LORD is doing throughout our movement. If you let us have news of what is going on in your church we will do our best to pass it on to others. By such means we seek to encourage each other.

Secondly we will try to instruct as well as inform. It is our aim to provide instruction at all levels. We hope to avail ourselves of the services of ministers as well as laymen and women who are not only specialists in their own field but are able to lead others also, and that with "plainness of speech".

Thirdly we would value your comments and suggestions as well as your prayers.

YOURS IN CHRIST

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE. We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY. We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH. We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SALVATION. We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER.
We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISM. We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptizer in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with water following is promised to every believer. 7.
THE COMING KING. We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT. We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS. We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY. We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE.
We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ-rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES. We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

BATH

Pastor: D.O. Ward

IT IS good to report great blessing at our annual spring convention, under the ministry of Pastor G. Backhouse. What better theme could our speaker choose, to open the convention, than Psalm 30:1, "I will extol Thee, Lord." We were grateful to the youth group from Swindon, who came with musical items.

On Sunday morning, prior to the worship at the Lord's table, again Jesus was exalted, as Pastor Backhouse spoke on Jesus—"A plant of renown" Ezekiel 34:29. The evening gospel service was enriched by testimony and song. The Phillips' family from Chippenham, mum, dad and 7 children, also known as "the Philippians", a household salvation indeed! A challenging gospel message was given by Pastor Backhouse on "The voice of God" I Corinthians 14:10 explaining how God has communicated with mankind through the ages.

The closing service on Monday evening was privileged to have Pastor W. Ron Jones and his "New Creation Choir" from Bristol. The youth choir, tightly packed on the platform, made the spacious Bath church, resound with praise. Coming to our Convention after an absence of twelve years, Pastor Backhouse really made up for lost time in his final message on "Happiness"—and how he radiated it! Speaking from Isaiah 12:20 and Exodus 15:27 "12 Wells of Water" Pastor Backhouse said he would speak on "The Palm Trees" also mentioned in the text, at some future time!

So we thank God for the visit of Pastor Backhouse and all who contributed to the great blessing of the Convention. The services were convened by our minister, Pastor Douglas O. Ward.

COUNCILLOR A. Cope, Lord Mayor of Sheffield, opened the first of a series of new overspill townships in the Mosborough area of Sheffield. During the proceedings our Pastor presented Councillor Cope with a booklet entitled "Welcome to Mosborough", which has been specially produced by Elim Church members. The booklet lists many of the amenities available to the expected 18,000 new families and gives an invitation to our services. Our intention is to visit each home, as the folk move in and leave a copy of the booklet.

We feel that this method of evangelism has much to commend it and if other churches are interested a sample copy of the booklet can be obtained on application to our Pastor.

SUNDERLAND

Pastor: D.G. Holmes

WE thank God for a truly wonderful day of rich blessing at our second annual women's rally. At the afternoon meeting around 200 sisters gathered from various churches in and around Sunderland. The meeting was ably convened by our Pastor's wife and we were greatly blessed by the anointed ministry of Mrs. A. Brooks. Our guest soloist was Mrs. Iris Smith. Many stayed for a buffet tea provided by the Sisterhood.

The brethren joined us for the evening convention rally, making about the same size congregation as the afternoon. The service was noted for the sense of God's presence in every ministry. Throughout the day our ladies' choir ministered in song. Our Sisterhood motto was graciously fulfilled in the activities of the day: "To know Him and to make Him known".

Pastor: T. Richardson

AT THE end of April we held a Baptismal Service, when four young people, two boys, and two girls, followed the Lord through the waters of baptism; one of the young men was from an Anglican church.

Pastor Wynne Lewis of our York church preached a memorable sermon and our own Pastor baptised the candidates.

The future of our building is a little uncertain at present, but we are sure that God will lead us to the right place. Please remember our situation in prayer.

FOR the visit of Russell and Betty Lou Mills, our church was well filled at each service. We had visitors from other churches in the area on the Friday and Saturday nights. The Lord richly blessed through the ministry in song of Betty Lou. She gave solos and also informal talks. As one listened there was no doubt that she had experienced Christ.

Russell Mills's sermons also challenged us all. His main theme was total commitment to Christ and we had the joy of seeing four people committing the whole of their lives over to Christ.

The weekend came to a close all too quickly, but we are looking forward to another visit from our brother and sister.

BRIAN S. KIBBY

CLAPHAM, London

Pastor: J. Fry

OUR hearts are full of praise to God for His wonderful blessing on our Sisterhood Weekend. We were conscious of His presence with us from the very beginning of our time of praise and worship at the Breaking of Bread service, after which a simple, homely, but very potent word was given by our guest speaker, Mrs. F.A. Hodge. She reminded us how necessary the dark as well as the bright pieces are in completing the picture of a jig-saw puzzle, and so it is with us. God is in it all and uses the dark times to draw us into deeper dependence on Him.

Shall we ever forget the encouraging message in the evening on the filthy rags and cast-off cloths which were used to raise Jeremiah from the dark dungeon? Even though we think that we are of no further use and are cast off and forgotten, yet God can use us in encouraging one another in the work of the Lord.

On Monday afternoon we met with a goodly number of ladies (and gentlemen) from other churches to listen to God's Word and enjoy the lively singing and happy fellowship. We heard of the different ministries of several women in the Bible and felt that we each could do some little service for the Lord.

Afterwards about 100 sat down to tea and many old friends greeted one another in the Lord and new friends were made.

It was lovely to renew fellowship with Mrs. Hodge and we thank her for her encouraging messages and pray that God will bless her and restore Pastor Hodge to health and strength.

OUR first women's fellowship rally was held in the Old Folks' Rest Room. Over 150 people attended and many churches were represented. A time of fellowship and great blessing was enjoyed by all. We sat under the ministry of our sister Mrs. Margaret Ladlow who spoke on the women who ministered to Jesus. The message challenged our hearts and was truly blessed of God. A divine healing testimony was given by Roger Smith from our Silverdale Church. It brought home to us afresh the realisation that God is moving in our time and generation. Other items included Mrs. Day, our guest soloist, and the ladies of our own assembly who also ministered to us in song. Supper was provided and served by the local sisters and was much appreciated. The offering for the evening was donated to missionary work.

S. BERGMAN

GRANGETOWN, Teesside

Pastor: N. C. Broomhead

WE began our day of fasting with the usual services within the all-age Christian education programme. The class theme was to strive, walk and be filled with the spirit. "Turn your eyes upon Jesus" became one's desire and our chorus of praise during the communion service. An open discussion regarding fasting took place. I certainly gained knowledge of a subject not familiar or clear before we commenced.

At the prayer meeting we all became conscious of the nearness of Christ and of each other, in fact fellowship fasting and prayer were the theme throughout the day.

Every meeting held that day contained further blessings for everyone. Our bodies were certainly of more use to our Lord by the end than when the day began.

LEICESTER

Pastor: R. Morrell

PASTOR L. Reeves, Minister of our Assembly in the early 1940's preached to packed congregations and many of the original Elimites in Leicester were present. Our faith was stimulated and we rejoiced when two souls were saved, a man and wife, as a result of the word spoken at the Saturday convention.

We held a baptismal service in the Robert Hall Baptist Church, a united effort with the Glenfield Evangelical Mission. Nine members were baptised, including two married couples, and three members from Glenfield. Our Minister conducted the service and was assisted by Pastor A.E. Tate (Glenfield). Pastor J.H. Hunt (Loughborough) preached and he, Mrs. Hunt and Rachel ministered in song. We shall long remember this very precious occasion.

Mention must be made of the tremendous blessing of the recent visit of Mr. R. Rees (South Wales). His singing and topical messages will be remembered.

AT the memorial service for Pastor and Mrs. H. Burton Haynes and their friend, Miss M. Inkpen, the church was full, not only of local people, but from various districts where Pastor Haynes was held in high esteem. Rev. J. James of St. James' Church, Clacton, read from the book of Revelation and gave a tribute to Pastor and Mrs. Haynes.

The church secretary, Mr. S.K. Bolton, paid a tribute on behalf of the deacons and members of the church, stating how for twelve years Pastor and Mrs. Haynes served the church faithfully. He said that words are inadequate to express the love that they had for God and the church. He also spoke of Miss Inkpen who served the church despite ill health. Mr. P. Emmerson, the church treasurer, sang Mr. Haynes's favourite hymn, "Be still, My Soul".

Pastor D.W. Anthony spoke of Mr. Haynes's work as District Superintendent and said that he was a real gentleman, whom you could trust in any trouble, a real man of God. Mr. H. Quay, former pastor of Torquay church, gave a short tribute.

Finally, Pastor G.W. Gilpin, Principal of Elim Bible College, said that Pastor Haynes did a great work among the students, helping in their studies and exams. He said that he was patient, thorough and understanding in all things. The church secretary concluded with these words: "Well done, Thou good and faithful servants. Enter Thou into the joy of Thy Lord".

Our Pastor convened the meeting.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA Pastor: A. Nicolson

RECENTLY we have received a feast of good things from God through the ministries of Pastors J. Lancaster, D.J. Ayling and M. Smith, (New Jersey), as well as through the musical ministries of Miss Burley and Mrs. Spreadborough. God has been moving in the hearts of His people, drawing us out into new experiences of worship and praise. He has also displayed His saving power among our young people and we thank Him for all that He is doing in our midst.

(Mrs.) M.S. LYNDON

EASTLEIGH Pastor: M. Moore

A BAPTISMAL service was recently conducted by our Pastor, M. Moore, when eight people went through the waters. They included two young men and two teenage girls recently won for the Lord in personal work by our Pastor, who has a special desire to get young people to become Christians and labours to that purpose. There were two young sisters who had been brought up in the Sunday school, as well as a young girl of eight years who gave a firm answer as to her believing in Jesus. For this service our church was well filled with many people in for the first time.

A coffee bar is functioning in premises of another church where after-church rallies are held to cater for young people who come in and are brought into touch with the claims of the gospel. As a church we pray that these young people will go on to grow in grace and witness a good confession.

BRIDGWATER Pastor: F.J. Livings

OUR Church is small, but we thank God that our vision for Christ and our faith in Him are growing. Under the direction of Pastors J.B.D. Ritchie and T. McGuicken a four-day crusade was conducted.

On the first night, almost fifty people attended. The Pastors introduced themselves and the four Elim Bible College students, Tony Wilson, Graham Unsworth, and Alan and Valerie Wilson. The warmth of their ministry was felt throughout the whole congregation. Saturday was supported by The Harvesters from Yeovil and about seventy people were able to hear the good news proclaimed in song. During the four days many different folk assisted in the proclamation of the gospel in song, testimony and preaching.

After the normal services on Sunday, there was a rally at which the four students were put on the spot by Pastor Ritchie, who asked them their reasons for their choice of college, assurance of God's leading and many other topics.

We were pleased to see two people from other churches turn to Christ for salvation and two others rededicating their lives. A number who came to the crusade listened to the Word and we believe the seed was planted in their hearts. Believers were encouraged and strengthened by the fervour in the presentation of the Gospel. We thank all who participated and look to God to continue His work in our lives and in the building up of His Church.

ISLINGTON

Pastor: A. L. Hawkes

ON a Saturday evening a few weeks ago the Islington Church was full to capacity for the farewell service of Pastor F.H. Coleman, who is retiring. He has spent the past twenty six years of his ministry as Pastor of the Islington Church. Pastor J.F. Hardman, the District Superintendent, spoke a few words on the office of a pastor and said that Pastor Coleman had been a pastor in the full sense of the word. Tributes were paid by lay representatives from the East and West London Presbyteries. Pastor Coleman had for many years been District Superintendent before the the Presbyteries were split. Presentations were made on behalf of both Presbyteries, the Church and the Sunday School. Pastor Coleman continued to minister at the Church while suitable accommodation was arranged for the new Minister who has been appointed. The high spot of Pastor Coleman's last year as Pastor was the autumn campaign last October. Some fifteen, mostly backsliders, responded to the appeal and the Church was revived. The campaigner, Pastor G.J. Feasey, of our Pontardulais Church, is a product of the Islington Church.

RYDE, I.W.

Pastor: I.R. Hall, B.D.

IT is only natural that an Elim Sunday School should think about conversions! The Isle of Wight is being converted from town gas to North Sea gas, which meant that our church heaters would be obsolete. The Gas Board's estimated cost, with fitments, for the new heaters was over £400 so our Pastor appealed to the Church to help meet the cost, and within three weeks nearly £400 pounds was collected. A sponsored walk was organised by the Sunday School to help towards the cost, with the students taking part. A seven-mile bridle path route was chosen called "The Bembridge Trail". Mr. and Mrs. Rowe and Miss Gerring organised the route with support from the Pastor, and Mr. and Mrs. Dives and Messrs. Parkman and Webb.

The weather was wonderful and, as we walked through the lovely countryside we could echo the Island's motto, "All this beauty is of God". The amount collected by the walk was £39.69½.

WINTON, Bournemouth Pastor: G.N. Backhouse

WE give thanks to God for the fellowship and blessing in the Winton Church week by week and there have been certain occasions during the past months deserving special mention. One was the showing of the film "The Cross and the Switchblade" organised by Joe Fudge. The church was packed, a large proportion of those present being young people. There was much blessing and a sense of conviction in the meeting and we praise God for thirty-three people who came forward for salvation.

The Easter convention was a source of inspiration as we rejoiced in the death and resurrection of our Saviour. We were encouraged and uplifted by the ministry of the Word by Pastor Glyn L. Taylor.

We praise God too for the steady progress in the young people's work. Recently they took the Sunday evening service introducing one or two unusual, very interesting features. They also rendered musical items with guitar accompaniment. The whole service was appreciated by all who attended.

Revival follows Revolution in Indonesia, by Andrew Gih, published by Lakeland, price 60p, postage and packing 8p extra.

HERE is a story of God's dealings with the Chinese Church in Indonesia in recent years. The well-known Chinese evangelist Andrew Gih tells of his visits there and of the resurgence of spiritual life among the Chinese who have settled in Indonesia since the communist regime took over in mainland China. He recalls some thrilling answers to prayer especially in the establishment of the Bible school. Those who have been acquainted with the work of Pastor Gih and the South-east Asia Bible College will no doubt welcome this book. Personally, however, I felt that the title was rather misleading. Having heard so much of the work of the Holy Spirit among the native Indonesian population, I was expecting to read a first-hand account of what has been described as one of the most wonderful movements of the Spirit in modern times. The first part of the book tells the story of the Chinese Church in Indonesia accompanied by testimonies from its pastors, but the remainder of the book (more than half its contents) is a series of sermons given by the author. It is no doubt a good book, but I think that it could have had a more relevant title.

Faith facing Facts, by Rheinallt Nantlais Williams, published by Coverdale House Publishers Ltd., price 60p, postage and packing 10p extra.

THE privilege of being a reviewer can produce euphoria! This is a fine book, however. You read it, keep going to the Bible to follow up lines of thought and then re-read a paragraph because of an apt illustration. It is full of provocative things like: "The Sermon on the Mount, without the sacrifice on our behalf on Calvary, would not have brought us to God or God to us; it would have been like giving a book on the art of swimming to a man who had already disappeared under the water"! It is one of the best challenges to faith that I have read for many a day.

Mysticism — Its Meaning and Message, by Georgia Harkness, published by Oliphants, price £2.25, postage and packing 15p extra.

DR. HARKNESS, a Methodist minister of Quaker ancestry, presents in under 200 pages a readable survey of mystical thought from biblical to modern times. Obviously at home with her subject, she provides a valuable introduction to the biblical and philosophical basis of Christian Mysticism and to the major figures in the main historical periods. By comment and by extensive documentation she shows that the mystic is not divorced from reality, but is in touch with Supreme Reality and concerned with the "nitty-gritty" of earthly life too.

Her last chapter on "Neo-Mysticism Today" contains timely warnings regarding the occult, drugs and oriental philosophies. While she is cautiously sympathetic to the distinctively Christian celebration, Jesus movement, and speaking with tongues, however, she has strong reservations about the "dogmatic biblical literalism" or "fundamentalism" of the Jesus people.

To Dr. Harkness, conversion is a mystical experience; she so describes Paul's conversion, combining 2 Corinthians 12:2-4 with the Act's passages and the similar experiences of later Christians. Unfortunately she also stresses that this is not the only valid form of Christianity, thus implying that conversion, though desirable, is not essential to the Christian. Another sour note is her repudiation of the Johannine authorship and the historical accuracy of the Fourth Gospel.

Any commendation of this work must be qualified by the theological liberalism of its author, which is regrettable.

Between Ourselves, by Alice Chambers, published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott Ltd., price 30p, postage and packing 6p extra.

MRS. Chambers speaks in this book of Bible characters. At home with the Bible herself, Mrs. Chambers brings her knowledge to bear on Bible characters in such a way that they become ordinary people like ourselves to find that God can be trusted. The book is a real faith-builder.

Record Review

SPRINGTIME, by Helmut and Elisabeth Kaufmann, an ECHO recording, price £2.09, postage and packing 15p extra.

HELMUT and Elisabeth are well known to many Elim friends: Their singing has made significant, spiritual contributions to many of our gatherings, especially at Conference. This LP includes twelve pieces, five of them by Elim minister Len Magee. Full modern backing is provided. Technical quality is excellent, though the backing is too obtrusive for me. I prefer to hear our friends singing to their own guitar accompaniment. Their evident sincerity comes through well, however. Younger people will go for this disc rather than older ones, I think. Mind you, the beautiful sleeve will sell it anyway!

From a Pastor's Study

My Chelsea Rosette

by A. Nicolson,
Pastor of our
Southend-on-Sea
Church

A FEW weeks after my appointment to my present church one of the youngsters asked me, "Pastor, which team do you support?". "Chelsea!", I replied, largely because my brother-in-law is a keen supporter and I hear quite a lot about that team. There and then I was treated to a nine year old's crushing argument for the supremacy of Arsenal. We became good friends and he now talks to me quite freely about lots of things.

Recently one of the young people gave me a Chelsea rosette, for the news had got around. It is large, blue in colour and has Chelsea printed on it in bold letters. There would be no mistaking which team was being supported by the wearer of such a rosette and that set me thinking about football supporters, the real supporters, not the hooligans who bring fear to people and destruction to property.

Supporters are not ashamed of the team they support, hence the outsize in rosettes. They are expected to be loyal and not switch to another team when their own hits a bad patch. Every supporter enjoys supporting a winning team.

Paul was not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ and he was certainly a loyal supporter of Jesus even when it meant prison and persecution. He was also aware that if Jesus had not risen from the dead then his beliefs were "up the creek" and he, with all like him, would have been the most miserable of supporters. He was right of course, Jesus is alive and He is the head of a winning team, the Church.

I keep my Chelsea rosette in my study and it reminds me that a good supporter is unashamed and loyal, but that he likes to be on the winning side.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

13. Divine condescension (Exodus 7:1-5)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THESE verses give a wonderful double picture of divine condescension. Israel was a downtrodden, oppressed nation of slaves who, in their misery, groaned for deliverance, yet when the Lord promised freedom to them, they clung to their slavery because of temporary problems. Moses had been called by God to set Israel free from bondage and he was given both a message and confirming miracles; but after initial trouble Moses returned downcast and beaten. He was so obsessed by failure that he could not see the glory of God. However, the Lord loved both the servile nation and the despondent leader, so He came to the nation in her misery and to Moses in his despondency, and He solemnly promised that He would use Moses to judge Egypt and to deliver Israel.

There is an even more wonderful picture of divine condescension in John 3:16 and Galatians 2:20. All the misery and sorrow of mankind sprang from bondage to sin, yet the constant offers of divine mercy were ignored or spurned; men preferred the slavery of sin to divine freedom! Saul of Tarsus sincerely wanted to obey the Law and do right, but he was constantly dragged down by a greater power until at last, beaten and miserable, he cried out: "Wretched man that I am, who can deliver me from this body of death?" (Romans 7:24). The Lord loved not only mankind as a whole, but the individual. He gave His own dear Son to bring salvation to both; as a result Saul became His messenger to declare the Good News to the nations.

Man's sin seems to be producing a deadly harvest at this time, and men are bewildered and distressed as they face the future; yet they will not turn to the Lord for true peace and security—as though the horrors that menace them are to be preferred to surrender to the Lord of love! Some of us have tried to bring men and women to Christ, but have been baffled by their hardness and indifference. All too often we have said: "They will not listen!" and we have given up trying. The Lord still loves men and women to-day; the Lord Jesus Christ died to save them from sin; He also loves us dearly even in our defeat and failure; so He calls us to go once more as His messengers to this generation and He arms us with His promise: "In due time we shall reap if we do not faint" (Galatians 6:9).

President's Perspective

by George Canty

Dr. Bryan R. Wilson, I think, is the source of a remark on Elim about “diminishing returns” which I find echoed here and there by those wanting to make a quick comment about us, as in David Sheppard’s new book “Built as a City”.

Dr. Wilson is a sociologist, and I don’t like the breed. By this I mean nothing personal. I’m sure Dr. Wilson is a sincere scholar, but I would love him to find that the real truth about Elim, is the Truth, the Lord Jesus Himself. He says Elim is a “Jesus sect”. Unless Dr. Wilson does not understand the theology of the church, this credits Elim with the highest orthodoxy possible. If (or when) Dr. Wilson becomes an Elim member he will be a Jesus person himself. There is no discovery about truth more wonderful, and we would welcome this well known sociologist into our “sect”.

But it is sociologists I am most suspicious of — they seem to me to prove exactly what they want to prove from any data at all. Elim is presented as a mere social phenomenon, thrown up by the general movements of modern life. Nothing in it to be credited to God.

The more I reflect upon the world-wide wickedness with which we are surrounded today, passed off in mild terms as modern trends, the more amazed I am at the existence of Elim.

Elim exists and grows (despite Dr. Wilson’s remark) in a world of gross iniquity utterly unsuitable as grounds for Pentecostal development, as did the Early Church.

In our world the prior interests are wages, profits, and sex. Not far behind comes the awful sin of giving divine glory to the “gods” of sport and entertainment, as if physical prowess, and physical beauty in women, were the highest achievements possible on this planet.

Britain goes blindly hand in hand with irreligious political con-men whose motive is our material destruction. From this, or from moral weakness, stems our feather-duster treatment of hate-crazed, Satan inspired terrorists, hijackers, and unbalanced threateners trying to force this country into actions and attitudes which it would never adopt but for them. Misguided Freudian psychological heresies have sought to remove all forms of proper discipline, and for this we now pay a terrible price in violence, vandalism, and ruthlessness for political or financial gain. Clean living has become a joke. Morals are looked upon as repressive, and psychologically harmful — good has become evil. Hypocrisy of the most strident kind hoots cynically across the floor of international discussions, where the guilty condemn the innocent. Conscience is a rare peculiarity. The denial of Biblical standards mean that the banks make vast and immoral profits on government orders.

The poorer people trying to get a roof over the heads, become loaded with mortgage debts from which they will never be free thanks to the vicious grasping usury of our financial system.

A great deal of this evil is a post-war development. And Elim, with its so-called “narrow” ethics, its demand for holiness, purity, unselfishness, unworldliness, its stand against greed and self-indulgence, its demand that we bear the cross, and that we put God before Mammon, — what chance does it have? Elim in fact calls our generation to repent for most of the things in which it takes pride. The world “knows us not” — thank God.

Yet we exist. We do more, we thrive, and no amount of sociological ingenuity can satisfactorily explain it apart from the moving of the Spirit of God. It is our rooted persistence in a howling wasteland of godlessness which matters. If we make no impact — it proves nothing. Impact is not the test. Jesus sometimes made none, in some places. We are here — that’s the startling fact, not numerous, but numerous enough to be significant. In forty-three years the Pentecostals have become, in Birmingham for instance, one of the three major religious forces, according to an official leaflet issued by the Birmingham Council of Churches.

Jesus said he would build His Church. It is my pleasure as Elim’s President to move around seeing Him doing it. He is creating a people for himself — a “Jesus sect”. Hallelujah!

I've just come from Bristol. Less than twenty-five years ago I sent a bus load of folk from my old church in Gloucester to a crusade which we hoped would begin another assembly. I preached there this week to five hundred people. The new church is a new and exciting building. The site on which it stands is being developed into a complex for Christian service to old and young people with flats, nursery, and many other facilities. This site is a miracle of divine over-ruling and providential undertaking, worth a sum of money which would have to be expressed in seven figures.

What God hath wrought! We don't glory in Elim but we glory in that God has made Elim strong, challenging, and a sign to Britain full of its original power — the Holy Spirit.

While Elim exists as evidence of our God at work, there is hope for our shattered and spiritually bankrupt land.

Servant-sons

A PROCESSION of future evangelists has marched through our home during our African sojourn. When one is pioneering, every male convert is a prospective worker. Having taken the step of publicly accepting our gospel, Mbugi was introduced into the wonders of a European Home. There was no radio, gramophone or refrigerator, but Dorothy's contrivances with trunks and boxes gave us a furnished look. To Mbugi who had one meal a day, we were always eating or drinking. We know that he boasted of our many clothes. "There is", he told his hearers, "a room for sleeping in, a room for eating in, and a small room in which they do nothing but wash themselves". Our prodigal use of water (twenty gallons a day) was a constant wonder. Conversely, we marvelled in how little water (one pint) one could bath. "There is" said he, "an inside roof (ceiling)". This marvel, so necessary to trap the heat and all kinds of tropicana varying from snakes to insects, had flowed its interminable, dusty length across Dorothy and through her sewing machine. "They have so much crockery to wash up" he reported. But he "reduced" the quantity to more reasonable proportions. Hygiene does not easily translate. Dorothy found this very true when she sought words to express herself to Mbugi on the subject of his washing the "potty" with the teacups.

We wanted him to grow in Christ, so we taught him of our Lord. But I did not realise then, that our lives were the book that he most easily read. Paul writes of the example that he was to Timothy (2 Timothy 3 Living Bible). The way we lived, our wants, our desires, our faith, troubles, patience. Our love—surely he would have seen that in Dorothy's medical ministry to his people.

Incredible as it seems, he managed to catch a glimpse of our Lord through us. "A treasure in earthen vessels" in very truth. An employer is Tajiri (rich man). "No" I protested, "Missionaries are not rich!" He pointed to the line of washing, "You own six shirts. One man six shirts". His fellow tribesmen marvelled that he could associate with demon creations (Europeans). But the Lord's work had begun, and the time was to come when he would assent like Timothy to the words of Paul. "You know the scriptures are true for you know that you can trust of us who have taught you".

All who believed our gospel were derided as "sons of Bulu." Some were sons of God and these stayed with us and passed into His service. One of them is now a member of our Tanzanian Executive. Some never found true sonship with Him and thus could not pass beyond servanthood with us.

The master of a servant-son must remember that the servant is a brother in Christ. But the servant who has become a brother, a friend of the boss, must walk very carefully. Jesus said, "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you". We are His brethren and friends, but always He is in command for He is our Lord.

"We Want a Young Man as Our Pastor"

by Rev. BEN L. ROSE, Bristol, Virginia

Reprinted from May/June issue "DEDICATION", Editor W. H. Richards

This is a protest against the rising cry from the churches, "We want a young man as our pastor". I write this as a young man.

I protest this cry because as a young minister I know their limitations. There is no substitute for experience in any field, and experience is the thing in which the young man is most lacking.

There is no substitute for experience in pastoral visiting. In the event of some great sorrow, I believe a family would prefer the presence of a man whose very age and experience gave weight to his words of comfort. People will confess their problems to an elderly man more readily than to a young man.

There is no substitute for experience in church administration and finance. Elders and deacons are more liable to respect and follow a man who has dealt with these things before than a youth who has had little experience in them. We demand age and experience in our doctors, legal advisers, and bankers, but we rush to trust the care of the church and the care of our immortal souls to the men with the least experience.

The cry for young men is especially bad when it comes from the large churches, for these are often the leading churches in the Presbytery. To thrust a young man who has limited experience into places of influence which he is not capable of carrying is to do detriment to the man as well as to the Presbytery, the Synod, and the Assembly.

Contrary to popular belief, a man's years has nothing at all to do with his appeal to young people. That a man is young is by no means a guarantee that he will appeal to young people, and that a man is old is by no means a guarantee that he will not appeal to them. Often our best leaders of young people have been elderly men.

If the cry was, "We want a man who is 'mentally young'," no one could protest it. For a minister to cease to grow mentally is inexcusable, and it must be admitted that there are some ministers who have not grown one iota since they left the seminary. But there is a great host of ministers in our church who are past 50 years of age who could serve our churches in a far greater capacity than they now are. They are hindered because churches, when seeking a pastor, pass over them with a quick, "Too old". Let the church seek "young-minded" men, for the best minister is the man who has continued, by study and reading, to keep his mind young, and yet who has acquired the tact and graciousness that long experience brings.

Therefore, I beseech the churches to allow the man's age to have nothing to do with the choice of a pastor and to say, "We want as our pastor a man who is young in spirit", but not, "We want as our pastor a man who is young".

BOOK REVIEW

The Message of the New Testament, by F. F. Bruce, published by The Paternoster Press, price 75p, postage and packing 6p extra.

THIS book contains many facets of truth culled from the New Testament by a well-known writer about the Bible and its history. It needs careful reading of many scriptural references, which makes it of interest to the student rather than the casual reader. Presentation is sane, pointing to the fact that the whole message of the New Testament is found in the person of Christ, who is Lord (1 Peter 3:15), and Saviour (Acts 10:43; Titus 2:11), and our hope: "While the distinctive New Testament note is that of fulfilment, the note of hope is present also (Romans 8:21)... It was in Christ that this purpose of the divine love was conceived... it is in Christ that it will be realised".

As evidence of careful preparation there is a useful index to help reference to the subjects covered, and the prologue and epilogue make the book complete. Students will do well to have it on their shelves.

A Letter

Another letter, Pastor

Dear Pastor,

Must you always read out the first verse of the hymn, even when it has eight lines? The custom of lining out the verses belongs to the days when folk couldn't read. But if, and when you do, please pay attention to the stress. Not a pedestrian "Praise my soul the King of heaven..", in monotone, but "Praise—my soul—the King of heaven!" Not the mere vocative, "O for a thousand tongues.." but the exclamative "Oh". And all those hymns which begin with "Come". Put a comma after the "Come," and let it really sound like an invitation.

Your loyal member.

A Quotation

Glorifying Guilt and Minimising Innocence

Are we evangelicals in some ways prone to glorify guilt and minimise innocence? Professor Henry Drummond in his Ideal Life (not to hand) has a poem about the redeemed in heaven discussing and voting as to which of them was the greatest monument of grace. Each told his story and a final vote for two names was taken. One, a very old man, had been desperately wicked on earth, but at the eleventh hour on his death-bed, had been wonderfully forgiven. The other, also an old man, had been led to Christ when but a boy, and had therefore been saved from all the sins the other had committed. In this final vote all heaven acclaimed the second the winner, and Drummond added, "The one required just one great act of love at the end of his life, the other lived a long life full of love. His was a greater salvation by far."

A testimony from a man who has been wild and wayward, an ex-drug addict, drunkard, or home-breaker, can be more interesting than that of a young person who, from blameless youth comes to Christ, and in Him, grows to a life of purity. It is the former who gets the platform every time. "He has a wonderful testimony" we say. The writer has actually heard dear saints express the wish that they had been more worldly etc., that they might appreciate the more what the Lord has done for them! It is an altogether false idea that the greatest sinners necessarily make the greatest saints.

GLEANINGS

Abuse of Power

by S. E. Petts

"Dost thou now govern Israel? I will give thee Naboth's vineyard." (1 Kings 21:7).

AHAB and Jezebel abused their regal power in stealing Naboth's vineyard. Whilst we are quick to recognise that rulers, especially dictators, use power for their own ends, we do not so readily see similar faults in ourselves. We all have some power. All parents have power over their children and too often it is exploited. Power brings responsibility, but many parents ignore their children's rights. Employers have power over their employees yet sometimes forget that they are responsible for them. Workers at times remember their rights and forget their duties. We all have power over those who depend on us, perhaps invalids. If we deny them little acts of service because of their ingratitude, we abuse the power we have. Christ had power without measure, yet He never used it for Himself. He only used it to serve others. The power we use to aid others increases our degree of power. "To him that hath" and uses it in God's service "shall more be given." Power used on ourselves we lose. Ahab and Jezebel lost all. Life is our greatest power. Christ gave His life away but was raised again. So shall we be, if we spend our lives in the service of others. No matter how small our power, we are responsible to God for its use.

The Champion of the Little Ones

TO MANY people the town of Settle is just a small place one hurries through on the A.65 route over the Pennines. Situated on the river Ribble in the West Riding of Yorkshire, it has, however, a legitimate claim to fame as the birthplace of one Benjamin Waugh, the founder of the N.S.P.C.C. He was a member of a remarkable Yorkshire family and a wonderful proof that godly parentage is a priceless heritage. His father, James, was a saddler of Scots descent. His mother, Mary Harrison who came from Skipton, was born into a family of staunch Congregationalists, preachers, church leaders and scholars. In fact Benjamin Waugh's great-great grandfather was probably present when his father's home became the first licenced meeting-place for non-conformists in the area in 1710.

Thus began a line of Christian men, who were to serve God in many places, humble pastorates and influential city churches and culminating in the ministry of Benjamin Waugh and the foundation of a great society to protect children and to be concerned about the welfare of the weak and helpless. As Benjamin's mother died when he was only eight years old, he was taken to live with his mother's brother, the Rev. John Harrison, and attended the school run by his uncle for seven happy years. Afterwards he was apprenticed to a draper, also a Congregationalist, Alderman Boothroyd of Southport, and eventually married his master's daughter. He became a keen Christian and after three years study at Airdale College, Bradford, he entered the ministry, developing into a lively and effective preacher.

Ordained in 1865, he began his ministry at Newbury, Berks. Always a typical Yorkshireman, he had a real concern for the exploited, the ill-treated and the under-privileged and was always ready to fight for them. Maybe the loss of his mother so early in life made him very sympathetic to all lost and lonely children and orphans in particular. The story is told that at the beginning of his Newbury ministry a child was committed to trial for stealing turnips. Waugh defended the young culprit and pleaded for a dismissal of the case on the grounds that he had been guilty of the same offence as a boy, but had never been found out! The Earl of Caernarvon, who was present in court was so impressed by his pleadings that he cried out "Well done, Waugh! You're the first parson I have known who cared for anything but pew rents!"

Benjamin Waugh went on to be an editor, writer, author of hymns and the great champion of neglected children. There are still those around to-day who accuse the Christian Church of its lack of caring in a practical way for the needs of society. Once more we can give the lie to this by pointing to a man, who emerged from a family of dedicated and active believers. It is a sad commentary that the work he began is still needed in our society to-day. Benjamin Waugh was surely a man, who knew the mind of Christ our Lord and like his Master had a deep concern for children.

Our Saviour's warnings in Matthew 18 are still relevant to-day and we should make them known. There are so many broken marriages resulting in unhappy insecure children in our present society. Cruelty to babies and children is causing growing concern; at least one national daily newspaper is campaigning for government action to investigate and counteract the battered baby syndrome. I am certain this is a sure sign that we are living in the last days and that many people are "without natural affection".

Battered babies and bewildered and neglected children are a terrible tragedy, yet they are a fact of society to-day, and we cannot close our minds to these grim realities. Let us pray, help and teach all the more. I know of two fine Elim Pentecostal men, who are serving as N.S.P.C.C. officers and we too can all have a part in some way of spreading God's loving kindness to those Our Saviour called His "Little ones".

The Hero that wasn't

by Eric Carter (Grimsby) Youth Commissioner, North East Presbytery

When I was a child I was given a book entitled The boys' book of heroes. Those true stories were very exciting; they were written to captivate a boy's imagination. Naaman should have been given a page or two in that book, for despite the insistent bragging of Mohammed Ali, I reckoned Naaman to be greatest! — until I recently re-read his intriguing story in 2 Kings 5. Then I had second thoughts.

Naaman's reputation is beyond dispute. He was no ninny. Any man who could reach the position of Commander-in-chief of the Syrian fighting force must have been a real man. He probably rated very high in the popularity charts. Syria's number one hero! Then came big trouble. Naaman contracted leprosy. A nasty way to go!

What a pity Naaman could not see the detailed plan God has mapped out. It would have interested him greatly, because our hero was slap-bang in the middle. So was a girl, snatched during a successful raid within Israeli territory by Syria's legions. This domestic nobody has been the subject of many a sermon because of her unflinching testimony when the odds were stacked high against her.

The prophets prescription made Naaman stalk off in a rage. Like a spoilt child he wanted a cure but only in his way. Instant! Like coffee! Full V.I.P. treatment! Cash on delivery; His wallet bulged at the seams. The thought of seven duckings in dirty old Jordan hurt his pride. Humility is a trying task for some! However, he quickly realised after a persuasive nudge from one of his officers that he could not barter with Elisha. Two choices were open — go under or go home! God's way or not at all! This principle never changes.

Transformation resulted from that plunge. Naaman's body was cleansed of that loathsome disease and his belief was also radically altered. We hear his sensational confession: "I know at last that there is no God in all the world except in Israel. . . I will never again offer any burnt offerings or sacrifices to any other God except the Lord! (v.15, 17, Living Bible). From that moment, God was to be first in his life. I can almost hear you say "NICE ONE, Naaman, boy, what a fantastic conversion, I should like to shake that guy's hand". But it is at this point in the story when our colourful soap bubble. . . BURSTS! Naaman's intention was first-rate but it was only to be a partial dedication. God later presented Naaman with an A1 opportunity. His countryman were heathen, without the knowledge of the Living God. Had he spoken up, he could have been instrumental in turning hundreds of men to God. What potential! Tragically, however, he remained silent! Perhaps he was scared of being given marching orders. Maybe his knees knocked when thinking what others might say. The fact remains, Naaman displayed a characteristic previously unknown in his military career — Cowardice! When the king knelt before the god, Rimmon, our gallant Commander knelt alongside. He let God down by his silence!

The greatest of all evangelists wrote: "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto Salvation".

The most cunning masterpiece of Satanic scheming has been to brainwash lots of Christians into thinking that the onus in speaking out for Jesus rests with those who have been professionally trained.

RESULT — CHRISTIANS WITH SPIRITUAL LOCK-JAW!

Introducing Jesus Christ to men and women is the responsibility of every Christian. This age has no time for "Sunday-go-to-meeting-merry-go-round". We must take the offensive! Sharing Christ is thrilling, exciting, invigorating. It is time for the silent minority to speak up.

FIRST MEETING OF THE EAST ANGLIA PRESBYTERY

History was made recently at Stowmarket when the first official meeting of a new presbytery took place.

The new East Anglia Presbytery, comprising of Norwich, Felixtowe, Great Yarmouth, Beccles, Lowestoft, Dereham, Stowmarket and Ipswich churches, met to discuss the extension of God's kingdom and the Elim witness in this area. Pastor A.S.F. Horne ably guided the meeting.

Ministers and laymen then joined the Stowmarket friends for tea on the occasion of the second anniversary of their minister Pastor Mark Drew.

Pastor J.C. Smyth was the special speaker at the evening rally, where he enthusiastically and sincerely proclaimed "Jesus is Lord". This theme, as well as doing our souls good, adequately brought to a conclusion an important day.

Proverbs 18:1-24

"A MAN'S belly shall be satisfied with the fruit of his mouth, and with the increase of his lips shall he be filled" (v.20).

The comfort of the stomach depends a great deal upon how it is used or abused. If it is not satisfied it complains and testifies against us. Similarly our consciences testify to our spiritual comfort or discomfort. The mouth is used for speaking as well as consuming. If we control our tongues our consciences will be satisfied and healthy. If we speak evil and untrue things our consciences will be uneasy and dissatisfied and will not leave us untroubled. If we use the fruit of our mouths properly then our consciences will testify in our favour and leave us in peace of mind and soul. With Christ in control all must be well.

Proverbs 20:1-20

"The hearing ear and the seeing eye, the Lord hath made even both of them" (v.12).

God has made not only the ear and the eye but their perfect functioning also. He intended them to be put to the best possible uses, not to be wasted in sensual satisfaction. How do we use them? Sight and hearing are learning senses given for our profit. Have we learned to see God in nature around us? Can we perceive in a golden cornfield an altar ablaze for God? Is our ear tuned to the voice of God as he speaks through the mouth of a child or the dawn chorus of the birds? What we choose to see and hear should be pleasing to God.

Proverbs 22:1-16

"Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old he will not depart from it". (v.6).

Childhood is the age for learning. Then the brain is like a clean slate upon which the first words written are the most clearly seen and the best remembered. When the slate has been covered with information each piece of knowledge does not register so well. So it is of paramount importance that the first things we teach a small child are vitally true. But note that it says "train". At this age repetitive actions sink deeply into the mind and influence every later act for good or ill. Talk to and walk with a child along the heavenly road; then when he is old he will continue on it.

Proverbs 30:1-14

"Every word of God is pure; He is a shield unto them that put their trust in Him" (v.5).

In these days when the words of men occupying the highest offices are sometimes found to be untrue, and we are ready to cast a verbal stone at them, let us remember the limit of our own veracity. The fact is, no man can be trusted to speak the truth at all times. The writer here has the answer; "God never lies". Every word is purified, refined; there is no dross of possible falsehood. Pilate asked Jesus, "What is truth?" Christ had earlier supplied the answer, "I am. . . truth". Jesus Christ, the living Word, was the truth about all things, revealed for us all to see. We can trust only Him implicitly.

"Who can find a virtuous woman; for her price is far above rubies." (v.11).

The words that complete this book are wise advice for a young man desiring to know what qualities he should look for in a wife. Jesus loved the sincere welcome Martha and Mary always gave Him. Martha the highly domesticated sister met all Jesus' earthly needs. She loved to feed Him. Mary, on the other hand, instead of helping Martha with the household duties, desired only to sit at the feet of Jesus and feed on Him. Jesus said Mary's choice was better. In the virtuous woman described here we see the perfect blend a woman whose love and knowledge of God enabled her to be the ideal wife and mother.

"Upholding all things by the word of His power . . . purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the majesty on high." (v.3).

The right hand denotes power, protection and possession. Jesus was not just a prophet, but almighty God the Son. He had power which He demonstrated by creating the earth and the heavens, and His will be the hand that will eventually dispose of them. He desires to be our source of power also through the dynamic of His Holy Spirit. By virtue of His purging our sins, He becomes our protector and our Mediator every day. His hands bore our punishment. We are His most precious possession and He will not let anyone pluck us out of His hand. Truly He is our creator, Saviour, preserver and sustainer both now and throughout eternity.

Hebrews 1:1-14

"Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed" (v.1).

Judgment befell those who transgressed the law of Moses. Each law varied in significance. The extent of punishment for disobedience to the law showed its relative importance. The fearful and awful sentence

12. Living for Eternity

EACH morning Alexander the Great had a slave awaken him with the cry: "Remember, Alexander, you must die!" Die he did — as a result of a drinking bout in Babylon! All the reminders of the brevity of life failed to turn him from debauchery.

The certainty of time's dissolution

To everyone, life brings silent reminders of its uncertainty, yet we generally prefer not to heed them. We tend to live as though there were no tomorrow and time went on for ever. The Lord Jesus forcefully warned his disciples: "Heaven and earth will pass away" (Matthew 24:35). Of time's ultimate dissolution we are guaranteed.

What it will be like without the familiar things of time and sense, we can hardly conceive, nevertheless the Christian is assured of a life continuing beyond these things. John wrote: "The world and everything in it that men desire is passing away; but he who does what God wants lives for ever" (1 John 2:17 TEV). For this reason Paul encouraged the believers to: "Set your affection on things above, not on things on earth" (Colossians 3:2 KJV). Since the Christian is destined to live for ever he ought to keep a light grip on passing things but a firm grip on those that will endure. "In a word", said Paul, "there are three things that last for ever: faith, hope, and love; but the greatest of them all is love" (1 Corinthians 13:13 NEB).

The confidence of eternity's dawning

If we can be sure that this world will one day pass, we can be equally confident that the promises of God will be fulfilled. "For behold, I create new heavens and a new earth" promised God, "and the former things shall not be remembered or come into mind. But be glad and rejoice forever in that which I create" (Isaiah 65:17, 18). Not only is this a place of joy, but also one "in which righteousness dwells" (2 Peter 3:13). The best of all is, however, that Christ will be there. He promised: "I will come again and will take you to Myself, that where I am you may be also" (John 14:3). These prospects should thrill and inspire the Christian to holy living. On these grounds Peter challenged his readers: "Since all these things are thus to be dissolved, what sort of persons ought you to be in lives of holiness and godliness!" (2 Peter 3:11).

The characteristics of eternal life

The kind of lives we ought to live Paul described when he wrote of the grace of God: "It teaches us to say 'No' to ungodliness and worldly passions, and to live self-controlled, upright and godly lives in this present age, while we wait for the blessed hope — the glorious appearing of our great God and Saviour, Jesus Christ" (Titus 2:12, 13 New International Version). The apostle made it clear that holy living is not an accident of history, environment or birth, but arises from a firm intention to live a God-like life. This requires a decisive "No" to all that is unlike God.

The Eternal Life that we as Christians enjoy is a life characterised by an eternal dimension. It is not just an everlasting existence but a life of special quality. "God gave us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He who has the Son has life; he who has not the Son of God has not life" (1 John 5:11, 12). The quality of the life of Jesus Christ is apparent from even a cursory reading of the Gospels. The Scriptures declare: "In Christ the whole fullness of deity dwells bodily, and you have come to fullness of life in Him" (Colossians 2:9, 10). Eternal Life then is the life of God in the soul of man. It is a life of immense richness and depth as well as length.

As yet we are not perfectly transformed but we "are being changed into his likeness from one degree of glory to another" (2 Corinthians 3:18). As yet "it is not yet clear what we shall become. But this we know: when Christ appears, we shall become like him, because we shall see him as he really is. Every one who has this hope in Christ keeps himself pure, just as Christ is pure" (1 John 3:2, 3, TEV).

Let us then as those who shall live for ever live holy lives here and now.

This article brings this series to an end and we thank Mr. Hall for his contribution.

of the loss of life eternal with Christ Jesus in glory should make us pay the gravest attention to His commands, which transcend those of Moses or the prophets. The law of our land, given to us second or third hand, would impress us as deeply as a direct communication from the Lord Chief Justice himself. So we must give the utmost heed to the injunctions of Christ, the ultimate judge of all men, who has now personally made His standards known.

Editorial

We are living in a rapidly changing society. The centres of our towns and cities are literally being pulled apart. Some people are witnessing the break up of their way of life as they are moved from the old home to new concrete jungles and multi-rise flats.

The work of our churches has not escaped this change. In a good number of towns where we have had centrally located churches these have been demolished, or worse still, have found themselves isolated from the people as they have been moved to the outskirts.

It has been estimated that on average a congregation can expect to loose 10-12% of its membership in a year. In order therefore to survive it is absolutely necessary that these people are replaced. Yet even when this is done we have only managed to remain the same numerically. We need to gain more than we lose every year. To stagnate really means that we go in reverse.

It can sometimes be quite discouraging to a congregation as well as disconcerting to a minister when several families leave within a short space of time. I can remember moving to a new pastorate; the first Sunday of my ministry the church said farewell to a family who emigrated to New Zealand. We hardly had time to say goodbye. Mind you it can sometimes work in the other direction. Some struggling churches have taken on a new lease of life when a new family have moved into the district.

A recent case comes to mind of an Elim member who worked in a supermarket. Observing two customers who appeared to be lost she asked if she could help. It turned out that they were visitors from the United States who were in this country for a year or so, they were searching for an evangelical church in which to worship. This was just the contact that was needed, not only did they come and visit the local Elim Church they were able to really enter in to a very happy fellowship.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons Father Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love joy peace longsuffering gentleness goodness faith meekness temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom knowledge faith healing miracles prophecy discernment tongues interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death baptism by immersion for believers the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

Church Reports

MOTHERWELL

Pastor: F.W. Jones

JUST over twenty-one years ago Pastor A.B. Tee came to Motherwell to lead an evangelistic team from his native town of Kilsyth. As a result a church was established. One of the many buildings occupied in those difficult early days was the local public baths. Ideal as this was for baptismal services, it was less so when the preacher stood precariously over the water with one foot at the edge of the diving board while his hearers utilised every space including the changing cubicles around the pool. It is not surprising, then, that such perseverance led to Elim's first new church building in Scotland being erected.

These are only a few incidents from the past, yet they are the root causes why we met recently to rejoice in a weekend of thanksgiving, for our lovely church, for the fact that in these past few weeks our building debt has been cleared, for the faithfulness of many, and not least, for God's enabling.

Pastor Tee, our guest preacher, and Mrs. Tee, a Motherwell lady, were delighted to join us with their family, as were many other friends. Joe Gray and Jim Blair, members of the original team, spent the Saturday afternoon and evening on the platform with Pastor Tee, reminiscing over God's countless blessings, and then leading a real old-time revival service. On Sunday we again saw a packed church and more responses to faithful preaching. There can be no better ingredient for a joyful occasion than having an overflow of thanks in your heart for God's past and present goodness.

ROBERT MCKILLOP

PORTSMOUTH

Pastor: A.A. Biddle

THE Sunday School anniversary was held on a weekday instead of a Sunday. This was a good thing, for more parents came to see their children taking part. If I had been a parent of one of the children, I would have been proud. The joy that radiated from them and the enthusiasm with which they sang about the Lord Jesus stirred the hearts of all who heard them and made them grateful to those who teach them. The choruses and recitations from the children made me feel that they knew the Lord Jesus as Someone who was real to them.

The demonstration, "In a Travel Agency", with people coming in to book their holidays, was well put over, showing how, in our place of business, or wherever we may be, Jesus can be presented to strangers and fellow-workers, giving them comfort and joy, with a cordial invitation to come to church. Even tiniest Sunday school scholars in the Primary told of the love of Jesus so simply that no-one could fail to hear of the love of Jesus.

M. KEEPING

A barn at Warnford, Hampshire, was full of young Christians and their guests. About 250 young people squeezed themselves into every available space between the piles of hay to hear the gospel sung by groups from our Portsmouth Church and by friends from the nearby Cowplain Free Evangelical Church. Young souls were moved by the lyrics and young bodies were fed on the barbecue-style food served in the cow-shed by some of the sisters. No definite stands were taken in response to an appeal, but opportunities to speak to non-Christian friends about the Lord were eagerly snapped up. The farmer, Mr. Stanley Kimber, who had kindly loaned his barn, shared some thoughts from nature, which he applied to spiritual growth, and gave testimony to how he wept his way into being saved. Many hearts were rejoicing as they left the rural setting.

BROADSTAIRS

Pastor: B. Grist

THE FIRST Presbytery meeting to be held in our Broadstairs church, was followed by a Youth Rally on Saturday afternoon and evening.

Our Pastor, and many helpers were very busy during the proceeding week, for our upper room had not been used for meals or meetings before. We also decided to remove the partition between the church and the minor hall to make as much room as possible for the visitors who were expected.

The day arrived and a great air of expectation pervaded the church; we were not disappointed. The Presbytery was held, then the brethren were entertained to tea in the upper room; even as the clearing-up proceeded the evening congregation were gathering.

It was a joy to see the building filling up and the presence of the Lord was round about us. Two testimonies were given, and a quartet from Barking Assembly sang for us. Mr. Michael Jarvis of the Assemblies of God was the preacher and his word from Hebrews 6 was enjoyed by all. We give God all the glory for a wonderfully blessed occasion.

RIGHT from the start we were conscious of the Lord's presence in the midst at our Sisterhood weekend. Our speaker was Mrs. Smeeton, wife of the A.O. G. Pastor at Uttoxeter. We were greatly blessed by her ministry each evening. On Saturday her message was "Looking unto Jesus" and on Sunday our Lord's love in coming. Our soloist on the Saturday evening was Mrs. Brown, wife of the Bible Pattern Church Pastor in Burton. Both solos bringing blessing to us all.

The ladies of the Sisterhood took part each evening with readings, testimonies, recitations, etc, and all took part on the Sunday evening in a singing item, "The Light of the Old Rugged Cross", a really lovely piece.

We praise God for the souls who have been saved in the last few weeks and for His blessing on all the services.

FIFTY extra chairs were brought in and the church was packed to capacity on the recent Saturday night visit of Pastor Tom W. Walker. In a powerful message, Mr. Walker emphasised the personality, power and presence of the Holy Spirit. He reminded us that the same pentecostal blessing and empowering that was in the early church can be ours today. The Tamworth Choir rendered some stirring pieces under the direction of Mr. Vernon Smith. Also taking part were Pastor and Mrs. Hunt (Loughborough) who brought us two beautiful duets. At the close of the service refreshments were served by the members of the church.

Mr. Walker was also the preacher at the Sunday services. All the meetings were convened by our Minister. Miss Elizabeth Boam of Newhall was the soloist on the Sunday evening.

IT has been wonderful to witness God's blessing on our church over the last year. Seven, mostly young people, have been saved, two backsliders have been restored, ten have been baptised in water, ten have been baptised in the Holy Spirit or have received gifts of the Spirit, and there have been a number of healings. Our congregation has risen from about twelve to about thirty-four people. Our Sunday morning meetings have been specially blessed, sometimes with thunderous praise, sometimes with weeping, sometimes with holy silence. We recently joined with twelve other Pentecostal churches in our valley (Elim, A.O.G., and Apostolic) for united Pentecostal rallies. Over 550 attended the Saturday rally at a Baptist church and over 280 the 8 p.m. Sunday rally held at our Church. Many had to be turned away. Our church was really packed. There is talk of a united valley crusade.

BOGNOR REGIS

Pastor: A.V. Court

"HALLELUJAH! What a dynamic testimony to the relevance of the gospel today!" — these were my sentiments as I attended a baptismal service at Bognor. Almost half of the seventy people assembled were students from the Bognor Regis Teacher Training College. They had come to see some of their friends publicly proclaiming their faith in Jesus by going through the waters of baptism. Most of the eight candidates for baptism were young people. Each testified before being baptised by Pastor Court. Some were nervous, some were more confident, but all were sure that Jesus is alive and helping them in their daily lives.

The service was short and simple, but many unsaved people heard the gospel clearly preached. We thank God for His work in this assembly and pray for His continued blessing.

Farewell service for Pastor P. S. Brewster from Cardiff City Temple

by R. Hunston and J. Dick, Cardiff

After 35 years as Pastor of the City Temple, P.S. Brewster took leave of the Church on the week-end June 8th/9th.

In honour of the ministry of Pastor and Mrs. Brewster in the City Temple, Cardiff for so many years, the Board of Elders and Deacons held a dinner on the Friday to express their appreciation and to honour God's servants, who with dignity, faithfulness and loyalty, have served Elim and the City Temple for so long.

It was a joy to welcome members of Mr. Brewster's family as guests, as well as Pastors Alex Tee and Bill Plowright, who had shared so much in his ministry in pioneer evangelism.

When Mr. Brewster first arrived in South Wales there were only three churches in the area. Through his ministry many of the churches now in the Welsh Presbytery were brought into being. On the Saturday evening, at the express request of the Welsh Presbytery the churches of the area gathered to pay tribute to the man who had not only opened a great majority of their churches but was District Superintendent for 25 years. It was a deeply moving and inspiring service, fittingly opened in prayer by one of our senior ministers Pastor Leslie Green, who had shared so much ministry in Wales. The preacher for the evening was Pastor Alex Tee who issued a tremendous challenge to the great congregation that filled the City Temple. We were blessed also by the anointed singing of Pastor Bill Plowright. Tributes were paid to Pastor and Mrs. Brewster by the present District Superintendent, Pastor R. Hunston, and members of the Presbytery committee including Mr. C.T. Jones the Presbytery Treasurer who made a presentation.

Hundreds of people gathered for the Communion service on Sunday morning and shared the atmosphere of worship and the ministry of the Word by Pastor Plowright. It was fitting that on this Sunday morning, Pastor Brewster should dedicate to the Lord two little children, one of them being his own grandson.

The church was full to capacity for the farewell service on Sunday evening. There was deep emotion in the atmosphere, as a deeply loved and highly revered Pastor was saying farewell to the flock over whom he had watched for 35 years. There was also a great sense of the anointing of the Holy Spirit as Pastor Alex Tee again challenged men and women to listen to and obey the call of God in their own lives. Pastor Plowright paid his own tribute to Pastor Brewster with whom he had worked for so many years in campaign ministry and he thrilled the congregation with his singing of a great hymn of consecration.

There was excitement in the air too, as the choir, under the leadership of Pastor J. Dick, sang so inspiringly the pieces that were specially chosen by Mr. Brewster.

It was also a great joy and pleasure to have with us on this occasion Pastor John Smyth, Administrative Secretary, who, speaking on behalf of the Executive Council and Headquarters, expressed appreciation not only for Pastor and Mrs. Brewster's ministry but also to the members of the City Temple who were prepared to continue in prayer as Pastor Brewster takes up his new appointment as Secretary General. Sharing the platform also was the Rt. Hon. George Thomas, M.P. Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, who has been a personal friend of Pastor Brewster for many years. Mr. Thomas not only shared the appreciation for the impact that Pastor Brewster has had on the city of Cardiff, but gave his own personal and clear cut testimony of the saving grace of Jesus Christ. The deep love of the City Temple for Pastor and Mrs. Brewster was expressed by presentations from the Church, the Board of Elders and Deacons and the various departments and as a token of deep appreciation, Pastor R. Hunston announced to the church that the Board of Elders and Deacons had asked Pastor Brewster to accept the honour of being Pastor emeritus of the church.

The prayers and good wishes of the City Temple go with Pastor and Mrs. Brewster as they share ministry together in the leadership of the Movement we love and cherish.

It was fitting that this service, expressing what is virtually a lifetime's ministry should end in an atmosphere of worship and adoration as the great congregation stood and sang with simple sincerity, "Lord, We Love You".

Elders and Deacons

To say farewell after 35 years as the Pastor of one Assembly was not easy, either for the minister, the Rev. P.S. Brewster, or for his people. During such a long ministry one gets to know people very closely. To give one small example: recently, Mr. Brewster dedicated twin girls, whose parents he had also dedicated and married. Early in his ministry he had also performed the marriage ceremony for the grandparents on both sides.

During these 35 years Mr. Brewster has seen the Temple grow steadily, it is now one of the largest evangelical churches in the country, its youth work alone totals nearly 1,000 with Crusaders, children and young teens attached to its various activities.

In his early years as minister of the Temple, Pastor Brewster was used of God to open nearly 40 churches in various parts of Britain. When he came to Wales there were only three Elim Churches, now there are 28, most of which he pioneered. As well as pioneer campaigns in Wales and the rest of the British Isles he has conducted crusades in many countries of the world.

As well as running a busy church and pioneering new ones, Mr. Brewster has also served as a member of the Elim Executive and has twice been elected President of the Movement as well as serving on many committees. In latter years a new field of ministry has opened up, namely that of World Pentecost, he serving as President of the World Pentecostal Advisory Committee and also as Secretary, which post he still holds. He has also been entrusted with the editorship of the magazine World Pentecost which is now reaching 64 countries in the world.

In all of these varied activities Mr. Brewster has been supported by The City Temple Board of Deacons and Elders and a church Membership, who feel it has been a privilege to share, in a small way, in such a God-blessed ministry.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

14. The patience of God (Exodus 7:10-15)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THE LORD had already sent His word to Pharaoh who had scornfully rejected it. Yet He sent Moses back to the ruler of Egypt with the same demand: "Let My people go!" On this occasion the message was confirmed by miracles. Once more Pharaoh hardened his heart and would not obey — in fact, time after time the Lord sent Moses to Pharaoh, only to be met by stubborn refusal. Eventually judgment came and Pharaoh was destroyed, but not until he had had abundant opportunity to repent. The whole episode is a wonderful revelation of the patience of God.

Similarly he was patient with Peter. The Lord Jesus called Peter to follow Him at the beginning of His ministry. Peter had heard His wonderful words, witnessed His mighty miracles, known special experiences of the glory of Jesus; Peter had even received divine revelation that Jesus was the Messiah. Yet in the Lord's hour of supreme need Peter had denied Him! After His resurrection the Lord sent a special, loving message to Peter (Mark 16:7). He was restored to discipleship and became a means of blessing to many. Peter was a trophy of the grace and patience of God.

The Lord has also been very patient with me! I do not know how many times I heard the Gospel message but I know He spoke to me often and showed me my need, yet it was a long time before my stubborn heart responded to His patient pleading and I turned to Christ. Ever since that time I have been hard and rebellious, I have resisted His will and have wanted my own way, but He has dealt more patiently with me than any earthly father ever would have done. It is the patience of God that leads us to repentance and salvation (Romans 2:9; 2 Peter 3:9). Are we patient with each other, do we show by our gentleness that we are His children?

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

SOMETIMES when we face despair, we imagine that our experience is unique, but the Bible makes it clear that even the most remarkable men of God faced times of doubt and despair. Take, for example, MOSES. Faced with the ever-recurring complaints of the children of Israel whom he was leading through the wilderness, he told God in despair that his task was too heavy (Numbers 11:14). JOSHUA, his successor, faced despair as well. When his army was defeated at Ai, he told God that it would have been better if they had never crossed the river Jordan rather than face this humiliation (Joshua 7:8). ELIJAH is another example. He ran away from the evil queen, Jezebel, and sitting under a juniper tree he requested that he might die (1 Kings 19:4). DAVID, in one Psalm (Psalm 42:5), confessed that his soul was cast down. JEREMIAH, faced with the cursing of the people, regretted that a man of such contention and strife as he had ever been born (Jeremiah 15:10).

Despair, therefore, is something that comes to all men, even to the greatest of God's servants. It arises out of fear and anxiety, and none of us can live lives wholly free from such stress. Today, if you face despair, then whatever the cause of it—recognised or not—remember that God is waiting to help you. Courage and faith are fear that has said its prayers. "Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take! The clouds ye so much dread are big with mercy; and shall break in blessings on your head."

Talking organs?

..talk to Roland Friday at Sharon

Nationwide churches choose Sharon Music for their new and second hand electronic organs because Sharon offers selection and service second to none.

Over 200 successfully completed installations prove that no church is too big, too small, nor too far away to be beyond the Sharon service.

Advice and delivery are absolutely free and we can offer special finance facilities tailor made to help any church purchase the instrument of its choice. With over 200 organs always in stock Sharon have a selection second to none – and remember Hammond organs start at under £400.

So if you're talking organs – talk to the specialists – we're only a letter or telephone call away.

A unique opportunity...

With a current trend towards "automatic", and "easy play" features in so many organs the Hammond N100 has a welcome absence of such gimmickery and represents an ideal instrument for many churches.

The N100 produces adequate sound to fill most churches with a wide variety of tones and effects selected with simplicity of operation.

The famous Leslie Speaker completes a comprehensive specification.

At only £786 this Hammond is a fine and unique opportunity for your church to purchase a new organ through a special purchasing scheme available on this particular model. For full details send in the coupon or telephone Roland Friday on 0227 54848.

The truth about "The Exorcist"

*Notes of a sermon preached in the Elim Pentecostal Church, Eastbourne.
A young mother who had been to see the film and was deeply disturbed by it accepted Christ as her Saviour in the service.*

by John Lancaster

LIKE SO MANY other towns in the British Isles, Eastbourne has opened its doors to the showing of the film, "The Exorcist". As a counter move our young people have been outside the cinema with leaflets offering help to those who might need it. Some people, however, have been asking, "Why are you so bothered about this film?" Our reply is that we have good reason to be. Our Scripture reading—1 John 3: 1-11—reminds us that the Lord Jesus Christ came into the world to destroy the works of the Devil, and as His followers we find ourselves opposed to all that the Devil would do to corrupt and destroy the society in which we live. There are many reasons why the showing of this film causes us concern.

1. It portrays evil for evil's sake and thus adds to the level of moral pollution that is already poisoning our society.

The film pretends to no "message". It does not try to suggest an answer to the problem it portrays in such detail. It is a deliberate exercise in daring obscenity for financial gain. The film-goers' magazine, "Photoplay" makes the following comment: "You may not believe your ears at many of the foul obscenities uttered, and spat, from the child whose mind and body is being controlled by the devil—crude, foul, sexually obsessed." These, by the way, are the words not of some way-out "Fundamentalist sect", as evangelical Christians are so often described by the media, but of a magazine devoted to the interests of film goers. In another paragraph, "Photoplay" asks: "Why the foul language? Why have the mother use four-letter words that are not even in the novel? If using gutter language is a 'commercial element', then the whole motion picture industry needs an overhaul—and I am afraid it is and reforms are definitely in order."

It is clear, then, that the film is merely concerned to portray evil because of its box-office appeal, but in so doing it is only pouring more filth into a society already dangerously saturated with it. The Scripture declares that "one sinner destroyeth much good" (Ecclesiastes 9:18). It warns us, furthermore, that when an individual or a nation follows the path of unrighteousness there is set in motion a process which will escalate into worse and worse forms of evil. Paul reminds us in Romans 1:21-32 that when men deliberately turn from God He "gives them up" to their uncleanness and vile affections until they become

"filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, cotevousness . . ." Every sin therefore contributes to the sum total of evil in the world and adds one further amount of poison in the life of the community.

I spoke to a St. John's ambulance man outside the cinema and asked whether he had many cases to deal with. He replied: "No! They were all laughing in there." And then he added this significant comment—"But it's a shocking film, though!" Doesn't this in itself indicate where we are going? Here, in respectable Eastbourne, people are laughing at a film which contains some of the most blasphemous and unclean scenes ever screened. I quote "Photoplay" again: "Are we becoming such an insensitive society that nothing affects us any more?" The danger of our society is that it has become so conditioned by the media to uncleanness that it has lost its moral sense. The Scriptures warn us again: "Fools make a mock at sin" (Proverbs 14:9). But "as the crackling of thorns under a pot, so is the laughter of the fool" (Ecclesiastes 7:6). It is short-lived and doomed to destruction.

2. It underestimates the dangers of exposure to the demonic. Neither William Friedkin, the Director of the film, nor Linda Blair, its twelve-year-old star, takes the Devil or exorcism very seriously, though it is significant that Friedkin does admit one thing: "After the experiences we've had making this film," he says, "I definitely believe in demonic possession. There are conditions that cannot be treated by medical or psychiatric means." Yet he can go on to say: "I don't draw supernatural conclusions."

This is one of the disturbing facts about the increasing interest of modern society in the various forms of the occult, whether it be spiritism, black magic, witchcraft or simple experiments in classrooms or at home with tumblers and ouija boards. Men are increasingly opening their minds and emotions to powers they themselves do not take seriously but which, nevertheless, are real, soul-destroying forces in human experience. This is one reason for the mental and

Ours is a materialistic age, but it is becoming increasingly aware that technology cannot fill the spiritual vacuum that oppresses it. Hence it has turned more and more to mysticism and the occult for answers. In doing so it has opened itself wide to those very powers of darkness that the Bible warns us of. Time and again the Scriptures point to the serious reality of the demonic realm. They warn us that the whole world lies in the power of the evil one (1 John 5:19); they declare that he seeks his prey like a roaring lion (1 Peter 5:8); they declare that those who disobey God are walking along a path dictated by the prince of the power of the air (Ephesians 2:2); they solemnly urge men to have nothing to do with the occult in any form (Deuteronomy 18:10-14). Furthermore, the New Testament reminds us that Jesus Christ took demon possession seriously and deliberately ministered to those afflicted by it. Finally—and significantly—the New Testament predicts that in the last days men will be captivated by “seducing spirits and doctrines of devils” (1 Timothy 4:1).

There are dark frontiers where the demonic and the human meet, a no-man’s-land where the unsuspecting can find themselves taken captive. Those who wander near those frontiers via books and films and their private imaginations are taking a risk which may lead to the destruction of their personalities. Even angels dare not presume in such territory. How much less the vulnerable sons of men (Jude 9,10).

3. It withholds the full truth about the story on which it is based. The story on which “The Exorcist” is based is a true one. It took place in a Washington suburb in 1949 when a 14 year-old boy manifested the terrifying symptoms of demon possession. But, contrary to the ending of the film, where two Jesuits priests succumb to the very evil they are trying to master, the true story ended in triumph for the power of prayer. The boy was delivered through prayer (in a hospital, where doctors and nurses observed all that happened) and today is a 38 year-old man with a family of three, having no recollection of the terrible events that nearly destroyed him.

This the film does not tell. It sends its watchers out into the night with memories of terror, blasphemy and untamed evil. It is evil for evil’s sake. But the message of the Bible is gloriously and triumphantly different. It takes the Devil seriously and warns men about the destructive powers of that twilight world of the occult—but it goes on to declare, in the words of our text, that “for this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil.” Or, as the writer to the Hebrews puts it, “He himself took part of the same (human nature); that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil; and deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage.” (Hebrews 2:14,15).

During His earthly life the Lord Jesus Christ repeatedly delivered men from the power of demons, in His cross and resurrection He inflicted a crushing blow on the Devil, and because He lives today He is able to save to the uttermost such as come unto God by Him. All power has been given unto Him and at His name “devils fear and fly”. He is able to save from sin in all its forms, however seemingly ordinary or however desperate, but His terms are the same in every case. He calls men to repent of sin and to turn to Him in faith and wholehearted commitment. Only those who trust Him as Saviour and follow Him as Lord can know His saving power. This is the only answer for our society and our personal lives.

DAVID LIVINGSTONE, the great missionary and explorer, devoted his life to teaching the Gospel message to the natives of Africa. During his early years in Africa he was attacked and badly mauled by a lion. When he died in 1873 his body was brought home to England for burial. His father-in-law, Robert Moffat, himself a missionary in Cape Town, was able to positively identify Livingstone by the teeth marks in his body. During the last twenty years of his life Livingstone returned to Great Britain on only two occasions to see his family.

Why do missionaries leave their homes, their families and friends and make countless sacrifices to labour in foreign lands, amid dangers and fears, among ignorant and superstitious peoples? Because they love the Lord Jesus and have a great passion in their hearts to win others for Him.

The need for missionaries is as great today as it ever was. Each day hundreds of people are dying without ever knowing of Christ, never having heard of Him as the way of salvation.

A memorable incident

by O. G. Miles

MANY years ago, after an American visitor had ministered in our Bridge Street church, it was my privilege, on the Monday following, to escort the preacher to the home of that great man of God, Smith Wigglesworth. I shall never forget that visit and the deep impression it made on my life when I was but a young Pastor longing for the deeper things of God. Mr. Wigglesworth was so filled with God that his little home, in Bradford, seemed to be holy ground and like Moses of old, I wanted to remove the shoes from my feet in an act of reverence.

Five times during our short stay in Victor Road, Mr. Wigglesworth interrupted the conversation taking a well worn New Testament from his pocket saying, "Now brethren, let us pause a moment to hear what Father has to say". He read a few verses, gave a brief exhortation, then offered an earnest prayer which made us realize we were very near to God.

Afterwards, as I reflected on these precious moments of communion, I felt this must be what the Apostle Paul meant when he spoke of "living in the Spirit", or what our Lord inferred when He made mention of His Word abiding in us. I was profoundly aware that God was in that place. Even during dinner we heard again what "Father had to say". When the meal came to an end, Mr. Wigglesworth looked at me and said—"Young man, have you got any petrol in your car?" (he always called me the young man. Mr. T.H.Jewitt was the Pastor of our Leeds Church and I was the young man who had come to assist him in the work).

The query about petrol was understandable, we were living in war days and it was strictly rationed for essential purposes. When Mr. Wigglesworth discovered I had a supply of petrol, he said—"Good, we will go for a short outing". I felt a few qualms about using petrol for this purpose, but the man of God seemed to be so completely in control, and I felt that nothing could go wrong under such authority.

Mr. Wigglesworth asked our visitor to sit in the rear of the car, he himself would sit next to the driver to direct the way. I remember it all so vividly. As soon as Mr. Wigglesworth got into the car, he lifted his hands heavenwards and prayed so earnestly and yet so naturally—"Lord bless this young man, bless this car" and then he added "Lord bless these tyres".

Now I must explain. I said a fervent 'Amen' to this last request, for in those days we were compelled to use synthetic car tyres and quite unknown to Mr. Wigglesworth there was a nasty gaping split in one of my rear tyres through which the inner tube was clearly visible. What a good thing it was that the man of faith included the tyres in his request.

After travelling for some distance, we arrived at the foot of Ilkley Moors. Immediately before us was a narrow, unmade flinty road leading up to the Moors. To my astonishment my guide said—"Ah yes, this is the road we want. Go straight ahead young man". My heart sank, I thought, "I'll never get up here without a puncture". But we did you know. Had not Mr. Wigglesworth prayed "Lord bless these tyres"?

Arriving safely on the top of the Moors on that lovely June day we sat for a while on a convenient seat whilst this remarkable man captivated us with some of his amazing experiences. Then the American and I went for a short stroll on those glorious hills, leaving Mr. Wigglesworth to enjoy a few quiet minutes basking in the sunshine. When we returned we found our brother and another man kneeling at the bench, both of them engrossed in fervent prayer. As I stood waiting for the prayers to finish, I sensed again the sacred atmosphere which I had breathed in his home. As they got up from their knees Mr. Wigglesworth introduced us to the stranger with whom he had been praying. He said to me, "Now young man, this brother has to go into hospital tomorrow for a major operation. He used to be a servant of God, but he had backslidden and got right away from the Saviour; but today he has come back home to God and now, whatever happens in hospital, his soul is right with God".

The man, with radiant face, happy in God's restoring grace, gladly gave testimony to what the Lord had done for him. Then Mr. Wigglesworth said, "I knew I had to come up here today; Father sent me, now our task is fulfilled, we will give glory to God as we return home". I drove my car all the way down that flinty road back to Bradford, then home to Leeds. The inner tube was still to be seen through the split in my tyre, but I never had any trouble. Furthermore, I felt quite sure the precious rationed petrol had been used for an essential purpose.

by Peter McCann, Rhodesia

Have you ever tried walking in darkness? I did, not long ago, when my torch went on strike for better batteries. What an experience! A dark, moonless night; every shadow a leopard, every tree root a lurking snake; and it seemed as if every stone in Rhodesia had conspired to be on the path that night. How glad I was to see the lights of home — I had never realised that a stroll of a few hundred metres could be such an epic.

Often we do not appreciate light. We press a switch, and the light is there — radiating, reflecting, illuminating everything in its range. So simple; and yet without that light, our eyes are useless and we grope blindly about our way.

Yes, light is wonderful. Man boasts of his giant rockets, able to tread a fiery pathway to the Moon and beyond; light, in its own quiet way, has been travelling millions of times that distance since the universe began — and at speeds beyond our comprehension. (Light can travel in one second a distance equal to seven times the circumference of the earth). But such is the vastness of God's Universe that the light we see from distant stars may have been on its way to us for thousands of years. (An uncanny thought, this; a moderate-sized telescope can look at parts of the universe as they were before Christ was born). One might almost say that a look at the stars is an opportunity, for just a few moments, to stand outside of the shackles of space and time and feel something of the impact of eternity.

Light is powerful. Modern technology has unlocked the secret of one of the most insidious sources of energy ever known — the laser light beam, able to bore holes through the toughest alloys and even through diamonds. It is nothing more than pure, concentrated light.

"God is Light" says John, "and in Him is no darkness at all". To me, few ideas could be apposite than this; the picture of God as pure, powerful, concentrated, eternal Light, able to traverse space and time and penetrate the hardest of hearts — this picture means a great deal. And if we add the statement in John 1:5 ("The Light shines in darkness, and the darkness has not overcome it") — then we really have meaning! The feeblest light can dispel a certain amount of darkness; the Eternal Light which is the essence of God and His Son can destroy the blackest of sin and penetrate the deepest darkness of the blackest soul.

But not without cost! Every source of light must expend its own energy, or lose the ability to scatter the darkness — the darkness is ever ready to encroach upon the light. The darkness of the kingdom of Satan tried — how it tried! — to destroy the Light. The Cross; the crown of thorns; the nails; the mockery; and Death itself — the blackest darkness ever known, crowded in upon the Son of God. Even today where the Light of Christ is proclaimed, darkness is also to be found. Christ gave Himself, and still offers Himself, to those who will accept Him — and the darkness can never eclipse the brightness of the One "Who was dead, and is alive".

Christ is the Light of the World (John 9:5) and we are privileged to walk in that Light (1 John 1:7). Only a fool would venture out at night without some light (or with a useless torch!) — and it is the bigger fool who rejects the eternal gospel light, sent to warn and to guide lost humanity.

Sent to warn (John 12:35, "Walk while you have the Light, so that darkness will not overcome you"). The coastline ahead looks clear, calm and safe — but there is a lighthouse! Why? Can there be danger here? The smooth water hides deadly rocks; many ships have ignored the warning and foundered.

Christ is sent to be a lighthouse — a warning to all men of the rocks that are just below the surface of every life. Satan has craft and guile, he can give anyone a happy sense of well-being and security — but his smooth, oily persuasion hides deadly rocks. What this world needs is the spiritual eye that will see the Light of God.

Sent to guide (Psalm 119:105. "Thy Word is . . . a Light to my path"). Christ is the word, the Light — even the Way (John 14:6). He is a guiding light; and His guidance is sure, because He is walking the same pathway right alongside of us. (Some Bedouin will still respond to a request for direction with the words "I am the way": meaning they intend to act as personal guide). He sees the hidden turns, the dangers, the pitfalls in life's way, and reveals a passage for us. He gives a clear spiritual vision of the way ahead, and carries us gently along that way.

But only if we trust Him. If at times we cannot understand the way He is taking us; if at times the road may be rough; if at times darkness may seem to be closing in on us — He is there! Let us trust Him fully to be our Guide and Light.

PRAYER AND PRAISE

by F. H. Coleman

S.D. GORDON was the minister of a large church in Brooklyn. But he is not remembered for this today. Author of a series of books entitled Quiet Talks, one of his most famous books is 'Quiet Talks on prayer'. He also gave talks on such subjects as power, holiness and similar subjects which brought blessing to many.

This week I want to let you know what S.D. Gordon had to say about secret prayer: - "The great people of the earth today are the people who pray. I do not mean those who talk about prayer; not those who say that they believe in prayer; nor those who can explain about prayer; but I mean those people who take time and pray. They have not time. It must be taken from something else. This something else is important. Very important and pressing.

These are the people who are doing the most for God today; winning souls, solving problems, awakening churches, supplying men and money for mission posts.

This is a wholly secret service. We do not know who these people are, though sometimes we may make a shrewd guess. I often think we sometimes pass one plain looking person quietly slipping out of church, and we hardly give them a second thought, yet we do not know, nor could we guess, that perhaps this is the one who is doing far more for the church and for the world or God than a hundred who would claim more attention. Such a person truly prays as the Spirit of God inspires and guides.

Let us put it this way: God can do things as a consequence of the praying of the humblest saint what otherwise He would not do.

Here is what S.D. Gordon had to say about "Secret Service". "Men may not know, but our Heavenly Father sees in secret and rewards openly".

Pentecostal News

EVANGELICAL leaders from 150 countries are meeting in Lausanne, Switzerland, later this month for the International Congress on World Evangelisation.

W. Stanley Mooneyham, President of World Vision asked 100 Christian leaders for their assessment of the present work of God in the world.

Many leaders reported on the increase of the Pentecostals in South America, Africa or Asia or on the rapid expansion of charismatic groups in North America and Europe.

JEWISH CHRONICLE May 24 1974

Rabbi Goren foresees Third Temple

If Israel resolved the issues of her survival and security, it would open the way for building the Third Temple, Rabbi Shlomo Goren, one of Israel's two Chief Rabbis, said in Paris.

The Springfield-based Assemblies of God of America report a total mission staff of 2,083 persons, of which 1,102 are missionaries and 981 children of missionaries.

Earl Kulbech, Toronto, Canada, has been elected chairman of the Chaplaincy Committee of the Canadian Penitentiary Service for a two-year term. Mr. Kulbech is Director of Public Relations of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada.

In 1900 there were around 50,000 Protestants in Latin America. Today there are more than 20,000,000. Sixty-three per cent of this number are Pentecostal. In Chile, 83 per cent of all Evangelicals are said to be Pentecostal.

MARIANNE FARNINGHAM lived in a Kentish village over 100 years ago. Her parents died and young Marianne being the oldest child left school and bravely took her mother's place at home. What a struggle she must have had but somehow she battled on and at the close of each long day she made a point of seeking God's help, promising to serve Him and set an example to her brothers and sisters.

In later life she wrote the lovely hymn "Just as I am, Thine own to be" and the words "In the glad morning of my day, My life to give, my vows to pay, With no reserve, and no delay—With all my heart, I come".

Such words were a true expression of her early dedication to the Lord Jesus.

I am so glad that this hymn is included in our Redemption Hymnal for always it has touched a responsive chord in my heart, particularly when I was young, though at that time I had no idea of the writer's early struggles.

The challenge of a personal commitment to Christ, of a full surrender to His Lordship is still imperative today. In spite of the cynicism and unbelief all around, thank God there are still young people who are wholehearted in their allegiance and eager to express their faith. I received a letter from Gwyneth Street, a young Crusader attending our church at Canada Common. She gave her heart to the Lord Jesus at the Royal Albert Hall Easter meetings in 1973 and is a radiant young christian, really enjoying following Jesus. Her letter is such a joyful one and she writes of her pleasure in listening to God's Word set to music, referring actually to the cassette recording entitled Thou art worthy and adds "I find that it gives me a desire to learn even more about God". She continues with the words "Praise the Lord! He's really pouring out His Spirit on us now and we are seeing things happen. Since the Christian Union started at our school, last November we have seen three boys and five girls come to the Lord. The Lord is truly great". Her p.s. tells me of her personal Pentecost and she adds the comment "It was a great day for me when it happened".

Gwyneth enclosed three little poems and here is one of them.

Just ask Jesus

*I would like you to know my Jesus,
If you've never known Him before,
Don't leave Him for ever knocking,
Outside your heart's fast, closed door.*

*Remember He died on Calvary for you,
Just open the door and let Him come through,
He'll cleanse you, He'll help you get rid of all sin,
Just open the door and let Him come in.*

*He'll give you a peace that you've not known before,
And He'll give you such joy that you'll want more and more*

*Remember to ask Him, right into your heart,
Just ask Him right now, or He may depart.*

Going through some old letters and papers I discovered a letter from my daughter Sylvia, also written when just a schoolgirl of about the same age as Gwyneth. At the end of the letter is a poem she had composed

My testimony

*I was weary and sad, from the Father I'd strayed,
At last in despair, to the Saviour I prayed,
He heard my faint cry and He lifted my load,
He then set my feet on the heaven-ward road.*

*And now when I think how that Jesus loved me,
With a love so unmeasured and wondrously free,
My heart is o'erwhelmed and tears fill my eye,
When I realize my sins made Him suffer and die.*

*And now my desire is to serve Him alway,
"Unto Him" I must live every hour of each day,
"Through and through" for the Master in all that I do,
Thus my life may bring others to know Jesus too.*

Can there be anything more heartening than the clear evidence that youth does still respond to the claims of the Saviour?.

Welsh Presbytery Ladies' Rally

ON Wednesday June 5th many coach-loads of ladies from the churches of the Welsh Presbytery travelled to Caerphilly for the Presbytery sisterhood rally in an historic chapel in the centre of Caerphilly, kindly loaned for the occasion, of which the famous Welsh preacher, Christmas Evans was once the minister. It was a nostalgic occasion for the organist, Mrs. M. Evans (Porth), whose mother was the organist at this chapel nearly seventy years ago. Great joy was sensed in the services from the very first hymn to the end of the day. The meetings were full of inspiring, talented items, as representatives of various churches shared in testimony and song. The District Superintendent's wife, Mrs. Jean Hunston, convened in her own inimitable way.

The Caerphilly Church was the host for the day, and with great efficiency and skill the ladies gave tea to over 300 visitors.

The evening service was a great climax. The chapel was packed almost to capacity and the presence of God was so real. The speaker, Mrs. Morrison (Kingstanding, Birmingham) brought great blessing as she preached the Word. None will ever forget her messages. Many comments of appreciation and of rejoicing in the blessing of God were heard; they can be summed up in the words of one lady who asked the District Superintendent, "When is the next rally?"!

The Divine Light Mission

by Gary Hiscock, Elim Bible College

OVER THE last few years, more and more people have been turning to the divine light mission, under the leadership of 16 year old Guru Maharaj Ji, in an effort to find an answer to life's problems. Many of them believe that with the Guru Maharaj Ji's help, they can find the peace, truth and love which young people are desperately searching for. This paper has been written to examine the claims of this rapidly expanding organization and the Scriptures drawn upon to justify themselves.

The divine light mission was founded in India in 1949 by Shri Hans Ji Maharaj, the father of Guru Maharaj Ji. At his death in 1966 he had a following of millions in India. Guru Maharaj Ji was 8 at the time of his father's death and shortly afterwards made a speech which is now almost a legend amongst the Guru's adherents. Speaking for nearly two hours, he said "The perfect master never dies. Maharaj Ji is still here amongst you now. Recognise him, obey him and worship him".

In October, 1969, Mahatma (meaning perfect soul) Gurucharan Ji came to London and from a modest basement in West Kensington began to impart knowledge of the then 11-year-old perfect master Guru Maharaj Ji. At first business was not too good. By May, 1970, only 30 souls had been converted to Guru worship. By June, 1971, however, there were between 200-300 disciples or premies as they like to be called. (Premie is the Hindu word for lover). In January, 1974, they claimed that the Guru has a world following of 6 million with approximately 7,000 devotees in this country. The sudden increase of the disciples in Britain is, no doubt, due to the many personal appearances made by Guru Maharaj Ji and his 'holy family', his mother, Shri Mata Ji and three brothers.

The divine light mission claims to be a non-profit making organization and is registered in this country as a charity. However, the organization holds capital in the region of £100,000 in Britain, a fact that is currently engaging the interest of the Charity Commissioners. This money, they claim, comes from gifts and also results from the fact that at 'conversion', the young 'convert' is encouraged to forsake all and live in an Ashram (a commune). Money, a constant source of embarrassment, means absolutely nothing to them, the divine light mission officials report. In spite of this statement, Guru Maharaj Ji rides around London in a £10,000 Rolls Royce and stays at a house in London. N.6. worth approximately £45,000. In the United States, his preferred residence, he also has a $ 50,000 Mercedes, 3 planes, radio and T.V. stations, mansions, etc.

"Who is Guru Maharaj Ji?" ask the badges that the young devotees wear. To quote his words "I am not Jesus. I am not Krishna. I am not Buddha. I am nothing I am just a humble servant come to reveal the Light." Despite his disclaims, the Guru Maharaj Ji does not seem to object to having himself photographed with the caption 'Guru Maharaj Ji, Lord of all Creation'. Nor does he object when his followers exultantly chant "Bodie Shri Satgurudev Maharaj Ki Hai"—Praise the name of the Lord, the true revealer of light and great king.

In one half hour session, his disciples claimed him to be Jesus, the Holy Spirit, God and Krishna. The Bible says: "And many false prophets shall rise and deceive many. Then if any man shall say unto you, Lo, here is Christ (literally the anointed), or there, believe it not. For there shall arise false Christs and false prophets and shall shew great signs and wonders in-somuch that if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect. Wherefore, if they shall say unto you, behold, he is in the desert, go not forth, behold he is in the secret chambers, believe it not" (Matthew 24).

Guru Maharaj Ji's teaching is always vague and often contradictory. It suffers from no definite doctrine, but borrows from many different sources. The cult seeks to combine elements from all religions and bind them into one. It claims that all religions worship one God and hence there is no real difference between Jesus, Krishna, Shiva, Mohammed or any other recognised religious leader. Therefore, the fact that the Bible teaches, that "it is appointed unto men once to die and then the judgment" (Hebrews 9:27) and that Krishna taught reincarnation makes no difference to them. If a Christian tells them that Jesus said "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life, no man cometh to the Father but by me", they will agree, but assert that Jesus was for His day and that Guru Maharaj Ji is for this day. However, the Bible says that Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever and that if we ask anything in His name, He will do it. (John 14:6, Hebrews 13:8, John 15:14). On the Bible's authority therefore, we see that the Guru is superfluous to our needs.

Notes
by
S. E. Petts

Monday, July 15th Hebrews 2:10-18

"In all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren" (v.17).

WHEN Jesus taught us to pray "Our Father" He made it clear that He considered Himself to be our elder brother. The task of such a relative is to share burdens and even to teach, by way of example, the means of overcoming problems. To do this He became man, partook our fleshly nature, passing through great temptations and trials. He remained victorious. Learning this, we can have confidence in His knowledge of our situation and our ability through Him to overcome. He who is faithful as well as merciful is ever willing to aid us in our battle.

Tuesday, July 16th Hebrews 3:1-19

"Take heed brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief" (v.12).

THE lack of belief in God is the start and essence of all sin. The Israelites had experienced release from slavery in Egypt; they had seen God's power in mighty miracles of judgment and preservation, yet they distrusted Him, disregarded His warnings and chose not to walk in His paths. The inevitable consequence was that they did not enter the promised land. That privilege was passed to their children. In this letter to the Hebrews the writer bids them learn from the errors of their forefathers. This truth applies to us also. If we are to reach the home Christ has promised us, we must learn to trust Him in every circumstance of life.

Wednesday, July 17th Hebrews 4:1-13

"For he that is entered into his rest, he also hath ceased from his own works as God did from his" (v.10).

THIS verse reminds us that when God had finished His works of creation he rested. Not that He needed to rest because of physical exhaustion. His rest was a looking-back at His works with a feeling of satisfaction; "God saw everything that he had made and behold it was very good". Christ having completed His work of redemption, entered into His rest, His sense of adequate fulfilment. He saw the travail of His soul and was satisfied. We are told that "we who have believed do enter into that rest". Our satisfaction should be not in our own accomplishments, but in what Christ has achieved in us. Our self-striving is over. We are satisfied in Him. His rest is ours, too.

Thursday, July 18th Hebrews 4:14-16, 5:1-10

"Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need" (v.16).

THE Jewish high priest offered animal sacrifices for the remission of the people's sin and his own also. Jesus was greater than any earthly high priest because He did not need to offer sacrifices for Himself as He was sinless; thus He offered Himself as the sacrifice. In so doing, He showed Himself to be merciful, caring for our lost condition more than His own life; and gracious because He took on human limitations that He might sympathize with our difficulties and conditions. As He went to such lengths, we may come to Him boldly, being assured of His loving concern and His ability to meet our needs in mercy and grace.

Friday, July 19th Hebrews 5:11-14, 6:1-8

"Who . . . have tasted the good word of God and the powers of the world to come" (v.5).

WE look forward to the joys laid up for us in heaven, and yet we know that our present anticipation can in no way compare with the glory we shall experience when we enter God's Kingdom. We have a feast prepared for us, but for the present we must be content with only a taste of the good things to come. Of the wine of heaven we are permitted but a sip. But let us thank God for this foretaste as we enjoy it. We are not meant just to labour whilst we long for the glorious rest awaiting us; nor only to contemplate Satan's eventual downfall; we are expected to savour spiritual joy and power now.

Saturday, July 20th Hebrews 6:9-20

"We desire that every one of you do show the same diligence to the full assurance of hope unto the end" (v.11).

PATIENT endurance is essential for success. Every teacher knows of lazy children who did not live up to their early scholastic promise. Every athletics coach has seen potential Olympic medal winners fall short through lack of consistent practice. Every pastor has seen keen converts fall away because they didn't endure when problems arose. Difficulties are a means by which the persevering Christian finds greater joy and strength in his faith. No work of ours can bring us salvation, but having received it by faith as a gift from God, we need to work it out in our lives to the end if we are to enjoy it in all its glory. It is diligence that brings full assurance.

Sunday, July 21st Hebrews 7:1-10

"Melchisedek . . . king of righteousness and after that also . . . king of peace" (v.2).

MELCHISEDEK is a type of Christ. His name means 'a righteous king'. He was also a peaceful king for Salem means peace. Jesus was altogether righteous and peaceful. Note that righteousness precedes peace. This is the divine order. We can have no real, lasting peace without first accepting the robe of Christ's righteousness and persevering to continue in that way. Melchisedek, in addition, was a high priest of God though a lesser one than Jesus. This office was made evident by his blessing Abraham and receiving tithes from him. Let us not forget to return our thanks and our love to Christ for the blessings of peace and righteousness that He has brought us.

Another favourite Scripture of the Premies is that Jesus said that, "the kingdom of God is within you". (Luke 17:21). This Scripture, they say, proves that what they believe is correct — that within every man is a light, a divine spark that only Guru Maharaj Ji can ignite or reveal. However, far from proving their theory, this passage merely says that Jesus Christ was amongst the people. The Revised Standard Version renders the passage of Scripture: "The kingdom of God is in the midst of you". The fatherhood of God, brotherhood of man approach is clearly seen in their literature and conversation, but nowhere in the Bible does it teach that God is the Father of all, except in the Creator sense.

The third eye philosophy which is nothing new to students of religion, is an important part of their belief. Their 'proof' text for this is Luke 11:34 which says that "the light of the body is the eye, therefore when thine eye is single, thy whole body is also full of light, but when thine eye is evil, the body also is full of darkness". However, Jesus is simply warning here about spiritual blindness and hardness of heart. Keeping the eye single means keeping Christ as the most important thing in life. Recall Christ's teaching on "if the eye offends" in Matthew 5:29. This again must be taken to mean keeping one's eye on the goal and pressing toward the high calling.

The hope of all at the Divine Light Mission is that Guru Maharaj Ji will bring World peace through a knowledge of him and that the grace of Guru Maharaj Ji will unite all people in an ocean of love. This, they call the millennium which Guru Maharaj Ji proclaims will be brought about in his lifetime. The Word of God, however, refutes this and declares that the world will find itself in a worse state before Christ comes again in judgment. He will send those who are still in sin to a Godless eternity but will reward the faithfulness of those who follow Christ. (2 Timothy 3, 2 Corinthians 5:10, Revelation 20). Jesus Christ will descend from Heaven with a shout and the voice of the Archangel. (1 Thessalonians 4:16-28). Acts 1:11 tells us that Jesus will come again in the same manner as He was taken up into heaven. The young premies, however, do not seem to understand, and usually laugh saying that Guru Maharaj Ji came out of Heaven by jet plane.

The ultimate experience of this movement seems to be 'taking knowledge', either from the Guru himself or from one of his 2,000 Mahatmas who are authorized to impart it. They claim that this is a knowledge of God, but just what 'knowledge' remains a mystery to all but those who have sampled it. They say that this 'knowledge' is infinite and therefore, cannot be explained properly. They say take it and see for yourself. But Paul said, "If an angel from heaven preach any other gospel than the Gospel of Jesus Christ, let him be accursed". (Galatians 1:8).

The Guru's conception of God is energy and light. However, the Bible teaches us that God is a personal spirit. Witness our Lord's teaching in John's Gospel: "God is a Spirit: and they that worship Him must worship him in spirit and in truth" (4:24). True, the Bible does say God is Light, but it means that God, the source of non-natural light, is, in the spiritual, the fountain of wisdom, purity, beauty, joy and glory. A grim warning comes from the Lord Jesus Christ when he said "Take heed that the light which in thee be not darkness" (Luke 11:35).

In conclusion, therefore, we must warn that though many of these young disciples of Guru Maharaj Ji are sincere and honestly believe that what they teach is the truth, the divine light mission is neither light nor is it divine, but rather it is a very clever imitation by "the god of this world", Satan.

The Bible warns us that Satan can disguise himself as an angel of light, so can his servants who may be transformed into ministers of righteousness. The warning to them is equally clear. Their end shall be according to their works (2 Corinthians 11:14-15). We can only imagine that God has allowed these young people to believe a lie because they would not believe the truth. Paul says, "for this cause God shall send them strong delusion that they should believe a lie". (2 Thessalonians 2:11).

The real knowledge of God is freely offered to all who trusting in Jesus Christ as Saviour, confess their sin, and, repenting of that sin, receive the love of God in Christ Jesus. (Romans 3:23, 6:23, Luke 24:47, John 1:12).

Last week we drew attention to the fact that we are living in a changing society. Our Movement itself is also subject to change. In the past few years many of our older ministers have gone to their reward.

Many sociologists who spend their time investigating religious denominations have put abroad the idea that after the demise of the first generation, second and third generations become progressively weaker. At the same time, many of them subscribe to the popular philosophy of evolution which believes that men are getting better, wiser and stronger with the passing of each generation. We do not accept the suggestion that succeeding generations need to compromise any principles of their founding fathers. They may use different language to express how they think and feel, but their convictions are the same.

We were informed this year at the Elim Conference that 50% of our ministers had received their training at the Elim Bible College since 1952. The present generation of students and ministers are as keen and enthusiastic for the things of God as were their predecessors. If the Lord tarries, they will go on to establish and expand the work of God in a new generation.

We can read about what happened in years gone by and this should encourage us not to want to turn the clock back, but rather to serve the Lord by sharing with this needy generation what we have received.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH —

- 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril.
- 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons Father Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God.
- 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus.
- 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin.
- 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies.
- 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer.
- 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King.
- 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love joy peace longsuffering gentleness goodness faith meekness temperance.
- 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom knowledge faith healing miracles prophecy discernment tongues interpretation.
- 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ.
- 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors.
- 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death baptism by immersion for believers the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

SOUTH SHIELDS

Pastor: A.P. Johnston

MANY members and friends are still recalling the blessings received during our Easter/Anniversary services under the anointed ministry of Pastors F.W. Jones and W. Hunter. Since then we rejoice in souls being saved, right up to the recent weekend when we were favoured with a visit of a former Tynesider now serving the Lord in South Africa, Leslie Gay. Much blessing was experienced and expressed as he spoke to believers on Sunday morning. In the evening his text presented a challenge to many. Bro. Gay also showed film slides of his work and called us to pray for the people in South Africa.

After a recent Sunday evening gospel meeting thirteen adults presented themselves for baptism by our minister. Each one before entering the baptism testified to their salvation and to God's goodness to them. As the service ended we sang, "O Jesus I have promised to serve thee to the end". Many said that they had never before experienced such blessing.

RICHARD S. DUTTON

SOUTHAMPTON

Pastor: W.J. Maybin

FOR our Spring Convention Pastor and Mrs. W. L. Bell from Pontardulais were our preachers. From the opening meeting on Saturday evening the blessing of the Lord was on all the meetings. Mr. Bell preached at the Saturday meeting.

On Sunday morning we gathered around the Lord's Table after a short challenging message given by Mr. Bell, and a really blessed time was experienced.

The evening service was also the anniversary service of our young wives' group, members of which contributed items. Mrs. Helen Connell convened very ably.

Mrs. Bell brought a challenging message to us on Paul's meeting with Agrippa. At the conclusion of the service, Mr. Bell brought us many gospel songs at the piano and taught us a new chorus, "Oh! What a wonderful Day".

On Monday afternoon Mr. Bell spoke of the wonderful way in which Joseph revealed himself to his brothers. Mr. Bell concluded with more songs at the piano and we adjourned for tea, very tastefully prepared and served by many ladies of the Church.

At the evening service Mr. Bell spoke on Isaiah 53. Mrs. Bell's final message of the convention was on "The Emmaus Road". Mr. Bell brought our convention to a close with more songs at the piano. We ended on a rousing note of triumph with the singing of the chorus which had been one of the highlights of the meetings. Our Pastor ably convened the meetings in his usual bright and breezy manner.

LLANTRISANT

Pastor: J.J. Glass

IN April the Llantrisant church celebrated its forty-first anniversary. The preacher was Pastor L.P. Cowdery (Plymouth) whose anointed ministry was greatly appreciated. Every service was well attended. On some nights the Church was full. Musical items were provided by the Caerphilly Choir, Duncan Franklin, and the young people of the Cardiff and Llantrisant churches.

The work in Llantrisant was commenced in a converted railway goods shed in 1933 by Pastor W. Newton. In 1960 we moved to a Presbyterian chapel when it became available for our use. Many of the converts of those early days have gone to their reward.

For the past four years we have been blessed with the ministry of Pastor John Glass. We are looking to the Lord for great things.

JOHN GLASS

STIRCHLEY, Birmingham

Pastor: J.B. Coleman

OUR guest speaker, Felix Lloyd-Smith, told thirteen candidates that all who truly love and follow the Lord Jesus Christ may be called upon to give up their positions, their friends, a regular income, home comforts, their reputations, safety, even their lives. In human terms, who would want to sign such a contract? Yet, two ladies, two men and nine young people here had already found that Christianity is an experience not a formal religion, that God takes away only the useless things of life and gives eternal values in return, and that the same God who was with Paul is with us. So, undaunted, they passed through the waters of baptism, aided by our Pastor, declaring to all that Jesus Christ was their Saviour and Lord.

The candidates' personal declarations took various forms: "I found Jesus in Sunday School" (by three young people); "A children's evangelist came"; "Pastor told us we needed Christ"; "I knew God, but then I realised He wanted me"; "The Lord kept on at me"; "The Lord knocked and I let Him in"; "It's been great since"; "The Lord's really blessed me since then"; "Every day is worth living now"; "He's never let us down"; "One Sunday night, in bed, I let Jesus into my heart".

Stirchley Church has no baptistry yet, so the meeting was held at our Selly Oak Church (to whom we express thanks) and was supported by friends from neighbouring churches, relatives of the candidates and Stirchley members.

MARGARET SCOREY

ISLINGTON, London Pastor: A.L. Hawkes

ON SATURDAY, June 8th some ninety people gathered for the induction service for our new Minister, Pastor A.L. Hawkes, our first change of minister for twenty-six years. Pastor Hawkes was accompanied by his wife and two small children. Pastor J.F. Hardman, the District Superintendent, convened. Words of welcome were given by Mr. F.E. Croker on behalf of the Presbytery as well as by the Church Secretary, Mr. R.E. Atkins. Pastor J. McBurney gave the address. Also on the platform was the out-going Minister, Pastor F.H. Coleman, who had continued to minister at the church following his retirement. Mr. Ian Smale, an Elim Bible College student, was also introduced as Pastor Hawkes' assistant, as the latter is also in charge of the Church at Palmers Green. We pray God's blessing on Pastor Hawkes' efforts as he endeavours to fill his dual role.

H.J.W. FEASEY

NORWICH

Pastor: L. Reeves

We praise God for continual blessing at Norwich. Our newly-formed cadets are working hard for missionary enterprise; something like sixty gifts have already been made.

One of the highlights in the assembly was the visit of the Sheriff of Norwich to our Golden Age over 60's service. He spoke most movingly of his strict Methodist upbringing and of how the Christian faith had helped him in public office.

Our Annual Convention was particularly blessed of God. Pastor B. Benney, A.O.G. Stockton-on-Tees, gave moving and convicting messages. A young nurse actually wept her way to Calvary in the Sunday service. We were deeply grateful to receive over £500 in gifts and offerings over the weekend of the Convention.

It is a joy to report that a precious soul has been saved during each of the last three Sundays. What a joy it is to serve God by being involved together in active church service and to realise it is all of Him and nothing of us.

LIVERPOOL

Pastor: A. R. T. Whittall

IF we were to sum up our recent Spring bank holiday convention in one sentence, we could do no better than to quote Mark 16:20 "The Lord working with them confirming the word with signs following". We do thank God for the wonderful way in which He confirmed the preaching of Pastor D.C. Lewis in each of the convention meetings.

On Saturday night, Pastor Lewis was joined by Pastor Joe Grisdale from Sowerby Bridge, who gave a short address. How we were blessed when we heard both messages, prepared separately, and without knowledge of what the other was going to speak upon, yet they blended together to produce one wonderful message from the Lord.

On Sunday we were again blessed, both in our communion service and in the evening revival service at which precious souls were saved. One man had come in off the street the worse for drink, yet God wonderfully undertook, sobered and saved him.

On Monday we were joined by other churches from the Lancashire Presbytery and Pastor Lewis was accompanied by his wife who ministered in song and testimony to God's keeping power. At the close of the meeting the sick were prayed for. One noticeable healing was that of a Methodist local preacher, deaf in one ear, who, after prayer, indicated that he was able to hear a whisper.

Between convention services we held a receiving meeting where four people received the baptism of the Holy Spirit. One of those had been seeking God for this gift for over forty years.

At the close of the final evening rally we were blessed to see people spontaneously coming to the platform and declaring publicly their desire to serve Jesus more fully.

In closing we say, "To God be the glory great things He hath done".

DAVID L. CHAMBERS

Pastor: A. Brooks
RECENTLY the central Sunday School held its anniversary service. The theme was "God's Balances". A large scale model of a balance and weights was used to illustrate the poems and songs. We were shown that the only way to reach the standard required in God's Law is in Christ. The preacher, Pastor Derek Green, brought his "friend" Sparky. The children were fascinated as they looked into his "head" and "heart". The church was packed for the occasion and we were delighted to see a large number of parents.

A special presentation was made to Miss C. Ladlow. From 1939 to the beginning of this year she has been the church correspondent for the EVANGEL. In acknowledgement of this loyal service, the Church Secretary presented her with a leather handbag.

From a Pastor's Study

The Devil's Box

by A. Nicolson,
Pastor of our
Southend-on-Sea
Church

AS a young boy I went every year to a small but delightful island called Raasay which lies just off the Isle of Skye. Most of the inhabitants at that time were crofters or fishermen or both. My grandmother with whom I stayed was a staunch member of the Free Church, a Calvinist and a strict Sabbatarian. The world was a wicked place and its modern inventions had more to them than the scientific ingenuity of man.

On one occasion my grandmother wanted to visit her sister at the other end of the island and so it was that I, in company with my mother and grandmother, was sitting in the one and only car on the island and which Gran had hired for the great occasion. Soon after our arrival, the two elderly sisters and my mother were engrossed in a conversation which held no interest for a small boy. My aunt, noticing the situation whispered to me, "Would you like to hear the gramophone?". I was thrilled at the prospect and soon my aunt was winding up the machine and, placing a 78 rpm record on the turntable, she set it in motion. No sooner had the sound reached my Gran's ear than she turned and said in a stern voice, "Put off that devil's box".

Years later, I sat in an African village with a group of the villagers and I turned the winding handle of a simply constructed gramophone, sent to our mission station by Gospel Recordings. The villagers listened to the Gospel in their own language. The "devil's box" must have had a wonderful conversion if my dear grandmother was correct.

“Helpers of the War”

ADINO, ELEAZAR AND SHAMMAH

by Stanley Beresford, Pastor of our Blackburn Church

DAVID longed, and said, “Oh that one would give me drink of the water of the well of Bethlehem that is at the gate!” – That was all. Three men heard him speak and made history. They who were as unknown became well known by their love to the king. It was not a command they heard, but just a sigh, a longing, a desire, and these three men united to grant it.

Adino the Tachmonite sat in the seat. He went forward with his spear and slew eight hundred at one time. The odds were against him, but God was for him and brought him through victorious. His method was attack. Like Paul he could say, “So fight I, not as one who beats the air.” The enemy is no playmate or mere sparring partner, he is at war against God and the church of God. Adino was against the enemy as well as for the king. He was a clean cut man. Of him it is said, “He sat in the seat”.

It is worthwhile to note that sitting is invariably associated with meditation, learning and accomplishment. Abraham sat at the tent door in the heat of the day; Mary sat at the feet of Jesus and heard His word. The demented man delivered at Gadara, was seen clothed and in his right mind sitting at the feet of Jesus. Of David himself, it is said, “He went in and sat before the Lord.” (1 Chronicles 17:16) After this he smote the Philistines and subdued them (1 Chronicles 18:1) There is also the seat of victory, a work done, concluded, accomplished. Our blessed Lord, after He had made one sacrifice for sins for ever, “sat down at the right hand of God,” and again “when He had by Himself purged our sins He sat down at the right hand of the majesty on high.” Likewise, the four and twenty Elders before the throne were sitting, crowned and clothed. Adino sat in the seat. He had triumphed and was honoured by the king. His name is linked, however, with two others whose singular escapades were of very great importance – Eleazar and Shammah.

One held a parcel of ground full of lentils against the troop of the Philistines. He stood on the ground and defended it. He teaches us a noble lesson. First of all, to know that the ground our feet stand upon is given to us by our God. Secondly, it must be held, defended. Paul was set for the defence of the Gospel, and though sovereign grace had made him meek and humble he was also resolute regarding the truth. He could say, regarding some who would bring them into bondage, “To whom we gave place by subjection no, not for an hour, that the truth of the Gospel might continue with you.” (Galatians 2:5). However unimportant that parcel of ground might seem to some, it is noticeable that the enemy regarded it as important enough to fight for. Isaiah prophesied of truth being “fallen in the streets”. We must hold fast that which we have.

It is said that when A. T. Pierson was a young man, he went to talk to the aged George Muller of Bristol, in order to tell him of certain truths that God had graciously revealed to him. “My brother”, said Mr. Muller, “The Lord has shown some precious things to you, and with it has made you responsible. If you walk in the light of those truths He will reveal more to you. If you don’t the light will be withdrawn.” Ground can so easily be lost, and when it is it may need a hard fight to recover. Ponder a moment the message to the church as Sardis (Revelation 3:2,3) “Be watchful, and strengthen the things that remain that are ready to die . . . hold fast, and repent.” The ground of truth which we have received from the Lord in our evangelical and pentecostal heritage must be held. God will be our help and stay.

The third man smote the Philistines until his hand was weary and clave to the sword. Here we see that the determination of the enemy was matched by one whose hand was inseparable from his sword. Though the church may at times be sickened with defeat. Let us remember the words used by our victorious Lord when tried to the limit in the wilderness, “It is written”. We may have forgotten those words and substituted an argument for them. Nevertheless they are still the best words for attack and defence, blessing and comfort.

These three men have much to teach us, for it is most probable that it was these three who heard their captain say, with longing in his heart, “Oh that one would give me drink of the water of the well of Bethlehem!” Without a word they went together, united in heart by devotion to their Lord. Three became one and broke through the garrison of the Philistines to grant him his desire – a drink of water. David would not drink, but poured it out to the Lord. “God forbid” he said, “shall I drink the blood of these men . . . for with the jeopardy of their lives they brought it.” Helpers? Yes!

“These are things that are excellent” (1 Philipians 1:10).’

BOOK REVIEWS

All books reviewed or advertised in "EVANGEL" are available from Elim Church Bookroom, P.O. Box 38, Cheltenham, Glos.

Go and Tell by Vivienne Stacey, published by Concordia, price 45p, postage and packing 7p extra.

MISS STACEY has made a valuable contribution in the extensive field of missionary publications. The book, a paperback, presents a strong argument for the use of the short term in present day missionary thought and strategy. The writer has succeeded in providing the reader with a great deal of valuable information in the short space of 114 pages. At the end of each chapter there are suggestions for group study. I was disappointed in Miss Stacey's attitude to the Frankfurt Declaration and suspect that she leans towards the Ecumenical Movement. Nevertheless the book is both provocative and profitable and should be read by all who have an interest in the spread of the Gospel in our modern world.

A. Nicolson

A Thought for the Week, published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott, price 50p, postage and packing 6p extra.

THIS BOOK comes from the pen of one who has a rich experience of life. It is at times humorous, at others far-seeing, enlightening and helpful. He plucks his anecdotes out of daily experience and weaves them into the material along with his Christian principals to make an enjoyable and readable book which at the same time could be confidently placed into the hands of anyone, with the knowledge that its practical and sensible teaching and wise council would bring benefit.

The writer bears his heart. He is human, he feels and cares for people and animals. He has accumulated a store of wisdom in human relationships as head master of an approved school which comes out in chapter after chapter. He obviously is not a pentecostal Christian (he smokes and goes to theatres), but he will help everyone who is to live out the Sermon on the Mount and the preacher will find much quotable matter for his pulpit here. Having enjoyed the book I recommend it to all.

H.L. Dawson

Men From God's School by J. Oswald Sanders, published by Lakeland Press, price 60p, postage and packing 8p extra.

IT IS some years since Alexander Whyte and F.B. Meyer thrilled the Christian world with their expositions of Bible characters and here is a volume worthy of a place alongside those works. This paperback edition of a book by that gifted writer, J. Oswald Sanders, first published in 1965, is one which we most heartily commend to all our readers. He has selected a wide range of Bible characters from Enoch to Paul, setting before us the secrets of success, and the causes of failure; and all the time bringing home to our hearts the spiritual lessons which are as vital today as when those men lived. Within the space of 220 pages are 18 Bible characters from the Word. All this for 60p!!

H. Palliser

The Layman's Paralell Bible, published by Zondervan (Marshall, Morgan and Scott), price £10.00 (cloth) £7.50 (Kivar), postage and packing 35p extra.

THIS massive production is marvellously useful for study and for normal use for meditation and reading. It reproduces the Authorised (King James') Version side by side with the Modern Language Bible (the New Berkeley Version in Modern English), the Living Bible and the Revised Standard Version. It is a rather cumbersome volume which would not make for easy pulpit use, but in every other way it is excellent. To get so much into the almost 3,000 (three thousand) pages is truly marvellous.

Perhaps you have a birthday coming. . . ?

I thought Terry Dene was Dead, published by Coverdale House Publishers Ltd., price 50p, postage and packing 7p extra.

BEGINNING with the birth of rock and roll in Great Britain, and the childhood of Terry Dene, this well written and amazingly detailed little book, goes on to tear the veneer off the pop-scene and reveal it as it really is — a bottomless pit. Admittedly, even I had to search my memory files for Terry Dene, but I'm sure that many will clearly recall this George Best of the rock and roll era, who became, in the hands of greedy men, a piece of property to be overworked and exploited. A problem child who retreated into music and found early fame. Terry was eventually ground and crushed by the great pop machine into an erratic, violent and depressed has-been at the age of 22. Few people have suffered so much in pursuit of success. He was once the subject of much debate and rhetoric in the House of Commons — but how quickly the world forgets a star.

A visit from Tony Stone, a vision of Jesus on the cross, and encounter with The Mobile Evangelistic Crusade, all eventually led to Terry's total commitment to Christ. He was baptized in the Spirit and is now in the full time service of the Lord. As a modern day parable and a warning for any would-be pop stars (fans too), I would strongly recommend this book for teens.

A stupid risk

By SUE GIBBONS

MOTORISTS cruising down the busy one-way street that sunny afternoon had almost no warning of the tragedy.

My daughter was at the wheel. We were gaily chatting when we saw five or six teen-agers leap from the slope that bordered the street.

Immediately she took her foot from the gas pedal and applied the brakes. One can never tell what kids might do—even big kids like these! Even though it was the middle of the block and illegal for pedestrians to cross there, they might try it.

And that's exactly what they did. Without even a sideways glance, they all dashed across the four lanes of traffic, actually daring cars to hit them!

In spite of the boys' foolhardiness, it looked as though they were all going to make it safely across, when suddenly a body was hurled into the air.

An agonized scream pierced our ears. "Oh, God!" the boy cried. "Oh, God!"

He dragged himself from the street, and collapsed on the grassy parking strip nearby.

The sight of mangled bones poking through a heavy crew sock soaked with blood made me nauseous, but it was the boy's anguished screams that chilled me:

"Oh, God, how stupid I was! It was all my fault! I shouldn't have taken such a stupid risk!"

As I lay in bed that night, I tried in vain to block out the memory of those screams of pain and remorse. How foolish the lad had been to take such a senseless chance. He had come so very close to being killed.

From the appearance of the mutilated leg and foot he could easily be crippled for life. And all because of a stupid, daring game of chicken he and his friends had played.

The screams of "Oh, God! How stupid I was!" went through my mind again and again like a broken record.

I kept thinking of the parallel between this contrite boy and the millions who will cry out in even greater pain and remorse because they have been hurled into a godless eternity. They play a daring game of chance all their lifetime instead of surrendering to the Saviour.

Many count on a last-minute opportunity to get right with God before death overtakes them, and will not recognize their stupidity until it is too late.

The Bible warns of the danger of continually resisting the Saviour. It states, "He, that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy" (Proverbs 29:1).

One can never count on having another chance later on to accept Jesus. "Boast not thyself of tomorrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth" (Proverbs 27:1).

Listen to this positive message: "Now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation" (2 Corinthians 6:2).

Be wise! "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near" (Isaiah 55:6). Then you will never have to cry, "Oh, God! I've been so stupid! I've waited until it's too late!"

The gift of the peace of God

by L. F. W.
Woodford

LESLIE F. W. WOODFORD was converted in a North London Baptist Sunday School in 1911 and was baptized in the Spirit at a Whitsuntide Convention in 1916. Following the call of God he relinquished his appointment with the Inland Revenue Establishment (Taxes) to enter the Pentecostal ministry in 1920 and for the next 15 years he held Pastorates in England, Scotland and Wales. He entered the Missionary Department of Assemblies of God in 1936 and was a member of the Overseas Missions Council for 25 years, of which 22 years (1941-1963) were in the capacity of General Missionary Secretary. He was a member of the Redemption Hymnal Committee and contributed a number of original hymns. He holds a Diploma in Theology (University of London) and served on the Faculty of Kenley Bible College for a period of 12 years. He remains an Emeritus member of the O.M.C. of Assemblies of God of Great Britain and Ireland and continues in active ministry.

"Set your troubled hearts at rest, and banish your fears." John 14:27 (NEB).

DR. J. H. Jowett, well-known preacher of a generation ago, once drew attention to a commonly observed practice of jewellers intent upon displaying their jewels to best advantage. He pointed out that in order to do this the gems were placed against a dark velvet background so that, by clear contrast, the sparkle and splendour of the precious stones could the more readily catch the enquiring eye of the beholder. In such manner the words spoken by our Lord, quoted at the head of this article, become a gem of priceless worth when they are set against the dark and foreboding background that occasioned their utterance.

Our Lord had gathered together His own disciples for the last Supper before His crucifixion. The hour of His passion had come, and it was night. The disciples were about to be bereft of their Lord and Master. They were perplexed, fearful, bewildered and filled with sorrow of heart. Had He not told them that He was about to leave them, that He would be handed over to the religious and civil authorities, that they would cruelly mock Him, flog Him and finally put Him to death? Certainly, He had also thrice assured them in plain terms that He would rise again from the dead after three days, but this they had failed to grasp, for the darkness of a shameful death had obscured from their vision anything that lay beyond the grave.

In this their perplexity they had been startled to learn that one in their very midst was a traitor who would shortly be instrumental in delivering up their Lord to His enemies, nor were they able to discern who it could possibly be that would perpetrate such an ignoble deed. Still further, in tones of deep compassion and sorrow of heart, He warned His listening disciples that they would all forsake Him and leave Him alone at the moment of His direct need and that Peter, their foremost spokesman, would thrice deny any knowledge of Him before his accusers.

He Himself was fully aware that He was about to endure the lone agony of dark Gethsemane and the final conflict of Golgotha. Yet, calmly facing the tempest of those coming cataclysmic hours, our Lord could nevertheless utter words that must have astonished the eleven Apostles: "Peace is my parting gift to you, my own peace, such as the world cannot give. Set your troubled hearts at rest, and banish your fears."

But how could He know peace in such a straitened and ominous situation? Whence this peace that our Lord declared He possessed? His own life revealed the open secret. It was a peace that completely enfolded Him, derived from His unwavering assurance that He was moving wholly within the loving purpose of His heavenly Father, in the knowledge that all things had been placed in His hands and that every step He was taking was in company with His Father, with whom He was holding unbroken communion moment by moment. His trust was perfect and, in the power of the Spirit, in His fiery trial He remained complete master of the situation, whilst He saw, through the gathering darkness of death, the shining light of the divine glory that awaited Him beyond the Cross. His faith remained firm and constant. He could declare: "I love the Father, and do exactly as He commands." (John 14:31 NEB) and in the path of implicit obedience He ensured the full pleasure of His Father and the calm of an undisturbed inner peace of mind and spirit. This peace He was freely giving to His own disciples, could they but receive it, in what was also to be their own hour of deepest need.

This, too, is His precious gift to us, His disciples, today—hearts at rest, and banished fears! We face a world of turmoil and confusion, a world that presses upon the human spirit, that invades the sanctuary of the soul with its anxieties and testing circumstances and that seeks insistently to challenge faith and hope and love. In such a world, who but the Christ alone can bestow so priceless a blessing as perfect peace within? Yet this He has assured to us for, in the closing words of His farewell discourse to His disciples, He declared: "In the world you will have trouble. But courage! The victory is mine; I have conquered the world" (John 16.33 NEB). In that triumph we have all we need.

As His loyal disciples we are called to follow the path He has marked out for us, a life of victory and heart rest. He has shown the way that we, too, may place confiding trust in the all-wise purpose of our heavenly Father who has planned for us our daily lives; that we, too, may commit our steps to His guidance in every circumstance and at all times. Again, as with our Lord so with ourselves, the peace and assurance that come from a full and obedient commitment to the "good and perfect and acceptable will of God" are made real and abiding through personal communion with the Father in the secret place. So Paul, a man subject to like passions with ourselves, echoes the very words of the Lord Jesus when, writing to the Philippians, he exhorts: "Do not be anxious about anything" and then he at once points the way into the holy place where, by prayer and earnest pleading, with thanksgiving, our requests concerning everything may be made known to God without reserve. Thus will the peace of God, that surpasses all power of thought, lift the burden of our cares and become a garrison to guard our hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.

Trust — commit — commune — obey: simple words, but in the context of the Christ life they are rich in spiritual significance. Implicitly followed, troubled hearts are truly set at rest, anxious fears are banished and the benediction of a deep settled peace reigns over all within. This is the precious gift for all who have found in Christ their true life and in whom He has come to make His humble but sure abiding place. By His grace may we thankfully receive it as our very own and so carry with us at all times the restful peace of the heavenly places in Christ our Lord.

"He walks with God who speaks to God in prayer, And daily brings to Him his daily care; Possessing inward peace, he truly knows A heart's refreshment and a soul's repose."

IT is impossible to think of the Church without song and it is certainly very unusual to find a form of Christian worship that has no music of any kind. Evangelism and song go together. New life bursts upon the music of the Church whenever revival or a new surge of gospel preaching takes place.

It is not surprising, for God is revealed as "a song" (Exodus 15:2; Isaiah 12:2). We are exhorted to "sing a new song" (Psalm 33:3). We read of the "Lord's song" (Psalm 137:4) and "psalms and hymns and spiritual songs" (Ephesians 5:19). Indeed Scripture abounds with references to song, with joyful, blessed connotations.

We have much pleasure in offering this compilation of the songs of salvation trusting that it will be much used and greatly blessed.

Reminiscences • The name of a flower

by Pastor O. G. Miles, retired Elim Minister

I WONDER how many of my readers had the privilege of knowing personally Mr. Willie Burton, one of the great pioneers of the well known Congo Evangelistic Mission? I think he was one of the most talented and yet at the same time one of the most unassuming gentlemen I have ever met. Wherever he was, whatever he did, he always radiated such a godly influence that one was inevitably drawn nearer to the Saviour. To have him stay in your home was an unforgettable experience. Every meal was a benediction. His inexhaustible fund of Congo stories, so dramatically told, was far better than any television programme. He was an absolute genius when entertaining the children, and to hear him read a chapter of John Ackworth's book, Clog Shop Chronicles was the highlight of any family gathering.

On one occasion when Mr. Burton was staying with some friends of mine in Leeds, a colleague and I agreed to take him by car to a little isolated spot near Pickering in Yorkshire, to visit the elderly mother of our Elim Missionary, Olive Garbutt. As I was escorting Mr. Burton to the car from the front door of the home where he was staying, he paused for a few moments in my friend's garden, giving his attention to several clusters of little blue flowers which were similar in appearance to a miniature hyacinth. Turning to me he asked, "What is the name of this lovely little flower, brother Miles?" I had to confess that I hadn't the faintest idea. He looked at me almost severely, and said, "What, you live in a beautiful country like this, with all these magnificent flowers and you don't even know their names?"

I did not know what to say for a moment. I almost felt as if I were sitting in the back row of a Church where a powerful gospel sermon had just been concluded and that I was under deep conviction and speechless. I certainly had to acknowledge that my education was not by any means complete. Mr. Burton immediately eased my embarrassment by pointing to the garden next door. As we looked over the fence, he said "Look, this gentleman's garden is full of these attractive flowers and even he doesn't know the name of them, but never mind, we'll get to know". I felt somewhat better after that.

We continued our journey, through Tadcaster, and on through beautiful York, with its magnificent City walls and gates, getting a close-up view of the majestic, stately Minster.

Some ten miles or so beyond York we pulled in at a quaint little cafe, where we had coffee. Adjoining the cafe was a large white gate with the word "Private" prominently affixed. Beyond the gate was a typical English garden, in which were flowers of every variety. A middle-aged lady, whom we discovered afterwards to be the owner of the cafe, was busy attending the garden.

Mr. Burton, seeing this delightful garden, instantly remembered the little blue flower. Alighting quickly from the car, he proceeded through the white gate, ignoring completely its prohibitive sign; he politely approached the industrious gardener and entered into a lengthy conversation with her. Then we observed that they moved to another part of the garden and brother Burton beckoned us to join the company. After a brief introduction, a delighted Mr. Burton said to me, "Now, brother Miles, I'll tell you the name of the little blue flower", I believe it is sometimes called the "Grape Hyacinth", but Mr. Burton had discovered its true name; a name which I am ashamed to say still escapes me.

The sequel to this incident is remarkable. We did not need to go into the cafe for our coffee. The good lady took us into her private apartment and lavishly met our needs. Nor was this all — the lady, who had recently suffered a sad bereavement, was hungry for God and the comfort which only He can give. How tenderly Mr. Burton ministered to her, committing her into God's loving care! A real friendship was established that day. Mr. Burton arranged to send her the Congo Report regularly.

How wonderful are the ways of our God; a contact had been made; a work of grace accomplished; divine comfort administered; all because of the name of a little blue flower.

"God moves in a mysterious way,
His wonders to perform".

The lady has now left the district, but we saw her afterwards on several occasions and she was always happy to talk about the things of the Lord. The Lord who loved the lilies of the field, used the little blue flower in my friend's garden to bring together a needy lady and a prophet of the Lord. It is recorded of Jesus, "He must needs go through Samaria".

Wherever there is a genuine need, God will always meet it, even sometimes in an unexpected way.

Points for preachers

AN OUTLINE

PROVING GOD'S EXISTENCE

Isaiah 41

ON the fingers of your hand indicate five ways of knowing God.

1. CREATION. Psalm 19:1; 8:3. "When I consider Thy heavens . . ." and Thy earth! Romans 1:20,21.
2. FULFILLED PROPHECY. Isaiah 48. World-Empires, Israel, Messiah's Coming.
3. PERSONAL PRAYER. Jeremiah 33:3; Isaiah 66:2 and many other such promises.
4. OBEDIENCE TO GOD. John 17:7. "Follow Me . . ."
5. TITHING. Malachi 3:10. "Prove Me now."

A QUOTATION

"THIS IS MY BODY"

"If these words teach a change, they must say so. This is changed into my body. As they stand, they express a figure the most common in human language, nothing more than the great and everywhere spread usage of the common figure called metaphor. The correct doctrine of metaphor sweeps the doctrine of Transubstantiation out of the Scriptures.

Ah, the tens of thousands slaughtered for transubstantiation! The above, by God's blessing, would have saved the earth much of its precious blood, and tortures so dire in their cruelty, so cowardly in the circumstances of their infliction."

(The Might and Mirth of Literature, Metaphors by J. W. V. Macbeth.)

AN INCIDENT

ARE YOU SHORT OF BREATH?

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman complained to Dr. F. B. Meyer "What is the matter with me? so many times I feel half empty; so many times utterly powerless." Putting a hand on Wilbur Chapman's shoulder Meyer said, "Have you ever tried to breathe out three times while breathing in once?" Thinking this might be some new lung exercise for preachers, Chapman answered, "No, I don't think I have". "Well", said Meyer, "try it". So he breathed out once, and then found he had to breathe in again. "Don't you know," remarked Dr. Meyer, "that you must always breathe in before you can breathe out, and that you breathe out only in the proportion that you breathe in?" The point was well taken!

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

15. The Purpose of God (Exodus 7:4,5; 9:15,16)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THE patience of God is one side of a coin, the purpose of God is the other. The Lord purposed to break through the Satanic darkness that covered the nation of Israel in Egypt and to manifest His power and glory as Creator and Redeemer. He revealed that glory first by His patience and mercy, even permitting Pharaoh to flout Him and to harden his heart against Him. He also showed His glory through the plagues sent upon Egypt by displaying His power in redeeming Israel and finally by destroying Pharaoh and his army.

The Lord Jesus Christ came to fulfil the supreme purpose of God, first, by obeying His Father even though this meant death (Philippians 2:8), so that the Way of Salvation was opened to repentant sinners (1 Timothy 1:15), and the works of Satan were destroyed (1 John 3:8), second, by completing His Father's will in bringing the world back to obedience to God (1 Corinthians 15:28) and by judging those who remain wilfully rebellious (John 5:26-29; Revelation 20:11-15). The Father permitted men to reject and to crucify His beloved Son in order that His purpose both of mercy and of judgment might be fulfilled.

We are often perplexed by the wickedness abounding in the world. Men are flouting the law of God in the most open and brazen manner, and we sometimes ask: "Why doesn't God intervene and judge and condemn them?" But the purpose of God remains the same — mercy first, then judgment. So our wonderful God patiently endures man's flagrant sin and provocation in order that those who obey Him and repent of their sin might find mercy (2 Peter 3:9). As it was with Pharaoh and Egypt, so it will be with our generation: the Lord will permit men to go so far in their wilful sin, then His judgment will fall swiftly and without remedy. Have you repented of your sin and turned to Christ?

Margaret M. Laddow's page

I have just received the following splendid write-up about our own Carol Horner of whom I have written previously on my page. It is part of a series of articles appearing in the Sheffield evening paper "The Star", on the subject of healing.

M.M. Laddow

Just over a year ago, Carol Horner, multiple sclerosis victim, stepped out of her wheelchair and walked. Only moments before she had received the laying on of hands from a minister. Now, she leads a new life — helping others through the ministry of healing. Norman Burley tells her story.

Carol Horner a little over a year ago was in a wheelchair, victim of multiple sclerosis — and things were getting worse

Her neck had to be supported, she could not use her legs and there were other distressing features of her body ceasing to function.

Then, literally at a stroke, Carol Horner was better.

"Quite simply", she told me, "I went to a crusade service at Rotherham Elim Pentecostal Church. It was a normal, lively service, but I couldn't concentrate much.

Pain

"I was in some pain and later four ministers laid hands on me and prayed. The pain went. I remember thinking, "If I am going to be healed it will be all of me, not just one part." I asked one of the ministers if I could talk to him. We talked about healing, about the Lord. We shared things.

"I knew God could heal me — and I also knew that either I was going to be healed that way or I was going to die. It sounds dramatic, but it's real.

"The minister laid hands on me. I could feel my foot. I had an overwhelming desire to stand up. I stood up and walked".

That is Carol Horner's simple, matter-of-fact description of what people call a miracle cure; she says that it is divine healing.

But if what happened to her then was dramatic in its effect, her life since then has, perhaps, been even more so.

Declares

Because Carol — who lives in Springfield Road, Millhouses, Sheffield — mother of a four-and-a-half year-old son, Stewart, born before the disease paralysed her, is now taking the healing that came to her to others.

Not, let it be emphasised, that she claims to be a healer, far from it. She declares that she shares her faith with others and that often through prayer and laying on of hands people receive great benefit. Nor does she reject doctors; she sees it as a shared ministry in every way.

Her own recovery has been authenticated by the consultant who attended her when she was progressively losing the use of her body.

Recovery

A few days after she stood up and walked she went to see him. Says Carol: "He told me 'All I can say is that I have never seen such a remarkable case as this. All I can find wrong is a slight weakness in the legs'".

A year later, a busy year for Carol, she was again examined — and by another doctor. His verdict, "You are not the person I have read about in these notes". After examination he declared: "Well, we can only discharge you. . . ."

Now, life for Carol is hectic; she gets through a tremendous amount of work. Invitations are flowing in from Elim Pentecostal Churches, all over the country — she and husband Roger are members of Sheffield Elim Pentecostal Church.

But denominational barriers have been swept aside as Carol has, in her own words, "been called to just about every denomination you care to name".

Between her recovery in March 1973 and last Christmas she took part in 100 services and meetings. Since then, she has lost count.

She puts it like this: "Since I got better I have felt drawn to the ministry of healing. There are people the Lord seems to use in this way: perhaps it is how He is using me".

Certainly that is how some people see it — and in letters to Carol they spell it out.

A woman at Rotherham, severely affected by arthritis, declares that after Carol had prayed with

BAPTISMAL SERVICE IN THE SEA

ON Bank Holiday Monday a group of over sixty from South Croydon, Caterham and Coulsdon went to Brighton to witness the baptism of four recent converts, three teenagers and a young housewife. The beach and the promenade were crowded and thousands saw the simple service. Each candidate testified to the saving, transforming power of the Lord. Jack Shellard led the singing and then proceeded into the sea where Stephen Nicolls, Jacky Sellera, Stephen McHugo and Mavis Budd confessed Christ publicly in baptism. The presence of the Lord removed all nervousness and the whole ceremony was pervaded by a great joy. As a result of the testimonies and the baptisms many contacts were made. The service was reported in the local paper and mentioned by Pastor F.A. Hodge on BBC Radio Brighton the following morning. The Lanes Church entertained the whole group to tea. A glorious day was concluded by a rally in the Church.

The Christian and the Occult

by David G. Woodfield, Pastor of our Selly Oak Church

A TIMELY WARNING

THIS is not a pleasant subject and I've been in two minds about writing about it. There is a morbid interest in the occult and the psychic today and I have hesitated before sharing this article with you. At the same time however, one is constantly bombarded with questions about this subject and sadly, in ever increasing numbers, people are seeking for help after having had contact with this other world.

"The Exorcist" hasn't helped! The young man who telephoned me at midnight wasn't frightened, he was literally petrified out of his wits! So was the young lady who couldn't sleep for a month after seeing the film because of the noises and the faces in her bedroom. She has since yielded to Christ and is sleeping well!

As Christians we are aware of the supernatural. God's Holy Spirit is real to us. We know that there is another realm which is spiritual. The Devil works in this other realm. Just as we cannot see the Holy Spirit but we sense and know His presence, so also, satanic powers can be contacted and known. The Holy Spirit is a Person. Evil spirits, too, are personalities. In extreme cases they inhabit people and take over the personality of the person within whom they live. The Gospels have many examples of this.

It seems that everyone is cashing in on the great occult boom. Magazines on Witchcraft and Black Magic, the fascination of horoscopes and astrology, the rising interest in Spiritism all point to the interest in this subject. The awful danger of it all is that young people are coming into contact with evil powers without even realising it. Not in some darkened room with a Spiritist Medium nor in some Witch's Coven at midnight but often, in the lunch-break at school of all places!

Just for a giggle someone gets out the glass tumbler and the lettered cards or better still, a oui'ja board from the local toy stores. It's all a bit of a joke. Questions are put to the glass and often nothing happens. Nothing that is, except that the first approach has been made into the forbidden realm. Then some of the questions begin to be answered. Enquiries about dead relatives are answered correctly. Perhaps it's coincidence. Before the group knows what is happening, after a few sessions they are no longer in this for a bit of a laugh but they are in touch with the other world of evil satanic powers. And often they do not realise it!

Other things develop. From the oui'ja board to levitation, or telepathy, or perhaps a seance. The great dividing line has been breached and many of these young people will be seriously effected for the rest of their lives.

Christian young folk, the Bible absolutely forbids us to investigate this other world (see Scripture references below). To try to do so will bring tremendous bondage and confusion to your Christian experience. A number of young Christians personally counselled over the last year or so have confessed to having deep-seated irrational fears in their life; others to a very real coldness and hardness towards God and the Bible; others to symptoms far worse than those already mentioned. Without exception, these young people had in their pre-christian days made contact with the occult world. Usually through an oui'ja board and usually at school. Something of this psychic contact has come over into their Christian experience and was spoiling their communion with the Lord.

Satan is very powerful, but Jesus is Lord! It is quite likely that you have never had any contact with the occult world. However, should something of what I have written ring true to you, then here is some strong advice.

Read 1 John 1 and on the basis of verses 7-9 come before the Lord and (1) confess to the Lord any connection you have ever had with this other world, naming such things as the oui'ja board, fortune telling, levitation etc., and (2) ask God for forgiveness for each occasion mentioned. Then (3) put every incident under the blood of Christ as an act of cleansing. After this (4) renounce all contact with the occult and finally (5) make Jesus the Lord of this area of your life. Regularly read and quote the verses (and other relevant portions) mentioned above. Your Pastor will counsel you personally should you need further help.

Pentecostal young people, we have been filled with the Holy Spirit. We don't need to try to find out about the other world through psychic means. We know where we're going. The Spirit who guides us is not the spirit of fear, but of love, and power, and a sound mind, and He reveals the Lord Jesus to us. What more do we need?

Notes
by
S. E. Petts

Monday, July 22nd

Hebrews 7:11–19

"There ariseth another priest, who is made, not after the law of carnal commandment, but after the power of an endless life" (v.15).

THE old priest-tribe of Levi had failed because it did not bring men closer to God. Because they were human they died and their work constantly changed in its standards and application. A change was essential. So God appointed One in place of them all, One who had power that flowed from an eternal life source and whose priestly intercession for men to God would consequently not wax and wane but would be consistent and of unceasing duration.

Tuesday, July 23rd

Hebrews 7:20–28

"Such an high priest became us, who is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners" (v.26).

IF we happen to break the law we would seek to represent us a person of integrity, who was above suspicion, concerned for our welfare whilst being absolutely impartial. Such an advocate might procure for us a just and minimal sentence. Daily we break God's laws and need a high priest to plead our cause. When God decided to change the faulty priesthood, he appointed Jesus who combined human and divine natures, to be the new intercessor for men, for He had all these attributes.

Wednesday, July 24th

Hebrews 8:1–13

"They shall not teach every man his neighbour . . . saying, Know the Lord; for all shall know Me from the least to the greatest" (v.11).

UNDER the old law men had to depend on direction from priests to know God's will in order to obey it. Today it can be discovered from the New Testament and from pastors and other men of God. We may delight to read the wonder of God's new plan for ourselves, or to discuss it with Christian friends. Their counsel may cause us to understand it better. But this is still head rather than heart knowledge. More than instruction we need revelation.

Thursday, July 25th

Hebrews 9:1–10

"Into the second (tabernacle) went the high priest alone . . . not without blood" (v.7).

WHEN we do come face to face with Christ we immediately become aware of our extremely sinful condition and our need of Christ's blood to cleanse us. The high priest, being sinful, offered the life-blood of a bullock for his own cleansing before he offered the blood of a kid for the people's sins. There was no entry to the Holy of Holies without the blood. No one can enjoy God's presence here or in heaven without accepting Christ's blood and presenting it to the Father.

Friday, July 26th

Hebrews 9:11–22

"The blood of Christ, who through the eternal spirit offered himself without spot to God" (v.14).

ONLY when the high priest had cleansed himself could he enter into the holiest place to offer sacrifice for the transgressions of Israel. But Christ, the spotless Lamb, having sacrificed Himself, went first of all into the holy presence of the Father to offer Himself on our behalf. Had God not accepted Christ's blood then it would not have availed for us. Let us not forget this. It is what gives Christ's offering its full value; that the Father gladly received it as the price of our redemption. It does not matter if we do not understand why our salvation was bought with the precious blood of Christ, the important thing is that it satisfied God.

Saturday, July 27th

Hebrews 9:23–28

"It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment" (v.27).

"DO you fear death?" a man was asked. He replied, "No, but I fear the resurrection." That man knew this text and believed it. The bible says that after death all men will rise again; some to the resurrection of the just, and others to the resurrection of the unjust. Those justified by faith in Christ have nothing to fear, for they will only be judged for rewards according to their service for Christ. The unjust, however, who rejected Christ's sacrifice for their sin, will be condemned by their deeds. This is what struck terror to the heart of the man in our story. This text won't frighten you if you trust in Christ.

Sunday, July 28th

Hebrews 10:1–10

"The law . . . a shadow of good things to come and not the very image" (v.1).

WITH the light behind, man casts a shadow before him. That shadow has some likeness to him, but it is not the real man. The shadow effects little but fear. When the man is once seen the shadow is forgotten and the substance becomes real, able to perform all that the shadow can only silhouette. The shadow was the system of legal sacrifices.

Christ is the substance. His blood truly avails, once for all time.

Testimony Page

G. Pullen, Otley, Yorkshire

"Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou art with me" (Psalm 23:4).

INEVITABLY the use of I is prominent in giving a testimony, but the honour and praise and glory go to our Saviour. Recently I was struck down with a rare kind of food poisoning — a killer to nursing mothers and young children. The time of year, too, was most unusual. I can praise God, however, for the way He healed and the blessings He gave both my wife and myself. Hallelujah! It all began with an attack of diarrhoea which continued for five days which made me very weak and ill. The doctors were puzzled and my high blood pressure which had plagued me for the past three years suddenly dropped. A normal person's reading being 120, mine was usually around 180, but this plummeted to 80! and with it the diarrhoea ceased. I was virtually dehydrated! As the blood pressure began to rise (altho' it never rose to normal) the diarrhoea started again. A sample was sent to the hospital laboratories and a bed was made available at an isolation hospital. I was desperately ill. I couldn't even sponge myself — the flannel itself was stronger than I was! It was here at this moment of crisis that the Saviour took over the situation. Praise Him! Throughout the sickness I was fully conscious of the prayers of my wife, my Pastor (Pastor Hodson) and the Christian brothers who came to visit me, and I thank God for them. At the height of the crisis Pastor Hodson and my wife were praying fervently for my deliverance. Throughout, in spite of my weakness, I was completely alert in my soul to their prayers. Seeing that I was so tired and weak they decided to leave me to rest and went downstairs to continue and pray this matter through. A message came from God in tongues and interpretation that He would heal. Praise God! At this point the crisis passed and healing began. From that point God's blessing poured upon us.

The following Sunday the Lord gave me strength to walk to the Church and walk back home.

The doctors told me afterwards that the rare form of food poisoning was the equivalent of being literally poisoned. God indeed had spared me, I had walked in the valley of the shadow, but with His assurance and the prayers of the Saints I can say with the psalmist "Truly God is good".

her and administered the laying on of hands in private after a meeting, she was healed.

Suffered

Says Carol: "A few days afterwards, I learned that she was fine".

She showed me a letter from a Matlock woman who suffered from osteo-arthritis. Carol took part in a service at Matlock and this woman was one of the people with whom she prayed.

The letter she received soon afterwards said: "The specialist examined my legs, bending them this way and that. And my hands and fingers. He asked 'What about the pain?' I said 'I have none at all' he looked at me — he knew. He just said: 'I think we will leave things as they are'. And he has closed the files".

From Co. Druham came this news after Carol had been there for a weekend: "Mrs. Smith got out of bed and seemingly, walked unaided".

And just recently from a multiple sclerosis sufferer: "I feel great, as I am much faster in my walking . . . I got up on a chair to clean the windows on Tuesday".

Convinced

That statement was corroborated in a letter from a friend of the multiple sclerosis victim, who declared herself convinced of her friend's real progress.

And there are many others, several independently witnessed.

Carol will claim no credit. She told the first person to whom she ministered: "You must understand that if you are healed God shall have all the glory".

She has the practical support of friends who help her at home in order that she can go to the study she has set up to prepare herself for work. She throws herself into that work completely, feeling that life is too short anyway and that all the time she can give must be given.

"I believe the Lord has enabled me to counsel people, to show them real compassion", she told me.

She summed it all up at my request with the simple statement: "It is love that people need. . ."

Then, the 28-year-old mother who was helpless not so long ago, simply darted across the room to grab Stewart, who looked prepared for some boyish mischief. Just like any other mother.

SOME people approach the Bible with pre-conceived ideas on certain subjects, as for example, precise and detailed forms of church government. They hope to find that the Scriptures lend strong support to their own particular views.

One only has to read a few of the weighty tomes that were written in the 17th and 18th centuries to realise how much these men were children of an age where intolerance was the order of the day.

It has been said that 30,000 books and pamphlets were written on the subject of church government in the 17th century.

The learned and devout Richard Baxter, in his long life, wrote some 168 books, the vast majority of which no one reads today. There is one volume however for which he was responsible under the name of The Reformed Pastor. This was a sermon that he should have delivered to a group of ministers on the 4th, December 1655 which was an exposition on the nature of the Christian ministry based on the text Acts 20:28. Anticipating a good sermon the clerical gentlemen whom he addressed requested that this should be printed and much to their subsequent embarrassment they were obliged to keep their word! It so happened that Baxter himself was too ill to deliver the sermon. Some suggested that it should be published in Latin so that laymen could not understand it.

When Baxter went to Kidderminster, he tells us, "Only one person in each street went to church". Years later, after much labour and toil, he tells us, "When I left that place only one person in every street did not go to church."

He preached as "a dying man, to dying men".

Paul said, "Woe is me if I do not preach the Gospel".

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

Crowds fill ancient cathedral for Elim rally

THE PRESBYTERY rally at Worcester on July 6th attracted even greater crowds than last year. Under brilliant sunshine (in itself an answer to prayer) three steamerloads of Pentecostal folk sailed along the Severn in the afternoon.

This was also Worcester's Carnival and Gala day; floats and supporters were assembling in a nearby meadow, but no more happy crowd could have been found anywhere in the city than at the riverside open air service addressed by Pastor J. Dick. Tea was served in the Methodist Church dining hall, and everyone flocked to the Cathedral for the great finale. Almost filled to capacity an hour before starting time, the final attendance figure was 1,450.

"Jesus is here" asserted Canon Eric Turnbull in his message of welcome, and indeed the atmosphere was one of rejoicing confidence as Pastor Brian Garrard led the tremendous crowd in hearty singing. The Cardiff choir brought much blessing, particularly with their martial rendering (complete with drum beats) of "Our God is Marching On".

Bob Templeton (Selly Oak) sang two delightful songs. We will carry for a long time the memory of "The Love of God is Greater Far . . .". Perhaps because of this unaccustomed setting amid pillars, arches, stained glass, beautiful old stonework and effigies reminding us of some who have paid a great price for the gospel amid persecution, one could look away from the disturbing state of our nation and thrill anew to the soloist's confident conclusion: "It shall for evermore endure . . . The saints' and angels' song!"

Our much loved Secretary-General, Pastor P. S. Brewster, was the speaker chosen for this event and his concluding appeal for decisions for Christ resulted in a number of souls coming to the Lord—the crowning blessing.

It was another great and joyful day in the Midlands, for which we praise God and give Him all the glory.

K.L.S.

Canon Turnbull, with a word of welcome.

B. R. J. Garrard leads the singing.

P. S. Brewster offers a prayer.

EVESHAM

Pastor: J.R. Brown

SPRING Bank Holiday is the highlight of the year for Pershore, a small market town six miles from Evesham, because it is Carnival Day. The Evesham Church entered a float in the procession and a number of members walked with the float giving out tracts and invitations. The theme of the Carnival was "A Song" and the float was decorated in keeping with this theme. Our picture shows Ruth and Andrew Bolland, who walked the whole length of the procession route. The writer and Mrs. Bolland both work in Pershore and this was an opportunity to witness to God's saving grace. We had opportunity to contact people and give them personal invitations to our Church. The sun shone upon us and God blessed our witness.

WE HAD the privilege of welcoming Pastor Eldin Corsie, our National Youth Director, to speak at our Sunday School Anniversary. "The Gateway of Life" was this year's theme and we were amazed at the way the children's programme fitted in with our speaker's searching message.

Parents and friends packed the church and everyone agreed that it was a most blessed anniversary. We do thank our brother Pastor Corsie for his ministry on that special day, and the children who gave of their best.

MRS. A.D. SMITH

PRESTON PARK, Brighton

Pastor: L.J. Repath

IN RECENT weeks the Lord has moved in our midst mightily. Youngsters have come to their Saviour and on three Tuesdays running an adult has found Salvation. Four have received the Baptism of the Holy Spirit, while the baptistry was opened for the first time in fourteen years—for five candidates. One is the mother of five children, while another was until recently a Roman Catholic. One was from Elim Bible College, where she is a worker. Prior to that she was a worker at a certain place where an Elim Conference was held a couple of months back! What a privilege to share her joy in her newly-found Saviour along with the mini bus-full of students who accompanied her.

In the Junior Church we were running low on boys. It was made an item of prayer and the Lord led five in in three weeks. We have seen some healings too. We have seen the Lord at work and experienced His multiple blessings.

GEOFFREY C. HILL

PALMERS GREEN, London

Pastor: A.L. Hawkes

ANTICIPATION turned to realisation on Friday, June 7th, when Pastor A.L. Hawkes was inducted as our Minister, under the Chairmanship of Pastor J.F. Hardman (Ilford). A warm welcome was extended to the new Minister, his wife and their two children, by the church treasurer, Mr. E. Vidler, and on behalf of the local Presbytery by Mr. F.E. Croker.

We were grateful for, and blessed by, the stirring message given by Pastor G.L. Taylor (Leyton) on the need for personal evangelism, remembering that "He who winneth souls is wise".

We pray that the good hand of our God will be upon Pastor and Mrs. Hawkes as they labour for Him in North London, and that we who sit under their ministry will be "doers of the Word and not hearers only".

F. BENSON

SHEFFIELD

Pastor: A. Brooks

HAVE you ever seen a quartet of deaf ladies praising the Lord? This was our privilege in Sheffield on Bank Holiday Sunday when we were joined at our evening service by members of the Deaf Christian Fellowship who were holding their annual conference in Sheffield and over sixty came to the service. How our hearts were thrilled as we saw them signing the words of the hymns and choruses. The four ladies in the quartet signed the words of the hymn, When I survey the wondrous cross and the congregation joined in. Two deaf men lead in prayer and the leader of the fellowship, Mr. A. E. Barritt, interpreted the prayers. We saw the unity of the gospel in action as two men, one from the South of Ireland and another from the North, joined in the chorus, Lord, we love you. Germany was represented by a brother who gave a wonderful testimony of how God miraculously united his family after the war and of the greater miracle when God saved him. He and his wife are now working among the deaf in Germany. A challenging message was given by Mr. Barritt and the words of the closing hymn Christ crucified, I come expressed our renewed devotion.

Bank Holiday Monday is children's day in Sheffield when many Sunday schools assemble in the local park to sing hymns. At the head of our procession we had a banner followed by a six-foot model of the Bible. The children carried placards with the names of the Books of the Bible and texts. In this way we tried to present the gospel to those who stood to watch and listen to the singing. The friends from the Deaf Christian Fellowship joined us in the park and had the proceedings explained to them in hand signs. At the end of the service our Sunday School marched back to the church and after lunch they assembled in another park for games and races.

God is continuing to bless us in Sheffield, our numbers are increasing, the debt for the extension is completely paid off and we are looking forward to even greater things.

JEAN GREGORY

SWANSEA Pastor E.J. Jarvis

ON SUNDAY June 9th we held our Sunday School anniversary services. In the afternoon the juniors presented a number of interesting items and Don Evans gave an absorbing talk as he put his clarinet together piece by piece providing eventually a complete instrument plus a complete tune. The scholars presented a demonstration called "The Jigsaw" in the evening, with recitations, solos and choir pieces. They produced one of the greatest texts of the Bible "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want".

The epilogue which followed continued with the same theme though presented in a different way. It was given by Peter Griffiths (our Swansea missionary in Rhodesia) on tape. The effect was quite arresting and a larger than usual congregation heard the gospel in an unusual way. Tribute must be paid to Len Hobbs and his teachers for the work they put in to produce two splendid programmes which were blessed so much by God.

GLEANINGS

Spiritual Food

by S. E. Petts

"I am the living bread which came down from heaven" (John 6:51).

J.B. PHILLIPS translates a passage in Timothy, "Bodily fitness has a certain value, spiritual fitness is essential." Because I was a sports-master many boys sought advice from me. Ernest asked how to get into the soccer team. I told him to keep fit by running, skipping and the like, to get plenty of ball practice and as much fresh air as possible, and not to overeat before a match.

When I wakened the boys the next morning, Ernest was already at the window doing deep-breathing exercises. During breaks he was practising ball skills in my vicinity. This went on for weeks but as time went on he became less effective and I sought the cause. Taking dinner-duty one day I saw him push his plate away before he had taken one mouthful. I asked if he didn't like his food. He replied that he did, but that he was afraid of overeating because I had warned him against it. His trouble was that he wasn't eating regularly. I informed him that physical fitness wasn't possible without sustenance for the body too. Some folk are like this in spiritual matters; they go through the gymnastics of religion yet fail to feed on the strong Son of God, the Bread of Life. Spiritual fitness is primarily dependent on sustenance from Christ. Nothing can take its place.

Religion

by A. S. F. Horne, Pastor of our Ipswich Church

THIS week I want to consider some of the facts of religious life. Please read again Paul's wonderful chapter on love — 1 Corinthians 13.

Love believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. What a blessing for the Church and the world when more of this love is enjoyed by Christians and made manifest in their lives. Then there will be acts of self-denial and all will see the good works and glorify our Father in heaven.

We are to be spiritually minded, to mind the things of the Spirit, to set our affections on things above, to have our conversations in heaven, to be constantly looking for the coming of Christ. In a word, whether we eat or drink, or whatever we do, all should be done to the glory of God.

What is religion?

It is something divine amidst that which is human — something heavenly on earth — that which comes from heaven to prepare and lead mankind to heaven. It is the life of God in the soul of man. Much earnestness is needed to support the life of God in the soul.

Let us think of some of the figures used by Paul. He compares Christians to wrestlers and to runners; many such expressions are found in this Epistle. They are employed to give us one idea. As all persons engaged in those exercises would exert themselves to the utmost, develop every power, employ every faculty, so too should Christians running in the race that is set before them and fighting the good fight of faith.

Earnestness is indispensable for maintaining the healthy spiritual life of the soul. The Bible shows this most distinctly. The history of the Church shows it fully. God abhors lukewarmness. He cannot be served with a divided heart. The Lord's people must have true and real earnestness to enable them to live to and for God.

Religion requires that we should be careful and regular in attending all means provided for the support of spiritual life. Attending at the Lord's house, the Psalmist said, "Lord, I have loved the habitation of thy house". I think this is not only true on Sunday, but during the week.

Whatever we do or are able to do in the house of God, there are also private duties — the daily reading of God's Word and prayer — which should not be neglected. God's great gift to us is His Word and we should be careful to use it as such, to read it carefully, constantly, devotedly and with thankfulness.

*When silent in my house I sit,
Thy Book be my companion still;
My joy Thy sayings to repeat,
Talk o'er the records of Thy will
And search the oracles divine
Till every heart-felt word be mine.*

Private prayer is very essential to spiritual life; in reality, there can be no spiritual life without it. The godly Philip Henry gave this sound advice to his children and friends, "Be sure you look at your secret duty; keep that up whatever you do".

As I come to this my last article, there is one more thing that we must be earnest about, and that is the conversion of souls. It is the duty of every believer to strive by every possible means to bring others to Christ and for the neglect of this, we must answer at God's bar. It seems to be a law in religion that he who seeks to bless others will be blessed himself. With all our hearts let us say:

*I would the precious time redeem,
And longer live for this alone,
To spend and to be spent for them
Who have not yet my Saviour known;
Fully on these my mission prove
And only breathe, to breathe Thy love.*

Let us be in earnest for ourselves and for others, that we may be the means of saving them from death and lifting them up to heaven and at last may we hear Christ say, "Well done! Good and faithful servant".

This article is the last in the present series and we express our thanks to Mr. Horne for his contributions.

Invest in Skye

WE are very grateful for the interest that has been shown in this venture which will take place in the month of September. We now have a complete team of evangelists and workers. If you are going to be in the area at that time or if you can plan to be there and can book your own accommodation, the leader of the project, Pastor Peter Smith of 140 Hungerhill Road, Kimberworth, Rotherham, telephone Rotherham 77566 will be pleased to hear from you.

The greatest need is for prayer backing and we make a special appeal to all our members to take this project on their hearts. Those who are directly and personally involved in this soul-saving venture will be going right into the homes of the people with the gospel. Memories come flooding in of revival in the Hebrides and it would be marvellous if God were graciously to favour our co-workers with an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Who can tell the results?

Please stand by our colleagues in intercession.

We would like to feel that all our movement is involved in the Skye Project. Maybe you cannot be there, but it could be that you would like to help us financially.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

16. Aaron's Rod (Exodus 8:5)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THIS was a gesture which Pharaoh and Egypt came to know, an act which filled them with misgivings and dismay. The Egyptians quickly associated the raised rod with trouble, for whenever Aaron stretched it out a new disaster came to Egypt. Yet the sad fact is that Egypt need not have endured one plague. The Lord always gave warning of coming trouble and urged Pharaoh to obey Him; had Pharaoh obeyed, the Lord would not have sent judgment and Egypt would have been spared the series of disasters.

The Lord constantly gives a similar choice to people. The warning of God to men and women is:

"The wages of sin is death"; all mankind is therefore under Divine condemnation because all have sinned; so we could have no complaint if He lifted the rod of judgment over us. Yet He has shown that judgment is not His perfect will; His supreme desire is to show mercy and to forgive our sin. God gave His own dear Son to die and to take away man's sin, and His Word calls men to obey Him and put their trust in Christ for salvation. Those who obey Him find forgiveness and prove that: "The gift of God is eternal life"; judgment falls when the mercy of God is rejected.

Have you experienced the mercy of God in Christ? It is true that the Word of God condemns your sin and warns you of judgment to come; yet the very warnings of God declare His mercy, for He warns in order that you may turn from your sin. If He only wanted to punish, He need not warn you at all. The plain fact is that He loves you and gave His Son for you, and if you ask He will take away your sin for Jesus' sake. Judgment will surely follow if you refuse His grace; He will certainly lift up His hand in judgment if you reject His arms extended in mercy. The hymn writer is correct: "None need perish, all may live for Christ has died."

BLISS

AS I came up the path the curtains of the upstairs window parted. A little figure peeped. Mum remarked, "I'm afraid he is not tired, he had a nap earlier. He may come down." "Never mind," I said, "I shall cope." Mum and Dad disappeared round the corner, content to leave their treasure with me. Sinking into a comfortable chair, I felt quite relaxed when hesitant footsteps sounded on the stairs—Matthew coming to investigate. Speaking softly I said "I think that's my little boy coming down. It's all right darling."

Stopping just inside the lounge door, bare legs and tummy (it was a warm night) I could almost hear him thinking "Is she cross?". Still relaxed and smiling I opened my arms and said, "Come!" He ran, I cuddled him a bit, gently, sang about Jesus softly, held him tenderly. He could escape if he chose. What a precious bundle! He stroked my soft nylon dress and fumbled with my smooth brooch. I closed my eyes, head resting on the back of the chair. "Next move, my boy, from you!" Gradually he became noticeably heavier, eyelids flickered. He was asleep. Such a precious half hour. Jesus was there. Just for a few more moments we stayed like that, then wondering, "Could I carry him up those steep narrow stairs without dropping him?" Instinctively he flung his left arm round my neck and we made it. Into his cot he went, thumb in mouth. OBLIVION.

I became that little boy as I sat and mused, back in the armchair. I was hesitant, uncertain, apprehensive. I heard a voice say, "Come, rest" and with open arms He, the Lover of my soul, received me. He did not talk or chide me, because I had "Come down." His garments were wondrous fair. I touched them and oh the joy that filled my soul! No strain, complete relaxation, no need to say anything to Him. He knew. "Be still and know that I am God." Gradually everything adverse was blotted out; I leaned harder. We were oh so close! His little one and the eternal God. Matthew and I awoke to the normal. Did he forget? I did not.

Talking organs?

..talk to Roland Friday at Sharon

Nationwide churches choose Sharon Music for their new and second hand electronic organs because Sharon offers selection and service second to none.

Over 200 successfully completed installations prove that no church is too big, too small, nor too far away to be beyond the Sharon service.

Advice and delivery are absolutely free and we can offer special finance facilities tailor made to help any church purchase the instrument of its choice. With over 200 organs

always in stock Sharon have a selection second to none – and remember Hammond organs start at under £400.

So if you're talking organs – talk to the specialists – we're only a letter or telephone call away.

A unique opportunity...

With a current trend towards "automatic", and "easy play" features in so many organs the Hammond N100 has a welcome absence of such gimmickery and represents an ideal instrument for many churches.

The N100 produces adequate sound to fill most churches with a wide variety of tones and effects selected with simplicity of operation.

The famous Leslie Speaker completes a comprehensive specification.

At only £786 this Hammond is a fine and unique opportunity for your church to purchase a new organ through a special purchasing scheme available on this particular model. For full details send in the coupon or telephone Roland Friday on 0227 54848.

You can be a success

by H. W. Greenway

"All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works" (2 Timothy 3:16,17).

HUNDREDS of young men and women planning to make a career for themselves in business attend conferences and special commercial courses in order to carve out places for themselves in industry. They learn techniques of salesmanship designed to win and retain customers; study the requirements of High Street supermarketing; master problems of personality maladjustment in order to make friends and influence people; study whole ranges of human requirements to keep pace with competitors; and develop powerful motivation and deep inner conviction of success. Indeed, success is the master word of the day in which we live and people are coming to know that the ladder of success is not an escalator, but a climb requiring effort and determination.

If the thrill of business and the enthusiasm of doing the job on which he has set his sights fails to grip the student as he prepares for the future he will probably linger among the mediocre who drift in a state of semi-boredom. The great names on the world's honours' list are of those men and women who have worked out an objective for themselves and refused to accept defeat in reaching it.

The Christian is engaged in the most important enterprise in all Creation, one that calls for personal control and active labour with God. Just as the Master dedicated Himself to the work of redemption without flinching, so the disciple must set his face as a flint in the search for the "broken earthenware" of society. It is a job that demands stamina and zeal, but one that provides abundant satisfaction in the eternal results that accrue.

Our task may seem demanding and almost impossible of achievement were it not for the fact that the Almighty does not set before us unobtainable objectives. Paul once wrote, "I can do all things through (in) Christ which strengtheneth me" (Philippians 4:13). He was sure of himself within the orbit of God's plan for his life. "But I'm not Paul!" we are tempted to exclaim. Which, of course, is quite true. One has only to scan the religious collection of jaded church members to realise this. We are being overawed by the speed and exactitude of the computer with its flashing answers to the problems of our machine driven age. This should not, however, make us feel inferior, for the winking product of man's genius is really limited to the skill of the operator who feeds in the necessary information. There is no soul in a machine however cleverly it may be designed. As G. Rattray Taylor reminds us: "It has been estimated that, for a computer to have a memory rivalling man's, it would require an area of magnetic tape equal to the entire surface of the earth."

WE are more important in God's eyes, than our pessimistic broodings would have us believe, so important in fact, that God calls us into partnership with Himself: "We are labourers together with God" (1 Corinthians 3:9). It surely is time to stop denigrating ourselves and leaning on our physical imperfections for sympathy and an excuse to be just ordinary. Paul's boasting was not beyond the bounds of possibility when he used the words "all things". He was emphasising for our encouragement the area in which he would be irresistible for God — "in Christ". The preposition "in" is vitally important. The great apostle had discovered weakness when using his skill for selfish ends, but he had also learned that where the Lord wanted him, Christ gave the enabling for the most difficult of jobs.

In our urban restrictions we may not be called upon to perform the exacting ministry of Paul, not having a similar development of our mental faculties to write his epistles or the ability to preach with the same effect, but we have a place in Christ, and that is where we can be successful for God. We are not failures if we cannot play the piano like Paderewski or the violin like Paganini, or compose sonatas and symphonies like Beethoven, or paint like Michelangelo and Rubens, provided we can do simple jobs such as playing the organ at the local church or teaching a Sunday school class to walk in the way of the Lord, or on a more mundane level, if we can complete the ledgers of the firm correctly or tighten the nuts and bolts on the boss's car efficiently. A housewife is not a failure if she cannot scale Mount Everest provided she can make a good Yorkshire pudding for a hungry husband or a tasty Irish stew; she is as great a success in her sphere if she can balance the family budget in a period of escalating prices as the accountant who balances the firms books in a time of serious business competition.

We can do the things God wants us to do because He gives us the power to do them: He conditions us to the command. If we can grasp this fact we are already halfway to success. And that's how God intended it should be.

Now salesmen are taught to sell what people need and to believe that the commodity they offer is sufficient to meet that need. Surely the needs of our neighbours should stimulate us Christians to make every effort to meet that need. It is not enough to sing "Christ is the answer" or "The need of the world is Jesus," and then to abandon that world to its doom by doing nothing about its need. We have in the Gospel the remedy for all the world's ills. There is in the challenge something to get excited about. "It is good to be zealously affected always in a good thing" (Galatians 4:18). We hear a lot about high pressure salesmanship, and many of us feel diddled when goods do not come up to standards claimed by manufacturers in their catchy slogans. And here we are with the greatest offer ever made to a degenerate generation almost afraid to communicate the good news. How about getting a great deal more pressure into our activities, with fewer hesitations and more confidence in the power of the Holy Spirit?

When the Holy Spirit came to the disciples on the Day of Pentecost He filled "all" of them. There was no exclusive heirarchy in that group of 120. They were humble people. But when possessed of a new driving energy they became a people who were declared to have "turned the world upside down." We can achieve wonderful results as did the early apostles, for God is with us. The Holy Spirit is available to those who ask of the Father (Luke 11:13).

the key to the whole situation.

We must submit our lives in simple obedience to the will of God, take Him into our planning as the chief executor in our business enterprise. Archibald Brown, the famous preacher who built the East London Tabernacle, wrote a note in his Bible beside the decision of the Jerusalem Council recorded in Acts 15:28: "For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us." This was his marginal comment: "The senior partnership of the Holy Ghost." If we work within His plan so that the mind of Christ is directing us, there can be no possibility of failure.

It is not enough to put a shine in our eyes and leave the rest to the Almighty. There are principles of life that make for success and are consistent with scriptural teaching. We must begin the day in communion with God: "My voice shalt Thou hear in the morning, O Lord; In the morning will I direct my prayer unto Thee, And I will look up" (Psalm 5:3). Disraeli admonishes us to "Nurture your mind with great thoughts for you will never go higher than you think." If our mind is set at the right angle, catching the vision of our Father's love and care, we shall be able to face the outlook of the day with hopefulness and joy, in the optimism of the Psalmist: "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it" (Psalm 118:24). By starting the day with God in order to walk with Him through every human experience, our minds are inclined to the upward view of holiness, purity and victory. Bad thoughts make bad days and lead to defeat. Good thoughts are trusting and enthusiastic, creating a desire to become acceptable and well pleasing to God. Of Enoch it is written that "he had this testimony, that he pleased God", and he walked right on in that fellowship without the discontinuity of death to mar the association. Noah was "a just man and perfect in his generation" and "he walked with God." He saved his society from total annihilation. The wonder of man's creation is that he is capable of direct companionship with his Maker, and by knowing God is able to do mighty deeds of valour: "The people that do know their God shall be strong, and do exploits" (Daniel 11:32).

Carnal man recognises but one aspect of his makeup: the physical. Refusing to seek beyond the natural he is unable to perceive the wider ranges of spiritual life or recognise the purposes of God. Neglect of this channel of revelation results in a reprobate mind, or "depraved reason" to quote the New English Bible. Degraded behaviour patterns and subsequent judgment are the inevitable consequence: "Moreover, since they considered themselves too high and mighty to acknowledge God, He allowed them to become the slaves of their degenerate minds, and to perform unmentionable deeds. They became filled with wickedness, rottenness, greed and malice: their minds became steeped in envy, murder, quarrelsomeness, deceitfulness, and spite. They became whisperers-behind-doors, stabbers-in-the-back, God-haters; they overflowed with insolent pride and boastfulness, and their minds teemed with diabolical invention" (Romans 1:28-30, J. B. Phillips). Thus our anti-social acts spring from our rejection of the divine authority.

We become successful as we live near to God and walk daily with Him. Ours is not the profession of the super-spiritual who adopt an exalted attitude by assuming the role of critic and attain their eminence by climbing on the backs of simple folk lower down the social scale. Judas, the patron of all critics, betrayed his own mean character by his actions and pretended social conscience. His reproach that money devoted to the worship of Christ by a pious woman was wasted, and should have been put to more sympathetic use, was "based not on his love of the poor, but on the fact that he was a thief."

And what of the measure and extent of our dedication? Constancy is a virtue we do well to cultivate. The Christian race varies in pace with so many; at times they tear along like sprint runners pursued by a bull and at others crawl like a decrepit tortoise. They live in a mixed sensation of vociferous enthusiasm and despairing gloom, a temperamental liver providing an irregular progress between revival and reversal. It all depends how much we put into our spiritual experience. Andrew Carnegie once wrote: "The average person puts about twenty-five per cent of his ability into his life. The world takes off its hat to those who put in more than fifty per cent, and stands on its head for those few-and-far-between souls who devote one hundred per cent." It is the hundred per cent Christianity that turns the world upside down.

We are successful insofar as we know God and do His will. This the whole purpose and joy in life.

Children's Corner

A story that Jesus told

THE STORY of the pictures which appeared on June 22nd was that of "The Prodigal Son" found in Luke 15:11-32. Everybody who sent me a letter knew what the story was about and I was thrilled at your replies. It was so good to realise how many of you had read your Bibles and understood the meaning behind the story. I did ask you to tell me the meaning behind the final picture and here are some of your replies:-

Carol Kerr of Ballymena wrote—"This picture is really saying that no one can run away from God and if you do . . . He will keep on chasing you until He gets you back again".

Ruth Taggart, Angela Beaton and Anne McKechnie, from Belville Street Sunday School, Greenock wrote—"The final picture means we have wandered away from the family of God but He sent His Son to die on the cross for us and He welcomes us back with open arms".

Judith Millward of Kidderminster wrote: "The meaning of the final picture is that his father forgave him and they were reunited and so will God forgive anyone who repents, and through Christ's death on the cross we can be reunited with Him".

Terry Hilton of Canning Town wrote about Jesus standing at the door and knocking and if they open the door Jesus "will come into his house and give him the right to sit by Him on His throne".

Allen Carter of Hereford wrote: "The Father forgave the prodigal son, and Jesus died on the cross to forgive us our sins".

I also had a letter from Mr. R. Richards, Superintendent of the Sunday School in Weston-Super-Mare to say that Susan White, Betty White, Paul Smith, Pauline Smith, Lorraine Cross, Linda Cross, and Maxine Cross had identified the story and Susan wrote this for all of them, "The final picture means that his home was better than the outer world".

Very good replies came from Paul Copsey of Ilford—Alison Fogg, Karen Moss; and Caroline Foot of Portsmouth—Mary Krawec of Letchworth and Paul Elson of Jersey.

It was a splendid effort by all of you. Keep reading your Bibles and going to Sunday school so that you can learn more about Jesus and His love.

Uncle Archie

So you're worried about shortages

By DANIEL H. KELCHNER

THE ANCIENT MARINER drifting on the briny deep under a torturous noonday sun cried out in agony: "Water, water, everywhere, and not a drop to drink!"

The same complaint resounds in our day. The message hits us: shortages and coming shortages.

Mother complains of shortages at the supermarket. Dad complains of lessened fuel supplies, possible gas rationing, and rising costs. Grandparents remember sugar stamps, black markets, badly worn tires, and the lack of finery during the war years.

Who's to blame?

Merchants criticize the manufacturers for the shortages. Manufacturers search the world markets for raw materials to produce products for an ever-increasing demand. And the cry goes on and on, "More, more; we need more." We cannot accept the fact that we must adjust our way of living.

The children of Israel were no different during their wilderness journey from Egypt to Canaan. They complained against their leaders and against God for the lack of supplies. They went so far as to wish to be back in Egypt as slaves!

And yet when they had nothing to quench their craving thirst, God provided crystal clear water from a rock. When the people had no meat to eat, a wind from the Lord brought quails. When there was no bread, the Lord gave a daily supply of manna sufficient for each man's need.

Over the 40 years of long and rugged wilderness journeys they needed neither weaver's beam nor cobbler's bench, for God saw to it that their clothes and shoes didn't wear out!

The rugged prophet Elijah appeared in a time of shortage and despair. For a time he was fed by the ravens at the brook Cherith. But eventually the brook ceased its babbling, and Elijah had to look elsewhere for life-giving water and food. In that hour of desperate need the Lord sent him to a widow in Zarephath.

That woman had her own special problems of shortage. Elijah found her near the gates of the city gathering sticks. She had only a handful of meal and a meager supply of oil in a small cruse. With these she planned to make a small cake for her son and herself and then die. This was her only hope of release from the famine gripping the land.

Elijah asked her to fix him a cake first. When she did, she received a glorious miracle: the barrel of meal wasted not, neither did the cruse of oil fail during the time of shortages, according to the word of the Lord.

In every crisis situation, beyond the ugly blanket of despair there is always a ray of hope. Hope resounds across the pages of antiquity with beautiful words of comfort from the Master.

Words like: "Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. . . . And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin" (Matthew 6:25-28).

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matthew 6:33).

"Take no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself" (Matthew 6:34).

In the face of shortages and impending deprivation the Christian need not worry or despair. Your Heavenly Father knows just what you need. Trust Him. He will take care of you.

PRAYER AND PRAISE

by F. H. Coleman

MANY times I have been in a service of one kind or another in the Metropolitan Tabernacle, Elephant and Castle, London, perhaps better known as Spurgeon's Tabernacle. The old building was said to have seated 6,000 persons and it was filled regularly every Sunday for years. Charles Haddon Spurgeon preached and his gifted brother James Archer Spurgeon took over the affairs of the Church as well as the Preachers' College and Orphanage. What a wonderful and successful combination! I want to bring you something the great preacher wrote about the possibility of prayer.

"Prayer has many, many times brought opportune supplies and cleared away serious difficulties. I know that faith can fill a purse, provide a meal, change a hard heart, procure a site for a building, heal sickness, quiet insubordination and stay an epidemic. Like money in the worldling's hand, faith in the hand of the man of God "answereth all things". All things in heaven, and earth, and under the earth, answer to the command of prayer. Faith is not to be imitated by a quack, nor stimulated by a hypocrite, but where it is real and can grasp a divine promise with a firm grip, it is a great wonder-worker.

"I wish that my reader would so believe in God as to lean upon them in all the concerns of his life. This would bring him into a new world, and bring him to such confirmatory evidence as to the truth of our holy faith that he would laugh sceptics to scorn. Child-like faith in God provides sincere hearts with a practical prudence, which I am inclined to call sanctified common sense. The simple-minded believer though laughed at as an idiot, has a wisdom about him which cometh from above, and effectually baffles the cunning of the wicked. Nothing puzzles a malicious enemy like a straightforward unguardedness of an out-and-out believer".

Those were the words of the man called the prince of preachers. He has gone to his reward, but his God is the same and answers prayer.

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

THE NEW TESTAMENT records the well-known story of Peter walking on the sea (Matthew 14:22-33), and in it we have a picture of many people who have faith enough to take their first steps in following Christ, but not faith enough to carry on as they began. They look at the critics that surround them and the difficulties that seem to be in their way; they dwell on these more than on Jesus, and at once their Christian experience begins to sink.

When Peter began to sink I think that he must have exaggerated his peril, for the waves were just as high and the wind just as strong when Peter was walking on the sea as when he sank. Only when he became conscious of them did the trouble start. And we can easily exaggerate our peril and magnify our problems. The lesson for us is clear. If we become occupied with looking and feeling, instead of with God and His Word, then our faith will suffer.

One thing in Peter's favour; he did at least have the faith to get out of the boat. An old Italian proverb says, "For a web begun, God gives thread". Many times we stand back, afraid to step out on God's promises. But we do not tap the resources of God until we launch out in faith. God's promises are not "just for somebody else"; they are for YOU. In the strength of God's Word, and in spite of past failures, you need not be afraid to go boldly forward.

Book Review

Ideas for R.E. Specialists in Schools, by R. Pearce, published by Henry Walter Ltd., Worthing, Sussex, price £1.25, postage and packing 13p extra.

I ANTICIPATED an excellent book of thought-provoking ideas but, alas, was disappointed. The author fails to deal adequately with anything. Quite honestly I do not see the point in devoting three chapters to the technicalities of audio-visual aids. Mr. Pearce's book lists are far too extensive for the average teacher and many of them have little or nothing to do with the professed aim, ie. "to provide new ideas and to act as a handbook of information for putting these new ideas into operation". Certain ideas are first-class, but often the sources of suggested materials are vague, e.g. the John Wesley topic. Much of the material is suited to the "middle-class" child rather than those dealt with in Half-our-Future, ie. the child of average and less than average ability in Britain.

Sun Worship

ON the longest day of this year the first perfect sunrise for thirteen years was witnessed by a company of Druids and 5,000 spectators at Stonehenge on Salisbury Plain. Just before 5 a.m. on June 20th about 60 white-robed Druids completed their annual Summer Solstice ceremony and the traditional cry was shouted, "Arise O sun! Let the darkness of the night fade in the beams of thy glorious light." The sun came up over the horizon, orange at first and then blood-red, splendid and shining in a cloudless sky.

This pagan cathedral called Stonehenge, once a Celtic shrine, must have become dedicated to the worship of the sun. Built at the dawn of history and known even in ancient Crete, there is actually little evidence to link this monument with the Druids. Yet the sunworshipping ceremony continues year after year and all authorities agree that this ancient monument does represent an impressive example of religious belief in pre-historic Britain. As recently as 1966, the British astronomer Gerald Hawkins put forward a theory that Stonehenge was a kind of early computer erected to calculate the movements of the heavenly bodies.

In view of the obsession today with both astrology and astronomy and an even greater interest in ancient cults it is not surprising that so many people gather on that special day. In a society which has largely rejected Christianity the need for some form of religious belief and observance is shown very clearly by the upsurge of necromancy, satanism, ancient fertility rites, the interest in witchcraft and mysticism. In fact I begin to wonder if even the revival of some of the primitive customs, dances and crafts do not in a subtle way open the door to old superstitions long lost in antiquity. Of one thing I am certain, the old pagan religion of Babylon, the beliefs of primitive man, are not so deeply buried as we of the educated western world like to think.

When I read of the disgusting orgies held in Highgate cemetery, London, by the self-styled

President of the British Occult Society and of the establishment of a centre for research into black magic at a mansion on the banks of Loch Ness I begin to wonder. Where is it all going to end. Surely the trend is steadily downward. As Christian believers what should our attitude be to all this?

To begin with, the Bible forbids all worship of heavenly bodies, and, innocent as it may be, there is a suggestion that the Druid worship stems from the old religion of Babylon whose deities included sun and moon gods. The Bible also condemns and warns against all forms of idolatry, communication with the dead, demon worship and witchcraft. So we should warn whenever necessary against all these evils and joyfully point to One about whom Malachi prophesied, "Unto you that fear My name shall the Sun of Righteousness appear with healing in His wings" (Malachi 4:2).

We can excuse primitive man, in ignorance worshipping the Sun as the source of natural life on this earth, but there is a greater knowledge and revelation to be received. The Lord Jesus told His disciples and His critics, "I am the Light of the world, He that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness but shall have the light of life" (John 8:12). He is the true and only Light and source of life; may we all worship Him.

Light of the world, Thy beams I bless;
On Thee, bright Sun of Righteousness,
My faith hath fixed its eye;
Guided by Thee, through all I go,
Nor fear the ruin spread below,
For Thou art always nigh.

CHURCH REPORT

LONG EATON

Pastor: R.L. Currie

MARCHING on with banners bright unfurled. So began our Sunday school anniversary with a march of witness through the streets of Long Eaton. At the afternoon and evening services the forty scholars proclaimed "Jesus-The One Way" in song and recitation. The Primary department told us the significance of the C-R-O-S-S and sang in their own delightful and inimitable way. The branch Sunday school held their anniversary the following week, also preceded by a march of witness around the estate on which the Sunday school is held. On each occasion the closing message was given to children and parents and we praise God for another opportunity of witness and testimony, praying that it might be said, "... a little child shall lead them."

He's not preaching at me tonight

by W. Dunn, Pastor of our Bishop Auckland Church

A VERSE of Scripture so often used by the evangelists or Christian worker and in fact the Holy Spirit Himself, in bringing a lost sinner to the feet of the Saviour is Hebrews 2:3, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?". Perhaps we have quoted this verse to someone ourselves in the hope that the Holy Spirit will take this portion of His Word as a sword to pierce their heart and awaken their conscience. If this is all we can see that this verse is useful for, how, spiritually blind we are. This portion of God's Word was given for the saint rather than the sinner; it was penned for the Church rather than the world, for notice how the writer to the Hebrews uses the plural "we": "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation". It is a letter written to Christians by a Christian. Although this is a word for the Church, the world will receive benefit and blessing if we, the Church, will obey the Word and do not neglect telling others about this great salvation.

It has been said that neglect is the cause of most of the woes of mankind! Our intentions are so fine; our resolves are so high. Tomorrow we will do such great things. Alas, too often we neglect them and never do what we planned; remember tomorrow never comes.

How many there are about us going to Hell because we Christians have neglected them. Dr. R. A. Torrey tells of how a Christian worker in one of his great campaigns felt impressed to ask the waiter who served him in a restaurant about his soul and to tell him of the way of salvation; he was deeply stirred, but was too timid; and did not follow the leading of the Holy Spirit. He ate his meal, paid his bill and went away, but the deep impression on his heart would not leave. He returned to the restaurant a little later and asked to see the waiter who had served him. The proprietor said "I'm sorry but you are too late, after he served your meal he went in the back room and shot himself". There are possibly tens of thousands who might be kept from suicide, or from horrible crimes, and even kept from Hell itself. If God has laid someone upon our hearts, and has made us watchmen unto them Ezekiel 33:7-9, let us not rest until we have warned them, nor neglect any opportunity which may soon pass. We must let them know that they must turn to Jesus Christ.

I can remember during my training at the Elim Bible College an incident that happened to one of the girl students. It challenged me. A party of our students went to a gospel concert not far from the college, where, at the conclusion, some of the students went forward to assist in counselling those who had indicated their desire to receive Jesus Christ as their Saviour. One of the girl students counselled a young lady and led her in assurance to her Saviour whom she loved, Jesus Christ. After the counselling every one dispersed to their homes or back to the college. About two weeks later word was received concerning this young girl who had been converted. She had met with an accident and was killed, a young life taken from this scene of time. Because someone took time and did not neglect to tell her the story of Jesus she went out prepared to meet God.

There are countless opportunities presented to us to win souls for Christ. The world is looking for an answer and all the time Jesus is standing and saying, "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life." Yes, He is the way out of sin and sorrow, the truth that the world needs and the life it is seeking. No wonder the apostle Paul said, in writing his letter to the Romans, "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" (Romans 1:16). How shall we escape having to look into the face of Jesus our Lord knowing that we have neglected to make God's great salvation known to others? An old Spanish proverb says, "The road of by and by leads to the house of never". We must determine in our hearts and minds to walk hand in hand with God, being doers of His Word and not mere readers or hearers only, if we long to hear Him say "Well done, thou good and faithful servant" (Matthew 25:21,23). Do not put off until tomorrow what the Saviour would have you do today.

Hebrews 10:11-25

"Having, therefore, boldness . . . to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, by a new and living way . . . through the veil . . . his flesh . . . let us draw near" (v.19).

In the Tabernacle a veil was placed before the Holy of Holies to prevent man from entering into the presence of God. The Temple, later, had a similar veil. One day, as the priest was sprinkling the blood before the veil, an enactment of atonement for the sins of the Israelites, Jesus was shedding His blood in actual sacrifice for the transgressions of all men. At this moment, before the astonished priests, God rent the veil in two. Now there is nothing to prevent us from entering into the presence of God without fear, knowing assuredly that he will receive us because we have been sprinkled with the blood of his own Son.

"The just shall live by faith" (v.38).

How easy it is to testify to the many blessings we have received after simply trusting God for our needs. And how well these joyous accounts are received; it is an additional blessing. But what about the times when we trusted God to renew our strength but our physical weakness prevailed, when the thorn was not removed, or our sincerest prayer was seemingly unanswered? Do we testify to these things? How are they received? When our faith is weak God seems to tarry - is it not because he desires to strengthen our faith? It is easy to live by faith when all goes well, but the deeper faith is that which perseveres in the most difficult times.

Hebrews 11:1-7

"Enoch pleased God. But without faith it is impossible to please Him . . . believe that He is and that he is a rewarder . . ." (v.5,6).

Faith is the confident though unseen assurance that what we hope for must come to pass. Why should it? Because we only hope for what God has said will happen. What God says always occurs. God framed the worlds with a word. "God said," is recurrently followed by, "and it was so." Adam disbelieved God; Abram believed God; in both cases God's Word was fulfilled. God's Word always will be, whether we believe it or not. When we trust God's Word we act accordingly, and this pleases God, and what follows is good for us.

Thursday, August 1st

"By faith Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Isaac . . . his only begotten son" (v.17).

Imagine Abraham's feelings when God asked him to sacrifice his only son. Isaac was more truly God's offspring than Abraham's own, for he had been born when Abraham was very old. God's plan was to produce a mighty nation from him. To sacrifice Isaac now meant the end of God's promises. It didn't make sense! But these weren't Abraham's feelings, though they might well have been ours in his situation. Abraham immediately agreed and prepared to worship, believing that God would raise up Isaac from death. Isaac had been born for God's purposes not Abraham's satisfaction. This willingness to let God have all our earthly hopes and pleasures is true worship; unquestioning faith that brings unspeakable joy.

"By faith Moses . . . refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter . . . choosing . . . affliction with the people of God" (v.24).

Moses and Exodus are inseparable. He first left his birthplace for a floating cradle. In this he had no choice, but it set the pattern for his life. He denied himself the luxury of Pharaoh's palace for the humble existence of God's chosen people. Forty years later he left the quiet, peaceful life of a shepherd, which he enjoyed, to answer God's call to lead his people. The exodus from Egypt and many other places followed, but always in obedience to God's will rather than his own desire. Only a man so self-denying and faithful could effect a nation's deliverance. Jesus called for faith and self-denial from those He set free.

Saturday, August 3rd

Hebrews 11:32-40

"These all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise" (v.39).

Having mentioned many of the best-known leaders of the Children of Israel, whom God had chosen because of their great faith, the writer goes on to include in this roll of honour the many whose names are unknown or insignificant. Without any of the fame or glory of the great men and women of old, they endured unimagineable cruelties at the hands of their sadistic enemies and remained faithful to their God even unto death. By their lives they were entitled to enjoy God's promises, but they received only the shadow not the substance. Yet it was through these horrible experiences that their faith was strengthened to perfection. How much greater will be their final reward!

Two pieces of paper

by O. G. Miles

MANY years ago while opening my morning mail, I came across a very unpleasant letter. It read, "Dear Sir, If your water rate is not paid within seven days, the water supply to your premises will be cut off". What an offensive piece of paper! I was amazed. I could scarcely believe my own eyes. Here was a slight on my character. I was failing badly in my duty as a good citizen. I was being exposed clearly and unmistakably as a defaulter. None of my other letters seemed to interest me that morning. I looked once again at the envelope addressed to "The Rev. O. G. Miles", then I thought of its horrible contents. The two were inconsistent. It was as though a great black cloud had suddenly fallen upon all my efforts to serve and please God. I took the letter to my good wife; I felt sure she would understand and perhaps have an explanation. She read the letter carefully, then looking quite disappointed said, "Well, just imagine, you a minister of religion and you haven't paid the water rate".

Do you know, I felt worse than ever.

I hurried upstairs to my study, opened the bottom drawer of my desk; took out a pile of musty receipts and spent a long time studiously foraging through the bundle. I was hoping against hope that I should find a second piece of paper which would lift my burden.

Then at last — O joy of joys — there it was, the official receipt I wanted so badly. There was no doubt about it; the dates coincided. The numbers on the account and on the receipt were identical. The same amount of cash was clearly marked on each. I could have danced for joy. All my worries had instantly flown out of the window. In one hand I held a piece of paper that was an accusation against my integrity and was casting a shadow over my life; in the other hand I held a piece of paper which completely torpedoed the accusation and exonerated me from all fault or blame.

Feeling as bold as a lion, I placed the precious receipt safely in my inner coat pocket. Carrying the offending document in my hand, I made the journey to our local rate office. Full of courage, I presented the accusation to a middle-aged gentleman and demanded to know what it meant. He read the letter, looked at me rather suspiciously, then leaned forward and said to me very quietly, "It means, Sir, you haven't paid your water rate. I would advise you to pay it quickly or there could be serious consequen-ences". I was quite unmoved. I thought of that receipt safely tucked away in my pocket and feeling what a cat must feel like when playing with a mouse, I replied, "But don't you think you've made a mistake?". At this the gentleman leaned even further forward and said with a great deal of assurance, "Sir, we don't send out this kind of letter when the account has been paid". With a twinkle in my eye, I then produced the receipt.

The good man couldn't believe his eyes. There was a hurried conference, a checking of books and I received a most profuse apology and was assured it was a mistake and would not happen again.

Some years later when God reminded me of this incident and applied it to my life.

I had been passing through a difficult time — that old arch-enemy Satan, who the Bible calls "the accuser of the brethren" (Revelation 12:10) had been sending his fiery darts in my direction. He often comes to the people of God with insinuations of doubt and discouragement. In a thousand ways he will persistently seek to accuse and crush the true disciple until we feel we shall never be able to lift up our heads again. Satan loves to display before us an account of our many failures.

But let me tell you that there is another precious record safely stored up in the cabinet of God's holy word; a glorious irrefutable receipt which will tell you that the work of redemption has been eternally finished and will completely cancel out every charge Satan may make against us.

Every debt incurred has been fully paid by our Saviour. "He has paid our debt and set us free".

"Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect? Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather, that is risen again, . . . who ever maketh intercession for us". (Romans 8:33,34).

Trees which survive on the windward side of a mountain in their sapling stage against the buffeting of storms and tempests grow stronger and with a finer grain than the sheltered trees on the leeward side. Only those that withstand the raging elements are chosen for the most precious work. So it is with the soul that patiently endures the chastening of the Lord. Chastening is not pleasant, but, if it is borne because it is seen to be sent only to those whom the Lord loves, it produces a quality of character which the Lord needs for his greatest purposes. Because Paul gloried in his tribulations he was fit to be powerfully and mightily used of the Lord.

SOME editors of secular newspapers have made a reputation for themselves by sheer nerve. Others have pandered to popular demands so that truth and honesty have found little place in their columns where party considerations have been considered more important.

The Editor of a Christian magazine has, we think, a special responsibility; on the one hand it is all too easy to seize upon an issue that is only of passing interest and to magnify this out of all proportion. It is also far too easy to ride upon one's own hobby horse.

The story is told of the former Archbishop of York, Doctor Cyril Foster Garbett. A young newspaper reporter on a fairly ordinary assignment was to interview the Archbishop a few days before an important Church conference. Just before he was ushered in for his audience, the young man was informed that the Archbishop was going to say something very special to the Conference. After a few preliminary remarks, the young man said, rather casually, "I understand, my Lord, that you are going to speak on a very important matter at this Conference. Would you care to tell me what your subject will be?"

It has not been unknown in the past for Church dignitaries to speak out on a wide variety of subjects from the bomb to euthanasia to name but a few issues.

"Yes, you are quite correct", said the Archbishop, "I am going to speak on a very important subject young man". "What is that?", the reporter asked, pencil poised. "I am going to speak on the love of God", said the Archbishop. The reporter nearly dropped his pen. Closing his book he beat a hasty retreat with a final remark, "That's not news, that's history".

In a world where words like vandalism, hijacking, confrontation and assassination are heard all too frequently, we must remember that while it is right to comment upon such issues from time to time, priority must be given to the proclamation of the good news of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons. Father. Son and Holy Ghost. and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

HALIFAX

Pastor: T.J. Stevens

IN THE week following the induction of Pastor Tom Stevens, a children's campaign was launched with Pastor Peter Sanderson of Kingston. This took place in the premises at Ovenden where we have a growing branch Sunday School. The campaign proved to be very successful with more attending each succeeding night. Numbers grew so much that we had to ask for permission to use the adjoining Ballroom; this was granted to us at no extra cost! On the last night, 135 children were present. Altogether there were some 200 children who attended the meetings.

EDINBURGH

Pastor: B.J. Hayes

THE WEEKEND of celebrations marking the anniversary of the opening of THE CITY TEMPLE was a great time of rejoicing and thanksgiving. On Saturday evening a crowded church witnessed the baptism in water of five believers from Alloa Elim Church and seven from Edinburgh. It was thrilling to share this service with the friends from Alloa and to rejoice in God's goodness to them under the ministry of their pastor. Every testimony showed the power of God's love and grace in conversion, and the preaching of the Word of God by Pastor Ken Legg was clear, forthright and challenging.

Sunday continued the praise and thanksgiving. "The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad" was the message. What had seemed impossible just one year ago, has happened—Elim opened The City Temple. "This is the Lord's doing; it is marvellous in our eyes", was the theme on this day of thanksgiving because the impossible continues to occur. In three and a half years up to May 1973 commencing with no resources, a small meeting hall had been renovated, a manse purchased, then the hall sold, and a new church purchased in the centre of Edinburgh. One year after the opening, the congregation, the number of young people, and the offerings have all more than doubled. Better still, the individual christians have grown spiritually.

Our vision of the City Temple as a centre of evangelism and pentecostal testimony is coming true! Thrilling evidence of this has been the baptism of 22 believers in the past year. Evangelism conducted through films such as 'The Return', 'The Occult', 'The Sound of the Trumpet' and 'His Land' has been very effective. The Scottish Premiere of 'The Cross and the Switchblade' sponsored by the City Temple was a sell out, nearly 2,000 seeing the film over two nights. The church itself was packed out for the Scottish Presbyterian rallies in April and the congregation drank in the messages from Pastor John Lancaster. The church was enthralled by the inimitable ministry of Pastor George Tarleton and responded to his encouragement to be more free in worship. Pastors Corsie and Woodfield spent memorable times speaking here! The Young People's Fellowship has grown in one year from twenty to a regular Tuesday night attendance of between forty and fifty and the majority of Sunday evening congregations are often young people. Early this year twenty-five young people paid their own expenses for a trip to Bridgend in South Wales for a weekend of work and witness. A Day Nursery has been opened in the church premises and this is expected to be an effective means of evangelism.

a great year! But next year is going to be fuller, busier, better and more effective. For a start there is a huge basement to develop into a centre for youth evangelism and more outreaches planned throughout the next year. Watch Out For This Space In One Year's Time

Pastor: Len Magee

"ALL THINGS work together for good to those who love God . . ." seems an apt quotation to describe the service that marked the second anniversary of Pastor Len Magee's ministry here. While nothing was pre-arranged for this occasion there was undeniably something special about it. Pastor John Ritter and his wife Sue, and her sister Jean were our visitors. Sue, who writes a column in the magazine Buzz, gave a most excellent testimony of her conversion and Jean sang some spiritual songs to her own guitar accompaniment. These were of real worth, with a touch of the anointing of God, especially the piece "He died on the tree, it should have been me . . ." There were a good number present, several on first visits. We especially appreciated the clear Gospel message preached by Pastor John Ritter who spoke with directness and power under the anointing of the Holy Spirit. One young man was counselled for salvation for which we praise God!

A presentation was made to Pastor Len Magee on behalf of members and friends of the Church, as a token of their love for him and for his ministry over the past two years, with the desire for its continuance under the Lord's good hand.

THERE have been a number of baptismal services at Grangetown Elim Church this year as the Lord has convicted people of their need to obey His command to be baptised in water.

The photograph below shows two girls who have been recently saved and were baptised by Pastor A. Hawkes after testifying to their faith in Jesus. We praise the Lord for His saving power.

IT WAS indeed a pleasure to welcome Pastor and Mrs. C. Gornold Smith for a short series of talks on "The Bible and the Middle East". Other subjects included Bible predictions relating to the Israel and Arab conflicts, Life in Palestine, and of course, the Second coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

It was very soon evident, that here was a man, whose ability, and sincerity were beyond doubt. These talks were made still more interesting with the use of many brilliant slides, together with a very helpful commentary. This series was a stimulating tonic, much needed in these last days, not only to keep us in step with events, but to strengthen the faith of the saints. We were blessed, enriched, and enlightened through this series at which the attendances were very good.

We are happy to report the continued progress of the work here, in many, and varied ways, with every department active in their different spheres of labour. We appreciate the continued efforts of our Pastor and his wife, and their zeal for the furtherance of the Gospel. We give thanks to God, Hallelujah!

'BUSINESS as usual', would be a fitting slogan to describe the indomitable spirit of Ulster folk, especially in these days. This can certainly be applied to the congregation at the Elim Church at Armagh.

Quite recently the Church building narrowly escaped becoming a heap of rubble and cinders. The Church Secretary was awakened by the police at two o'clock in the morning and warned "your Church may be burned out". On arrival he saw the building enveloped in a raging inferno, as a result of a fire in the adjoining warehouse, which was in fact totally destroyed. Entering the smoke-filled church, where the flames were now licking the side wall and roof, he cried unto the Lord, "Lord save the Church" — and He did. In an amazingly short space of time the fire was under control. The only damage sustained being cracked plaster and a broken window.

At that time we were without a minister for a short period. The comment made at the time was "We had a church with no minister, now we nearly had a minister with no church". However, we praise God that now within three weeks of the event Pastor Ken Phillips has been inducted, and we can say we're still in business for God and the saving of souls from the fires of coming judgement.

N.B. This is the third time we have narrowly escaped being destroyed.

C.B. McMULLEN, Secretary.

ROTHERHAM

Pastor: P. Smith

WE WERE visited recently by the Goodwin Trio, two sisters and a brother, from Ontario, Canada. Judy, Linda and Jo brought to us the gospel in song and it was a joy to hear them sing of their faith and trust in Jesus and to testify to the saving, guiding and keeping power of their Lord. Both meetings were conducted by Brian Taylor from our Huddersfield church, who delivered two challenging sermons. Our prayers go with the Goodwins that the Lord will greatly bless them and use their singing ministry for His glory.

Two weeks later, our three Sunday Schools held a special weekend. On Saturday two coaches took the children and parents to Matlock Park for the afternoon where games and competitions were organised. On Sunday evening the church service was taken by the Sunday Schools. "What shall I Be?" was the theme for the evening and a good number of items in word and song were presented by the children. Pastor Peter Smith, in his message, asked the question "What is your life?" (James 4:14) and with the aid of a collection of aerosol containers he reminded us that our lives are like a vapour which quickly passes away; now is the time to make certain we are right with God.

A.T. CLARKE

The other wing

by O. G. Miles

IN THE early years of my ministry in Leeds, at the close of one of my meetings, a dear Christian lady approached me in a depressed condition. She had been passing through a series of what seemed to be unending trials. We often say, "it never rains unless it pours", and sometimes, as we seek to follow the Lord, trouble appears to follow trouble until we are tempted to wonder if it will ever end. The complaint of this good sister was the apparent disregard of God to her many petitions. In a despondent and almost aggrieved way, she told me that she had prayed and prayed and nothing had happened. There had been no easing of her burden; there was no rift in the dark cloud. She felt that God had forgotten her and that He didn't answer her prayers anyway. After she had unburdened her heart at some length, I said to her, "Well now, my good friend, supposing you go home and try using the other wing". "The other wing?" she queried. "Yes", said I, "have you ever seen a bird trying to fly with one wing? It never soars into the heavens. The injured bird cannot get off the ground. You need two wings to fly". God has given us, not only the wing of prayer, but also the wing of praise. We need them both if we would enter into the glorious liberty of the children of God.

The Bible tells us that Paul and Silas had a season of intense trial, when they had every reason to complain and feel depressed. Although they were faithful God-fearing men, trouble came to them in greater measure than we have ever known. We read, "the multitude rose up against them . . . they were beaten with many stripes . . . they were thrust into the inner prison and their feet were made fast in the stocks". What a predicament they were in. It was enough to cast them down in the depths of despair. Yet in the darkest hour of midnight, with sore and bleeding backs, do you know what these two saints of God did? The Bible says, "Paul and Silas prayed": that was one wing; and "sang praises to God so loudly, that all the other prisoners heard them": that was the other wing. Then, do you know dear reader, as Paul and Silas used the two wings of prayer and praise; they soared away into a glorious life of victory and emancipation from every bit of bondage. God intervened in an amazing way. He sent a great earthquake, so that even the foundations of the prison were shaken and immediately all the doors in the prison were opened and not only were Paul and Silas set at liberty, but every man's bonds were loosed. Everybody was set free and furthermore, the keeper of the prison cried out for salvation and both he and his house believed on the Lord Jesus Christ and were baptised. It is amazing what can happen when the people of God not only sincerely pray, but also praise and magnify the Name of the Lord and rejoice in Him.

"Now", I instructed my inquirer, "you have been using the wing of prayer and you have not found deliverance. Go home and use the other wing. Begin to praise and bless the Name of God. Sing the songs of Zion until others hear you and join with you in exalting Jesus. Use the other wing Sister, use the other wing". The lady was amazed. She hadn't expected anything like this, and she protested, "but Pastor it hasn't happened yet". She thought she ought not to begin to praise the Lord until the victory had come. I urged her to claim the victory by faith and to so believe God that she might immediately be able to praise the Lord for His unchangeable and unfailing faithfulness.

Did not Jesus encourage us in circumstances like this, when He said, "Believe, trust and be confident that it is granted unto you, and you will get it?" (Mark 11:24. Amplified N.T.) A day or two later when I arrived at the Church to conduct my Bible study, I found this same lady waiting for me in my vestry. With a beaming face, she almost danced with joy and said, "Oh Pastor, it works, it works". I was somewhat puzzled. I had quite forgotten about the former interview, and I said to her, "What works?". She replied, "the other wing, the other wing, it works. I've been praising as well as praying and I'm free". And obviously she was. "God has answered my prayer", she said, "the burden has gone; I've got the victory". We bowed our heads together in thanksgiving, saying, "Bless the Lord, O my soul: and all that is within me, bless His Holy Name". (Psalm 103:1). This was a wonderful tonic at the outset of our Bible study, for soon the whole congregation was rejoicing with the one who had been so blessedly delivered.

Dear reader, never forget to praise the Lord, not only when you feel like it, but also when you don't feel like it. Have you ever read of "the sacrifice of praise?" (Psalm 116:17). It is not only true that prayer changes things; a heart overflowing with praise to God will also rout the enemy. "Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord. Praise ye the Lord". (Psalm 150:6).

POWER

by Peter McCann, Rhodesia

HIROSHIMA, 1945. A lone bomber drones in the distance; the people scan the skies, curious. Why is only one plane to be heard? Routine prevails; the people jostle their way to the air-raid shelters, inwardly cursing the pilot who is causing them such inconvenience. The plane carries a single bomb — a special bomb, the pride of modern technology. . . and hell visited Hiroshima that day. The first Atomic Bomb had been dropped and, together with its ugly sister dropped on Nagasaki, it battered the pride and industry of Japan into scarred, shattered submission.

Today this is history. The atom bomb has given way to the far-more destructive hydrogen bomb, and new words such as megakill or overkill have entered military jargon. Man stands on the brink of a fiery hell; like it or not, he has entered the Age of Power.

POWER. The age of power is the age of technology. And let's not decry the benefits of this age — rapid transport, global communications, better living conditions have all grown from the seeds of progress. Yet in the wake of progress we have the "energy crisis". Power demand outstrips supply; technology looks with dismay at dwindling resources, and tries desperately to harness new power-sources — wind, water, sun, and even atomic power; and with a very definite sellers' market on power, prices spiral disastrously and nations grovel indecently for oil-soaked crumbs.

And the last word of science is grim. Let man find new resources, let him solve his problems for an eternity on earth — and ultimately the universe itself will run out of steam and grind to a halt. Perhaps, then, man should forget the future and look at the present — what of power, or authority, in the hands of our world rulers?

The Power Game. "Power corrupts, absolute power corrupts absolutely". How true this: many a good man has sacrificed his personal integrity to the claims of diplomacy. On a national scale, traditional friends have become enemies as a result of international pressures; suspicion has overborne trust as the code of diplomacy; and with world war a grim, fearful proposition, we have the grim spectre of "cold war" to make this planet into a giant chess-board. And where is this leading us? The human power game resolves itself into a number of hellish expedients towards which mankind is rushing like a generation of suicidal lemmings. The last word again is near-hopelessness itself. How fortunate, then, that the last word in human wisdom and power does not rule over the whole destiny of man!

"All power is given unto Me". These words would, on the lips of any man in history, speak of an intolerable arrogance. Yet there is a dignity in the words of Christ that precludes arrogance — and indeed that precludes any human response other than worship, or rejection, of Him. Our Lord has all power and all authority, as befits One who upholds the entire material universe; and His power is inexhaustible, His authority incorruptible.

The inexhaustible Power. The idea of absolute power is beyond our comprehension. Yet is it so strange that the One Who by a word brought the universe into existence, Who created all things and made man a spiritual creature, Who created power and the laws that govern it — that He himself is beyond the pale of those laws? Jesus made no idle claim when He spoke; His power is all-supreme in all creation.

The incorruptible Power. God spoke the word, and the universe and all in it came into existence — and everything was scrutinised and approved as good. God did not, would not — indeed, He could not — use His great power in the service of evil. Those were great days, when man and God walked together in unbroken fellowship and communion and evil was unknown. Then came the destroyer, Satan — evil entered the world; and man can only ponder on the completeness of his fall from grace. Man may blame God for evil happenings; but how can he blame the Creator of good for the evil fruits of his own folly? (Genesis 3:17-18).

Yet God has not abandoned His creation. That inexhaustible, incorruptible power of God is still at work to uphold the decaying universe (Hebrews 1:3a). God allowed His power to be created in the form of Perfect Man — the Son of God in His entirety. And man did his worst: he rejected Him as not one with himself; he crucified Him because His very nature of purity exposed in stark relief the sinfulness and selfishness of man. Man did his worst – yet God's power prevailed for man's salvation (Romans 1:16; 1 Corinthians 1:23-24).

The wonderful power of Christ. What a comfort it must have been to His disciples, who had seen Christ nailed to a cross, and were now to see Him, after leaving them with the Great Commission on Evangelism, raised into heaven, to hear Jesus utter His declaration of authority. And what a comfort it is even today, as man wrestles with repeated crises, to recognise the truth of these words and know that he does not fight alone.

Satan may be the prince of the power of the air – but the infinitely greater power of Christ reigns supreme in the heart of the true believer. His power saves, justifies, reconciles and gives us the power to call ourselves sons of God (John 1:11-13) – and there never will be an energy crisis! It may be a truism to say that power is useless unless exploited, but so few in the world today “plug in” to God through prayer and draw upon His power. He who has power to save and power to keep His own, has power to do all things in this world – do we have the faith to be vessels of that power?

About our Missionary Convention

by L. Wigglesworth

HAVE YOU ever shared in a Missionary Convention? The Missionary Council set aside a week each September so that missionaries and workers can meet in a house-party atmosphere to keep ‘au fait’ with the world scene and to enjoy the spiritual delights gained from the daily Bible Readings. Each morning devotions prepare the company for a day of invaluable discussion on missionary topics. The volume of information is too good to be missed by missionary secretaries and treasurers who may be able to join the convention. This is the time when, in such a relaxed gathering the unhurried inquiry into, and treatment of missionary matters can inform the mind, and deal with questions concerning missionary work and home support.

It is hoped that District Missionary Secretaries, local missionary workers, and Prayer Partners will be encouraged by Churches and Presbyteries to participate in the Convention.

The Centre chosen for this year is Slavanka, Bournemouth. This is very near the sea and periods of the day are set aside for the enjoyment of the seaside relaxation. The very comfortable accommodation is ideal for our purposes and in the context of seaside prices, Slavanka is very reasonable.

Each evening our missionaries and missionary candidates take over and our attention is directed to specific fields and needs. The immediate and unhurried contact with our overseas representatives is better even than a visit to a church, when time and transport curtail the brief sight of someone we have supported through the years.

So why not have a week with us in Bournemouth? Apart from the physical benefits, the spiritual uplift is wonderful, and the information missionarywise is prolific.

Date: Saturday 21–Saturday 28 September.

Place: Slavanka, 42, Belle Vue Road, Southbourne, BOURNEMOUTH BH6 3DS.

ANOTHER SLANT

by Ken Smith,
Pastor of our Erdington, Birmingham, Church

WHAT a contrast in one week! As I was interviewing in the Black Country, continuing the survey among elderly people for Age Concern, having a soul concern too, I was able to attend two services which showed to me the difference that the Pentecostal experience can make in an assembly.

I went with Pastor Terry Jacobs to a Baptist Church, where he had been invited by the minister to speak on the Baptism in the Holy Spirit, and I also was invited to speak on the subject. One Baptist diehard, in a typical Black Country accent, said that in fifty years he had not heard any of their ministers talk about this experience, and that had it been in the Bible they would have preached about it. He was adamant on the point, and obviously very Baptist (as we are), for we equally were convinced on the point of believers' baptism.

I asked him to confirm his Baptist convictions, which he did of course. Then I pointed out the possibility of a Baptist preacher being invited to a Methodist or Anglican Church to speak specifically on believers' baptism by total immersion, as had been the case concerning the Pentecostal experience that night. "I've been in this Methodist Church for over fifty years, and the preachers have never told us this teaching. Had it been right and proper doctrine they would have told us so". "What would you say?" I challenged, and of course he admitted that the Bible taught the Baptist doctrine; touche! he had been "hoist with his own petard", for I pointed out that for nearly an hour the Bible had been used as the text-book for teaching on the Baptism in the Holy Spirit. I added the old Puritan saying that "God hath yet more light and truth to break forth from His holy Word". I felt that I had won the argument, but whether I had won the man was in some doubt, though he had plenty to think about, of course.

There were about seven or eight at that meeting, and it seemed obvious to me that although the Baptist minister himself had received the Pentecostal experience, his people were having none of it. The only situation worse would be a Pentecostal Church where there was no desire for the Pentecostal experience, and one has known of such Churches from time to time. Of course we may not say so, and affirm our belief in the words of the Anglican Creed, "I believe in the Holy Ghost", and leave it at that. Believing and receiving are two different matters, though one ought to lead to the other.

The week after, I had been out interviewing for the afternoon, and as I knew the pastor of the local Pentecostal Church I was delighted to see that the weekly Bible study was that night. To my joy it was an exposition of Acts chapter two, in a series on that book. There were well over 120 in that service a normal number I was assured, and not by the minister either. The message had life in it, and after an hour's ministry, with a hymn at half-time, not to relieve the monotony, but our seats, there was a time of seeking the Lord, with the exercise of spiritual gifts. To me it was like water in a desert to see such a crowd at a Bible Study, the climax being the time of praise, and I could not help contrasting it with the week before with its critical dissection of the Pentecostal experience. It was not an Elim assembly, but nonetheless how grand it was to go, unknown, and enjoy Pentecostal ministry and fellowship in the Spirit.

Returning home through the underpasses in Birmingham I realised the need of His Hand upon us, for to my amazement coming on the fast lane on which I was travelling, in the opposite direction in the tunnel

BIBLE ACROSTICS

MARK

Messenger (1:2; Malachi 3:1);

Anger (3:5);

Ruler over elements (4:41);

Kindness (6:56);

was another car! I would hardly credit it, but it happened, and I was only able to swerve on to the inside lane to avoid an eighty mile per hour crash, considering both our speeds. Having had road accidents you don't look for them. I felt that we ought to uphold our ministers who travel all over the country on the Lord's work in this matter. "In perils oft" has a more modern interpretation in these days of the infernal! combustion engine! Yet what would we do without them? Yet I and many another preacher I am sure, have prayed for the car, or more likely patience to live with it.

The survey among the elderly proved pathetic in the main. Nothing in life to look forward to, seemed true in almost all cases, even with those who were comfortably off; yet how lovely to be able to tell them of Jesus and His love.

I was able to give the pastor of the Pentecostal Church a number of addresses to contact, and in witnessing at one house found they attended his assembly. The loneliness and boredom of some older people is to be seen to be believed, and it seemed to me to be connected with one's attitude to life, and a matter of intelligence. I found that working class widows on council housing estates seemed the most pathetic, with bingo, baccy, and beer, in that order as their crumbs of comfort. How pathetic! If only they had known

Jesus in life, to give it purpose and meaning.

I thought of all this when hearing our President, George Canty, at the Evangelistic Conference at Coventry. He said that it was sufficient for him to consider what Christ saves a man from in this life, to give him a desire for souls, and I took his point. To some of our older friends, now retired, can I suggest that you prayerfully get some well-chosen tracts, and go, as an older person, visiting the elderly in your area. You are the one to do it, for they are your age and generation, and it will fill your life with purpose, so that you are not ensnared with boredom. You will drink innumerable cups of tea, be bored with all sorts of trivialities, to you may be, but not to them, and yet in it all you will be serving the Lord as you give a word in season. Some, very few, will refuse you entrance, but more likely you will be accepted like a man in a desert would accept a drink of cold water. I met one poor soul who had not spoken to anyone for over five weeks! and she loved Jesus. How pathetic it all is. Don't start by asking if they are saved, but pointing your concern over elderly people, for their own sake, not just as another conquest to chalk up, as our pilots did during the war with enemy planes. Love them for themselves, not as potential converts, that's the way Jesus loved men and women, and do let me know how you get on, I would love to hear from you.

The Lord's Table

by W. J. Maybin, D.Th., Pastor of our Southampton Church

THE ORDINANCE of baptism gives us a figure of union, while the Lord's Supper is a figure of communion. An honest examination of the New Testament reveals that these two ordinances relate to Christian experience and testimony. This article concerns the Lord's Supper, or "the breaking of bread" (Acts 2:42), a reference to table fellowship so evident in the Acts. It would seem, says R.P. Martin in The New Bible Dictionary that this name may have been "a quasi-technical expression for the whole meal". The term "Lord's Supper" is derived from 1 Corinthians 11:20, and is a common name for the ordinance in Protestant circles. The title "Communion" is taken from 1 Corinthians 10:16.

Let us examine the Doctrine of the Lord's Supper. From the Corinthian correspondence it would seem that this ordinance was accompanied by certain "love feasts" (1 Corinthians 11:20-22), and this led to certain abuses which called forth Pauline rebukes. As people got farther away from apostolic principles and teaching, they became less concerned to see things done according to the original pattern, so the simple elements of bread and wine began to assume a character foreign to that which our Lord intended when He first instituted the ordinance. The simple act of Christ's giving thanks began to take on the form of a magical consecration, and by the Middle Ages the Mass and Transubstantiation were the order of the day.

In the Mass the Church of Rome claims her highest religious act. Indeed all Roman dogmaticians claim that in essence there is no difference between the sacrifice on the Cross and the sacrifice of the Mass, since in each Christ is both Priest and victim. At the heart of the Roman cultus there is the dogmatic assertion of "the Real Presence" or the dogma of Transubstantiation. This doctrine assumes that "through the consecration in the Lord's Supper the substance of the bread and wine are changed into the substance of the body and blood of Christ, and that only the accidents and appearances of the earthly elements remain".

The religious bodies of America.

The Reformation brought a rejection of both the sacrificial theory and the doctrine of Transubstantiation, though it cannot be overlooked that some of the Reformers varied in their interpretation of the words of the institution. Lutherans holding that the Lord simply meant to say to His disciples, "When you have the bread, you have My body in, under and along with it, though the substance of both remains distinct" (L. Berkhof in Systematic theology). This is the doctrine of "consubstantiation" i.e., that the body and blood of Christ are substantially and permanently united with the consecrated elements. This view we reject as unscriptural.

The position set forth by John Calvin is that which we would endorse, i.e., that participation at the Lord's Supper for the believer involves a "spiritual reception" of Christ by faith. Nurtured in a Presbyterian environment I find it difficult to better the Westminster Confession Of Faith at this point. Those ancient divines started that "...as the body and blood of Christ are not corporally or carnally present in, with or under the bread and wine in the Lord's Supper, and yet are spiritually present to the faith of the receiver, no less truly and really than the elements themselves are to their outward senses; so they that worthily communicate in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, do therein feed upon the body and blood of Christ, not after a corporal and carnal, but in a spiritual manner; yet truly and really, while by faith they receive unto themselves Christ crucified, and all the benefits of His death".

Let us consider the Institution of the Lord's Supper. On this point most Christians agree that it was Christ Himself who instituted it. Though we turn to Paul for the doctrine of the sacred meal, this does not suggest that he was an innovator. Paul's teaching nowhere disagrees with the institution of Christ.

There are four different accounts for the institution; the first three are found in the Synoptic Gospels, and the fourth is given by Paul in (1 Corinthians 11). Substantially these accounts agree and complement each another.

Emil Brunner declared that the Supper was "an illustrated Word of God". This is very evident from what Paul has to say in the Corinthian passage. To him it was (1) A Commemorative Act. The taking of the bread and wine was a recalling of the sacrifice of Christ, a reminder of what He had done. Of course as one has pointed out, "we do more than remember an historical event, we salute a living Person". And it was (2) A Proclamatory Act. In our participation at this supper we are "showing" or "proclaiming" the fact that Christ died for us, and in this we are giving to the world one of the greatest witnesses possible. Paul stresses that it is (3) An Investigatory Act. Participation is to be preceded by examination: "Let a man examine himself". There is an act of communion, Godward and manward, therefore we must be in a right relationship with God and those with whom we worship. And, of course, it is (4) An Anticipatory Act. The supper is celebrated with joyful expectation, in that the One remembered, though present spiritually is absent physically, but has promised to come again. Just as the Israelites were to partake of the Passover with their loins girded, their shoes on their feet, and staff in hand, so we are to eat with anticipation of the great "lift off" to take place when He appears. Well might Horatius Bonar put the hope into verse:

Feast after feast thus comes and passes by,
Yet, passing, points to the glad feast above,
Giving sweet foretaste of the festal joy,
The Lamb's great bridal feast of bliss and love.

In conclusion let us look at those eligible to partake of the Lord's Supper.

The fact is that the Supper was originally enjoined upon the Apostolate, that the New Testament makes it part of the regular worship of the church (Acts 20:7) and that Paul warns against unworthy participation, and all these imply that it is intended only for converted and consistent believers.

Some churches exercise very strict control over those who would approach this Holy Table, and have what is termed the "closed table" i.e., a table closed to any who are not full communicating members of the denomination, subscribing to membership and church discipline. Others believe that it is the Lord's Table, and therefore those desiring participation should be allowed access thereto, provided that their lives are being lived in accordance with Scriptural standards.

It must be stressed that whatever the differences in Protestant circles regarding the celebration of this ordinance, what is of the greatest importance is that the ordering of the service should be entirely Biblical. The building, the posture of the body, or the time of the service are unimportant compared with the spirit of faith and devotion in which the Supper should be observed. In conclusion in his excellent book The fine art of public worship, Dr. Andrew Blackwood writes: "The Lord's Supper should be the crowning service in the church, and thus be earth's nearest approach to heaven".

And so we show Thy death, O Lord,

Till Thou again appear,

And feel when we approach Thy board,

We have an altar here.

Presidential Perspective

FROM THE INSIDE

by George Canty

I'm a fiddler — but not a diddler-fiddler. From the moment when an Elim violin class introduced us to the unfretted finger board, the longed-for sounds refused to float from my instrument. Despair often gripped me, until I borrowed a fine violin. Then those delicious, pearly quavers that my bow had always failed to pick off the catgut suddenly were being flung around in rich prodigality. All the frowning concentration could never have achieved that delight without this loan. In a moment I was an Oistrakh.

Sadly, there are many great violins locked up and never played. Some are kept just as heirlooms, nobody appreciating the desperate needs of musicians for rare quality tools. Some are kept against a day when somebody in the family might want to use them. But meanwhile real players could be enjoying their use. If that perchance wrings any heart-strings, address your Strads and Amatis to P.O. Box 38, Cheltenham, Glos.!

My later years have brought me committee appointments in Elim and in nearly all of them one finds a locked-up Strad situation, not Strads really, of course, but sterling. Being President I'm allowed to peer a little into the inner secrets of churches and of the financial affairs of our nearly 60-years-old Elim family. There's money there that ought to be here, and here that ought to be there. It is just a case of moving it to where it is immediately wanted from where it is not immediately wanted. Within the controls of the Elim Executive this is usually done, but Executive controls are limited.

Bank current accounts give no interest and for good reasons some Elim churches hold substantial amounts pro tem in this way. Meanwhile the same bank lends that same money to another Elim church at fantastic profit to the bank. Under the law of Moses, one Israeli was not to lend to another Israeli for interest, but only to strangers. If we adopted this Scriptural principle we could greatly help one another. Cash could be deposited through Elim central office for the use of churches temporarily struggling with borrowed money at very high rates of interest.

Grouped round the table one day with other members of the Evangelistic Committee faced with opportunities beyond our financial means, somebody casually mentioned that we ought to have a reserve fund bringing in a steady income. The idea caught us. I considered that there must be at least a thousand Elim folk who could lend us £100 — perhaps a £100 which is not even gaining them any bank interest. If they would bank it with us, as a committee we would have £100,000 on which we could make £10,000 interest. Even if it was for one year it would be a marvellous help, meeting the cost of maybe half a dozen new Elim pioneer churches. From such thoughts we have now presented the "Forward the Faith Foundation".

Actually several thousand pounds have been deposited in this foundation on loan, giving us something like £550 profit in interest, and on that sum (which cost nobody anything) they have asked me to launch the new Elim Church in Epsom, near London. This is Elim money in action. The further I travel the more reassuring becomes my picture of our Elim work. Spirituality, Pentecost, sacrifice, work, faith, better buildings, better organisation — they are all there. It is only when one turns to the circumstances of modern life that one might be worried. Cities are re-developing and sometimes make demands for better Elim properties on new sites, which are impossible. One Elim church has been caught in a set of circumstances which means a debt of about £90,000 or more than £9,000 per year repayments in bank interest (my rough estimate), that is, nearly £200 per week — and their offerings are much less than this. Building and site costs have become astronomical and more than one church faces this plight.

The real problem today is not merely the capital cost, the usurious rates of interest. Elim has been able to help a great deal in its stewardship, but now the situation is such that we must all try to recognise our personal involvement in the developing financial requirements, particularly in the matter of loans. The world has its problems, but as a world within a world, I am convinced that Elim could avoid the world's difficulties by a programme of mutual consideration and care. "Bear ye one another's burdens". What does that mean, interpreted with the Evangelistic Committee's perennial deficit in mind trying to set up new Elims? If we can help you with details of the scheme, please write to: FORWARD THE FAITH FOUNDATION, P.O. Box 38, Cheltenham, Glos.

17. The Devil's Agents (Exodus 8:7, 18)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

PHARAOH'S magicians were the determined opponents of Moses and Aaron. Every miracle performed by them the magicians tried to duplicate in order to retain their hold over Pharaoh and the people of Egypt. They endeavoured to persuade Pharaoh that the gods of Egypt were as mighty as Jehovah, strengthening his rebellious heart against the command of the Lord. Although they had some early success, they eventually had to acknowledge defeat (Exodus 8:19); their mighty master had to bow before the Almighty God.

There have always been sinister opponents of the believers; the prophets of Baal and of other false gods in the Old Testament, sorcerers such as Elymas and Simon Magus in the New Testament; the mystery religions of Babylon, Greece and Rome are examples. In our own day there are the spiritualistic cults which counterfeit the miraculous Gifts of the Holy Spirit, and millions of people are being duped by these agents of the Devil; having rejected the message of the Truth of God they have accepted a lie.

We ought not to be surprised by the strange manifestations of power which we see from time to time, because the Scriptures constantly declare the power of Satan in false religions (Acts 13:10; 1 Corinthians 10:20; 2 Thessalonians 2:8-10; Revelation 13:1-2). The manifestation of the power of Satan is very great at this present time, his kingdom is very well organised, and he reveals his power through his human agents in order to delude men.

The Lord Jesus has already overcome Satan by His death and resurrection (Matthew 4:1-11; Luke 11:14-22). He will shortly bind him (Revelation 20:1-3), and He will finally destroy him (Revelation 20:10). The Egyptian magicians had to bow before the power of Moses' God, and Satan's modern agents will have to bow before the Name of Jesus. Scripture proclaims: "Greater is He that is in you than he that in the world" (1 John 4:4), and assures us that we shall overcome Satan and his agents by the blood of the Lamb and the Word of our testimony (Revelation 12:10-11). Hallelujah!

From a Pastor's study

Nyoka, Huru, Huru

by A. Nicolson, Pastor of our Southend-on-Sea Church

THE SUNDAY afternoon service at the Penhalonga mission station was over and I was sitting quietly in my chair reflecting on the enthusiastic singing which had expressed the joy of the people that afternoon. Suddenly my reflections were disturbed by a loud banging on the door and shouts of "Baba Nicolson! Baba Nicolson!". I jumped out of the chair and went to the door. One of the boys who had been in the service was standing there and he was very excited. "Nyoka baba. Nyoka huru huru". A snake, a big, big snake. I had heard them say this at other times and it wasn't really big; however, I asked the boy to show me where it was. He took me to a spot behind one of the classrooms where we had left an old platform. Several of the boys stood around at a respectful distance, their eyes riveted on the platform. As I approached the platform the boys shouted to me to be careful. Moving cautiously I looked between the spaces where some of the boards had been removed and there, coiled underneath the platform, was the largest snake (apart from a python) I had ever seen. This was no job for sticks or stones and as we did not have a gun I told the boys to keep a watch on the snake whilst I ran back to the house and telephoned the police. It took three bullets to kill the snake and when we measured it, the reptile was 6ft. 2ins. in length. I was glad I had not taken the schoolboy's word lightly.

Many people today take the warning cries against sin very lightly and I wonder if we are not in some ways to blame. Perhaps we have shouted, "Nyoka huru" . . . "big snake" but when the world looks at our attitudes sin appears as harmless as a two feet grass snake. Let us not only shout a warning with our lips but let us back it up with our actions and by treating sin as the dangerous reptile it is.

"Come let us join our cheerful songs"

DISSATISFACTION is not always a disastrous quality but can be, sometimes it has been used to further fresh endeavour. In the year 1694 a young man of 20, a student attending a nonconformist academy in London came home to his parents in Southampton and went with them to the Dissenters' Chapel there. He discovered that the hymnbook in use was one of the first collections of hymns as distinct from the psalms, ever to be produced in the English language. It had been edited by a Nonconformist minister of Leicester and the young worshipper expressed dissatisfaction with the hymns and with the rashness of youth made his complaint known in no uncertain tones, whereupon he was challenged to set to and produce something better.

So young Isaac Watts sat down and wrote his first hymn based on Revelation 5 and beginning "Behold the glories of the Lamb". The congregation enjoyed singing this hymn and asked for more, so for the next two years many hymns were composed and sung just from the manuscript copies he produced and these became the collection known as "Hymns and Spiritual Songs". Among these composed at this time was that firm favourite "There is a land of pure delight". It is said that this hymn was inspired by a view across Southampton Water which I suppose was lovely and unspoiled in those far off days.

Isaac Watts was born on July 16th, 1674 into a Dissenters' family and he must have been a remarkable child. He commenced the study Latin at the tender age of 4 and went on to learn Greek, French and Hebrew. When he was 14 years old he wrote in his diary that he was deeply convicted of personal sin and so one glad day he accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour. He wrote 600 hymns during his years of service and many of them have been sung and loved throughout Christendom. I think, too, that you will agree with me that if his early discontent had only provoked one hymn from his pen and that hymn had been "When I survey the wondrous cross" we should be satisfied. To my mind it is the finest hymn of personal identification with the wonder and challenge of the Cross in the English language. How it has been blessed and used as a solo, how often has it been sung by a weeping penitent during a Gospel appeal. This hymn has a unique place in the breaking of bread service and so it is fitting that on the 300th anniversary of the birth of Dr. Isaac Watts we remember him and thank God for his consecrated talent.

John Wesley greatly admired the hymns of Isaac Watts and printed 10 of his metrical psalms in the forefront of his own first Collection of Psalms and Hymns in 1737. Together with his brother Charles he visited Watts at Abney Park where three great hymn writers walked and sang together. What a gathering that must have been! Perhaps one of the most splendid examples of the power of sacred song and one that Isaac Watts could never have dreamed of, was the singing of his most famous hymn in the far away South Sea Isles. On Whit Monday, 1862 under the wide spread branches of the banyan trees 1,000 natives from Tonga, Fiji and Samoa gathered together to hear King George, himself once a cannibal and then an earnest follower of the Lord Jesus, declare his islands truly Christian.

There they met for divine worship, rejoicing and radiant, standing to sing the words of the hymn translated into their own language, "Jesus shall reign where e'er the sun". What a scene and what a hymn! every word, every verse, adding to the crescendo of praise, and we who know the Lord know also that the day is soon coming when, "People and realms of every tongue (will) dwell on His love with sweetest song". — MARANATHA.

Laws

Psalm 19:7

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

— "WHY can't we play ball in the field?" —
"Because the sign says PRIVATE PROPERTY — TRESPASSERS WILL BE PROSECUTED. If we went in we would be breaking the law".

— "Why must we have laws, daddy? Why can't we do just as we please?"

— "Well, Simon, think what life would be like without laws! There would be chaos on the roads and an increase in crime. Life would be very miserable indeed. We must have laws and rules and regulations as a standard by which to live, work and play. There would be no fun in playing games without rules to refer to,

for we would not know when a foul was committed or be able to decide which side won or lost. Suppose, too, that there was no law of gravity. We would all float about in the air, rain would fall upwards or even sideways and everything would slip and slide about all over the place and. . . ."

— "and balls would roll uphill instead of downhill!" added Simon.

"That's right, Simon. We need laws to help us and guide us. It is foolish to ignore them, Simon. Many have drowned at sea because they ignored the danger signs and others have been killed on roads because they ignored the traffic lights and crossings".

Ever since the beginning of Creation the whole of nature has obeyed God's laws. God rules His creation fairly and justly. If this were not so what a topsy-turvy world it would be! Tides would ebb and flow as they wished, the sun and moon and stars would shine at any time of the day or night, seeds would not grow.

The Ten Commandments are the most important of all God's laws and, because of Who He is, He has a right to be obeyed. When we obey His laws and resolve to follow Him promptly and faithfully we are on the road which leads to life everlasting. Jesus says, "I am the Way". By His death and resurrection
He has made a way back to God.

No-one has been able to find fault with God's laws and standard of life. No-one ever will, because behind his perfect and unchanging laws lies His perfect and unchanging love.

Book Reviews

Letter to Philemon, by Winthrop and Frances Neilson published by Concordia, price 60p, postage and packing 9p extra.

IF you like romantic religious novels then you will love this one. This story imagines the background leading up to the conversion of the runaway slave, Onesimus, and the writing of the letter to his master, Philemon, by the Apostle Paul. I feel sure that this colourful novel will take its place in the ranks of extra-christian classics along with Ben-Hur, The Robe and the Big Fisherman.

I do strongly object, however, to their attempt in chapter XIX (page 189) to attribute the false doctrine of baptismal regeneration (one of the beliefs of the Lutheran Church) to the Apostle Paul. Paul is made to say to Onesimus – “Through baptism, you have been born again as a new man”. I am also not too happy with their summary of Paul’s belief in chapter XVI (page 168) – “Paul . . . believed that the life of a Christian should be one of humility and good work on earth, with the steadfast hope of redemption after death”. They ought to have made more of an attempt to expound Paul’s doctrine of justification by faith alone.

It has a ‘they sailed off into the sunset and lived happily ever after’ ending which savours more of Hollywood than it does of the New Testament.

My assessment – entertaining but not edifying.

Not Hearers Only (volume 4) by John Blanchard, published by Word Books, price 50p, postage and packing 6p extra.

THE strength of this book lies in the clear and orderly way in which it is presented. James is not an easy book to homilize but the author does so with a measure of success. He has a clear understanding of the text although at times he unnecessarily quotes from expositions on the Epistle of James which are, in my opinion, inferior to his own. I particularly felt that the sections on the first six verses of chapter 5 and also on prayer for the sick, were well handled. This book is suitable for the layman in that it makes easy reading whereas the minister will appreciate its systematic approach.

Isaac Watts Remembered by David Fountain, published by Henry E. Walter price 75p, postage and packing 10p extra.

THREE hundred years ago there was born in Southampton, one of its most remembered sons, Isaac Watts. It is fitting that the writer of this book is a minister in the city. He lets us into the secret of his excellent literary production, when he states in the introduction that his aim is to “provide the knowledge of this great poet that will enable those who sing his hymns to appreciate them more”. My review of the book has given me just such an appreciation, and I can recommend it to all those who feel that we have such a rich treasure in our hymnology. There are twelve chapters, and it would be most difficult to select one above another. They begin with the early days of the great poet, educationalist and preacher, (his father suffering imprisonment for his dissenting views), and ends with his final illness and demise at the age of 74. The final chapter is dedicated to the memory of Isaac Watts today, and includes an appreciation from the great Dr. Johnson, part of which reads: “Few men have left behind such purity of character or such monuments of laborious piety”. I have much pleasure in recommending this splendid new life of Isaac Watts.

Jesus is Coming by John Pettingell, published by Manchuria Press, 41 Manchuria Road, London, S.W.11. Price 45p, postage and packing 7p extra.

HERE IS an inexpensive book, composed of twenty seven chapters, providing a comprehensive survey of the prophetic programme. The writer begins the book with a chapter dealing with the hope of the return, and avers that the Second Coming is “the event which will bring meaning to all that has gone before”. He then adds, and very wisely, that the study of the subject should not lead to prophetic speculation. Quite a variety of eschatological aspects are dealt with, and though one would not accept everything that the writer puts forward, here is an interesting and stimulating addition to the already vast library of prophetic literature. Though I find myself questioning some statements made, I would readily commend this book for every thoughtful reader.

Hebrews 12:12-29

"Lest any man fail of the grace of God; lest any root of bitterness springing up trouble you, and thereby many be defiled" (v.15).

THE favour which God bestows is generally best recognised where Christians are in harmony. The Holy Spirit fell on disciples who were in one place and with one accord. Their unanimous desire was to serve Christ who had done so much for them. Where there is discord the blessing fails. Bushes which have died for no apparent reason, often reveal when pulled up, a diseased part of the root which has affected the whole plant. Here we are warned not to let bitterness poison our love and grace to others, for this will seriously contaminate others and trouble us too, and so the whole assembly be weakened. Is my church weak? Am I the source of infection?

Hebrews 13:1-6

"Let brotherly love continue" (v.1).

THE school which I attended as a child had as its motto, "Love as brethren", but we didn't all live up to it. It was inscribed on the school badge which we wore on our caps and on the breast pockets of our blazers, but it had no place in our heads or our hearts. Many Jews who wore phylacteries containing scriptures on their heads or arms were like that. Real brotherly love comes from the love Christ showed when, putting on human flesh, He became our Brother, and was so deeply concerned, even for the most repulsive, that He died for us all. True faith in Christ must evoke practical love for all mankind.

Hebrews 13:7-25

"Jesus also, that He might sanctify the people with His own blood, suffered without the gate" (v.12).

"OUTSIDE the gate", in wilderness terms, meant aliens, strangers to the covenant of promise, those without direction or hope, camp-followers who eked out an existence on what the Israelites discarded. But all who were far-off were brought near to God by the blood of Christ. When Jesus went outside the city wall to be crucified He broke down the wall of partition, and let us foreigners in; He became a stranger to His Father, bearing the aliens' sin. This is why He cried, "My God, My God, why have you forsaken Me?" He took our place outside the camp of Israel, that we might be permitted to enter into fellowship with the same God who presenced Himself in the Tabernacle.

Job 1:1-22

"The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord" (v.21).

JOB worshipped God and did his best to please Him. God recognised his faithfulness and pointed it out to Satan; but the devil suggested that Job was good only because God protected his many children, and his abundant wealth. So God permitted Satan to attack Job as a test, and Job lost his children and his possessions. God does grant His favour to those who truly worship Him, but sometimes withdraws it as a trial of our faith. Though Job didn't understand why such grief had come to him, he accepted that what God had given he had the right to take away. Adversity did not lessen his worship, it intensified it. When tribulations come shall we be found as faithful?

Job 2:1-13

"Satan, . . . smote Job with sore boils" (v.7).

GOD permits sickness and pain in order to inform us that what we have consumed or done is not good for us, and wise people profit thereby. God's desire for us always is abundant life and wholeness of body as well as of mind and spirit. So it is important to notice that God did not send Job's boils; Satan smote Job hoping to make him forsake God, and he does the same to us. Jesus said that a woman with a permanent stoop was bound by Satan. But Jesus "went about . . . healing all that were oppressed of the devil". He came to destroy the devil's works. Not feeling well? In the name of Jesus rebuke and frustrate Satan and glorify God.

Job 3:1-26

"Let the day perish wherein I was born" (v.3).

JOB was extremely but justifiably sorrowful, for he had lost everything. The pain was unbearable and rest impossible, and he wished that he had never been born. In a similar situation we shouldn't express a like wish, for we have the certain knowledge of a Saviour who overcame all sickness and death and has already prepared a home for us in His heavenly kingdom. But without that assurance would we not wish for death to put an end to it? Yet although Job cursed the day of his birth he never cursed God. Let us not criticise Job for preferring death, but honour him the more that without the hindsight of Christ's resurrection he maintained his faith in God. Feeling depressed? Consider Job.

Witchdoctor Wins

"TAKE the oath", said the young magistrate. His African clerk selected the Bible from among the sacred objects used for swearing witnesses and looked enquiringly at me. I accepted it and then proceeded to give evidence. "My wife called me to the clinic" I said. "There I was informed that Nguvumali", here I looked at the accused, "had administered poison oaths to many persons near the Mission the previous night. All had recovered with the exception of two persons who had become unconscious. Nguvumali then stood over each one in turn and proclaimed that their reaction proved that they were sorcerers; further he would only administer the antidote if he received a certain sum. A frantic collection of cash and chickens was accepted for one of them who recovered after receiving the second dose. The other, a widow, suspected locally of being a witch, was allowed to die and was buried the same night".

Nguvumali struck me as being a very commonplace person, but it was evident that his very presence confounded the witnesses. "Your Honour", I interjected. "Yes", answered the magistrate. "You cannot hope to get the truth from them while Nguvumali is in court". "They do seem to be afraid of him", he replied. Fear would normally have kept the news from us. But the dead widow's son was one of Dorothy's leprosy patients, and it was he who revealed the truth. Perhaps his contact with the Gospel had emboldened him. I called the police.

When they arrived two or three days later they exhumed the body. The organs contained a vegetable poison hitherto unknown in European laboratories. "Enough to kill two or three people" the report stated. The news spread through the Bush, Bulu and Nguvumali are fighting. "We will watch to see who will win", was the excited comment of many of the people.

"Yes, he had administered poison oaths, No, he did not know how much he had given the victim, he had inherited his potions from his father", he replied to the prosecuting Inspector of Police. "He was licensed by the Sultan (tribal chief) to cleanse the tribe of sorcerers; His fees were a modest day's wage but all had to take the oath".

To my Christ enlightened mind, the case was plain murder. I had heard of three other cases in which Nguvumali was involved, but I found myself groping in a twilight world between the light of British justice and the darkness of native custom. The Sultan took a share of the oath fees, no justice could be expected from him. But our God is just and it seemed that He had intervened with a just sentence when the Sultan was stricken with leprosy and died the following year. Nguvumali lost his licence to practice but not for long.

A few months later news came through on the 'bush' vine that he was operating in another tribe. His reputation was considerably enhanced by his successful confrontation with a white demon (myself). I lost my faith in British justice. Even the District Commissioner twitted me, "Any more witchcraft cases"? Looking back (it was twenty years ago), I see that I used the wrong approach. As Paul writes in his letters, "our weapons are not carnal", The triumph of evil was puzzling to Dorothy and me. We had no conception of God's plan. He, the Lord Jesus, was planning to fill our pastor ranks from among these sorcerers; several who would not be deterred by me from their evil ways would bow the knee to Him and become His willing captives. Two of Nguvumali's former colleagues are, today, members of our Mission here.

"Who ever perished being innocent, or where were the righteous cut off?" (v. 7).

ELIPHAZ argued that if prosperity comes to those who are godly, then those to whom sorrow comes must have displeased God; he deduced that Job's calamities came because he was a hypocrite, worshipping God only for His favour. Surely, argued Eliphaz, God would not have permitted him to suffer so? Is that your line of thought too? If so, beware lest you, like Eliphaz, become a tool of Satan, for he misled Eliphaz into false reasoning about Job's conduct. Eliphaz's contention was that Job suffered because he, apparently righteous, was in reality a wicked man — in other words, contended Eliphaz, Job was a hypocrite.

I HAVE had in my possession an Oxford Dictionary of Quotation for a number of years and it has served me well both for a reference work for checking other people's quotations and at odd times I have flicked through its pages, pausing here and there amongst some of the gems of literature.

One of the problems that presents itself to the Christian editor or indeed to anyone else seeking to influence public opinion, is that when great and important issues are raised, it is sometimes debatable whether certain matters are best left alone without any comment at all so that they may die a natural death; on the other hand however, there are times when it is right and proper that the Christian voice should be heard and this is especially so on moral issues.

"Why should good men be so timid when bad men are so bold?"

We are not suggesting that Christians should go about loudly making protests at every single thing that causes them offence. Sometimes we have to live in the world and yet be "not of it". There are times however, when it is right to speak, as there are also times when it is right to "refrain from speaking" (Ecclesiastes 3:7).

John Bunyan was awakened to a conviction of sin by the rebuke of a washerwoman. Christian believers in today's world need to offer a daily prayer for guidance for "a word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver" (Proverbs 25:11). The writer himself was confronted with the claims of Christ from which he was unable to escape by a brother asking him pointedly and directly, "Are you a Christian" at the very moment that he was leaving a church under deep conviction. The same brother however asked that same question of someone else of my acquaintance and this caused deep offence and the person concerned never again darkened the doors of that church. Some of us may well know what to say, but we need wisdom to know when to say it.

Patience and persistence are not incompatible one with the other, in differing circumstances, they are both necessary.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons Father Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love joy peace longsuffering gentleness goodness faith meekness temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom knowledge faith healing miracles prophecy discernment tongues interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death baptism by immersion for believers the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Your readers may be interested to read the following account:—

Recently, on a Saturday morning, an unusual baptismal service was held at the Elim Church, Plymouth, when the minister, L.P. Cowdery, had the joy of baptising an Anglican Naval Chaplain.

Immediately afterwards the Chaplain himself baptised four young naval artificers and one young lady. The Chaplain had previously received the Baptism of the Holy Spirit and from that event the whole of his work at H.M.S. Fishguard has been revolutionised. One of the young men who was baptised had committed sixteen criminal offences for which he could have received long terms of imprisonment. However, the authorities knew nothing about his offences, but on conversion he felt he had to confess to them. The Presiding Officer at the trial was amazed at the confession and when asked why, the young convert pulled out his New Testament and pointed to the text which says, "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature, old things are passed away and behold all things are become new". On hearing this the Court Martial decided only to proceed with one offence and to the amazement of everybody he was only given fourteen days in the naval prison.

Amongst the many people baptised during the revival we have been sharing, was a young naval sub-lieutenant educated at Eton and Dartmouth, who is now going to Oxford to enter the Anglican ministry. He too has been baptised in the Holy Spirit.

We do praise God for His continued blessing on our work here in Plymouth and we are looking forward to yet a greater move of the Spirit of God. We believe that Plymouth is poised on the verge of a city-wide REVIVAL.

The Lord continues to bless with miracles of conversion and healing, thus proving to us that He is the Living God.

Len Cowdery

Recommendation from an unlikely quarter:

London is full of churches, many with a long history behind them. Some are quite vibrant and alive on the Lord's Day with large numbers of people streaming in and out of them. Others reflect the shifts in population or the decline of interest with the message given within the four walls. Among the more joyful and faith-filled congregations in the London area is Kensington Temple (an Elim Pentecostal Church) near Notting Hill tube station. Pastor Eldin Corsie preaches a compelling Gospel message and he attracts large numbers of people especially the young to his Sunday services. An increasing number of Jewish Christians belong to this Church. The evening Sunday service is at 6:30 and I'm sure that you would be inspired by what you heard and saw.

—Father Alban Carroll, Ecumenical Office of the Franciscans of the Atonement.

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

LAST YEAR the Daily Express published an article entitled Loneliness is a girl who writes to herself. "Midnight is the worst moment. The clock seems to tick louder. The bed-sitter walls loom nearer, and the mind — undistracted and over-active — magnifies those unimportant little problems". In London a seventeen year old boy pays for a hi-fi set and got the shop to deliver it to his bed-sitter with a card marked: 'from all your friends at the office'. Youngsters, says the report, come to London expecting to find pavements paved with gold but all they find is yellow parking lines and LONELINESS.

It is possible to live in a large city and still feel lonely. To be surrounded by friends, and yet be alone. Some people experience the loneliness of suffering, having to cope with some infirmity that other people perhaps do not understand. Many of us have experienced the loneliness of sorrow. Some close relative has suddenly died and we feel isolated. "Things will never be the same again", we say. Then there is the loneliness of guilt. Something tragic has happened and we feel responsible — a car accident, or even a broken marriage.

Is Jesus able to help us in our loneliness? Indeed, He can! During His life Jesus knew loneliness Himself, but He also knew how to deal with it. He lived in the full enjoyment of His Father's presence. He often slipped away from the crowds and went to the hills to pray, and though those nights were lonely in one sense, yet they were rich in communion with God. And that's the answer to loneliness. Knowing what it is to get in touch with God, having daily communion with Him. Whatever the cause of our loneliness Christ can deal with that situation.

IN PRAISE

THE CHOIR'S first appearance on the new commercial radio station (London Broadcasting Company) included an interview with their director, Pastor Douglas B. Gray in the Sunday morning programme IN PRAISE, with choral items by the choir. The ministry of evangelism in prisons continues, with visits to Reading, Wormwood Scrubs, Maidstone, and Eastchurch prisons. Despite top security in many of the establishments no restriction is imposed on the Choir. The words of a senior chaplain, who says, 'you have the key to every prison' are indicative of the high regard the authorities have had for the choir during forty-one years of prison evangelism.

The visit to the Kensit Bible College on the occasion of their open day was of special pleasure. The speaker was Major Allister Smith. A crowded church welcomed the choir on their visit to the Evangelical Church at Dovercourt in connection with their centenary celebrations. A recent outstanding event was the second visit by the choir to the Parish Church, Hainault, Essex. The scene within the church was reminiscent of the great Elim campaigns in the East London of 1925 conducted by Stephen and George Jeffreys. Singing, prayers, choruses taken up so enthusiastically and praying for the sick by the Vicar, the Rev. Trevor Dearing and his staff, was a moving experience. Members of the Crusader choir gave witness of their Pentecostal experience.

A valedictory service was held at Bromley Baptist Church when Mr. and Mrs. Eric Humphreys, (choir members) and family farewelled for ministry in Kenya—their third assignment they having previously served in Nigeria and Uganda. The lovely riverside town of Maidenhead, was the scene of a united festival of gospel song and music in partnership with the local Salvation Army music sections. The local Methodist church, loaned for the occasion, accommodated an excellent congregation. And so the L.C.C. maintains its nationwide ministry of evangelism which is expressed in the stirring lines:

*Christ for the world we sing!
The world to Christ we bring
With fervent prayer;
The wayward and the lost,
By restless passions tossed,
Redeemed at countless cost
From dark despair.*

*Christ for the world we sing!
The world to Christ we bring
With joyful song;
The new-born souls, whose days,
Reclaimed from error's ways,
Inspired with hope and praise,
To Christ belong.*

Things we hear

Overheard at Worcester:

Visitor, wishing to look around the Cathedral and finding 1,500 Pentecostals were having a meeting:

"There is a meeting on, we can't get in".

Second speaker: "But there can't be, it's a Saturday".

First speaker: "There is; there is a minister there and he is preaching".

First speaker: "Perhaps he is rehearsing his sermon for Sunday".

Charlie's in the Hospital

131 years without Christ

By RUBLE ENLOW

CHARLIE SMITH is a 131-year-old ex-slave. He is probably the oldest man living in the United States and one of the oldest in the world.

Charlie has had unusual experiences. He was acquainted with Jesse James. "I saw Jesse Jr. before his dad did," he often says. He also rode with Billy the Kid and has fascinating stories.

However, one other thing is outstanding. At 131 Charlie Smith met Jesus Christ! It happened like this:

My wife and I were on our way to the Winter Haven hospital to visit some church people. She was reading excerpts from the January 18, 1974, Polk County Democrat, our biweekly newspaper, aloud.

She read one headline that caught my attention: "Charlie's in the Hospital."

I had never met Charlie Smith, though I had seen his picture in the paper and heard a lot about him. He lives in Bartow, Florida—only 10 miles from our home.

I had thought of visiting him before, and this was my opportunity. I decided. But my desire was different this time. Previously I had

The author is an Assemblies of God minister living in Lakeland, Florida.

Charlie Smith, who observed his 131st birthday last July 4, was admitted to Polk General Hospital on Monday. He is reported in "satisfactory condition." Charlie, undisputed claimant to being the oldest living American, has complained to visitors and friends in the past few weeks that he wasn't feeling well. He was admitted to the hospital after he became weak, had difficulty walking, and wouldn't eat.

Charlie Smith and

wanted to visit him as the oldest man. My thought now was, Is Charlie saved? Does he know Jesus?

What a tragedy if he lived 131 years and died without Christ!

When we finished our visit in Winter Haven, we went to the Bartow Hospital. We walked into the ward where Charlie was, and then to his bed.

He looked up; we introduced ourselves.

He wasn't very sick, evidently, for he began to talk. He told how he was deceived at the age of 12 by the first white man he had ever seen.

A ship had docked near his African home. People crowded around to see the brightly decorated Christmas tree glittering aboard the ship.

Charlie asked his mother if he could go and see the white man and the "pretty tree." She said he could. But after Charlie and a load of African people came aboard, the ship pulled out to sea, and Charlie never again saw his country, home, or loved ones.

The ship brought him to America where he was sold as a slave. He was bought by a white man named Charlie Smith, who gave him his name and asked him to never change it.

He continued to tell how he rode with Billy the Kid and assured us he was a fine man. He said Billy didn't do all those things the books say he did; and he wasn't killed, but died of natural causes. "I was there!" he declared.

Talking to Charlie was more interesting than reading a history book, because he is history. However, he wasn't answering the one most important question in my mind—and that was, "Does he know Jesus?"

When I interrupted his Wild West adventure episode to ask him if he knew Jesus, he said, "I don't think I know Him."

"Has anyone ever told you about Him?" I questioned further.

"No," he replied.

"Would you mind if we were to tell you about Him—how you could know Him and go to heaven some day?" I asked gently.

"No, I wouldn't mind because I do want to go to heaven," he replied in that voice cracked with age.

He listened intently as I explained, as to a child, how Jesus, God's Son, died for him on a cross so that if he, Charlie Smith, would just confess his sins, turn from them, and ask Jesus to come into his heart, then he would be saved, ready for heaven.

When I had finished showing him that Jesus would really save him, I asked him to pray and invite Christ into his heart. He was more than ready. My wife and I prayed, and Charlie prayed.

Charlie is back home in Bartow now. His humble dwelling consists only of a little shabby building that was long ago a small town grocery store.

But one day Charlie will live in a mansion God has prepared for him in heaven. He'll live in that mansion not because he met Jesse James, or Billy the Kid, or some other history character; but because he met Jesus, God's Son, here on earth.

"Getting settled in". The large crowd in their lovely new church which the company erected to serve its workers.

LAST WEEKEND saw the opening of the new church, on the Lisbon Citrus Estate. This church, pastored by a native minister and 'helped' by the wife of the estate manager has progressed through what we would call 'trying times'. There never was a decent building, most of the meetings were either held in a hut or under a tree. Now their need has been met.

During the building of modern living quarters, the company erected this simple but beautiful church. As with any building programme things took a little while, but our beloved brother H.C. Phillips always took a keen interest in the project. It was while he was in hospital that Mrs. Wolmarans showed him the final plans. She said that because of their gratitude for all his ministry and help in the past he would be asked to open the church. Because Mr. Phillips was called home, Mrs. Phillips ably took his place, bringing a sermon which Mr. Phillips had prepared in note form before his passing; on the "Greatness of Jesus".

The influence of the Phillipses is still with us and the works which they started are still going on. Join with us in praying that this work (60 miles from Nelspruit) will grow and that many will find Jesus as Saviour in their new building.

No resignation to any condition -- faith must be reborn

by P. S. Brewster, Secretary-General

AN OUTSTANDING politician, businessman and writer, Woodrow Wyatt, in describing attitudes today said: "People have lost faith in their political leaders, their trade union leaders and management and also even in the value of money". He then went on to say, "People are suffering from some kind of madness as though they are living on the edge of a precipice or in fear of some sudden catastrophe".

If what Mr. Wyatt says is true, it is very sad and gloomy for our generation and surely the only answer for us would be to pray that God will step in.

One writer in the Old Testament prayed, "Oh that God would come down and that the mountains would melt at His presence". From the Christian angle, we must be careful that this kind of atmosphere of fatalistic pessimism does not drift into our church life or affect our personal dedication to Christ.

The things of God are not shadowy, falling, or unreal, they are definite and certain. Jesus Christ is right in the centre of His Church. Revelation chapter two depicts Christ watching and controlling every enterprise. He is the Head of the Church and from Him alone comes all wisdom and instruction. His plans are slowly but surely coming to pass.

There must be no idle drifting in the Pentecostal Church, neither must there be any feeling of fatalism or resignation to any condition in which we find ourselves.

Our dear sick friends must not just resign themselves to their sickness, but seek healing for their bodies from Jesus Christ. They should request the anointing with oil by the minister and elders and "the prayer of faith will save the sick and the Lord will raise them up".

The small dwindling church dare not say that it has been like this for a very long time and it is inevitable that eventually it will have no minister and perhaps even have to close down.

Faith must be reborn in the hearts of the membership, the minister, the elders and deacons who must seek the face of God in prayer to determine that things will be different. Faith cries "IT SHALL BE DONE". One touch from God will do more for any congregation than any special rally, outstanding speaker or even a campaign. Such efforts are not to be regarded as a mere blood transfusion. The inspiration must come from within even you, as a born again believer and as a collective part of the Body of Christ. Whether there are twenty people or 200 or 2,000 even in the local church, the power of God is the same; the same joy, the same anointing, the same resurrection life. If the Holy Spirit excites a small group with the revelation of the presence of Christ, then that group will begin to grow and when the first precious soul is saved or a backslider restored, then that is the beginning of all progress.

God will raise up local leaders, men and women who do not feel the call to full time ministry, but can accept the challenge of local leadership. We must guard and garrison our hearts to stop the trend of the world getting hold of us or our homes or churches or even our Movement.

We do trust each other and we do believe in our ministers and our elected leaders. If this is so, and I am sure it is, then the only impending doom or catastrophe the church can ever expect is the manifestation of the predicted signs before Jesus returns. These signs will be catastrophic and there will be signs, says the Scripture, in the world with a dreadful fear and frustration and a feeling that there is no way out. We are now living in this kind of atmosphere, make no mistake the world is trembling.

There are signs in the Church that a world-wide outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon all flesh is now taking place. An assessment of those being baptised in the Holy Spirit not only inside the Pentecostal movement but amongst evangelicals and among the traditional churches, including the Roman Catholics, is difficult to believe, but it is true.

Alongside of this, however, there are clear signs that a Satanic invasion is now upon us. We must remind ourselves and refresh our Scriptural knowledge that Satan is the seducer, the deceiver, the divider, the arch enemy of the Church of Jesus Christ. He tries to wear down the saints. He seeks to oppress the believer from without. He is the author of all counterfeit. Today there is an invasion of the projection of Satanic power, through books, films and many types of evil. God is watching this very closely. Paul said we are not ignorant of Satan's devices.

With all these things going on there will be a return of apostolic New Testament power before Jesus comes again. We must be alert and ready for this. Because the Pentecostal believers are mature and experienced and have unusual knowledge of the Scripture concerning the Holy Spirit, we must not be aloof or adopt the attitude of 'we know it all'.

Therefore, let our spirits rise in faith, let there be a buoyancy in our optimistic vision, let there be no retreat or defeat, but a new determination to reach out for the souls of men. God is with us, truth is on our side, the enemy is a defeated foe, the fields are white to harvest. It is now REAPING time. God is waiting to use any yielded person if that person will make himself or herself available. It is not only the experienced or the mature person but any dedicated vessel that God is willing to use.

The minister is a key centre in this situation for he has more time to pray and to read the Scriptures; by his own dedication and inspiration he can encourage and urge others in the church to re-orientate their lives to meet this last day challenge. Only that which is real can ever hope to last. We must put ourselves on end time footing. If the Bible is true, and we believe that the Second Advent is at hand and that we must one day face the Judgment Seat of Christ, then we must major in the great issues of our faith. We dare not be caught playing at church, or playing at Christianity, or building people around our own personality and reaching out for 'pats on the back' from everybody. Let us give our time and let the top talents of the Church be recruited for local action.

In view of the return of Jesus Christ let every Elim Church be alerted to soul-winning.

My Testimony

Bill Wilson, Westcliff-on-Sea

DURING the Second World war I was captured by the Japanese and spent a period of three years as a P.O.W. On release, I weighed a mere seven stone 11lb having been over fourteen stone when captured, my condition therefore necessitated a time in hospital to recuperate. In 1957, I slipped, twisting my back, which meant further hospitalization and constant treatment to alleviate the excruciating pain; this also entailed wearing a plaster jacket but all to no avail; this treatment lasted until 1960. In that same year, I entered hospital for an operation on my back, spending the next twenty six weeks lying flat. Following the operation I was fitted with a Mackie brace, but still the pain persisted with the medical authorities stating they could do no more for me. The years have passed, with no relief but rather worsening with age; to sneeze and cough became a frightening experience.

I joined the Elim Church late in 1973 and after a Sunday morning meeting in January of that year, following a series of talks on practical faith given by the minister, my wife became exercised over the question of prayer for the sick in accordance with James 5:14. Simultaneously, the secretary of the church felt the same, but quite unknown to my wife; he then approached the Pastor on the question of praying for the sick, to be told that he also had been exercised to set aside the next Sunday morning for ministry to the sick. I could hardly wait for the morning of January 27th to arrive, feeling sure the Lord would meet my need. When the Minister and brethren laid their hands on me, it was as if I was being lifted right up into heaven as the pains left my body.

Even after several months it is still difficult to grasp what has happened, to be free from all pain and now unrestricted after sixteen years is nearly unbelievable. To God be all the thanks and Glory!

His minister writes:

"I heartily endorse all which has been written, having witnessed the brother concerned swing Indian clubs and do 'press-ups'. The man is a miracle and he is aged 74 years but looks and acts like a man of 50".

The Sure Grip

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

WHEN HE enlists in the army, the soldier promises to obey the orders of his commanding officer and pledges his loyalty to his Queen and country. At the Quartermaster's Stores he is issued with his uniform, beret, boots and kit. Each of these items is numbered and bears the stamp of the Government – so making the soldier instantly recognised. There are no conscripts in today's army. The soldier volunteers his services and decides for himself the number of years he will serve.

There are no conscripts in God's army. We join of our own free will. When we enlist in the army of the King of kings we promise to obey His commands and serve under His banner. When we confess Christ as our Saviour and publicly own Him as Lord we display our uniform and show the world that we are on His side.

In 2 Samuel 23 we read of Eleazar, a captain in king, David's army. When David's enemies, the Philistines attacked, Eleazar found himself in the thick of all the fighting. The battle raged around him and Eleazar grew tired. His arms ached, his sword seemed to get heavier and heavier, but he fought on and on, defending the territory, and refused to surrender. He just would not let go of his sword and so tightly did he grip it that when the battle ended the handle of his sword was found to be embedded in his hand!

All around us there are forces of evil, and we, the soldiers of Christ, must follow where our Captain leads us to defend His kingdom and fight His cause. We must arm ourselves with the Sword of God's own Word. It is our weapon against all temptation and evil. It will not fail us. We must grip it tightly – as tightly as Eleazar gripped his sword.

18. Divine Judgment and Divine Protection (Exodus 9:25-26)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

ABRAHAM perceived a principle in the dealings of God with men; because He is God, the Judge of all mankind will always do right, He will never punish the righteous with the wicked (Genesis 18:25). This principle had been revealed on a previous occasion when the Lord saved Noah out of the judgement of the Flood. Abraham's reasoning was proved to be correct by events, for although the Lord could not find ten righteous men in order to spare Sodom, yet He saved Lot and his family before judgment was sent.

We see that this same principle was in operation in the plagues sent upon Egypt. Israel was not a specially good or attractive people, yet the Lord had set His love upon them, and they were learning to trust Him; they were His people and He had determined to deliver them. This fact became clear in the Lord's dealings with Pharaoh and Egypt, for while the Egyptians suffered Divine judgment, Israel enjoyed Divine protection; surely a significant testimony to their stubborn oppressors!

The Lord never changes, He is 'the same yesterday, and today, and forever'. Those of us who have trusted in Christ are His dear children. This is not because we are naturally good or attractive, but because our sin has been cleansed by the blood of the Lord Jesus Christ; God has received us for His sake, He has accepted us in the Beloved, we are now the objects of His special care and protection. The judgments of God will shortly fall on a Christ-rejecting world, but He will remove His own dear children before His wrath is outpoured (1 Thessalonians 4:13-18; 2 Thessalonians 1:6-8). The true believers may indeed know a time of world-wide persecution and tribulation from wicked men, but they will never be the objects of the outpouring of God's anger. Again, when eternal judgment finally overtakes those who disbelieve, those whose names are written in His Book shall be saved (Revelation 20:12, 15). Is your name written there?

Whose conscience?

I WAS saddened to learn of the decision made at the Methodist Conference to drop the church's recommendation to total abstinence. Instead, after a firm stand against alcohol for forty one years the question of drink is now left to the personal consciences of the ministers and members alike. Recalling my early days in the Methodist Church I recollect the sound teaching of the Band of Hope and the signing of the pledge. In recent years there has been a tendency in some circles to sneer at such "antiquated instruction" and "outmoded" promises to abstain from any intoxicating drinks.

Temperance is substituted, self-control is encouraged and social drinking is the accepted norm and only the "fuddy-duddies" hold to old and dreary habits which deprive society of legitimate! pleasure. What about leaving this question of drink to the individual conscience? Is this wise, is conscience an infallible guide? In such a serious matter as this is the Methodist Conference being "more realistic", is it indeed wrong or harsh for a church to exert supreme authority and overrule conscience?

To begin with, conscience is not always reliable. The definition of conscience is, "the moral sense of right and wrong"; but there are so many conflicting opinions as to what is right and what is wrong. Personal desires, changing conditions, hidden persuaders, cravings and a desire to conform to the norm can all sway or over-ride the dictates of conscience. It is not a reliable guide in every situation. An unbeliever may well get by with a reliance on conscience but for the true born again child of God there must be guidance from and obedience to a superior authority. The law of God as expressed in the Bible is absolute and man's opinions and inclinations are not important when viewed in the blazing light of divine wisdom and direction.

It is plain therefore that an enlightened conscience works correctly because of a knowledge of God's laws. The Bible teaches that we are to have "a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men" (Acts 24:16). Thus it follows that in our way of life we must never offend another's conscience and must forbear to indulge in any practice which could confuse a less mature person. The Apostle Paul gives sound advice on these lines in 1 Corinthians 10:27-32 concerning the eating of meat offered to idols and thus lays down a principle to govern all our conduct. "Don't eat for the sake of the man who warned you and for the sake of his conscience. I am not talking about your conscience. It is the other man's conscience I am talking about. 'But', you say, 'why should my liberty have to submit to the judgement of another man's conscience? If I partake and thank God, why am I bitterly attacked for eating food for which I said grace?'. Your eating, your drinking, your every action must be to the glory of God. You must live in such a way that you give no offence either to Jews or Greeks or to the church of God" (Barclay's translation). Can we drink alcoholic liquor to the glory of God? So I ask you how sensitive is your conscience? When we know that young people or newly converted folk are watching our every action and being influenced by our standards of conduct how careful we must be.

The statement of Romans 14:21 sums up the whole situation of scriptural law and there is no getting round it. "It is good neither to eat flesh, nor drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended or is made weak". Taken along with the appalling increase in drinking by teenagers it is surely obvious that this departure from Bible law by the Methodist Church can only be deplored. But we must not be complacent for the Devil is ever seeking to mislead Christians and confuse them. Continental travel, cookery books, women's magazines, restaurants, T.V. adverts, radio serials, super-markets and the neighbours assume that to be "with it", to be happy, satisfied to be the life and soul of the party, we must take alcohol. What a travesty of the truth — I'd like to give the lie to all this and shout from the housetops "The kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost". (Romans 14:7).

A LETTER TO ALL CRUSADERS.

Dear Crusader,

We have been enjoying the activities which were planned for our Jubilee Year. The response has been most encouraging. I trust you have been making progress in your Christian life and that 1974 has become a major milestone in your pilgrimage.

The National Youth Rally is the one event in the year when the combined forces of our youth departments can get together to work and worship. This year on 21st September is a special day entitled "Jubilee Celebration". The Methodist Central Hall, Westminster, London is the venue and there are two meetings at 3.30p.m. and 6.30p.m. In between the services there will be a March of Witness. Why not bring your banners so that the folk in the streets of London may know what it is all about?

There is no charge for admission. We are issuing complimentary tickets for you to distribute to your friends. Please make a special effort to invite unconverted people to the meetings. Our programme will interest young folk of all age groups including young teens. Here are some of those who will be taking part. David Woodfield who is the minister of our Selly Oak Church, Birmingham. He will be speaking in the afternoon. His Coffee Bar evangelistic outreach has been an outstanding feature at the Annual Conference. He is an accomplished musician too. Brian Vidamour is the pastor of the Elim Church, Newcastle. He is a favourite at Elim Camps. His preaching is contemporary and challenging and is geared to young people. He will preach in the evening. The New Creation Singers from the Bristol City Temple under the direction of their minister Ron Jones will provide music which has received wide acclaim.

Len Magee needs no introduction. His gospel folk style of singing is incomparable. His second disc is on the way! Incidentally, almost all the songs are his own composition.

Then we will introduce an Elim Crusader named Eric Delve. Eric is a young street evangelist chosen by the Billy Graham organisation to lead their "Street Evangelism" at Spree 1973. Sue Ritter, a Christian journalist who is a regular contributor to Buzz magazine and the wife of the pastor of our Canning Town Church will participate.

The final of the National Bible Competition will take place. You must not miss this exciting climax to a most successful competition.

You will be there, of course, to take part in the singing and praising. Help us to make the occasion a great day for God and the Elim Youth Movement.

Remember, there is no charge for admission but you can obtain complimentary tickets by writing to the National Youth Director (NYD) Kensington Temple, Kensington Park Road, Notting Hill Gate, London. W.11. Please enclose a stamped addressed envelope for the reply.

I look forward to seeing you at the Central Hall.

Yours sincerely in Christ,

Eldin R Corsie

Jcb 5:1-27

"Happy is the man whom God correcteth: therefore despise not thou the chastening of the Almighty" (v.17).

THOUGH Eliphaz was wrong in his judgment of Job he nevertheless had some knowledge of God's working which could benefit Job. To condemn all Eliphaz said because some of it was wrong would be to fall into his error of making total judgment. Here he makes a valid statement which we shall do well to learn. As a natural father will always correct his son because of his love for him, so God's chastening of us is a sign of His love and our true sonship. But for the child to profit from the discipline he must not despise or resent it, but rather observe and act upon it. In this way lies our happiness.

Job 6:1-23

"My brethren have dealt deceitfully as a brook, and as the stream of brooks they pass away" (v.15). JOB discovered, as most people do, that a downfall reveals unreliable friends. He compares them to an oasis which thirsty travellers thought they could depend upon, only to find the spring dried up. If he could not get comfort from his friends where could he find it? Worst of all he could not go to God, his previous source of sympathy, for it was His arrows that pierced his spirit most. Christ Himself also experienced being forsaken by God as well as by his friends, yet ultimately He found complete vindication and glory. When reviled and persecuted unjustly, trusting ones will rejoice in the assurance of a just and rewarding Saviour.

Job 8:1-22

"The hypocrite's hope shall perish. . . whose trust shall be a spider's web" (vv.13, 14).

BILDAD supports Eliphaz's contention that Job had obtained God's favour under false pretences and now God has punished him. He compares the hypocrite's aspirations to a cobweb. As the spider weaves a house to her own fancy, so a hypocrite devises a philosophy of his own conceit in which to live, thus esteeming himself equal with God. The spider prides herself that her habitation is in king's palaces, so the godless man takes pleasure in his rich possessions. But the day comes when the broom sweeps the spider and her web from its place so God will so purge His temple. The comparison is apt but on this occasion it was wrongly applied to Job.

Job 9:1-24

"Though I were righteous, yet would I not answer, but I would make supplication to my judge" (v.15). JOB says there is no arguing with an all-wise God, or contending with the Mighty Maker of the heavenly constellations. To his friends he continues to insist upon having behaved as godly as he knew how, but recognises that in God's eyes his idea of righteousness is as filthy rags. The humanitarian and the Christian may vie for the honour of greater compassion and uprightness, but in comparison with God's standards both are condemned as falling short. Job wisely decided not to attempt to justify himself before God, but rather to call upon Him for mercy. Jesus commended the penitent sinner but condemned the Pharisee who boasted of his blamelessness before the law.

"Can'st thou by searching find out God. . . to perfection?" (v.7).

SEVERAL scriptures affirm that we can find God by seeking for Him, but this question reminds us that "whilst we can apprehend him we cannot fully comprehend him". We may be certain that He exists but we can never completely know all He is. The Christian life brings gradual growth in the knowledge of God, but of His plans, methods and judgments our understanding is exceedingly small. It is as the ephemeral span of our lives compared with the endlessness of time. Let no man be so foolish as to think he knows God perfectly. His omniscience, omnipresence and omnipotence should humble us, but His infinite love should encourage us to be satisfied with what He permits to be revealed.

"The tabernacles of robbers prosper. . . into whose hand God bringeth abundantly" (v.6).

ZOPHAR continues the argument that evil men can't prosper for long, but Job flatly contradicts it. Common observation proves that prosperous men are sometimes the most wicked people and this includes their households which continue for generations. It is false to deduce that prosperity only comes from piety. The beasts have no goodness but the stronger prey on the weaker and profit from it. This applies equally truly to birds and fishes. It is common knowledge that God's hand is in this and equally so when it applies to human beings with no respect for God or man. Though many may wonder why God permits this, the devout man submits to God's superior and infinite wisdom.

Job 14:1-22

"Man that is born of a woman is of few days and full of trouble" (v.1).

The garden of a gipsy boy

MANY years ago my late wife and I heard that Gipsy Smith was coming to the town of Dewsbury, in Yorkshire, on a certain Tuesday, to conduct afternoon and evening meetings in a large church in that town. We had never heard this popular preacher, so we planned to attend the afternoon gathering.

My older readers will remember this outstanding Evangelist who drew huge crowds wherever he went. I have never heard another preacher quite like him. He always boasted of being a real gipsy, whose life and home had been completely transformed by the power of God. He was so utterly genuine and sincere, that when he began to preach, you could feel the love of God flowing from the pulpit to the pew. His sermons were the overflowing of a full and rich experience of God's amazing grace. He was an absolute master in the art of painting word pictures. His great store of anecdotes and true gipsy experiences, so dramatically told, made you feel you were living the incident with him. His lovely, simple ministry in song was perhaps the most effective that I can remember. There was nothing strikingly outstanding about his singing, but somehow, under the anointing of the Holy Spirit, the words he sang reached many a heart with the glorious message of salvation. Somebody once said, "Little is much, if God is in it".

Perhaps I am a bit of a square, but it seems to me, that the God who ordained the simplicity of the holy communion service, still loves us to use the simple things and "things which are not", even the ordinary singing of a gipsy, to accomplish His divine purpose. Gipsy Smith loved to sing a song which some of us still remember,

"Wonderful, Wonderful Jesus,
In my heart He implanteth a song,
A song of deliverance, or courage and strength,
In my heart He implanteth a song".

My good wife and I arrived at the church in Dewsbury some twenty minutes before the service was due to commence, only to find the building almost full to capacity. We were not able to sit together; there were only one or two odd seats in various parts of the church. It was a great meeting and although it was nearly forty years ago, I still vividly recall one of the preacher's dynamic stories.

When the Gipsy was a boy and the caravan moved from place to place, he always loved to have a little garden of his own. As soon as the caravan came to rest in some new spot, he would mark out a selected square, carefully dig over the soil, and then edge the garden with suitable stones. He would then run off to the nearest wood, gather a bunch of the loveliest flowers he could find and return to stick them in the prepared garden. The garden would look beautiful for a little while, but as soon as the sun became powerful in the sky, the flowers would quickly wilt and die. "Why did this happen?" he asked that great congregation. Then he answered his own question, "because they had only been stuck in, they had never been born in."

Then came the great moment of that service, a moment I shall never forget as long as I live. The preacher, normally so loving and gentle in his manner, became very direct and almost severe. He embraced his entire congregation with a sweeping gesture of the arm and said in an atmosphere charged with the power of the Holy Spirit, "Some of you here today have been stuck in church membership; you have been stuck in the choir or stuck in the Sunday School; some of you have been stuck in the diaconate, but you have never been born into the family of God".

What a hush came over the people. You could hear a pin drop. Tears filled the preacher's eyes and with all the love and passion of his being, he stretched out his hands towards the congregation in a great closing appeal.

"Friends" he said, "you must be born into God's family". Jesus said, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God". He urged the people to forsake dead formal religion and to become a new creation by the personal acceptance of the Lord Jesus as Saviour. The Bible says, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new" (2 Corinthians 5:17).

You will not be surprised when I tell you that scores of folk made the all-important decision that afternoon.

I wonder, dear reader, if you have only been stuck in the church, or have you been born into the family of God?

Jesus said, "Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again" (John 3:7).

THE FAMILY ALTAR—from previous page

JOB says life is short, sorrowful and sinful and he pleads these miseries to mitigate his sufferings. Does he decide the length of his life or the degree of his despair? was he responsible for the entry of sin into the world and the frailty of human nature? Many in similar situations have sought comfort from such meditations. Yet Job placed his hope in eventual resurrection. We also can glory in the knowledge that the next life will not be brief but eternal; that sorrow and sighing shall cease and every tear be wiped away, and that our sin will be gone forever, thanks to the merits and sacrifice of our risen Lord.

Editorial

THE writer of Ecclesiastes tells us that "one generation goes, and a generation comes".

We had occasion to refer to this change of generation a couple of weeks ago in our Editorial and it is to this theme that we wish to turn again.

The Scriptures refer in a number of places to the importance of making adequate provision for the coming generation; at certain times it became critical, the second generation either stood for the faith of their fathers or betrayed it. In the time of the Judges, for example, we read: "And all that generation also were gathered to their fathers; and there arose another generation after them, who did not know the Lord or the work which He had done for Israel". Some years later the Psalmist writes:

"Walk about Zion, go round about her,
number her towers,
consider well her ramparts,
go through her citadels;
that you may tell the next generation that this is God,
our God for ever and ever.
He will be our guide for ever".

We would also draw attention to the way that Paul writes in his second letter to Timothy, where his concern is not so much for himself, for he is full of confidence about the future: "I have fought a good fight I have finished the race I have kept the faith". His concern is for others who should come after his departure. "What you have heard from me before many witnesses entrust to faithful men who will be able to teach others also". We do not wish to take anything away from the experience of brethren in years gone by, for in some senses their experience was unique, particularly when they were pioneering Pentecostal truths; in a great many places we no longer have to pioneer, and the great danger is that our people should become so familiar with these great truths that they should lose some of their keenness; we dare not become Pentecostal in name only.

Scattered up and down our land are monuments to a Pentecostal movement of a former generation. On April 30th, 1831, Mrs. J.B. Cardale spoke in tongues in London. Later that same year in the Regent Street Church, of which the celebrated Edward Irving was minister, a number of other people began to speak in tongues. This was the beginning of what became known as the Catholic Apostolic Church which could easily have become a widely known Pentecostal body. Unfortunately, however, all that now remains of this movement are a number of magnificent buildings, but, alas, no congregations and no ministers. Such tragedy stands as a permanent warning to us today.

Church Reports

ILFORD

Pastor: J.F. Hardman

WE REJOICE in God's goodness and blessing bestowed upon us during the past months. We held a believers' baptismal service recently when it was a joy to witness young people obeying the Lord's command and also to hear their testimony of salvation through Christ. The Bible studies upon, "The sevenfold vision of Christ and the sevenfold message to the Church", illustrated by a large colourful chart have brought much spiritual help and instruction.

As a recent Sunday morning service our Pastor spoke upon "The Prayer of Jabez", and this was followed by a powerful prophetic utterance assuring us that the Lord was about to move in our midst by His Spirit in a new way. This has been evidenced in the after-church gatherings for the purpose of Waiting upon God, where we have been drawn into a new experience of worship and the Spirit's power.

We were sorry to have to say farewell to our Sunday School Superintendent and Deacon, Mr. R. Grimwade and his wife a few weeks ago. We thank God upon every remembrance of them, but we are sure that they will continue to be used of God in their new area of residence.

BANBRIDGE, N. Ireland Pastor: Jim Patterson

AFTER a period of some thirteen years without a Pastor it was an historic occasion when 120 people gathered at our church for the induction of our new minister, Pastor Jim Patterson, who was returning to his native Ulster after eighteen years in England.

The Induction Service was conducted by Pastor William Mullen from Belfast, a member of the Irish Executive, and the message and words of welcome were given by Pastor David Ayling from the Ulster Temple, Belfast, who as well as being on the Irish Executive is also a member of the Elim Executive.

Other Ministers who took part in the service were Pastor Stanley Shaw from Portadown and Pastor W. J. Maybin, minister of our Southampton Church who was visiting in Ireland at the time.

Pastor Ayling's message was based on the parable of the Good Samaritan, and special emphasis was placed on the words, "Take care of him". This, said Mr. Ayling, was our Lord's commission to the Church, which, he said should be a place which acts as a hostel on the roadside of life where he can bring the wounded and bleeding souls of humanity.

Musical items were rendered by the Christian Busmen's Team from Lurgan, and following the service a buffet tea was provided by the Sisters of our Assembly, who also presented Mrs. Patterson with a beautiful bouquet of carnations.

On the Thursday morning our Pastor was interviewed at the church by B.B.C. Television regarding his home-coming and his setting up of a telephone ministry here at the church.

Prior to the induction our new Pastor had been with us for about six weeks, and we rejoice in the fact that the Lord has richly blessed our assembly. Numbers at all meetings have been greatly increased and our offerings have increased from an average of £18 per week to as much as £45 at the time of writing.

News is also just to hand that one of our members, despite the fact that she had been in hospital to undergo a major operation, has just been discharged, having been told that her trouble is all cleared up. We give God the glory for the fact that our sister, despite the fact that she had received pre-operation medication, was allowed out of hospital for one day, thus giving us an opportunity to pray earnestly for her complete deliverance.

In August we plan to conduct a fourteen day revival and divine healing crusade.

This will be led by our new Pastor following his two week Crusade in his home town of Portadown, on behalf of the Elim Church there.

Our photograph shows our new Pastor in the centre of the picture together with, from left to right: Thomas Mahood, (Elder and Church Treasurer), Jim Mitchell (Church Organist, Deacon and Secretary), Pastors J. Patterson, T. Mullen and D.J. Ayling.

Pastor: Alex Tee

THE tent crusade this July has proved to be a bigger success than last year's. Both the Saturday and the Sunday nights, after the tent came down, over 200 people were in the church. At a special "get together" service for the new converts and contacts over 100 people attended. This was held on the Wednesday when usually only sixty to sixty-five attend the Bible study.

HIGH WYCOMBE

Pastor: T.G. Hills

PASTOR John Harris of Lurgan was the guest speaker at our second Annual Spring Convention, the theme of his devotional Bible studies being "From Egypt to Canaan". This occasion was one to be remembered because throughout the convention members and friends were really encouraged by our brother's ministry.

Two years have now passed since Pastor Hills and family were welcomed into our church. This took the form of an informal after-church gathering; and what better way could a minister celebrate his anniversary than to spend it amongst his congregation, to say that there were some present who through his ministry had desired a total commitment to the Lord.

DELANCEY, Guernsey

Pastor: A. Anstey

WE RECENTLY celebrated our fortieth anniversary with four days of special services, with Pastor George Backhouse as guest speaker. We commenced on Saturday with an anniversary tea, when two of our oldest members, Mrs. Walker and Mrs. E. Rehoj, who were both present at the very first service in Delancey, were given the honour of cutting the beautiful anniversary cake. Mr. W. Page, our head usher, gave a few reminiscent remarks calling to mind many humorous incidents, and also the trying years during the German occupation. Our church secretary and deacons read out many letters of congratulations from former ministers, including one from Pastor Scott, Delancey's first Minister, now working for the Lord in Australia, and Pastor Reeves, during whose ministry the present building was purchased. Greetings also came from some who had gone into the ministry from Delancey, these included Pastor B. Vidamour, of Newcastle, Pastor and Mrs. D. Le Page, of Taiwan, and Pastor and Mrs. David Le Page, of Malawi, whilst we also heard from ministers in New Zealand, Ireland and many parts of the British Isles. The Channel Island Church expressed their appreciation of the testimony in Delancey and supported us in the convention services with choir and group items, including groups from the Baptist, Salvation Army and Congregational Church. The anointed ministry of Pastor Backhouse was very much appreciated throughout the special services, which coincided with the fifth anniversary of our present minister.

BIBLE ACROSTICS

By ARTHUR CAMPBELL

("Uncle Arthur")

LUKE

Lord as a child (chapter 2);
Understanding (2:47 - "parents understood not" v.50);
Knowledge of God revealed in parables (chapter 15, etc.);
"Except ye repent" (13:3).

Deacons

"What is a deacon?" asked the examiner.

"A deacon is what is put on top of a hill and lit" said the little girl. We know what she meant, but she was not so far wrong was she? (Matthew 5:14-16).

Two reports are to hand of brethren who are engaged in various forms of useful service for Christ.

Pastor Ray Hughes writes from Pontypridd South Wales.

Recently one of our deacons, Mr. Alan Britton, whose business brings him into contact with many households, called at a home where the whole family were distressed. They explained that the house had been visited by an evil presence and they were all terrified. Alan talked with them for a while and then went to seek a Christian friend so that "two be agreed", promising to return and pray for their deliverance.

The family had been to see the film, "The Exorcist" and had subsequently been disturbed by a speaking spirit, since when they had spent three restless days and nights sleeping only fitfully with every electric light on in the house.

The deacon and church usher, Mr. David Beard, prayed in the all-powerful name of Jesus and God-given calm settled on the house and occupants. Challenged by the events and the message of the Gospel the daughter who had been at the centre of the storm asked Christ into her life. This fine young woman is now enjoying new life and liberty and attending the assembly.

SALVATION IN A SENTENCE

By IAN MACPHERSON

Today shalt thou be with me in paradise (Luke 23:43).

WHEN THE LATE Bishop Taylor-Smith was chaplain general to his majesty's forces during World War I, a clergyman came to him applying for a chaplaincy. Instead of giving a direct reply, the bishop looked at the applicant narrowly for a few moments. Then drawing the watch from his pocket with a dramatic gesture, he glanced at it and said: "I am a soldier dying on the battlefield; I have three minutes to live. What have you got to say to me?"

Utterly taken aback by this strange questioning, the clergyman stood dumb. "Quickly!" urged the bishop. "Time is fleeting. Only two of my three minutes now remain. Is there nothing you can tell me that will help my soul?" Still there was no answer. The bishop's voice grew very grave as he went on: "There is but one minute now between me and eternity. Have you no saving word to speak to me?"

Feeling that he must somehow save his face, the clergyman fumbled for his prayer book, but the bishop waved it aside. "No, no," he said, "not that—not now!"

Because the applicant had no message for a dying man, he did not receive the appointment.

Now on the wide battlefield of life lie countless moral casualties, multitudes of men and women whose spiritual condition is desperate. Have we really got a message for them? Can we offer them a gospel that is capable, if necessary, of being summarized in a sentence?

Take up your New Testament. Glance at the passage from Luke's Gospel from which the text is taken. Think of the scene. Jesus is hanging on the cross. On either side is a thief. Below stands the brutal rabble, rending the air with hoarse cries and raucous laughter.

Then, all at once, one of the crucified thieves lifts his head and gazes fixedly at Jesus. Noting the calm fortitude and uncomplaining patience with which He bears His pain; watching the look of melting pity with which He contemplates the mad frenzy of His foes; listening to His pathetic plea for the pardon of the very men who skewered Him on the cross—the robber's heart is touched and stirred. Can this really be the King of the Jews? he wonders, studying the superscription nailed above Christ's head. Will He one day occupy a throne?

Despite all appearances to the contrary, the revolutionary feels convinced it is true. "Lord," he exclaims at last, "remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom."

Now see what happens. Jesus is faced with a situation precisely similar to that in which the bishop pictured the clergyman! He is called upon to preach His gospel to a dying man!

How does He do it? Listen to His reply: "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise." That is all. Yet how much is conveyed in these eight short words!

If we want a saving summary of the gospel, here it is! This is salvation in a sentence.

What kind of salvation is it? Let the text tell us.

IT IS A PRESENT SALVATION. "Today," said Jesus. That is one of the chief glories of the Christian faith. It never asks a man to make himself better before coming to Christ; it never puts him on a period of moral probation; it never postpones his acceptance with God until he has undergone some long and painful process of purification or somehow proved himself worthy of the priceless privilege.

No truth is woven more closely into the texture of the New Testament than this, that as soon as a sinner repents of his sin, laying hold of faith of eternal life and committing himself utterly and unreservedly to Christ—as soon as he does that!—he is changed, transformed, made absolutely new by the redeeming grace of God.

The vilest offender who truly believes

That moment from Jesus a pardon receives.

It can happen as quickly as that. The Best of Books informs us that the change from grace to glory is to take place in the twinkling of an eye, and the change from guilt to grace can take place with the same lightning rapidity.

Here, by way of illustration, is a story from the New Testament. Jesus is passing through Jericho. As He approaches the town, a crowd assembles around Him. In the crowd is a little man named Zaccheus who wants to see Jesus but cannot because of the smallness of his stature. Running ahead he climbs into a tree, perching on a branch that overhangs the roadway. He wants to get a good look at Jesus! How surprised he is when Jesus halts at the foot of the tree to get a good look at him! This is more than the tiny tax-gatherer bargained for; yet when the Master bids him make haste and come down, he wastes no time in doing so.

He is face-to-face with Jesus. As he gazes into those pure, strong eyes, he realizes, as never before, what an evil life he has led; he thinks of all the money he has extorted, of all the cruelty he has inflicted. Suddenly he knows he is a sinner. What is more, he knows that Jesus knows he is a sinner.

The question uppermost in his mind is this: "What will the Master say to me? Will it be, 'Look here, Zaccheus, you've been a very wicked man. You know that yourself, and everybody in this district knows it too. Nevertheless, if you will promise to renounce your wicked ways and be rid of your nefarious practices, I will put you on trial. If, after a year or so, you give clear evidence of amendment of life, I shall allow you to say you are saved!'"

Did Jesus speak like that? Of course not! "Today," cried Jesus, with a fine faith in the transforming power of His own presence. "Today is salvation come to this house." Today! Today! Always today! It is a present salvation.

"The dying thief," wrote William Cowper, "rejoiced to see that Fountain in his day!" It was the only day he had left. If he hadn't seen the Fountain that day, he would never have seen it at all! Happily salvation was to be had there and then! Had he been required to wait for it, he could never have possessed it!

That was a delightful dialogue which passed between Bishop Westcott and a Salvation Army lassie who, with well-meaning but misdirected evangelistic aggressiveness, accosted him on the street and inquired whether or not he was saved. In reply the bishop began by quoting three Greek words, each of which may be rendered "saved" in English, and then went on: "My dear young lady, what do you mean? Do you mean 'I am being saved,' or 'I have been saved,' or 'I shall be saved'? Salvation is a combination of all three. By His death Christ has saved us from the guilt of sin; by His risen power within us He is saving us from the power of sin; by His ascension He who is preparing a place for us will save us from the presence of sin."

Salvation may thus be spoken of in all three tenses—past, present, and future—but a salvation which was merely historic or merely heavenly would avail us little here and now, unless it were also true that salvation is in the present tense! That is what the dying thief discovered on the cross. There and then, without delay, he passed from death to life, from darkness into light. It is a present salvation.

IT IS A PERSONAL SALVATION. "Thou shalt be with me," the Saviour said. Think what a moral distance lay between the persons denoted by these pronouns—thou and Me—and yet our Lord deliberately declares that those two persons, infinitely different though they are, shall be together soon in paradise.

Together! Someone has said that if, after death, Jesus of Nazareth and Judas Iscariot went to the same place, he could not believe in the essential justice of things. Yet here we see the Redeemer and a robber going hand in hand to heaven! Was ever such condescension on the one side or such privilege on the other?

It cannot be stated too often or too strongly that salvation is largely a matter of personal relationship. To speak of it as simply a question of subscribing to a creed, or joining a church, or submitting to an ordinance, or conforming one's life to a specific moral code is to miss the heart of it all. No doubt true salvation includes all these things; but first and foremost it means friendship with Christ—His being with us in this world and our being with Him in the next.

On this point a beautiful comparison may be drawn between some words in the 23rd Psalm and this saying from the lips of Christ. "Thou art with me," says the Psalmist. "Thou shalt be with me," says the Saviour. These utterances are like two sides of one coin.

This is a personal salvation, and we must never rest content until with a bold faith we dare to call it ours!

IT IS A PERFECT SALVATION. "In paradise," Christ declared. Now paradise stands for the perfection of human happiness, and Jesus says the robber is soon going with Him to paradise!

Paradise! The direct reference of the text is, of course, to that blissful realm which lies beyond the gates of death; but I think we may justly assert that for the Christian, paradise begins right away. The Master's primary purpose is not to get us into heaven, but to get heaven into us, and this He does the moment we receive Him into our hearts.

Then we begin to find paradise in all sorts of unexpected places. Samuel Rutherford found it in a prison: "Jesus Christ came into my cell last night," he wrote, "and every stone flashed like a ruby. I think that Christ can make a young green heaven down here."

John Nelson discovered it below an abattoir: "When I came into the dungeon," he records, "it stank worse than a hog-sty by reason of the blood and filth that ran into it from the slaughterhouse above, but my soul was so filled with the love of God that it was a paradise to me!"

Henry Payson happened on it on his deathbed: "Were I to adopt the figurative language of Bunyan," he confessed to a correspondent, "I might date this letter from the Land of Beulah, of which I have been for some weeks the happy inhabitant. The Celestial City is full in my view."

John McNeill came upon it in a railway station: "After my conversion," he relates, "I thought that the Greenock Station in which I worked as a booking clerk had been whitewashed!"

Ah! that is the secret. "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."

Further, that is not the full text of this great truth, for, as everybody knows, the Christian's paradise is not confined to this world, but stretches beckoningly on into the world beyond. People today do not seem particularly interested in heaven. We are far now from those days when Spurgeon's sermons on this topic sold "by the ton" and volumes of Moody's addresses on the subject ran into hundreds of editions.

Yet sooner or later for each of us the sun will rise for the last time and then the existence of that homeland of the soul, now seemingly so remote and shadowy and conjectural, will suddenly become a matter of the greatest possible moment. Still on that fateful day those who fully trust in Christ need know no fear. "Today," He will then say, and His words in that hour will be charged with far richer content than they now possess for me. "Today—this very day!—thou shalt be with me in paradise."

That prospect can be yours—now!

Pastor, First Assembly, Defiance, Ohio

ONE MIGHT HAVE EXPECTED to find a dandelion growing there, but a lily? Never! Not among the broken pieces of cement, scraps of rusting tin, and rotting lumber of that junk pile.

How out of place! I thought, as I looked down upon that lone lily, pure and white, growing out of the trash.

Of course, it had been planted by someone long forgotten who wanted to add a little beauty to the scene. That was in a better day when this was a fenced yard.

What an instant lesson that lone lily taught me! Half-smothered by circumstances beyond its control, the regal flower grew and blossomed right where it had been planted.

It had no complaints. If the lily had been a typical human being, it probably would have grumbled about the ugly surroundings; about being all alone, unappreciated, and unwanted. Of all the contagious diseases in the world, self-pity is one of the easiest to catch. Listen to the newscasts. How many problems in the world are caused by people who feel sorry for themselves.

But the lily didn't complain—it just kept on growing!

The next lesson followed quickly. Only by chance had I found the lily. I certainly hadn't gone to the trash pile looking for flowers. As I stood transfixed by its beauty, I thought, What if no one had ever stumbled upon the stately white bloom?

Then I realized of all the flowers that grow, comparatively few are ever picked and put on display!

Again I thought of human beings. Suppose we don't get credit for our efforts! If no one notices or appreciates what we are doing and we seem to be the only one concerned about the project, it doesn't take long for us to run out of energy. How much better if we performed all our labor "as unto the Lord." He sees in secret and will reward us openly.

It occurred to me that the delicate blossom might be as fragrant as it was beautiful. Sure enough—no flower ever smelled sweeter!

What a lesson! If Christ truly lives within our hearts, it is just as natural for us to "go the second mile" as it is for the lily to put forth fragrant blossoms. The ugliness of its surroundings only made the beauty and sweetness of the flower more outstanding!

Lingering there I recalled the words of our Lord, "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: and yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these" (Matthew 6:28, 29).

The quadrangle at Emmanuel Secondary School

A call or . . .

by Peter Griffiths, Rhodesia

BISHOP STEPHEN NEILL of India wrote, "I may place on record my conviction that the needs of the mission field are always far greater than the needs of the Church at home, that no human qualifications, however high, render a man or woman more than adequate for missionary work, that there is no other career which affords such scope for enterprise and creative work, and that in comparison with the slight sacrifice demanded, the reward is great beyond all measuring". If this conviction is true, one wonders why there has been no response to the continual appeals of the Elim Missionary Society for a Doctor and a graduate teacher for Rhodesia.

Jim Elliot at the age of twenty wrote, "Our young men are going into the professional fields because they don't 'feel called' to the mission field. We don't need a call; we need a kick in the pants". My prayer is that this article will be a 'kick in the pants' for someone!

When the work at Antioch in Syria got too big for Barnabas to handle, he went to Tarsus to look for Paul; and when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch and there they taught together. Do not miss the point. Jim Elliot, Barnabas or anyone else of their spiritual perception, would not decry the need for God to call and direct His children, but what they also saw was that often people will not listen to the voice of God unless they are called for by God's servants, or shaken or even kicked.

Let us take the question of need, that Bishop Neill mentions. How many in Elim are aware that the nearest evangelical mission-station to us at Inyanga North is our other one at Penhalonga, 125 miles away. This coming Sunday I am going to conduct a service at a remote area where no church has as yet been planted since Christ died. As far as we know, there is no Christian within 200 miles East of this area, 100 miles North fifty miles West and twenty miles South — we are twenty seven miles South. The following weekend, four of the teachers from Emmanuel Secondary School, together with fifty students, will be camping in the area and will try and reach every home within three hours walking distance of the camp. It will be a tough assignment, as the people are not only 90%+ illiterate, they are by and large ignorant of the simple and basic facts of the Bible story. Once, after speaking to an old lady in a similar area about the Gospel, she said, after listening to me for ten minutes, "I've not understood a word you've said!" — talk about communicating! How important it is for nationals to get involved in this business of communicating, and this is where we see the work of Emmanuel Secondary School as so vital and strategic in these uncertain days in Rhodesia. We are the only Pentecostal Secondary School in the country, even though nearly 90% of Secondary Schools belong to the missions. Young people come from all over the country to us — from up to 350 miles away. Very few are Christians when they come, but we see a great response to the Gospel. In the years that they are with us preparing for G.C.E., a number grow into spiritual maturity, some get filled with the Spirit, and many want to preach and witness and teach Sunday School. What a privilege and opportunity is ours! But we need staff if the school is to continue to progress as it has so amazingly in the past five to six years. Are you a graduate teacher? I cannot come and get you as Barnabas did Paul, but maybe this appeal will prompt you at least to make an inquiry and write to the Elim Missionary Society, Box 38, Cheltenham. Why not prayerfully consider whether or not God is calling you to come? Or look at it this way, has God called you to stay where you are? In my experience, many of those most used in the home land, have been people who have genuinely offered themselves to God for work overseas and have then been 'called' to stay at home.

To what purpose is this waste?

Matthew 26:8

by W. Hartley

Another in our series by Assemblies of God writers

Saved in 1935 he began to preach in the same year as a lay preacher with the Methodist Church, came in contact with the Pentecostal people and was baptised with the Holy Ghost speaking with other tongues in 1938. He says: "I owe a great deal for my ministry to men such as Fred Watson, Dick Coates, Wilfred Richardson, Smith Wigglesworth, James Salter, Harold Horton and Donald Gee. These men inspired me to reach out to the highest for God, Howard Carter, John Carter and not forgetting Aaron Linford who always encouraged me to do the impossible, to write. He once said, 'if you can preach, you can write'. I didn't believe him, but when I did, I found he was right. At the call of God, we sold our home and went to the city of Southampton and pioneered a work for God in 1946. In 1957 God again called us to move out into a wider field of ministry, in evangelism and bible teaching. My wife has been travelling with me until now and our ministry has been world-wide since 1963. Reaching into the Far East, U.S.A., France, Belgium, Canada and the Hawaiian Islands. There are many open doors for the future".

THERE ARE many things in this life that are seemingly wasteful, and there are many things that are actual waste. It is what we do not understand in another's actions that makes it so easy for us to be their judges and condemn what they do, instead of finding out the purpose of what they have done, or are doing. Condemnation of others and what they are doing or expressing can come in various ways; the commonest being jealousy and envy, ignorance and pride, and a false sense of values. If we profess any degree of spirituality we must at least find out the purpose of what is being done, the motivation of the act, and then, and only then, can we be a judge. Let us look at the whole picture here before us, for we will discover what was condemned by the apostles was commended by Jesus, because it is written: "When Jesus understood it". Jesus could have openly rebuked them, but He understood they did not see, what the Mary had seen. So where there is no light, there is no condemnation. Where truth breaks in upon the soul, and there is an outward manifestation of the recognition of that truth, then there is a commendation from the Lord. It is a remarkable fact that what the disciples sought to condemn and put down, Jesus commended; He put the act and the woman in the plan for the declaration of the gospel, not only then but for all time; as long as the gospel was to be preached this woman's act was to be declared unto all nations, and unto all generations.

The Purpose

They asked, "To what purpose?" For three and a half years that group had followed Jesus. They had listened to His teachings, yet they had heard so little. This woman too had listened to many of the same teachings, but she had heard. She had sat at His feet and had got hold of the truth, while others were too busy, too involved in other things which, though they may be necessary, are not important. Even she had been condemned by her sister Martha, who said she was wasting time when she could be lending a helping hand in the kitchen. But it was ~~there too~~ that Jesus had defended her by saying, "Mary hath chosen the good part".

It was not that she was idle, she had evidently fulfilled her obligations, but now she wanted truth, and she found it. What was the purpose of the outpoured ointment? Ah! We preachers surely miss it when we talk about the fragrance, the value of the ointment: neither of these is of great importance to the incident; it was the purpose of the outpoured ointment. She had learned what all the others had failed to grasp. Jesus was about to die, Yes! but He would live again. They all would be anointing a dead Christ; she would anoint a living Christ! She had seen the truth of the resurrection. She had listened and heard Him say, "I am the resurrection and the life". She now knew what He meant. All the others would miss it, she now believed that He would rise again. That is true faith; it believes before the event takes place. So the real purpose of Mary was to be in time with a living sacrifice to a living Christ. And He knew why she had done it. Let it be known — one believed — tell the world — without the resurrection there can be no salvation.

To those disciples looking at the natural, yet seeing only the material side of the act, it was a waste. Had Mary poured out the ointment in the confines of the home, to make the home fragrant for His coming, that would have been a waste, the attraction would have been to the fragrance and the home. Had she poured out the ointment on her own body to prepare herself for His presence, that would have been a waste; she would have drawn attention to herself, and not to Him. If we fail to distinguish between what is natural, and what is spiritual, we shall be giving adulation to the natural, and calling that which is spiritual a waste. In the past few years, travelling many thousands of miles in many countries, I have made a revealing discovery. After careful observation of that which is happening in many churches, I have noticed that the churches that are progressing the most, and the assessment is not because of numbers in these churches, that is part, but only a part, are the churches that are the most free in worshipping and praising the Lord.

The gifts of the Spirit are also manifested. There are those who still, like the apostles of old, would say, "To what purpose this waste?". Should we carry this further and paraphrase what they further said, "For this ointment might have been sold for much, and given to the poor". "This excess might have been better used for the witnessing to lost souls and other services in the church and out of the church". But I hear the Lord saying again, only in different words, "Let them alone, they are doing a good work, they are rejoicing in the fact that I am alive for evermore". This is no waste, this is worship. The strange thing is that wherever this so called 'waste' occurs, souls are being saved in nearly every service. Baptismal services are held each week, bodies are being healed, and believers are filled with the Holy Spirit.

The real waste

There is a waste and a real one too. It is in the lives of those believers who have known the blessings of worship and praise to God, and yet those lives today give little, if any, audible praise to God in the church. What we give out we do not lose, and more is given unto us; this is a spiritual law. What we shut up and hold, we lose, and this is the real waste. How is it then brethren that when we are in our conferences we really worship the Lord, often with upraised hands and with the singing in the Spirit and also with the understanding? How is it that it is often missing in our local churches? This is a waste indeed! To what purpose this waste? To gain the acceptance of men and movements? To be fashionable and known as a sociable church? Let us be done with such a waste. Let the gifts that lie within be stirred again. Let us begin afresh to praise and worship Him. He is still alive today. "Where the Spirit of the Lord is there is liberty". Are we afraid of wildfire? Surely men of God who know the Word of God are able to deal with this in the right way. Let us watch that we do know the difference between the real and the false. There were great praisings and shoutings on the final day when Jesus entered into Jerusalem. The Pharisees would have had it stopped, but Jesus commended them when He said, "I tell you that if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out".

There can be no doubt that we are in the final days of this dispensation, and we are about to see His coming again. Is it not right and proper that there should be a revival of praise and worship at such a time as this? The King is coming! God is looking for a people that will praise Him. "He inhabiteth the praises of Israel". The angels were praising Christ when He was born. The mighty host were praising Him when He ascended up on high. When He had gone the disciples were in constant worship. "And they worshipped Him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy: And were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God". The one hundred and twenty were praising the Lord when the Holy Spirit was outpoured. Was it all a waste? No, the real waste is to have a song in your heart and not to sing it. To know we should be worshipping Him and being silent. To know that the lifting up of our hands is scriptural and refuse to do it. To count the clapping of the hands as of the flesh. Indeed this is waste. To what purpose our waste: to produce a church that is formal and unproductive in souls, to have lives that are cold and static? That which man calls waste God calls worship. If we will pour out before Him, He will pour out upon us, and He will build His church as He has promised. Someone has said that the word worship means extravagant love and extreme submission. That was Mary's act that day. What is ours going to be? Let us not be guilty of the real waste, but be willing to have men call our extravagant love to Him a waste, but we, and He, will know it is no waste at all, but worship to a living Christ.

Thanksgiving

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

NO-ONE likes being ill and having to remain indoors, retire to bed or spend time in hospital. It is a lonely and miserable time when one is cut off from one's friends and playmates.

In Luke 17 we read of nine Jews and one Samaritan who had been brought together by sickness. These men had leprosy and the foul disease had made them outcasts. The law forbade them to come within one hundred yards of healthy people and demanded that they wear a long white garment and carry a bell around their necks so that they would be instantly recognised as lepers. Without homes, without friends, these ten men were forced to wander the countryside in search of food and shelter. As they walked down a lane one day they saw a man coming towards them. Immediately they waved their hands in the air and shouted, "Unclean! Unclean! Keep away!"

The man paid no attention. He walked on.

"What does he think he's doing?" said one. "Doesn't he know he'll catch the disease if he comes any nearer?"

"I wonder if it's Jesus?" said another, hopefully. "Oh, if only it were the Great Physician Himself!"

As the man drew near they recognised Him.

"Jesus!" they cried with one voice. "Jesus, have mercy on us!"

Jesus filled with compassion when He saw their thin, diseased bodies. "Go and show yourselves to the priests," He told them.

How could they do as Jesus commanded? Their bodies were covered in sores and it would be simply asking for trouble to present themselves to the priests like that.

But Jesus never asks people to do things which would lead them into trouble, so, even, as He commanded them the miracle happened — the sores disappeared from their bodies and their pale skin grew rosy-red. The cure was complete.

The nine Jews ran as fast as they could. They could not wait to be given a clean bill of health from the priests. The Samaritan, however, turned back. There was one thing he wanted to do before he showed himself to the priests, he had to thank the One who had healed him. With tears of gratitude in his eyes he whispered, "Thank You, Jesus!"

Many people forget to thank the Lord Jesus when their burdens have been lifted and their prayers have been answered.

It makes the Lord Jesus very happy when we remember to say "Thank You" for all the blessings He bestows upon us.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

19. The hardening of Pharaoh's heart (Exodus 9:34—10:1)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

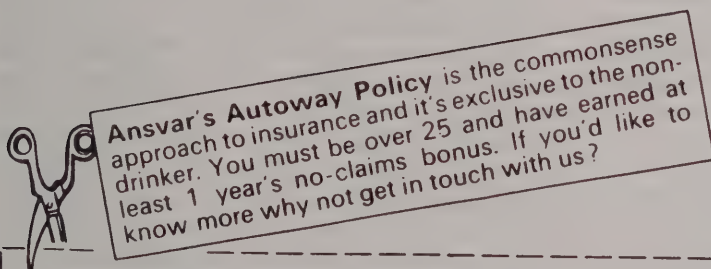

PHARAOH was not ignorant of the word and power of God, for he had constantly heard this word from Moses and Aaron, and that word had been confirmed by many acts of power. On several occasions, when in distress, Pharaoh had promised to obey the Lord, only to harden his heart and break his promise as soon as the trouble was past. Each time Pharaoh hardened his heart it became more difficult for him to repent until, finally, he passed the bound set by the Lord — the Lord Himself hardened Pharaoh's heart and repentance became impossible.

There is a similar case in the New Testament. For more than three years Judas Iscariot was a constant companion of the Lord Jesus; he had heard His wonderful words and had seen His mighty acts. Yet Judas made up his mind to betray the Lord Jesus! The Lord plainly warned him of the terrible outcome of his betrayal, but Judas persisted and finally accomplished his wicked intention. Judas did eventually change his mind, but it was too late, he could find no way back and committed suicide.

It is always dangerous to harden oneself against the Lord. In great mercy He pleads with us by His Holy Spirit and we know that we should repent of our sin and turn to Christ for cleansing. Many folk will not obey, they put off repentance and behave as if God will leave the door of mercy open forever. Yet the Lord has set a bound, beyond which is eternal ruin; He warns that men cannot come to Him unless the Spirit draws them (John 6:44); so when the Holy Spirit no longer convicts a person of sin they are hardened beyond remedy. Friend, have you been rejecting the Word which God has spoken to you? Will you turn to Him now while He still pleads with you, before it is too late?

Points for Preachers

by J. Alexander Wright

AN OUTLINE THE BEGINNING

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth". Genesis 1:1.

1. "In the beginning" contradicts the eternity of matter.
2. "God created" refutes Atheism.
3. "God" (One) knocks over Polytheism.
4. "God" precludes Pantheism (that matter is not separate from God).
5. "Created" forbids Chance ("the fortuitous course of atoms").

The first five of the great first "ten words" present a complete denial of the false philosophies of the ages.
(from God's Living Oracles by Dr. A.T. Pierson).

TITLES "THE REVEREND. . ."

The Right and Very Reverend William Stannard, Dean of Rochester, is anxious that all such titles be abolished. He calls them "superfluous reverendness". Few people know how to use the title correctly, anyhow. Common is, "Rev. Jones". This is like calling our late great Prime Minister "Sir. Churchill". The Christian names or initials must always be included, unless you substitute "Mr." where you don't know them. A story is told of the late Archbishop, Lord Fisher, conferring with certain important deans as to how they should be addressed on a particular occasion. "What did His Grace suggest?" Courteous and terse and as humorous as ever the Archbishop is reported to have said, "Well, brethren, the only thing I can think of is that you should call yourselves, "Rather Reverends!"

A POEM ONE SOUL

If there's only one soul in the wide world today,
That some word I could utter would win;
If there's only one life on the dark downward way,
I might turn from the follies of sin;

Let me carol my song for that one lonely heart
With its burden of sinning and strife:
Let me bring but a smile for the tear-drops that start—
Feed one soul with the true Bread of Life.

For the King did not say, "As to many you've done
The Divine deeds of kindness and love",
But He said, "Inasmuch as you've cared for the one,
You shall dwell in My Kingdom above".

And I think when I rise to that City of Light,
And its Master and Maker behold;
That one gleam of the glory that bursts on my sight,
Will be one I have led to the fold. (F.E.P.)

From a Pastor's study

Boy with a telescope

by A. Nicolson,
Pastor of our
Southend-on-Sea Church

THE CHILDREN'S campaign was drawing to a close. Every night over a period of ten days crowds of youngsters had gathered to hear Uncle Frances and his co-evangelist. One of the most popular features of the campaign was the clever use of two ventriloquial dolls. It was the thought of the follow up meetings which had prompted my query concerning an item to replace the very popular dolls. "You do it", said uncle David, "I see you have a doll in the front room". It was true; one of the young men of the church who was a trainee manager in the local branch of Woolworths had given me one which had been dressed up to look like a rather sporty parson. I spluttered rather than spoke. "Mmmme! You must be joking!". After a good deal of persuasion and the promise of some tuition I agreed to have a go. It was decided to dress my doll in a kilt and call it Jock.

This was the moment of truth. The sound of the bagpipes from the hidden tape recorder faded out and I began my conversation with Jock. The item was short and Jock made a number of friends. It was the following night that I almost shirked the challenge for I had just put Jock on my knee when I spotted a young lad with a toy telescope which he had raised to his eye, he was determined to watch me at close range. Afterwards he said to me, "Mister does your doll really talk?"

You can get away with a lot of things at a distance but it is the close scrutiny that really counts. David says in Psalm 26:2, "Examine me, O Lord and prove me; try my reins and my heart". Believe me, dear reader, the Lord does not view things from a distance. In 1 Samuel 16:7 we read, "But the LORD said unto Samuel, Look not on the countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the LORD seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the LORD looketh on the heart". To use the words of a modern advertisement, IT'S THE CLOSE-UP TEST.

Ready for anything

THE LESSONS of life are brought to us from unexpected sources. Such was the case on the Salisbury Church Sunday School outing to Swanage. Two mishaps took place during the day but God graciously protected His own in each instance. What could have been a day of tragedy became a day which closed with a prayer of thankfulness to our loving caring Father.

Gathered round our large red Sunday School banner, parents, teachers and children, were relaxing happily on the beach enjoying the sunshine and the pleasures of sea and sand, when almost too late, it was discovered that a little four year old, new to the Sunday School, had fallen in the sea and failed to regain her footing and was floating half submerged in the water. Brought to the shore by an observant bather, our newest Elim missionary Miss Joy Bath, calmly and with admirable efficiency expelled the sea water from the child's lungs, administered the kiss of life, and so saved a previous little life.

The rest of the day's programme passed happily and uneventfully until the Sunday School party returned to the coaches for the journey home. Triumphantly the first coach turned and advanced towards the exit of the parking area. An ominous lurch warned us that all was not well, the coach ground to a standstill and you have guessed — a flat tyre! Immediately the three coach drivers went into a huddle and male teachers and fathers gathered round. Operations began, but the wheel refused to budge. The tools provided in the coach for such an emergency were useless to loosen the wheel, those offered by the driver of another vehicle were also of no avail and even the arrival of a maintenance van complete with mechanic and more tools did not solve the problem. At last an outsize spanner was brought from the coach depot and the nuts were loosened and the wheel was changed.

Thankful to be travelling home at last I reviewed the day's events and realised once more that everyday happenings can so often illustrate spiritual truth. How imperative it is that we are trained and equipped to meet life's disasters and emergencies. Our dear Joy was prepared and able to render valuable help at a time when every moment counted, for a little life was in jeopardy. The coach drivers were held up because of the lack of essential equipment and so time was wasted with a resultant delay. I remembered too how the driver of our coach expressed thankfulness that the incident occurred before we commenced our journey and not when we were out on the open country road where it would have been difficult to obtain assistance and we could have been stranded for many hours.

The motto of the Boy Scouts is, "Be Prepared," and I think it would be a good one for all Christians as they travel the road of life. There are many emergencies that can face us, there are many folk in need. It is well for us to ask ourselves, could we at a moment's notice point a dying soul to Christ? can we efficiently handle the Word of God so that we can lead another into the assurance of salvation before he or she enters eternity? So many Christians, alas, seem to be like the coach driver, and always need to call for someone else to give assistance and cope with a difficult situation.

Have we the necessary knowledge of the Scriptures and sufficient faith and strength to bring comfort, guidance, healing and salvation to those overtaken by trouble and sorrow along life's road? It was a pity that the coach driver carried equipment which was inadequate. The injunction given to Timothy is a wise one, "Do your best to present yourself to God as a man of sterling worth, a workman who has no need to be ashamed of his work, a sound expositor of the true word" (2 Timothy 3:15 Barclay). If we follow the appeal of Paul to the Colossians and "Let the Word of Christ dwell in us richly" (Colossians 3:16), we shall be adequately equipped for every situation.

I think that we all long to be so filled with the Spirit that when faced with administering the words of eternal life to a lost soul we do not hesitate. Constrained by love divine we can and must seek and save those in peril. People in real need do know when we care and can bring to them the peace and salvation provided by our Saviour.

Some people today, like Jonah, would deny the truth that God's justice includes compassion.

Jonah and the 'whale': a tale for today

By RUSSELL J. FORNWALT

WHEN YOU HEAR the name Jonah, do you think of a whale? Most people do.

Jonah's experience is one of the most dramatic and poignant of Biblical stories.

However, according to the Bible, Jonah was swallowed not by a whale but by a big fish: "Now the Lord had prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah. And Jonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights" (Jonah 1:17).

Of course, to mistake a "great fish" for a whale is no misfortune. But it could be a misfortune to treat the Book of Jonah as simply a "fish story."

You will recall that God told Jonah to go to Nineveh and warn its people to turn from their evil ways. Yet Jonah took the first ship going in the opposite direction.

The real question for the spiritual-truth seeker is not whether Jonah could survive 3 days in the belly of a fish. It is: Why did he run away?

Jonah refused to help the people of Nineveh because he judged them to be unworthy. He wanted to see the wicked punished. As God's prophet he knew they would not be destroyed if they really changed. Jonah fled not only his duty. He fled God's compassion.

Jonah was inflexible. He preferred the punishment of the wicked to the possibility that they could not change. He wanted God's decrees to be final, not influenced by human endeavors. He seemed to resent and resist the reality of a basic principle: It is never too late to turn from evil to good.

Ultimately Jonah realized he could not run away. When he was released from the big fish, the reluctant prophet went to Nineveh, accepting his mission.

As Jonah had feared, the people of Nineveh heeded his warning.

The king himself fasted and sat in ashes, declaring, "Let everyone turn from his evil ways and from the injustice of which he is guilty. Perhaps God will relent, and we shall not perish."

Because its people turned from evil ways in true repentance, Nineveh was spared.

As you may know, great significance is attached to the Book of Jonah in the Jewish religion. It is read in the synagogues on Yom Kippur, the most sacred day of the Jewish year. It is a day which climaxes 10 days of repentance and of turning.

The Book of Jonah is an important tale for our time. It is about us.

Nineveh and Jonah are very much alive.

Injustice is everywhere. We see it on all fronts: social, racial, economic, and political. Many people everywhere try to run away from God and from compassion. Many judge others as being doomed or completely unworthy of salvation.

Like Jonah in flight, some would rather see the corrupt trapped forever than absolved and rehabilitated!

They would rather wallow in anger and resentment or succumb to despair than reach for and celebrate the healing powers of repentance and renewal. They would deny the truth that God's justice includes compassion.

As the people of Nineveh perceived, repentance is not easy. It is much more than remorse.

They were not saved because they said they were sorry. Nor were they saved because they wore sackcloth and fasted. Rather, "God saw what they did, how they turned from their evil ways. . . ."

God extends a welcome to all transgressors. He is ready to embrace those who turn in repentance.

As we read and study the Book of Jonah, we can embrace the possibility of renewal and discard the inevitability of destruction. We can exchange cynical despair for resolute hope as we pray both for ourselves and for all the Ninevehs of this world.

We can rejoice in the glorious fact that we are human, yet with great spiritual endowments. We are not robots. We can turn in repentance; we can cleanse our souls. It is never too late for us to change.

There is corruption in many places. There is malice in people's hearts. There is prejudice and greed.

But as we survey today's sinful scene, let us consider the words of Ezekiel: "As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live" (Ezekiel 33:11).

Monday, August 19th

Job 15:1-16

"Hast thou heard the secret of God, and dost thou restrain wisdom to thyself?" (v.8).

ELIPHAZ censures Job for justifying himself and imputes statements to him which he had never made. Job had only said that he had some understanding as well as his friends, but Eliphaz implies that Job thinks he alone has the inner ear of God. Is not this the mistake many of us make? Some copy Eliphaz, albeit unknowingly, misquoting those they consider their rivals, in order to prove them wrong. Perhaps if we honestly recognized that no single group has a monopoly of truth, we would all benefit spiritually.

Tuesday, August 20th

Job 16:1-17

"I would strengthen you with my mouth and . . . assuage your grief" (v.5).

JOB'S PARADOX "miserable comforters" was apt, for his friends' words instead of bringing relief only aggravated his condition. His sick state was perilous enough without the addition of mental and spiritual conflict. Job told them that had their positions been reversed he would have spoken words to alleviate their suffering, to strengthen their spirits and restore their confidence in God. As children, when reviled, we chanted, "Sticks and stones may break my bones but names will never hurt me". As adults we should realize that whilst unkind words can't cause fractures, kind words can do much to assist the healing of the body, mind and spirit.

Wednesday, August 21st

Job 19:1-12, 23-29

"I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth" (v.25).

JOB believed in God the creator of heaven and earth. Somehow Job learned of a life after death. Was it a word of wisdom to this man God had called upright and perfect? And what else but a revelation by the Holy Spirit could give Job the precise knowledge that in the last days God Himself would stand upon the earth as his Redeemer, that when his decayed flesh was resurrected Job would actually see Him? After this visitation Job's discourses were quieter and less complaining.

Thursday, August 22nd

Job 23:1-17

"I have esteemed the words of his mouth more than my necessary food" (v.12).

IF HE had to choose between earthly and heavenly food then Job chose the latter. This is a lesson we should do well to learn today. Jesus said that men should not live by bread only, but by God's word.

We store up food in larders, refrigerators and deep-freezers, but do we lay up the scriptures in our hearts as plentifully? Is the Bible study meeting less, or more important than our evening meal? In times of church apathy, national apostasy or personal agony, Bible-based fasting can bring results where prayer alone has failed. Let us value our daily portion from the Bible more than we do our necessary food.

Friday, August 23rd

Job 28:1-28

"The fear of the Lord, that is wisdom; and to depart from evil is understanding" (v.28).

TO WHAT trouble men go to procure the riches of this world. They tunnel into the heart of the earth and turn over every rock to find a nugget of gold or a precious stone. God places wisdom above rubies, whilst we would pay a fabulous salary to any person who could solve our economic problems and bring us all greater riches. What is this wisdom which transcends all earthly wealth? It is a deep respect for the might of God and a simple trust in His love and justice which motivated us to cease from wrong-doing. Here is the free answer to all our problems straight from God through the mouth of Job.

Saturday, August 24th

"His candle shined upon my head and . . . by his light I walked through darkness" (v.3).

MICHAEL ANGELO made a paper cap to which he fixed a candle for sculpturing at night. By this means the light always shone clearly on the part of the statue upon which he was working. In looking back on his past life Job recalls the guiding light of God within his family circle and in helping widows and orphans, and as a magistrate in judging evil men. The respect paid to him by all men, good or bad, reflected his wisdom, his justice and his mercy. In the darkest situations the way before him was always clear, for God was the candle that shone from his head. May the Light of the World illumine our path.

Sunday, August 25th

Job 30:1-23

"But now they . . . have me in derision" (v.1).

THE last chapter told of the honour and esteem shown to Job when he was a man of substance and authority by princes and paupers alike. "But now" things and people have changed. His putrefying flesh causes men to shun him and his poverty makes those avoid his company who once enjoyed his generosity. Worse, those he had punished for their evil ways now return to revile him as a fellow felon. But now Job accuses God of similar inconstancy towards him and blames Him for his present position. Men are still fickle, but not God.

Presidential Perspective

SALISBURY

by George Canty

ENGLAND'S tallest spire tops every roof and makes one feel that Salisbury may be said not so much to have a cathedral as to be one. Nearby Stonehenge remains after three and a half thousand years and, as one Salisbury lady suggested to me, there is the gloss of the unchanging over the whole community of some 36,000 souls. It is an "Anglicised" town.

The Presbytery decided to concentrate my visit for ten days in this one place.

Perhaps Elim's current President — with a penchant for abandoning the pulpit to thump on the front pew and, when in the pulpit, breaking the ancient decorum by painting sermons in oil colour — was not the best man to get the correct perspective of a cathedral city, despite his having served in one for sixteen years.

The Holy Ghost didn't seem to mind, however, and the people certainly didn't mind the Holy Ghost, including the "Anglicised" visitors. We wound up several nights in free style, hands raised, everybody praising the Lord in other tongues, and the "strangers within the gate" didn't take it as strange.

Having happened on Salisbury for one meeting last year, I unexpectedly received a bubbling conviction that this is where the Lord would show His hand. He certainly did. But my vision of the crowds was not realised as the campaign was short and publicity had to be limited.

Far from coming away feeling my spiritual dream had not been made concrete, I felt an even greater expectation.

My enquiries revealed that Salisbury has never known a great Pentecostal success. There were never the great crowds as elsewhere, but . . . I'm just waiting. My first feeling was that the large Elim Pentecostal Church would be packed, but the move of God in my thinking will eventually fill the vast Cathedral, one of the most cavernous buildings I've ever seen.

To talk this way may seem incautious and over-enthusiastic. Well, I've certainly not written or talked this way about any other place, though perhaps that was only my lack of vision. In Salisbury I got that odd feeling that the tide had turned. What Elim has (and has been timid about sometimes?) is the only hope in the moral or rather immoral climate of our land. The manifestation of the power of God not decorated with our human dignity and pride proved to be totally acceptable in the measure that we were able to sample the public in this town. This cross section were not cross, but glad when they saw the Lord.

No Elim Church could wish for a pastor more completely given over to its progress than Gerald Ladlow. Despite frightening discoveries of brick and wood rot, he has gone on to decorate and put into full operation a whole complex of rooms and halls in this centrally-placed church, backed up 100% by typically dedicated members. Things can happen here. Let's all pray that such a vision will be realised and, as it happens there, as it will, we shall be encouraged to look for it elsewhere.

A testimony to Divine Healing

—Philip Haverly of our Selly Oak Church

"Offer the sacrifices of righteousness, and put your trust in the Lord" (Psalm 4:5).

WE RECENTLY had a visit to our church from Carol Horner whose own miraculous healing is known throughout the Elim Movement. I went to the service purely as a member of the Alton Road Fellowship without any idea of going forward for healing. However, the Lord spoke directly to me through Carol's ministry at that meeting — I was to trust in the Lord and he would heal me. You see, I had suffered from double vision and migraine for over twenty years and had been attending an orthoptic clinic and a migraine specialist in Birmingham until I was told that nothing further could be done, and that I would just have to live with it. Towards the close of the service Pastor Woodfield asked that only those who felt called to go forward for healing should go to the front.

I felt definitely called and I went to the front. Carol Horner and Pastor Woodfield laid hands on me anointing me with oil and Carol prayed for healing for me in the name of Jesus. I felt as though something miraculous had happened to me. I went to my home and thanked the Lord in faith for my healing.

Two days later in a moment of relaxation on a busy day I broke off for a cup of tea and almost subconsciously began to do my exercises with my finger coming forward towards my eyes. I could only see one finger (not two as previously). I really could believe it because the Lord had said He would heal me and I had trusted His word.

Now after four weeks I have not had one sign of double vision, no stabbing headaches or disturbances of vision which produced flashing lights and being only able to see part of a printed page.

My testimony is to God be the glory for he hath done all things well. He is willing and is able.

Editorial

It is particularly gratifying to an Editor to receive letters from time to time from people expressing their appreciation for articles that appeared in this magazine. To our writers in particular it is a great thrill to be able to feel that their ministry is able to reach such a large and varied audience through the printed page. Both the Editor and his contributors are pleased to receive correspondence from our readers and it is about this that we wish to speak.

Letters to the Editor that are intended for publication should first and foremost be brief. Letters that are typewritten usually stand a better chance of being noticed for sometimes a good argument has been lost because it has been impossible to decipher the writing! Anonymous letters are never published.

Every writer who puts his name to an article already decided that he is open both to criticism and suggestions by the mere fact that he has signed the article with his own name. The Editor does not necessarily agree with every single statement made by any writer but it is our policy to publish those things that are in general agreement with our fundamentals, and our general doctrinal position. On matters on which there is a divergence of opinion, freedom of expression is permitted within, of course, the normal limitations. On reading this through it sounds rather formidable but we assure you that it is not; we simply write for your help and guidance, we really do want to be of help and assistance to our readers, and we are always interested in hearing any news that you may care to pass on to us.

Yours sincerely in Christ,

Desmond W. Cartwright

CARDIFF

Pastors: R. Hunston and J. Dick

ABOUT 200 Crusaders and their guests enjoyed hot dogs, gospel songs and testimonies around a roar-in fire at their annual barbeque. The gospel was preached by Pastor John Glass at a mountainside site overlooking the city. The whole evening was enjoyable and sincere as young people told of their experiences with Christ.

Church Elder Brenys Thomas, Crusader Secretary for some thirty years, has retired after watching the branch grow to a body of more than 100 young people. He was given a Bible and a pen at a presentation during a weekly Crusader meeting. Mr. Thomas has put in hard work to build up the branch into one of the largest in the country. His successor is 31 years old Kevin Tugwell, an active member of the Crusader Committee for some time.

ALISTAIR FORREST

SHEFFIELD

Pastor: A. Brooks

PASTOR and Mrs. Brooks have just celebrated the first anniversary of their ministry in Sheffield. To mark the occasion the visiting speaker was Dr. Noel Brooks, a cousin of our minister, who is on holiday from America. The Saturday service was informal and opportunity was given for testimony by those who had received special blessing under Pastor Brooks' ministry. Dr. Brooks challenged us to examine ourselves as to our growth in grace.

On Sunday evening the sisterhood secretary made a presentation to Mrs. Brooks on behalf of the ladies and the Church Secretary presented Pastor Brooks with an executive case. Presentations were also made to the Sunday school scholars who had entered the Scripture challenge competition. The previous Superintendent, Mr. D. Scott, returned to Sheffield to present certificates and gift tokens. The scholar with the highest marks also received a cup. The teachers formed a choir and sang two pieces.

J. GREGORY

LUTON

Pastor: J. Bristow

WE recently joined with the Luton Assembly of God church for a service, where seven of our young people followed their Lord through the waters of baptism. Two of the young men have only been saved a few months. One of them Michael Heritage, had married Jenny, one of the girl candidates only three weeks previously; they were baptised together, what a wonderful start to a married life.

On the previous Sunday, we had a wonderful communion service and also an after-church meeting where the Lord's presence was felt in a real way and many of the candidates received a special blessing from God.

At the baptismal service our Pastor gave a challenging message on what it means to be a true disciple of Christ. Mr. R. Follows our church treasurer gave every candidate a verse of scripture before each confessed their faith and were baptised by Pastors J. Bristow and C. Whittaker (A.O.G.). There was a wonderful spirit of praise on the service as we witnessed these young people obey the Lord.

The service was concluded by the congregation heartily singing the hymn, 'Jesus Will Lead Me Night and Day'; the Holy Spirit took control of the meeting, making it almost impossible for our church secretary Mr. J. Weston to close in prayer.

GREENOCK

Pastor: R. Lighton

FOLLOWING the new year convention when we enjoyed the ministry of Pastors T.W. Walker and S. Beresford, activity was centred on preparation for our four Sunday schools' prize-giving. The church Sunday school invited Greenock's top man, Provost James Boyd, to present the prizes and also say a word to the scholars and their parents. The programmes for the various schools were much appreciated with all the rehearsal and activity behind the scenes. One competition worthy of mention was the 'European song contest' at which scholars were invited to make up a chorus set to a pop tune.

We look forward to the new session resuming after the holiday.

DURING THE last few months we can really say we have seen a new move of the Lord amongst us.

At our ladies' weekend we were delighted to have Mrs. T.W. Walker who spoke to us on the complete love of Christ and on our duty as His followers. The messages were accompanied by solos from Mrs. J. Smyth and Mrs. M. Goldingay, bringing a beautiful presence of the Lord into the services.

On Sunday evening our own ladies portrayed Calvary in word and song. Our Pastor's wife spoke and again the Lord blessed.

We have also held our Sunday school anniversary which was based on a lightship. The children were excellent and many parents heard the gospel from their own children. Our outing soon followed to Belle Vue Zoo and we were thrilled that some 150 attended.

It was also our pleasure to have Pastor and Mrs. Chapman with us just before their departure to Africa. This service was combined with a baptismal service. One of the candidates had been marvellously saved only a few weeks before. God is so good even when our faith is small—all praise to Him.

GUILDFORD

WE WELCOMED Pastor H.A. Court from Brighton to conduct our gospel fellowship service recently. This month Pastor Court completed 50 years in the Elim Ministry, and he thrilled us as he took for his text the words "Amen and Hallelujah" from the book of Revelation, and told us something of his experiences over the years. His zeal and enthusiasm for the work of God over the years have not diminished, and we pray that he may have many more opportunities to tell of the Saviour who has so blessed him over the years.

The following poem was written by Mr. Court:

PENTECOSTAL BLESSING

A band of people sought the Lord
With keen intent—of one accord.
Their heartfelt prayer to heaven soared
For Pentecostal blessing.

A sound from heaven was God's reply:
The Holy Ghost came from on high.
His power brought the people nigh
For Pentecostal blessing.

God's messengers declared the Word
And showed them how in sin they erred;
Salvation's truth the people heard—
That's Pentecostal blessing

Conviction settled on the crowd
And from their hearts they cried aloud;
Then low in penitence they bowed—
What Pentecostal blessing.

The message pricking in their heart
Caused willingness from sin to part.
Then God His pardon did impart—
A Pentecostal blessing.

Their lives were changed on that great day
They served the Lord—went on to pray—
And of a truth could gladly say—
We've Pentecostal blessing.

Their natures new—no longer mean—
They lived for others—motives clean.
By all around was plainly seen
True Pentecostal blessing.

Book Reviews

More Modern Parables by S.E. Petts, published by Henry E. Walter Ltd., price 70p, postage and packing 8p extra.

THIS BOOK has been written as a help to busy school teachers in order that they may have a useful source of material for morning devotional sessions. Using no more than three pages at a time the writer gives a theme, a hymn, a Bible reading and an apt illustration. The story given is very easy to remember as it is always uncomplicated and can be readily grasped by the hearer. The lessons cover every season of the year and could be easily adapted for use by church workers. There are one or two illustrations which are just a little too personal to the writer for one to re-use, but on the whole it is a very handy book for workers with young teens.

Ivan Potts

Jungle Doctor Picture Fables, by Paul White, published by The Paternoster Press Ltd., price 35p, postage and packing 8p extra.

THE three books, "Reflections of Hippo"; "Famous Monkey Last Words"; and "Donkey Wisdom" are suitable for younger children. The excellent illustrations by Peter Oram make them extremely interesting for this age group. The books have a dual purpose — they can be used as just an ordinary story or the biblical moral can be applied with the aid of the cleverly designed bookmark. They would also be suitable for use in Sunshine Corner meetings, using the illustrations as a visual aid.

Mary Clarke

Men of Purpose, by P.M. Masters, published by Henry E. Walters Ltd., price 75p, postage and packing 9p extra.

VARIETY is the spice of life! If you want it here it is. This book reveals tremendous changes. Firstly, how some men have changed the face of the world. Secondly, how God has changed the lives of great men. We read about scientist, manufacturers (Heinz 57), composers, missionaries, hymn writers, brewers, journalist and poets, electrical engineers, even the man who wrote Robinson Crusoe, all these and more became Christians. A very good book for the elderly, says my wife, who are grateful for what God has done in and through people. For the young? Encouragement and spiritual stimulation. I say it reverently, it's a thriller to read, to see what man has done for us and what God has done in men, and still does.

The Father's Business

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

WHEN Jesus reached twelve years of age He was old enough to make the trip to Jerusalem for the feast of the Passover, the yearly festival to remind the Jews how God had saved them when they were slaves in Egypt.

Jesus was very excited as He set off with His parents and all the Nazareth friends and neighbours. He had heard so much about the great city and at last He was to see it for Himself.

When He entered Jerusalem He gazed in wonder at the sight before Him, the hills filled with tents, like a huge army camp, the streets filled with people, all with one purpose in mind — to worship in the temple.

One day during Passover week, Jesus slipped unnoticed from His parents and wandered through the temple. From a window He saw the courtyard and the Rabbis who met there to teach. Jesus walked over and sat down to listen. He stayed until late in the night and the following morning He was back again, eager to hear all they had to say. As He sat talking with the greatest teachers in the land, asking His questions and learning all He could, the dull village life of Nazareth seemed far away. He even forgot about His parents who had been searching frantically for Him.

They were relieved to find Him safe and well, and were most surprised to see Him so occupied and interested. "We've been so worried, Son!" His mother said. "Why didn't You let us know where You were?"

"Why are you so surprised, mother?" Jesus exclaimed. "You should have known I'd be here — about My Father's business".

What a strange answer. His mother could not understand what He meant. Do you think that with all the exciting and wonderful things happening around Him, Jesus had begun to realise why He felt differently from other children? That there, in that great city, it had begun to dawn on Jesus just who He was?

Jesus was sad when the time came to return home to the dull Nazareth village, but Jesus was only a young boy and that dull village life with its carpenters shed and its school was to be His Father's business until the time came for Him to begin His great work for you and me.

This story is the only one we are told of Jesus as a child. I am sure it was told to teach us that our work at home, our lessons at school, and all the helpful and loving deeds we try to do each day, is our Father's business we must do for Him while we are young.

Prayer and Praise

by F. H. Coleman

I WAS in a meeting the other week where two people prayed; one was a young man who had been recently saved. It was a thrill to hear him pray with the enthusiasm of a young convert; he had launched out into public so early in his christian experience.

The other person to pray was a lady who had been saved for many years and whose prayer lasted for over ten minutes; yet both had something in common. They were not definite. They did not ask for one single thing in any definite way. Jesus said: "Ask and it shall be given you". He intended us to ask for something, and we are promised it will be given us.

Brigadier S.L. Brengle, noted for his books on holiness, says: "Mr. Finney tells the story of a church that was in continuous revival for thirteen years. At last the revival stopped, and everyone feared and questioned why, till one day a tearful man arose and told how for thirteen years he had prayed every Saturday night till after midnight for God to glorify himself and save the people. But two weeks before, he had stopped this praying, and then the revival had stopped. If God will answer prayer like that, what a tremendous responsibility rests on us all to pray".

How weary we get when people are indefinite. Go into a shoe shop. Ladies seem to have the shop out and then cannot decide on the shoes they want and leave without making a purchase. People cannot make up their minds about a holiday, although a dozen travel books lie open before them.

Let us be business-like with God; let us be definite in our praying.

We conquer when we yield

By RICHARD D. EXLEY

THE LOCAL NEWSPAPER recently carried a picture of the fighting between the Syrians and the Israelis. It showed a handful of soldiers from one side surrendering with hands held high above their heads. It was a picture of defeat.

I thought of a song that's sometimes sung in our churches, a song of submission; but it's a song of victory. It goes like this:

*Submission to the will
Of Him who guides me still
Is surety of His love revealed:
My soul shall rise above
This world in which I move;
I conquer only where I yield.*

The Scriptures exhort us: "I will therefore that men pray every where, lifting up holy hands" (1 Timothy 2:8). Whatever else the lifting up of our hands before the Lord may signify, it is an act of surrender. It is a way of saying, "Lord, I give up. I yield my will to Yours."

And when we make this surrender we become conquerors. Conquerors of self. Conquerors of sin. Conquerors over every circumstance that would rob us of true happiness.

Our age has been called "the age of anxiety," for it is characterized by depression, despair, and a dependence on tranquilizers. People want their own way. They feel entitled to "do their own thing." Their goal is personal freedom.

But do they find the freedom and security they seek? No. All they get are ulcers and emotional breakdowns. They're guilt-ridden, victims of hang-ups. They're still insecure. They can't shake off their fears.

What's wrong?

Someone has said, "When a man lives entirely for himself, he soon becomes obnoxious to himself." This is our trouble. We're so intent on getting ahead, on succeeding, on having our freedom, that we've left God out of our plans.

Christ showed us the way. "Not my will," He told the Father, "but Your will be done."

Can't you picture Him there in the garden of prayer? His holy nature shrank from taking the world's sin upon His sinless soul. Yet He knew there was no other way we might be saved, so He yielded to the Father's plan. I can imagine Him lifting His hands in final surrender and saying, "I give up. I yield. Not my will, but Yours, be done."

The problem with us is that "the carnal mind is enmity against God" (Romans 8:7). Human nature is at war with God and must surrender before there can be spiritual victory.

Not only that, but human nature is at war with man himself. We have inner conflicts and frustrations because peace eludes us. The Apostle described this conflict in Romans 7:22, 23: "For I delight in the law of God after the inward man; but I see another law in my members warring against the law of my mind...."

This war ultimately will produce death: "For to be carnally minded is death." Our only hope lies in giving up the struggle, ending our rebellion, and surrendering our will to God.

I wonder why human nature stubbornly insists on going its own way when all the evidence shows the futility of such a course.

I don't know why we cling to those personality traits and personal habits that keep hurting us. Perhaps it's because it's all we have. It's hard to believe that God knows best. It's frightening to let go, to turn one's self and one's future over to God.

But the truth is that God has our best interests at heart, and we need to believe it. We simply must find the courage to let go of ourselves and trust in the Lord. It's our only hope.

Louis Cassels, the UPI religion editor who passed away recently, made this New Year's resolution: "I resolve to set aside time several times a day to get alone with God, because I've discovered with my self-will that surrender once a day is not enough."

Remember the words of the songwriter: "I conquer only where I yield." There's no other way.

'What difference does it make if you don't know it by heart?'

By NORMA E. EASON

THE FIRST TIME the question bothered me was a Sunday morning when I was substitute teacher for a senior high class. When I asked the class to repeat John 3:16, not one student had a vague idea what the words were.

How could this be? Here was a roomful of young people who had attended church most of their lives, and yet they could not repeat this meaningful passage from the New Testament.

I tried to hide my embarrassment. I asked what Bible verses they could quote. The Lord's Prayer was about the extent of their Biblical memory work.

"People don't memorize things anymore," one girl said. "If you understand the meaning when you read it, what's the difference if you don't know it by heart?"

Before I could answer, another student asked about memory work when I was a child in Sunday school. After I had explained how much emphasis was placed on it, someone asked how it had helped me.

"Well..." I began, "I still can recall many of the verses and Psalms."

"Does that help you in any way?" one alert young girl asked.

My voice was drowned out. Literally I was saved by the bell. I could not have answered that girl's question. I didn't know how it helped me to be able to quote passages from the Bible. All I knew was that it was important for me to be able to know it by heart.

Later I talked with persons involved in church or school education. I received about the same answer from each.

"We don't place much emphasis on memorizing. It takes too much time. It doesn't seem to be helpful. We'd rather the student be able to discuss the matter he has read than to recite it verbatim."

I might have forgotten the matter if I hadn't discovered how rusty my memory had become. I began reviewing passages I once had known so well. Sometimes a newer version was more appealing; at other times I found the first versions more meaningful.

Looking back, I think the enjoyment I derived from knowing so many Bible verses was mostly vanity. But the day came when knowing it by heart was of vital importance to me.

It was a warm summer afternoon. I was setting the table for an early supper. If we ate just as soon as my husband came in, we would have time for a long walk or to work in the yard until dusk. I reached over for a serving dish in a lower cabinet and a viselike pain grabbed my chest and back. I gasped, reached for the edge of the table for support and eased myself into a chair.

The pain worsened. It took great effort for me to call to my young son, explain how ill I was, and instruct him on calling our family physician. Before he had made the call, my husband came in. Moments later, I was on my way to the hospital.

When we arrived, an efficient crew of trained personnel was waiting in the emergency room. My own doctor arrived. Soon all sorts of tests and X rays were made. During all this time I was not given anything to relieve the pain.

Every single breath and movement was a new torture. With the first pain I had begun to pray. I prayed that my husband would arrive home early. My prayer was answered. I prayed my doctor would be available. My prayer was answered. Then I prayed, "Dear God, help me breathe; help me breathe." This prayer sustained me through the ordeal.

The next morning I was still extremely uncomfortable. My doctor explained it was too early to know exactly what had caused my pain, so he was going to give me some radioactive medicine (radioisotope) that would help diagnose my problem through use of a nuclear scanner.

Later that day my biggest task was to lie perfectly still while the isotope and scanner did their work. When the attendant had my body in the correct position, he said, "Now, don't move a muscle. You may breathe, that is all. This will take 20 minutes. If you move, we will have to do it over. You'll be here at least two hours."

Have you ever tried to lie perfectly still on a hard table in an uncomfortable position for even 5 minutes? Only a few minutes had passed before I was extremely miserable! If I didn't find some way to conquer my mind and body, I would find it impossible to lie still for 20 minutes.

I thought an hour had passed when the attendant said, "We're half through this one. Only 10 more minutes."

I was persuaded I could not lie still another 10 minutes, even though my life was somewhat dependent on it. I tried all the things I could remember that were supposed to help you control your mind. None worked. I was ashamed to pray.

Then, at the very moment I was rejecting the idea of leaning on God, He gave me my most needed support—the Bible verses I remembered from my youth. I would repeat them mentally and let them help me overcome the silly tricks my mind was playing on me.

I began with, "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want..." I don't remember what I concluded with. I did repeat many of the verses to fill the time.

At 15- and 20-minute intervals the attendant changed my position, told me I was a good patient, and started the scanner working again. It was finished in a little less than two hours.

Soon my doctor knew why I was suffering. The scanner revealed pulmonary embolization.

And I at last knew why it had been so important for me to learn it by heart. It isn't enough to keep God's Word tucked away in a book, even if you do read it, study it, and ponder its meaning. It is far better to make the words a part of you, memorize the passages that are the most meaningful to you. You never know when you will need the wisdom and consolation of the words from the Bible; you never know when you will find yourself in an unbearable situation, in a place and at a time when you can't reach out for your Bible. But if you know some of it by heart, it will always be available to you.

If the young girl in that class were to ask me today, "Does it help you in any way?" I'd have a quick affirmative answer for her.

Evangelistic enterprise in the Midlands

A report by Ken Smith, Evangelistic Secretary for the Birmingham Presbytery and Minister of our Erdington Church.

K. Smith

REDDITCH is a small but rapidly expanding town south of Birmingham, and centre of the needle industry. Pastor Morrison, the district superintendent and myself have made contacts in the area over the past twelve months, encountering problems regarding establishing an Elim assembly in the town, as there is another Pentecostal work in the town centre.

Much to my delight, because a number travel from Redditch to their church, the assembly at Selly Oak (Birmingham) held a Saturday evening rally in the lovely palace theatre at Redditch. Credit must go to their minister and the deacons for their initiative; what a joy it was to see their young people taking part. It must have impressed Redditch people to see such a fine group of young folk. The talent in Selly Oak church is remarkable; the programme must have taken much time to prepare; to hear the young people, and the male voice choir ministering in such an evangelistic effort was grand. Their minister, Pastor David Woodfield, in his message, had the sense to be brief, and this was appreciated by some of the Elim folk supporting the rally, having to travel home. His message was simple, but just the sort for a pioneer effort of this nature. I was glad to hear that the local Assemblies of God Church supported the service, for we are not in competition, and as it is expanding so rapidly the area could well do with another Pentecostal fellowship, for Elim people in the area, and of course to win others for Christ. I sat by one lady from County Durham who was glad that the service had been conducted, for she, along with others, raised their hands at the appeal. I am pleased to hear that Selly Oak are planning a longer evangelistic effort in the town, and we trust that God's blessing will be upon it. This does point the way to expansion, when a local church gets the vision for outreach; Selly Oak already has Stirchley Elim Church to their credit, and Redditch, is a further evidence of their evangelistic zeal.

Art and the Gospel

by Robert Clarke,
N.D.D., A.T.D.

ABOUT THE WRITER:

Robert Clarke was educated at Leeds College of Art. In 1966 he took up the appointment as Art tutor at Fleetwood Grammar School and shortly afterwards, through the witness of a colleague, was converted. He is at present the Head of the Art Department at Fleetwood and also teaches Religious Instruction. He has taught at the Blackpool College of Art on a part-time basis and is the Pastor of our Marton church, Blackpool.

William Holman Hunt

THE PAINTINGS of William Holman Hunt have received a false appraisal both from abusive art critics and an undiscerning public. I feel that it is essential that Christians fully understand exactly what Holman Hunt and his Pre-Raphaelite Brothers were doing. I say this unreservedly simply because Pre-Raphaelite art is the basis from which nearly all 'Christian art' has developed. One has only to think of our Bible illustrations or the reproductions that have been found on our school room walls to realize that this is the case. It is surely not a question of whether the Christian is interested in art or not; the point is that the general public; of which we are part, has formed many of its false notions about the Christian message, not from the Bible, but from the subconscious influence of a debased Christian art! How else has society formed its impression of an effeminate Jesus? What is more, these "Gentle Jesus, meek and mild" pictures produce a feeling of nausea within the person of insight!

The movement originated as a protest against the establishment, which is termed the 'grand manner' and which Hunt and Millais regarded as having its origin in Raphael. Consequently their study centred around the pre-Raphaelite art of the Italian and Flemish primitives. They rejected what they considered to be a pompous attitudinising for the simplicity of nature and truth. A consideration of Charles Dickens's reaction towards Millais' 'Christ in the House of His Parents' will be helpful here. He spluttered with a vicious and almost incoherent rage because it had dared to portray the Holy family as ordinary living people.

As an art student I can well remember the intolerance with which the Pre-Raphaelites were treated. Even lately I doubt if most art critics would acknowledge anything further than that they "cleaned out the dingy cupboard of English art" (Discovering Art – Nineteenth Century, Number 6).

It was in 1854 that Holman Hunt achieved his first great success by the best known of all English religious paintings, 'The Light of the World'. It is an allegorical representation of Christ knocking at the door of the human soul, "fast barred, its bars and nails are rusty; it is knitted and bound to its stanchions by creeping tendrils of ivy, showing that it has never been opened. A bat hovers above it; its threshold is overgrown with brambles, nettles and fruitless corn" (John Ruskin – letter to The Times).

My own feelings towards his art are mixed. In the 'Shadow of Death', a picture of Christ stretching and casting His shadow against the far wall in the form of a cross, his contention is that Christ was born with the express purpose that He might die on a cross. I would endorse his view here although I feel that his handling of it is somewhat sentimentalized.

To my mind by far his greatest picture is 'The Scapegoat'. It was in 1854 that Hunt left England for Syria and Palestine in order to recapture "the facts of Scripture history". 'The Scapegoat' is a solitary outcast animal standing upon the shores of the Dead Sea. Hunt painted the picture on the spot, with a gun of his knee to protect himself from the dangers of the Bedouin, and an umbrella above his head against the scorching sun. "Though the tradition that a bird cannot fly over this sea is an exaggeration, the air in its neighbourhood is stagnant and pestiferous, polluted by the decaying vegetation brought down by the Jordan in its floods, the bones of the beasts of burden that have died by the 'way of the sea', lie like wrecks upon its edge, bared by the vultures, and bleached by the salt ooze, which, though tideless, rises and falls irregularly, swollen or wasted. Swarms of flies, fed on the carcases, darken an atmosphere heavy at once with the poison of the marsh, and the fever of the desert; and the Arabs themselves will not encamp for a night amidst the exhalations of the volcanic chasm" (Pre-Raphaelitism, by John Ruskin).

Contemporary criticism of 'The Scapegoat' is that it is unfeeling. 'The Scapegoat' totally fails to make use of the revolution effected by Edwin Landseer (to whom Hunt once thought of recommending the subject), through which animals could be made to represent human emotions, and it is finally inhuman because of its theme, the Jewish practice of driving a scapegoat into the wilderness, to take with it their sins into a place uninhabited and forgotten' (The Pre-Raphaelites – Timothy White, Thames and Hudson). To say that a picture 'totally fails' to make use of a principle which is contrary to the very nature of its goal seems to be me to an invalid remark. John Ruskin, the foremost critic of his day, appears to express the opposite sentiment: 'I can only, therefore, in thanking Mr. Hunt heartily for his work, pray him, for practice sake, now to paint a few pictures with less feeling in them; and more handling' (Pre-Raphaelitism, by John Ruskin).

To my mind this painting is free from sentimentality and is a perfect portrayal of the sending forth of the scapegoat into the wilderness, bearing 'the curse' to a place which is totally and irrevocably rejected.

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

THE one thing that really matters in the life of a Christian is God's will for our lives. This should be foremost in our minds. The Lord has a plan for every Christian. It may not be on a platform, but unnoticed, yet in God's estimate it counts, what He looks for is our faithfulness to the task in hand.

Sometimes we speak about God's perfect will and His permissive will. His perfect will is His highest and most directive purpose for our life; whilst His permissive will is that which he may allow, and yet not fully approve of. We have an example of this in Psalm 106:15 where, in speaking about the lusting Israelites in the wilderness, we read this:— 'God gave them their request (He permitted it), but sent leanness into their soul'.

In Psalm 143, the conditions for knowing and doing God's will are clearly set out. This psalm reveals an intense desire on David's part to know God's Will. 'Cause me to know the way wherein I should walk' (v.8). Too often when we come to God for guidance, what we are really seeking for is His sanction for our OWN plans. But David didn't dictate terms to God; he reported for orders. 'Teach me', he says in verse 10. And then comes the heart of the whole matter — 'Teach me to do Thy will'. On our part there must be a willingness to DO God's will whatever it may involve. We must act on the guidance that God gives us, otherwise all that we say about God's will for our lives will be empty and vain.

20. No compromise (Exodus 10:25-26)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THE manifestations of Divine power were breaking Pharaoh's will, his resistance was gradually crumbling. Plagues of hail and of locusts had devastated his country, even his own advisers were saying: "Let the people go". Pharaoh called Moses and Aaron and made an offer to them; the men, women and children could leave Egypt, but they must leave their herds and flocks behind.

Moses immediately saw through the not too subtle reasoning of Pharaoh. First, Israel could scarcely sacrifice to God without animals! Second, the animals were their wealth and sustenance, and the people would probably refuse to leave Egypt without them — and if they did leave, their desperate poverty would soon drive them back. Third, Israel's flocks and herds could be used to replace those lost by the Egyptians in the plagues, and would thus prove to be Egypt's salvation. Moses at once rejected Pharaoh's offer and declared: "No compromise!"; Israel would leave nothing behind. Deliverance would be delayed but Israel could afford to wait. Egypt could not.

The Lord Jesus said: "Where thy treasure is, there will thy heart be" (Matthew 6:21). This is a truth which Satan knows well, so he persuades men that this life is what really matters and that reality is that which men can grasp and possess now; so their life is spent constantly trying to obtain more "things". Sadly, Satan is deluding many Christians in the same way; they may have been redeemed, but their treasure is still in 'Egypt'. Their time is so fully occupied with the affairs of this world that they have no time to give for the business of God's kingdom. The call of God is to yield all we have and are to Him (Romans 12:1); we have to live and work in the world, but we do not have to give our affection to it. We are to be separated from the pull of the world by the counter-pull of eternity, we must acknowledge the supreme claim of His Kingdom and His righteousness (Matthew 6:31).

It's hard to bully someone who is—

Not afraid to die

By RUTH COPELAND

SILENTLY A MASKED FIGURE emerged from the shadows between the buildings and pressed the cold steel gun against Harry Sutton's back.

"Awright!" the assailant hissed between his teeth, "just turn around and walk real quiet-like into the alley!" When his intended victim hesitated, he added, "Six bullets in this gun say you'd better do as you're told!"

Harry began to laugh—right out loud. The near-hysterical peals of his mirth echoed up and down the empty street. "Go ahead and shoot," he said; "you'll be doing me a favor. My doctor says I'll die from cancer in six months anyhow!"

The shocked gunman snapped the safety latch on his gun, dropped it into his pocket, and retreated into the shadows.

It is hard to bully a person who is not afraid of death!

Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego were not afraid to die. "Kneel before the image or be burned to death" was the king's command. But those young men could not be frightened into idolatry. "We don't even need to think this over," they replied. "Our minds are already made up. Our God is able to deliver us; but if not, we will not serve your gods." Death had no power over them. They could not be bullied.

Daniel could not be pressured into abandoning his thrice-daily devotions to God by the threat of being eaten alive by lions. The fear of death had no power over him.

Paul was not afraid of death. En route to Jerusalem, the city that had crucified his Lord, he replied to the tender arguments of friends for his life and well-being: "I am ready . . . to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus!" Paul was a free man. The fear of death had no power over him.

Many Christians live constantly under an unhealthy fear of death. This puts them into miserable bondage. Shakespeare said it like this: "Cowards die many times; the valiant die but once."

Every believer needs to realistically face the fact of death and prepare himself emotionally for it.

Left to our own resources, all of us would be cowards before the threat of that last great enemy. But the Lord Jesus Christ turned on a light in the valley of death for those who truly believe in Him.

It was for this purpose that He partook of the very same flesh and blood of which we are made. "Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil; and deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage" (Hebrews 2:14, 15).

We may dread the physical pains that may accompany death; we may be reluctant to have our life's work terminated or to part from our loved ones. We may even be dismayed at the prospect of "going to sleep" (another term the Bible uses to describe the believer's death), for the same reason that some of us never like to give up at night and go to bed.

But we can trust Christ to deliver us from an unhealthy fear of death. Like David of old, let us ask Him to help us say, "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me."

GLEANINGS

Living water

by S. E. Petts

"If any man thirst, let him come unto Me and drink." (John 7:37)

EVERY year Jews went up to the temple for the feast of tabernacles, which lasted a week and included two Sabbaths. Its purpose was to commemorate the forty years in the desert when the children of Israel lived in little tents. Each day during the feast there was a procession led by the priests from the temple to the pool of Siloam to collect water. This was intended to celebrate the occasion at Meribah when, almost dying of thirst, their ancestors were given water from a rock by God, through a command from Moses. The procession returned with Siloam's water in a golden urn. As the priests poured out the water at the altar they hoped that Joel's prophecy that "a fountain should come forth out of the house of the Lord" would come true at this time. Others, conscious still of a spiritual thirst, despite the temple ritual and services, thought that this prophecy might have a spiritual interpretation. On the eighth day, as the libation was offered for the last time for another year, all paused in dramatic anticipation; it was then that Jesus broke the silence with the words of our text. The fulfilment of the prophecy was in Him, the living water. He went on to say that those who drank from Him, out of them would flow a fountain of living water, even the gift of the Holy Spirit. Just as we need to feed on the strong nature of Christ, we also need to drink of His Holy Spirit. Both are essential.

How great is the Cost?

IT IS A far cry from the six cities of refuge of which we read in Numbers 35 to the church of Stratford-sub-Castle in Salisbury and yet there is a link between them.

Separated by distance and many centuries, they have one thing in common, they all offered sanctuary to the hunted and to the unintentional murderer. I visited this beautiful little church dedicated to St. Laurence which nestles at the foot of the iron-age fortress on which the Castle stood, and close by the site of Salisbury's first Cathedral. It was so peaceful surrounded by green meadows, and magnificent trees, an old grey flintstone building with its red roof and clock tower, it was steeped in history. Older than the present cathedral, it is a silent testimony to the value of the Christian gospel and to the tender compassion and mercy ordained by God to be granted to the sinner and the fugitive. Surely it must never be forgotten that so many of our wise and humanitarian principles stem from the laws of God as found in the Bible and this little church has stood for almost 700 years as a witness to the all-embracing mercy of God.

On entering the church I learned even more of its history and discovered not a link or similitude but a great contrast. First of all I read the detailed account of the additions to the church made by Thomas Pitt, one of Britain's most brilliant statesmen and prime minister at the age of twenty-four. The ancestor of such a famous man was a great lover of the little church and lived close by. His most spectacular gift was the church tower with its one-handed clock. He made sure that his good deed was never to be forgotten. There for all to see, carved in the stone front of the tower in very large lettering is the inscription:

THOMAS PITT ESQ.
BENEFACTOR
ERECTED ANNO. 1771

As the vicar of the church said rather cryptically, one wonders whether the tower was built to the glory of Thomas Pitt rather than to the Glory of God! In contrast I gazed with interest at the bust, of St. Laurence an early Christian of the third century. This plaster cast copy of a sculpture by Donatello carved in 1440 which is still to be found in a Florentine church, roused my imagination even more so when I read the history of this man. One time Archdeacon of Rome, it seems that he was responsible for the treasures of the churches in the city. The prefect of Rome called upon him to surrender them but he asked for three days grace. Hurriedly he distributed all the gold and silver to the needy people in Rome. On the third day he collected the poorest Christians, the halt, the maimed and blind and presented them to the Prefect "Here are the treasures of the Church of Christ" he cried. For this act of defiance he was condemned to death and finally martyred on the gridiron on August 10th A.D. 258.

Digressing for a moment, I remember my daughter Rosemary as a small girl carefully cutting off the haloes on some paper angels she was to paste in her scrap book. When questioned about this she explained "Daddy doesn't approve of haloes!" How easy it is to assume that the early saints were hardly flesh and blood but just pale remote figures in stained glass windows or carved in stone.

I gained the impression just standing there in the quietness of the sanctuary, of Thomas Pitt, rather self-important, perhaps complacent, secure in his home and sincere in his allegiance to the church, proud of his gift to the church building. What a contrast to the life of Laurence, Archdeacon of Rome, a man of triumphant faith who dared all for Christ. It is recorded that his fortitude and serenity during his martyrdom won many converts to Christ.

Without appearing to judge may I ask a pertinent question, how real is our allegiance? Is it to a church building, a fellowship, or does it go deeper and centre in Christ alone?

Script of a talk on Tyne Tees television
Theme: Why I catch people

The one that got away

by Adrian Hawkes

A COUPLE of stories for you tonight. One night I was in a coffee bar that the crowd from my church often went to. I got into conversation with a young man who told me that he was most impressed with our young people. "Well they seem to have something that the rest of us haven't got — what is it? I'd like it".

I told him that some years before I had realized that the person in charge of my life was me! — I suppose that if we were really honest most of us would admit that it is we ourselves who run and plan our own lives. The same went for me. I wanted my own way, even if I wasn't terribly aggressive about it. Someone, once said to me, "Are you a Christian?" — Sometimes when people ask that sort of question it either annoys or embarrasses us; perhaps it was because I was not as old then as I am now, but it both embarrassed and annoyed me. I went to church, didn't I? I sang the hymns too; in fact I was quite a good chap; at least I thought I was anyway, even if others didn't. The point is", my questioner persisted, "who is in charge of your life? I was I supposed. "Well", went on this person, "to be a Christian, you need Christ in charge". At the time, as I have said, I was annoyed by the questioner, but I went away and thought about the question. And then I wanted to know: how do you put Christ in charge of your life? "That's easy," I was told, "you just ask Him to take over". That night after chewing it over all day I crept up to my bedroom and said, "Lord Jesus, take charge of my life". I don't suppose people noticed a fantastic change in me, but I had changed, I knew it inside, for I had a greater confidence and assurance; I suppose you could say a peace: "the peace of God". I don't know if it showed on my face; perhaps it did or does, anyway this young man had noticed something.

After I had told my story, I said, "Do you think I'm pulling your leg?" He said, "No I don't, I think you're serious, I think it's real". "Well", I jumped in, "Wouldn't you like to experience it too?" Then came the crunch "Yes", he said, "I would, I think it would work, I think it's real. But my mates would laugh, and I wouldn't be in charge of my life, and I want to please myself how I live and what I do".

He was one of the most honest people I have ever met, but that night anyway I didn't catch him for Jesus Christ, He got away. Jesus had something like that happen to him. A rich man came to see Him one day and asked him how to obtain eternal life. Christ told him to sell all he had and follow Him; in other words to put someone else in charge of his life, namely Jesus. The rich man, we are told, went away sorrowful. I think my friend did too. I think that he, too, missed out on peace, contentment and real joy, although of course he was still at liberty to please himself. Pleasing one's self is not always the attractive thing it first appears to be — pleasing Jesus Christ is far more satisfying.

Selected

From C.H. Spurgeon's, Eccentric Preachers, quoting on the life of Jacob Gruber famous early American preacher: though he was sometimes severe in his criticisms of young preachers, he always entertained for them a fatherly affection, and sought only to correct their errors.

A young preacher, desirous of improving his style as a pulpit orator, and having great confidence in Mr. Gruber, wrote to him for advice. The young man had contracted the habit of prolonging his words. Deeming this the most important defect in his elocution, Gruber sent him the following reply:

Dear—Ah! Brother—Ah,

When—ah you—ah go—ah to—ah preach—ah, take—ah care—ah you—ah don't—ah say—ah Ah—Ah

Yours—Ah

Jacob—Ah Gruber—Ah

Job 31:1-23

"If . . . mine heart walked after mine eyes" (v.7).

BEFORE the commandment not to covet was made known by God, Job was already aware of its dangers. What the eye sees the heart usually covets. John sums up sin in three phrases, "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes and the pride of life". Eve our common mother fell by it, and to a greater or lesser degree all mankind has followed after her. But Job looked so much to God that these never took root. His eyes were fixed upon things eternal so that his heart did not covet earthly things.

Tuesday, August 27th

Job 31:24-40

"If I have made gold my hope" (v.24).

THERE is nothing wrong with money. It is the love of it that is the root of evil. The more we have of it the more we want, because we see the luxury and ease it brings. This causes us to love it more. Love grows into worship and that is idolatry. The more we trust in wealth the more we are bound by it. It fills our vision and obscures our God. Jesus said how hard it was for a rich man to get into heaven. Let us, like Job, recognize that it belongs to God and use it only in godly ways as faithful stewards.

Job 32:1-22

"There is a spirit in man; and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding" (v.8).

WHAT a wise young man Elihu was. Yes, sometimes the young are wiser than the old. He listened quietly to all the aged ones had to say though it went on for days. He didn't interrupt, though he often felt like it; he had respect for these leaders of the community. When it was obvious that they had exhausted all their arguments without convincing each other and had nothing more to say, then he made his beliefs known. Wisdom is not only accumulated with the years, it is given to people of all ages who open their minds to the inspiration of the Holy Spirit.

Thursday, August 29th

Job 33:8-33

"God is greater than man. Why dost thou strive against him?" (v.12).

ELIHU gets to the root of the disputed matter at once. Job may well be righteous in God's eyes, but this does not give him the right to question God's judgment, or complain at the degree of hardness which God seems to have dealt him. God is almighty; but because his ways are past finding out it doesn't follow that his intentions in permitting sickness and sorrow are necessarily signs of his anger. On the contrary, God often permits illness in order to teach mankind the need to submit to His sovereignty and in their acquiescence they find health and peace, patience and greater trust. To accept God's will is to find eternal happiness.

Friday, August 30th

"Where wast thou when I laid the foundations of the earth?" (v.4).

THOUGH Elihu had not convinced Job, he had prepared the way for God to speak. The judge will always have the last word. A whirlwind makes Job realize the greatness of God in the works of nature. Could he, Job, create the earth, the seas, the skies, the stars, cause darkness to flee or rain to fall? No, but God did. As he considers how much he is subject to the laws of nature which God alone created and controls, he begins to realize his own insignificance, his presumption in judging God's government, and his need to trust every part of his life to the Almighty. Look long at God and humble yourself.

Saturday, August 31st

"Knowest thou the ordinances of heaven; canst thou set the dominion thereof in the earth?" (v.33).

THOUGH we may have discovered some of the laws by which the universe works, we are totally unable to make the heavenly bodies influence the earth to our advantage. If each person were able to command sunshine and no rain for his holiday, the earth would soon become an unproductive desert incapable of supporting life. What a good thing it is that God alone established the seasons. Only He can make the spring cold by binding the gentle influence of the Pleiades, or warm up the winter by loosing the bands of Orion. Let us not question God's government of a world which He alone can control.

Sunday, September 1st

Job 39:1-12, 19-30

"Who hath sent out the wild ass free?" (v.5).

THE wild ass has liberty to roam at will, to avoid noisy cities, to disregard the call of drivers. The domesticated ass, however, has no freedom, can only go where it is driven and has to labour in the service of man. But the wilderness provides scant pasture and the wild ass may go hungry for days and is open to the ravages of the elements; meanwhile the labouring donkey has food in plenty provided for him, and a crib in which he can rest and shelter secure even in the wildest storms. Should Job desire the assinine liberty to govern his own life at the cost of a loving Master's wise providence? Freedom lovers consider.

THE incident I have to tell you today concerns a ha'penny. Not the tiny half penny of our new money, but the larger sized coin which was of less value and has now been withdrawn from our currency. I still have one or two of the old coins in my possession and I never look at them without recalling the amazing true story which centres around one such little piece of filthy lucre.

The value of the old ha'penny was exceedingly small. There were twenty-four of these in one of our old shillings. In value it was worth two farthings and, in case some of my younger readers do not know, allow me to inform you that the farthing held the smallest value of all the coins of the realm.—I can well remember the day when, as a child, I would sometimes be given a farthing to spend. The village sweet shop did not offer a wide range of choice for such a small amount, but it did provide something. One could always buy a farthing 'everlasting strip', a long thin piece of toffee, suitably wrapped in grease-proof paper and which, in spite of its name, did not last very long. The ha'penny, of course, would buy two of these goodies. It was of trifling value.

Now in the early days of our Bridge Street fellowship, like all other churches, we had to handle the old money in our Sunday collections. Great crowds would attend the meetings and the offerings in those days always consisted of a large amount of copper and small silver. It was always a massive task counting the money and preparing it for the bank. I can still see in my mind's eye the many five shilling bags of copper, the little packets containing ten shillings in small three-penny pieces and the slightly larger envelopes which held one pound in sixpences. What a job it was.

One of our Elders, a noble godly gentleman, performed the offices of Church treasurer for many years. Each Monday morning it was my privilege to join this brother in the vestry, to help him check the cash and to assist in carrying the proceeds to the bank.

I shall never forget arriving at the Church one Monday morning to find my friend in a state of unrest and concern. As I entered the vestry he said, "Brother, I'm glad you have come. I can't get the money to balance this morning". I remember asking how much he was out and to my astonishment he said "a ha'penny". He saw my amazement and immediately putting his hand on my shoulder, said kindly but reprovingly, "Brother Miles, this is the Lord's money and I want it to be right". He wasn't going to 'cook the books', not even for a ha'penny. As he had said, "it was the Lord's money" and it had to be correct right down to the smallest item.

These were the men who helped to lay the foundation of our Bridge Street fellowship. No wonder God has so graciously blessed us over the years. I have never ceased to honour the uprightness of that man of God. We soon traced the error and were able to clear up the difficulty. The treasurer's mind was at rest: the books were accurate to a ha'penny and my good brother was sure that was how it should be.

A builder, who was once a member of our Church, visited a building site as one of his workmen was using a plumb-line, and heard the man say "That's near enough". "Wait," said the builder, "near enough is not good enough for me. Either a job is right or it is not right; I want it to be right".

If a job or an account is only a tiny amount out of true, it is still incorrect. A small deviation is still a deviation and it may finish up a long way off the mark.

The Bible says, "He that offends in one point, he is guilty of all" (James 2:10). A straw can show which way the wind is blowing.

What a different world this would be if everyone was as careful and upright as our dear old treasurer was. You see, "it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful". (1 Corinthians 4:2).

The old Book still says, "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much: and he that is unjust in the least, is unjust also in much". (Luke 16:10).

The Elder who set such a high standard of uprightness and integrity that Monday morning, has left a lasting impression on my mind, giving me a fervent desire to "walk worthy of the vocation wherewith we are called" (Ephesians 4:1).

We write this Editorial after the downfall of President Nixon.

I remember some years ago that a young man told me that he had found a reference in the Bible to Edward Heath's yacht 'Morning Cloud' (Hosea 6:9). This was before the Watergate revelations, so I do not know what he would have made of the reference in Nehemiah 8:16. Just in case anyone should think that we ourselves believe that such trivial events have any prophetic significance let us say rightaway that we do not.

What we do observe, however, is that there is at the present time a widespread disillusionment with politicians in general.

It has been said that the central verse in the Bible is found in Psalm 118:8, 9.

It is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in man.

It is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in princes.

Christians today are placed in a particular dilemma, especially if 'the other party' happens to be in power. The Scriptures, however, give us very clear guidelines, in that they exhort us to be subject to those who have the rule over us, and we should pray for those who are our rulers.

It is sometimes far easier to grumble and complain about our leaders (which is our democratic right) than it is to pray for them. (1 Timothy 2:1 and 2).

Political scandals are not a new thing, but we should remember that Daniel that 'man greatly beloved', served in Babylon for many years in the highest position. However heavy the pressure of work was, he would get away to prayer 'three times a day'.

Whilst men 'run to and fro. . . . those who know their God, shall be strong and do exploits'.

CASHES GREEN

Pastor: R.J. Teague

IT WAS a warm, sunny Saturday morning, when pupils and teachers along with parents and friends met outside the church. The day had arrived for the Sunday school outing; this year Clevedon was the destination. It proved to be a happy day for all; organized games took place on the green, supervised by Pastor Teague and a band of willing helpers. After this and paddling in the sea the children were hungry. This was overcome as food and drinks were plentiful, thanks to the resourcefulness of Mrs. Teague and helpers, who had come well prepared. A visit to the gift shops was a must, then all too soon it was time to board our coach for home. The children say 'thank you' to the teachers and helpers for a day to remember.

B. BURFORD

SKELMERSDALE

AT our first Sunday school outing last month, we took the children and some of the parents to Southport Botanical Gardens. When we set out, it was pouring with rain, but when we arrived the Lord blessed us with beautiful sunshine for the remainder of the day. Parents and children enjoyed themselves immensely. Some thirty-four children and fifteen adults came along.

Though we have not many adult members, this being a pioneer work, the Lord has saved several children and baptised our treasurer's son in the Holy Ghost. Pray for us that this work prosper under His blessing.

Pastor: S. Renshaw

ONE OF THE miracles which Jesus performed was in the taking of five loaves and two small fishes in order to bless them, break them, and to multiply them. It is worthy of note that at the first meeting of the Elim Pentecostal Church here at Chippenham there were only five persons present.

Over the past five and a half years the assembly has been scattered in order to witness and thereby multiply the number of souls being won into the kingdom of God.

Pastor Ken Phillips has recently left this assembly to minister to the Lord's people in Armagh and we are sure that this is all in God's great plan. We thank God for his ministry and his patience with us. Much hard work has been necessary to prepare a hired hall before every meeting. Pastor Phillips has given of his time and talents unto the Lord in other ways too, running a bookstall in the local weekly Market, by speaking at the nearby High Schools and Agricultural College, and collecting chair-bound members of our assembly from the local hospital.

We are sorry to see him go, and yet we know of other 'passing-through' members of the Chippenham assembly who are now in Africa, America, and various parts of England, each one witnessing, and the Lord is granting the increase.

The Lord has been so gracious to us in adding members and then sending some forth, and we bless and praise Him for His faithfulness to us.

Our local papers carried a picture and report of Pastor and Mrs. Phillips with their son Stephen leaving for Ireland, and many have spoken of his courage, but "if God be for us, who can be against us?"

We are trusting God for the appointment of a new Pastor and the continued faithful sowing of His precious word.

ARNOLD TOYNBEE, the renowned historian, predicts the emergence of a new religion.

All the religious absolutes of the Western world are being attacked in this generation—including the Ten Commandments and the Beatitudes. They are challenged every day by screen, stage, business practice, and the campus.

The marriage tie is now thought to be repressive. "Thou shalt not covet . . . thy neighbor's wife" (Exodus 20:17) appears both restrictive and boring. Sexual freedom is in vogue.

Pulpits are twisting to fit the times. The mood for acceptance of the False Prophet, the high priest of end-time society, is becoming apparent.

"For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables" (2 Timothy 4:3, 4).

The expletive—and especially the four-letter vulgar adjective—on every page, every paragraph, assures a best-seller, whether the author is a solon or a pornographic "muckster."

The Bible still says, "Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God" (Matthew 5:8). But purity doesn't have commercial value in the world's marketplaces.

I have often meditated upon John's foreboding passage in the Revelation:

"And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and . . . of the beast, and . . . of the false prophet. For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto . . . the whole world" (Revelation 16:13, 14).

Frogs are amphibious, camou-

By C. M. WARD

flagged creatures of slime, who croak best in the darkness. This is an apt description of the slippery methods and the platitude-croaking of today's secretive politicians.

As never before the believer needs to beware of the quicksand of compromise. "Touch not the unclean thing" (2 Corinthians 6:17) must be impressed upon our hearts with renewed urgency.

Society is turning toward "situational morality"—behavior governed by circumstances instead of by what is Biblically right or wrong.

Those who chalk up exorbitant profits see no connection between their greed and the eighth commandment: "Thou shalt not steal" (Exodus 20:15).

A world system, rejecting the commandments of God and embracing covetousness, is getting ready to produce a christ of its own. Today's cry is not, "Give us Parabbas," but, "Give us business."

The peoples of the Western world once were held together by a common allegiance to Christian ethics. Nothing has yet filled the vacancy produced by their rejection of Bible principles.

Arnold Toynbee views "religion" as "a very useful cement." He sees pressures producing a new society. He says in Forbes magazine:

"Mechanized work is lucrative . . . but it is spiritually unsatisfying work; it's boring work. The work itself is hateful, and people do it only for the money they gain. Therefore they demand more and more money and live beyond their means. And you can't live beyond your income permanently. The money depreciates, and you are thoroughly frustrated."

The result could well be a policed, welfare state with a new set of moral attitudes and a new life-style.

Toynbee also makes a startling prediction: "To the question, 'What can we do for a new religion?'—it will come, but it won't be recognized in its traditional form when it comes."

Inflation has hit the Arab nations and Japan as well as the Western world. The corrosive influence of cheap and abundant money will sweep away the bands of Muhammad and Buddha as well as the bands of Christendom.

Toynbee suspects, "There are already world citizens running the world's economy because there isn't a world state to run it. I think this is the way a world political organization is going to come into existence. It is going to be anticipated by a world economic organization." These are the new directors and coordinators of traffic.

Toynbee concludes, "Local sovereignty is an illusion because you can't be economically independent locally."

The multinationals will sponsor an acceptable universal religion tailored to the times.

Peter has defined a "false prophet." He delineates this motivation: "Through covetousness shall they with feigned words make merchandise of you" (2 Peter 2:3).

The soil is suitable for such a false prophet today.

A Pentecostal family

IN 1936 one man bet another man half-a-crown that he would not go to an Evangelistic Meeting. The man confessed later, he was not really sober at the time, but money was very short just then, and most of it went either to the publicans or the bookmaker. That chance challenge was to have a very powerful effect. The man was wonderfully converted and he set about bringing up his family (he had six children at the time) in the way of the Lord.

His house was used by the local bookmaker who paid his customers their winnings from there every Friday, and for this service the man was paid the sum of ten shillings a week. Conversion meant that the bookie had to go, and so they gave him notice.

Mr. Bullivant never did get the half-a-crown, and the bookie said that he would miss the ten shillings, but to the glory of God he was better without any of this.

The Lord blessed and prospered him from that time, and within a short time he had started his own light haulage business.

Today he is not only Church treasurer but is treasurer for the Birmingham Presbytery, and most of his family are members of our Selly Oak Church.

Our photograph shows Mr. Bullivant together with most of his family, though there were eight others not present when the picture was taken. All except one of the adults have been converted. To God be the Glory.

It is impossible to reach the crowds in the open air today. Open air evangelism is an outmoded means of disseminating the gospel. The only people who attempt this kind of work are crackpots and religious oddities. Outdoor preaching is in disrepute. Nobody stops to listen to a street preacher anyway!

How often have we heard remarks like this. I used to make them myself. As a pastor I attempted a little open air preaching, but no one ever took any notice, or stopped for more than a fleeting moment to listen. Deep down in my heart I felt that I was largely wasting my time. An obliging brick wall was patient enough to remain where it was, but everything else passed me by. I was doing my duty, of course, but it was a very ineffective duty. It was not until I was introduced to the work of the Open Air Campaigners that God showed me that this ministry of outdoor evangelism could be done with great effectiveness; that tens of thousands of people could be reached with the gospel; that crowds small and large would stand and listen to the message; and that many would respond to the invitation given on the streets, the beaches, at parks, and on the fair grounds. The secret was in knowing how, in training, and experience with the right approach and modern equipment.

Out of some years of full-time open air evangelism I have learned, from observing the following procession of Ps. some unforgettable facts about this forgotten ministry.

THE

MINISTRY

OPEN AIR EVANGELISM

by Brownlow Carlisle

THE PATTERN

When we read the New Testament it becomes exceedingly clear that most of the preaching of the Lord Jesus Christ and of the early Christians was done outdoors. In the village streets, the market places, by the lakes and seas, at city corners and on country hill-sides, the multitudes gathered to listen to Him who spoke as no other man had spoken. Look at these statements taken at random from the Gospels — 'He went forth again by the seaside'; 'Jesus came into villages, or city, or country. . . .'; 'In the way. . . .'; 'He goeth up into a mountain' — and on that mountainside the most famous sermon in the world was preached. Every one of these references has to do with preaching by Jesus in the open air. In the Book of Acts it is precisely the same story.

Here is our pattern for evangelism, but we have reversed the divine order. We have built four walls around our Christianity; we have enclosed the gospel in bricks and mortar; we say to people, 'Come! This is where the gospel is preached. We can tell you how to get to heaven. We can show you how to be saved'. I have sometimes heard the prayer, 'Lord, send in some lost soul tonight that he might be saved'. Usually the prayer is unanswered because it comes from a disobedient heart. The divine command is unalterable — 'go ye — as the Father hath sent Me, even so send I you'. When we refuse to go to the lost, we cannot expect the lost to come to us. God certainly blesses any honest endeavour to bring people under the proclamation of the message, but the fact remains that God's order is to go with the gospel. Our task is not just to preach to saints in their seats, but to sinners on the streets. This is the New Testament pattern, and it must be our pattern.

THE PRESENTATION

The Church today uses modern buildings, modern equipment, and modern methods to reach modern men. This is as it should be. Precisely the same presentation should be made in the open air. God has given to the Open Air Campaigners an up-to-date approach with which to reach the masses for Christ. There are two great essentials for this approach — training and tools.

(i) TRAINING

It is an accepted thing that men and women entering full-time Christian service require several years of intensive preparation. Pastors and teachers must train and study under teachers who have attained high standards of proficiency. It ought to be the same for the open air preacher, but whoever heard of such a thing? It has never been given a moment's thought. 'Anybody can preach in the open air! Just go and do it!' Is it any wonder that so much of our street preaching is a travesty of real evangelism. In the open air the most thorough preparation must be given to every aspect of the task. An open air crowd is an unknown quantity. It may range from labourers to college professors.

The open air preacher must be trained in crowd psychology. He must understand the difference in the thinking of men at a factory and students at a university. He must be able to vary his approach according to the type of meeting he is conducting, whether beach or park, street or housing project, school or fair ground. He must be an expert children's evangelist. He must know how to handle hecklers, or the hecklers will handle him! He must be able to gather preaching materials and know how to use them. He must be trained in the use of the voice for outdoor preaching, and understand the effectiveness of music in the open air. He must be a song leader, a voluntary workers' director, a personal counsellor, a follow-up specialist. He must indeed be 'all things to all men that he might by all means save some'.

Training is therefore of the utmost importance. There ought to be a course in open air evangelism in every Bible school throughout the country. Every pastor and missionary would profit inestimably from such a study.

(ii) TOOLS

The best piece of equipment that the open air campaigner has is his gospel van. Its sliding platform and overhead canopy, fitted with lights, and where permissible, a public address system, is a mobile pulpit that only attracts attention, but enables him to move quickly from meeting to meeting. The platform enables him to command attention readily, and the van itself is a focal point for the crowd, not only forming a back-ground for the preacher, but hiding many of the distractions of passing traffic.

There are other tools that go with the van. As an attention-getter and crowd-holder, there is nothing to compare with the sketchboard, using either chalks or paints. No artistic ability is needed. Almost anybody can use one. For children it is a 'must'. It can be attached to the side of the van, or used independently for a beach or park meeting where the van cannot be taken.

Music is another tool. Almost any musical instrument that is portable can be used to the glory of God in the open air. The accordion is basic. Used with several other instruments and with rousing singing, the result is irresistible. Music is an almost infallible crowd-getter.

For children, gospel magic or a ventriloquist doll can be most effective tools.

The Open Air Campaigners' uniforms are another means that God has been pleased to use. Arising out of the war years in Australia when evangelists working in military camps were required to wear uniforms, they help to open doors for the gospel again and again. Officialdom recognises an organised approach, and the audience appreciate this too. Of course, not every open air preacher needs to wear a uniform.

So then, the use of tools, and training to use them effectively are aspects of the presentation of the gospel in the open air, the importance of which cannot be over-estimated.

THE PREACHING

It is by the 'foolishness of preaching' that men believe and are saved. Tools must never displace the truth. Methods must never overshadow the message. Gimmicks must never outshine the gospel. In the open air, preaching is all important. But what must we preach? After some years of outdoor evangelism I have found that there is only one answer to this. We must preach Christian Doctrine! There is no substitute for this. The man in the street is either totally ignorant of, or thoroughly confused about the great truths in which we believe. We must therefore preach them to him.

But herein lies an acute problem. If we simply talk about sin, salvation, redemption, the new birth, the cross, without explaining these terms, we have only succeeded in bringing greater confusion. These are almost like words from a foreign language to the 'outsider'. They convey next to nothing to the unchurched man or woman. We must therefore preach what we might call 'explanatory doctrine'. We must use these great Scriptural terms, but, we must tell people what they mean.

Take the word 'sin' as an example. What is sin to the average outsider? It is simply wrong doing — breaking the law. The phrase a 'life of sin' or 'living in sin' often means just sexual immorality. There is no sense of sin being an affront to Almighty God, an offence against His law, a rebellion against His will resulting in eternal separation from Him. The story of the Garden of Eden is simply that of a woman taking an apple off a tree. Why should God be so concerned about that? There is not only a misconception about the fruit, but about the principle involved in the disobedience of Adam and Eve. All this has to be explained everytime you preach about sin in the open air.

Take the word 'saved'. To the man in the street, this is just 'getting religion', turning over a new leaf; deciding to live a better life; or even joining the church. Sometimes it just conveys the idea of 'following Jesus' in a vague sort of fashion that is almost as far removed from the true meaning of the word as it possibly could be.

Take the phrase, 'the blood of Christ'. This is meaningless to the street crowd. We often sing, in the open air, the old gospel song, 'There's Power in the Blood'. 'What strange thing is this?', thinks our audience. So it is essential to tell of the sacrifice of Christ upon the Cross — His death in our place and His life given, using the Old Testament truth of the life being in the blood.

Even the word 'Cross' needs explanation. It has been emptied of all meaning today. It stands only as a sentimental symbol of sacrifice, set high on the spire of a church. It is worn on a chain around the neck, painted on the side of an ambulance, embossed on the cover of a prayer book, and keeps guard over a soldier's grave. To tell a man to come to the cross and be saved is foolishness to him until he understands all that Calvary means.

Yes, open air preaching must be doctrinal, but it must also be explanatory.

Concluded next week.

'Mommy, You Are So Different!'

A testimony from Canada

by Betty Rakoczy

About three years ago I developed stomach trouble but did not see a doctor for almost a year. Then my problem was diagnosed as a peptic ulcer. The doctor recommended a diet, ulcer medication and complete freedom from stress and strain.

A year of suffering followed with no relief even with the medication and I was referred to a specialist in Victoria. He seemed anxious about my condition, and after a stay in hospital, with a series of tests, he now told me that I had a large ulcer and many small ones. He consulted with my own doctor and they discussed what could or could not be done about it.

I became extremely discouraged. I did not even care to tell my doctor of other symptoms that developed. My four children came home every day to find me feeling very sick. The atmosphere in the home was very heavy. Everyone seems to be down when the mother in the home becomes sick.

Doubts and Fears

The enemy began to torment my mind with all kinds of doubts and fears imaginable. For instance, when the children left the house, I could see death waiting for them in every conceivable type of accident. I was weary of life and full of doubts and questions.

When my husband and children in kindness started to keep things from me to try to give me peace of mind, I sensed it, and it seemed to make matters worse.

Although I had been a Christian for some time, I was so low in both body and soul that I could not see a ray of hope. Every day I cried out to my heavenly Father, but I didn't think He was listening for I seemed to get nowhere.

Fake Front

I carried on my duties in the church as I had a part in the musical program. Many times I thought I would collapse but I kept up a fake front. Things got much worse and I began to take ulcer medication every half hour but didn't get any relief. I did not want an operation and finally convinced myself

I would see an early grave. When alone, I planned my funeral and I wondered how the children would grow up without their mother.

It was the day before Rev. S. R. Tilton came to visit our church that my mother said to me, "Betty, you just have to be prayed for." I thought, "I might as well even though there apparently isn't any help for me."

My pastor, Rev. H. W. Nettleton, spoke to Mr. Tilton about my condition though I hadn't really told him the half of it.

Compassionate Prayer

Sunday, November 18, I went forward for prayer. Mr. Tilton and some other brethren in the church laid their hands on me and with great compassion spent a long time in prayer for me. He told me all about my doubts and fears through the gift of the word of knowledge. He told me that the Holy Spirit would speak to me about my healing. I was very amazed and I don't know whether I believed him or not. I wept and wept out of sheer desperation for I did not feel one thing at that time.

It was two o'clock when I returned home. The family had not been with me. As I related what had happened there was both encouragement and also a "wait and see" attitude. But my little daughter was sitting at the table and said, "But Mommy, when is Jesus going to heal you?"

It was at that very moment the Holy Spirit spoke to me and said, "I have delivered your mind; I have healed your nerves; and your stomach will take care of itself." Exactly, those were the words. Why He said that, I will never know, as Jesus healed in a variety of ways when He walked this earth.

Miraculous Calm

Without saying anything more to my family, I went on with everyday living. After a day or two, I knew something miraculous had happened. I was calm. I had peace. The precious Holy Spirit had come to me in my hour of need.

After about five days, one of the children noticed and said, "Mommy, you are so different!"

Then my husband looked at me and said, "I know you have been healed."

I hadn't told them how it happened so I would know if they could see the "new me." Then when I began to tell relatives, they said I didn't need to tell them. They knew too.

I cannot explain the joy that overwhelmed me. I can never describe fully God's presence in my heart and life. It is just like being born all over again. I will lift Him up and give Him all the glory. Oh hallelujah!

The atmosphere has changed completely in our home. There is faith and trust in Jesus. He came into our home and made such a difference. My children threw their arms around my neck and we all rejoiced together. The people in our church have all rejoiced with me. God has given me a clear mind free from doubts and fears. I praise Him for healing me but most of all I praise Him for renewing a right spirit within me. My earnest prayer is that this testimony may encourage someone to believe God and that the Lord Jesus Christ be high and lifted up before all who read.

Rev. H. W. Nettleton, pastor of Bethel Tabernacle, Ladysmith, B.C., verifies the testimony of Betty Rakoczy as a real miracle. Her family and many others have been encouraged. Faith has been created also in the hearts of a number of recent converts to reach out and believe God.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

21. The greatness of Moses (Exodus 11:3)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

JOSEPH had been revered as the deliverer of Egypt because, by his wisdom, multitudes of people were saved from starvation, not only Egyptians, but also folk from surrounding nations, including Israel. Moses, however, was feared as the destroyer of Egypt; Pharaoh might rage, bluster and procrastinate, but his servants and people looked upon Moses with superstitious awe.

The truth is, of course, that Joseph and Moses were nobodies; Joseph was a despised slave in Pharaoh's dungeon, Moses a forgotten shepherd feeding his flock in the wilderness. It was the purpose and call of God which exalted them, and this was something of which they could not boast or take the credit. The Lord took them, made them the channels of His power; the glory which men saw was the glory of God revealed through human flesh, for in their calling they represented the eternal God.

You and I are engaged in a variety of daily occupations, yet all Christians share one common calling: we are to be witnesses for the Lord Jesus Christ. We must tell others the effect of His gospel in our lives and urge them to prove its power in their own. Our calling may not appear to be of great importance, certainly not as thrilling as that of Joseph or Moses, yet the same One who called them has called us also, and any work that He gives to us must be of immense value. Being His witnesses is surely the most wonderful of callings! God gave His only Son because He loved men and women, and His Son gave His life to bring them back to the Father's heart. Now the eternal God calls you and me to share in His mighty purpose by telling others the good news. Let us be faithful in our task as Joseph and Moses were in theirs, then people will see something of the beauty and glory of Jesus in us.

THE DEVIL

*Men don't believe in a devil now, as their fathers used to do;
They forced the door of the broadest creed to let his majesty through,
There isn't a print of his cloven foot, or a fiery dart from his bow,
To be found in earth or air to-day, for the World has voted so.*

*But who is it mixes the fatal draught that palsies heart and brain,
And loads the bier of each passing year with a hundred thousand slain?
Who blights the bloom of the land to-day with the fiery breath of hell,
If the devil isn't, and never was? Won't somebody rise and tell?*

*Who dogs the steps of a toiling saint, and digs the pit for his feet?
Who sows the tares in the field of time wherever God sows His wheat?
The devil is voted not to be, and of course
the thing is true;
But who is doing the kind of work the devil alone should do?*

*Won't somebody step to the front forthwith, and make their bow, and show
How the frauds and crimes of a single day spring up? We want to know.
The devil was fairly voted out, and of course
the devil's gone;
But simple people would like to know who carries the business on.*

The faith that moves mountains

by Gordon Wright, Cheltenham

"If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, remove hence to yonder place and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you" (Matthew 17:20).

What do you think Jesus meant by this statement? Because elsewhere the smallness of the mustard seed is the point of comparison, there is the danger of our reading this idea into these words of Jesus. A paraphrase of this verse incorporating the idea of smallness is often heard in prayer. If Jesus meant that faith as small as a grain of mustard seed can remove mountains, what a devastating effect this would have on those who stop to think of its implications. How crushingly discouraging!

But Jesus spoke these words to encourage us, to open our eyes to the glorious possibilities of faith, to show us the quality of faith He looks for in His followers. He said, "faith as a grain of mustard seed". not as small as a grain of mustard seed.

In likening faith to a grain of mustard seed, Jesus was telling us that faith is a living thing. It is like a plant rather than an engine, or building, or work of art. We can never put the finishing touches to faith as we can to one of these. We can never fold our arms in satisfaction because the task is finished. Plants need continual attention, and faith is no exception, as the disciples knew only too well. They had been given the power to heal and they had exercised that power everywhere, but when confronted with a demoniac boy they were alarmed at their inadequacy. Their faith failed. It was a shattering blow, but it taught them never to take faith for granted. The failure was a merciful act of Providence to save them from becoming self-opinionated about their faith; it opened the way for the Lord to give them an invaluable lesson on the development of faith. They listened meekly to all that the Master had to say and became maturer Christians in consequence.

Our faith may look no more imposing than a shrivelled seed, but if the quality is right, it has breath-taking potential; it can go on developing until it is capable of enormous achievements. Paul understood Jesus to mean this. Moving mountains was the climax, not the beginning, of faith. He wrote: "Though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains . . ." (1 Corinthians 13:2). Paul was well aware that mountains were not moved by a tiny faith, but by a strong, virile faith that had thrived on the adversities of life.

Events never run smoothly for those who would move mountains by faith. So Jesus taught His disciples the necessity of persevering faith. They had toiled all night without a catch and had all but given up. They were so near to achievement, yet so far! "Persevere!" cried Jesus. How easily they could have gone home disappointed and frustrated, had not Jesus been at hand to encourage them!

Have you heard the crescendo of intensity, have you seen the perseverance that refuses to waver until it has its object in its grasp, have you heard the resolution of Jacob "I will not let thee go, except thou bless me" in the words of Jesus: "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you" (Matthew 7:7)? It is certainly there, and those who would move mountains by faith must take note of it. They must never give up however great the odds against them. They must refuse to be discouraged.

We have no way of knowing if we have faith or not until a need arises that decides the issue; for faith cannot be assessed by cold circulations, but by our spontaneous reaction in time of crisis. The spiritual advisers of Naaman thought they had it. I say "thought" because it is easy to advise others to have faith and to act on faith; the crunch comes when we have to do it ourselves.

If we come to know God through His Word, we shall have little cause to fear the hour of crisis, even though at this moment we may have no evidence that our faith will be sufficient. Like love, faith does not vaunt itself, but quietly waits until it is needed for action.

It was like this with Gideon. Who would have thought that Gideon had the faith to rout the Midianites? When God said that if he was afraid to go alone into the camp of the Midianites at night, he could take his servant with him he did not need telling twice. Yet look at the quality of his faith! See what it achieved! Listen to the shattering pitchers! See the gleaming swords! Hear the trumpet blast! See the retreating battalions! Look at the victorious Three Hundred! Great God of wonders, the mountains are convulsed in panic!

God knew that locked up in the heart of Gideon was the faith that could move mountains. Others did not know, faith is not for display but for service. As you quietly trust God from day to day you will unconsciously build up resources of faith that will be equal to all emergencies.

I think that the biggest mountains are moved by concerted effort. Surely Elijah was one of the greatest of mountain-movers. If any man had faith as a grain of mustard seed, he had. But do you not think that one of his most unworthy moments was when he thought that he had done everything by himself? "I, even I only, am left" he cried. And God had to remind him that there were 7,000 who had not bowed the knee to Baal. Did their prayers and faith not count for anything? Could it not be that Elijah's mighty ministry was God's response largely to their intercession and faith?

When I was young, I idolized Elijah. In the intervening years I have been mixing with the 7,000 who have not bowed the knee to Baal, people who have quietly gone about their daily tasks and served God with great sacrifice in time and money. I have seen them faithful in prayer, people with aching limbs and drooping eyes after the day's toil. Here and there the secret has slipped out that some were rising early for prayer and meditation, and I wondered at their devotion. I still have the greatest respect for Elijah, but I also remember the 7,000. Together they have moved mountains.

We thank God for every mountain that breaks up with a deafening roar compelling people to take note that God is at work, but we must not ignore the mountains that are being quietly moved every day. There is so much work to be done that cannot be classed as signs and wonders, but this work also needs faith as a grain of mustard seed, a persevering faith. Like John, we may do no miracle; but if everything we say about Jesus is true, we shall move plenty of mountains.

Have you ever said, after a protracted trial, that suddenly something happened, you felt you could cope, you were no longer stretched to the limit, a load had been lifted? Yet there was no accountable reason for the change. Was it the caprice of chance? Or was it because a Christian friend was doing a little mountain-moving on his knees?

"Someone prayed, and strength was given

For the long and weary road.

Someone prayed, and faith grew stronger

As we bent beneath our load.

Someone prayed, and the way grew brighter

And we walked all unafraid—

In our heart a song of gladness—

Tell us was it you who prayed?"

What possibilities for service loom before us here. From the room in which we pray we can move a spiritual force across continents and oceans, we can pick up mountains and throw them into the sea. Every missionary has seen it happen and has thanked God for faithful prayer partners at home. It won't hit the headlines, but it will make the angels sing!

Have you noticed how some people's interest in mountain-moving wanes when "Give ye" is mentioned? "Give ye them to eat" Jesus said to His disciples. Our Lord's expectation of them shattered them. Their faith could not rise to the occasion. One thing is certain, the needy must be fed and clothed whether we can work miracles or not. James seems to suggest that his faith could not produce miracles to meet the demand, but that his love for humanity called for a sharing of what he possessed with the less fortunate. "I will show thee my faith by my works," he said (James 2:18). Are you disappointed that he makes no mention of miraculous provisions? No quails from the sea! No manna from Heaven! No unfailing barrel of meal and cruise of oil! Instead, He speaks of works of charity: "If a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food, and one of you say unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body; what doth it profit?" (James 2:15,16). Disappointed? Surely not! Here is a double "miracle". The faith that removes selfishness and avarice from the heart of one by the same action meets the needs of another. Only faith that moves mountains could do that.

So there is a great deal of mountain-moving of one kind or another to be done—everywhere. And God is looking to us to do it.

"Faith, mighty faith, the promise sees,

And looks to that alone;

Laughs at impossibilities,

And cries: It shall be done!"

Elim Crusaders

by P. S. Brewster

Our Secretary-General was requested by National Youth Director, Eldin R. Corsie to state what he would like to see from our Elim Youth. Mr. Brewster was a Crusader from the inception of the Elim Youth Movement and has served as Crusader President and as a member of the Elim Youth Committee for over twenty years.

IN about the year 1925, Douglas B. Gray was the Crusader Secretary of our Barking Church, Douglas Scott was the Youth Leader in Ilford and I was the Crusader Secretary in East Ham, all in the East End of London. They were progressive and wonderful days.

I now write on some of the things that I would like to see in our young people today. Basically many things have not changed. Jesus is the same; the anointing of the Holy Spirit is the same; the Word of God is still alive; Satan is still wriggling and strong temptations beset the Lord's people on every hand. Our young people today have deeper, stronger temptations than years ago, for from morning until night, sex, uncleanness, immorality, permissiveness and perversion are thrust before them suggesting that because everyone does it, then it is all right. Who says that the majority is always right?

God has given us His judgment against all sin. It is clearly set out in the Word of God. There is no sin common to mankind to which God has not given His answer and His judgment. The vast majority of our Elim Crusaders and young people have not followed the trends of the world and have kept themselves morally clean and we are justly proud of them.

1. I would like to see our young people set a goal for themselves and by God's grace keep it without too much vacillating. Reach the top of your profession, get all the degrees of learning you can, get all the material experience you can and then offer yourselves for service in some section of God's work. There is more in life than things. Money, position and earthly honour do not permanently satisfy or bring lasting happiness and peace.

2. Before entering your particular profession, seek the face of God and find out if the Lord requires you to enter the full-time ministry. There is always an open door to a man or woman who has been called of God.

Sometimes a call from God becomes stifled or crushed or lost sight of in the mad rush of life. Real happiness will elude you if you miss the call of God. Money, position and all the extras of life you will need to forgo, but the compensations that being in the will of God brings to you need no second thoughts.

It is God who sets and places in His Church, pastors, teachers, evangelists, apostles, prophets or administrators. Make yourself available and see if God wants you.

3. I would like to see our young people more totally involved in Church life and activity. Recreation, social contact and bodily exercise are but small parts in our lives. To win souls to Christ, to assist in building up the Church spiritually, to offer your personal prayers publicly and to be available to teach the young, to visit the widows and the orphans are a high prize.

4. To oppose the modern trend of the segregation of ages is the objective of all our Elim youth. Young and old should live and worship together in perfect unity, harmony and understanding. Peter said that young men would have vision of the future glory and power of God and that older men would dream dreams of the past power and might of God. Thus the forward look coupled with the maturity, wisdom and humility of age become a powerful force.

It is not always necessary to have an older man to address a conference on policy, nor is it imperative that a young man preach at a youth rally. One of the mistakes of our day is to put everything into watertight compartments as though age and youth should work and plan separately. This thinking is unwise.

The members of the Trinity are closely set out in Scripture and their work clearly defined, yet there is a glorious, harmonious overlapping and interchange of their activity.

5. To accept the fact that your studies and modern education have not given you the answers to every deep spiritual and Church problem. Therefore trust and accept the wisdom of your minister and elders.

6. I would like to see those who have had the opportunity of advanced studies and have the ability to write, to get busy with their pens. Study the doctrines of Scripture and the experiences and history of the Elim Movement, and make a worthwhile contribution.

7. Fulfil the great commission of Christ and go out and make disciples. This means reaching the unsaved, teaching them and bringing them into discipleship. Let your life be Christ-centred and Church-centred. Recognise that all the wisdom of God is poured through His Church, and this involves the local church and assembly. Don't be side-tracked by the modern, selfish trend of disintegration, running here and there and withdrawing from all responsibilities. Put your shoulder to the task.

8. Accept the Bible principle of the Lord's Day given unreservedly and irrevocably to the Lord and His Church. It is surprising how some are reserving Sunday for study and casual visitation.

9. Familiarise yourself with the Scriptures concerning the tactics of Satan. The apostle Paul said, "We are not ignorant of his devices". All disunity, lack of harmony, odd and strange feelings, and evil oppressions come from Satan. He desires to wear out the saints of God and to seduce and oppress them.

10. Try to look at the Church as a whole and do not over-value or over-estimate your own particular sphere of service. We are all part of a vast whole. The Church is called "A BODY" — "BRIDE" — "A BUILDING". This speaks of completeness.

PENTECOSTAL WORLD CONFERENCE ADVISORY COMMITTEE MEETS

MIAMI, FLA.—Eleven members of the 11th Pentecostal World Conference Advisory Committee met here recently to make preliminary plans for the conference.

Present for the meeting were Dr. Thomas F. Zimmerman, Springfield, Mo., U.S.A., Chairman; Percy S. Brewster, Cardiff, Wales, Secretary; Rev. R. W. Taitinger, Toronto, Canada; Rev. Samuel Edestav, Stockholm, Sweden; Rev. W. T. H. Richards, Great Britain; Dr. Ray Hughes, Cleveland, Tenn., U.S.A.; Rev. Yonggi Cho, Seoul, Korea; Rev. Pat Ryan, Trinidad, West Indies; Dr. Howard P. Courtney, Los Angeles, Calif., U.S.A.; Bishop S. M. Crouch, Los Angeles; and Bishop J. Floyd Williams, Franklin Springs, Ga., U.S.A.

The committee set 28th September-2nd October, 1976, as the dates for the conference, which will be held in London, England.

The Rev. Richards, chairman of the host committee in Great Britain, reported that arrangements have been made to hold the day sessions in Central Hall in Westminster. Evening rallies are scheduled for Royal Albert Hall. He also reported that the Pentecostal groups in Great Britain have formed what is known as the Pentecostal Churches of the British Isles. This united group will host the 11th Pentecostal World Conference.

The advisory committee chose "The Spirit of Truth" as the theme for the World Conference, and compiled a list of nominated speakers.

A sub-committee was appointed to assign speakers and determine sub-themes for the daily sessions, based on the work and ministry of the Holy Spirit as referred to in the Gospel of John, chapters 14-16.

This committee, chaired by Dr. Zimmerman, will include P. S. Brewster, R. W. Taitinger, Ray H. Hughes, and W. T. H. Richards. They are scheduled to meet in July in Lausanne, Switzerland.

BUSY-NESS

"As thy servant was busy here and there, he was gone". (1 Kings 20:40).

WE cannot condemn too strongly this unfaithful guard for losing this valuable prisoner, though in condemning him king Ahab was pronouncing sentence upon himself since he permitted a valuable royal prisoner to escape. We are guardsmen of Jesus Christ; to our keeping certain precious things have been committed. "A charge to keep have I, a God to glorify". (Wesley).

1. "Maintain the spiritual glow" (Romans 12:11 Moffatt). "Keep the fires of the Spirit burning" (Phillips). "It shall never go out" (Leviticus 6:13).
2. "Keep thy self pure" (1 Timothy 5:22). The pure man is the powerful man.
3. "Keep my words" (John 14:23).
4. "Keep the securities of the faith intact" (1 Timothy 6:20 Moffatt).
5. "Keep the unity of the spirit" (Ephesians 4:3).

Immersion in the "many" things to the exclusion of the vital things is a particular temptation of the ministry: "busy-ness".

WORDS

Superfluous Expressions

The phrases, "You know", "Sort of", "I mean", are all too frequently heard even in broken English from foreigners picking up our bad habits of speech. Sometimes preachers unconsciously overwork them, and sharp youngsters in the congregation have been known to count the number of a preacher's repetitions. If "I know" why keep reminding me? Why tell me at all? And if you really mean what you say, then you don't have to say, "I mean". What sort of communicating is this, anyhow! Preacher's resolve: "I will banish these expressions from my vocabulary".

A QUOTATION

The Bible

"All that I have taught of art, everything that I have written, every greatness that has been in any thought of mine, whatever I have done in my life, have simply been due to the fact that when I was a child my mother daily read with me a part of the Bible, and daily made me learn a part of it by heart. That I count confidently the most precious and, upon the whole, the one essential part of all my education".

From a Pastor's Study

Four new pence

by A. Nicolson

Wendy is only twelve years of age. She had come to our Monday Club for a time and then dropped off. It was a joy to see her again and that evening she approached one of the workers and said that she wanted to give her heart to the Lord. The worker remembered that Wendy had done this on her previous attendance at the club and mentioned this to her. "Well you see", she replied, "I only did it last time because my friend did it. I didn't really mean it, but I do this time".

Wendy had said that she would be coming to the service on Sunday, but she didn't turn up. It was after the Monday Club the following evening that one of the workers came to me with two new two-pence coins, which he gave to me. "Wendy gave me these", the worker explained. She was sorry that she could not get to the service on Sunday but she felt that she must give her offering.

Four new pence! "Not much", you might say, "in these days when many young people seem to have so much money". I do not know whether Wendy does get a lot of pocket money or not, but the value of her gift did not lie in the two coins, but in the heart of a young girl, who, though unable to get to the evening service, had been deeply conscious of her need to give to God's work.

Tithing, and the additional giving of offerings, should never be a burden to the child of God who is conscious of the greatness of God's love towards him or her. I wonder how many of us face up to the honest convictions of our hearts with regard to giving unto the Lord?

"Forth in thy name O Lord they go"

JULY 20th was a red letter day in the history of the Elim Pentecostal Church in Salisbury. A great valedictory service was held when the church's first missionary Miss Joy Bath, together with Pastor and Mrs. R.B. Chapman were commended to God and set apart for special service. Pastor L. Wigglesworth, our missionary secretary, convened the service which was attended by over 300 people. A coach-load came from Exeter where Joy's uncle is the church treasurer; friends also gathered from all parts of the presbytery, as well as from Peterborough. Members of the family of Pastor and Mrs. Chapman were also present from Birmingham. There were nurse and patients, friends of Joy from Odstock hospital, relatives and friends from Portsmouth and South Wales, in fact it was really like an Elim convention.

It was a most impressive service and Mrs. G. Gorton, the secretary of E.W.M.A., led in fervent prayer, and Mrs. Chapman sang with deeper feeling and earnestness than ever before, moving some to tears. The Rev. Oliver Sainsbury, retired Baptist minister and Joy's great-uncle, spoke with patriarchal fervour and her uncle, Pastor John Cave, told of his gladness that his niece was to serve God overseas. There were three presentations; the chairman of the local branch of the Gideons International gave Joy a special Gideon presentation Bible, Pastor Gerald Ladlow handed over a cheque and a Young's Concordance on behalf of the Salisbury Church session and members. Finally Mr. Frank Holder, Crusader leader, gave Joy an alarm clock and Prestige knife on behalf of the young people. Most remarkable of all, in each instance, the text inscribed in the Bible, in the concordance, and on the card accompanying the Crusader gift, was the same text: Joshua 1:9. What a lovely three-fold confirmation of a precious promise.

Joy was her own sweet and serene self when she spoke of her call and the nature of the work she was going to do. Pastor Chapman followed on with some very enlightening comments on the scope of the work God has given him to do in South Africa and Rhodesia. As we listened we could not help but admire him and his wife for being willing to undertake such a task at a time in life when others are preparing for their retirement.

Pastor T.W. Walker gave the closing message. It was very appropriate that he should do so for it was during his ministry at Salisbury that Joy had commenced her training as a nurse, and he has been closely associated with Pastor Chapman in the work at Elim Headquarters. His theme was 'The call of the regions beyond', (2 Corinthians 10:16) and the challenge of carrying the gospel was forcefully brought to all present.

It was a solemn moment when hands were laid on these who had obeyed the call to serve God and further the gospel in Rhodesia; as they knelt the whole congregation joined in prayer. Pastor Osman of our Springbourne church closed this grand and uplifting service in prayer. Most of the congregation adjourned to the schoolroom for a buffet supper where they enjoyed fellowship as well as being able to say a personal farewell to our missionaries. It was a real Elim family gathering, the warmth of which will, I'm sure, remain with these we have sent forth, and be remembered by them for many days.

Photographs of any of our missionaries can be obtained from Pastor L. Wigglesworth, P.O. Box 38, Cheltenham, Glos. Stamped addressed envelope plus 5p per photograph would be appreciated.

Wheels for Witness

who are eager to take the Gospel to their own people. This is also true of every mission field. We can, we must help. Here are the details. Estimating the cost of a bicycle to be £30 we can divide it into three sections: 1. The Frame. 2. The Wheels. 3. The Handlebars, seat and brakes. Now for convenience we shall say each section will cost £10. Perhaps it is difficult for you to buy a complete bicycle but you might manage a part, even if it was only one wheel at £5. Now although these bicycles will be given by us to the people who will use them they will become their personal property. They are going to buy them by paying so much each month to the Mission Station and so funds to buy replacements will always be available. Wheels for Witness will provide the bicycles to start the scheme.

This is a really exciting project and I hope from time to time to give reports of how things are getting along. Start today and invest in this great work of soul winning. Send all contributions to the National Youth Director and be sure to mention Wheels for Witness. More next week.

JUBILEE YEAR—fifty years of youth service is something to rejoice about. We shall do just that—by praising God for all that has been accomplished in the past. But whilst we are rejoicing we must give much thought and a great deal of effort to helping all those who are seeking to win others for the Lord, whether it be in our own country or on our mission stations throughout the world. Let us think first of all of those lost young people who surround us in our everyday lives. Have you prayed that you will be used to win them for the Lord? You have prayed but perhaps you feel you need some further instructions as to how to go about it. Why not write to the National Youth Director for “The Soul Winners Course”, which is a practical study on soul winning?

I know that Elim Youth have always been keen to help our missionaries and the national workers as they labour hard for the Gospel's sake in various parts of the world. Here is another way to help. It is called Wheels for Witness. Bicycles are still used extensively in many parts of the world, especially by national Pastors and Evangelists. In Tanzania, for instance, something like 25 bicycles could be used by those

"I am vile. . . I will lay my hand upon my mouth" (v.4).

THOUGH this book has much to say to the sinner, it is mainly directed to the saint. The more we learn about God and conform to His ways, the greater is the danger of becoming proud of our spirituality and righteousness. In Job this had reached the height where he questioned God's government, and God had to silence him by making him realize that the zenith of man is but the nadir of God. Was it not Satan's persistent pride in his lofty position in God's service that caused his downfall? Is there any pride in our heart? Let us learn from Job, admit our unworthiness now, and be silent while God works his beneficial sovereign will in us.

"I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear; but now mine eye seeth thee" (v.5).

NOW at last peace. God restores Job's health and prosperity; he begets more children and lives to a great age. But how this was attained is even more important. First Job acknowledges the absolute supremacy of God's power and wisdom. Then he confesses his sin in affirming things he didn't fully understand. Lastly he repents in sincere humility. These are basic essentials for reconciliation to God. But the underlying cause of the change in Job was his vision of God. True doctrine will assist our mental acceptance of God, but attacks of Satan can devalue this. But absolutely nothing can take from us a personal revelation of Christ Himself. See God and live.

Acts 13:1-12

"As they ministered unto the Lord and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work where unto I have called them" (v.2).

THERE were many faithful servants of Christ in Antioch with profitable ministries. They were happy to stay there serving Jewish converts, but they knew the command, "Go and make disciples of all nations", so when the specific call came, naming those who were to lead the mission to the Gentiles, Barnabas and Saul were ready and willing. After more fasting and prayer they were ordained and they set off. Thus began a work from which we have personally profited. If Christ's work is to continue growing today we must be just as ready to leave our comfortable church fellowship as they were. But the call must be from the Holy Spirit and the work must be Christ's not our own.

Acts 13:13-25

"I have found David. . . a man after mine own heart, which shall fulfil all my will" (v.22).

NOTE that it was God who found David. The choice was of God, not of the people. David was selected because his heart was in tune with God's. His character was Godlike; one through which God could work with the least hindrance. In consequence, all God's will would remain dominant in David's intentions, and strength would be given him to effect it. There was no doubt; it would be fulfilled. It is always God who chooses us and this should make us glad and grateful. But God always picks those who incline to His will, respond to His call, and whose obedience will work out His purposes. Unity with God ensures victory.

Acts 13:26-41

"But God raised him from the dead" (v.30).

THERE are many events in the life of Christ which were foretold by different prophets, all testifying to the fact that Jesus was the Messiah the Jews had so long expected. But the most outstanding proof was His resurrection. Many had called themselves the Son of God, but death had proved them wrong. If mortals are to believe in immortality, surely it was necessary for Christ to die and rise again. David had declared in Psalm sixteen that this would happen: "neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption", and it was so with Jesus. If doubt about the Deity of Christ or our resurrection should arise, let us remember the empty tomb.

Acts 13:42-52

"The disciples were filled with joy, and with the Holy Ghost" (v.52).

WHEN Paul and Barnabas preached Christ at Antioch in Pisidia, many Jews left, but most of the Gentiles asked for more. The next meeting was so crowded that the envious Jews created a riot and the apostles were expelled. But did this deter the disciples, the new converts to Christ? We might have expected to find fear and regret. But no, they were full of great joy.

Courageously they resolved to hold on to Christ, come what may. Then the Holy Spirit filled them. Difficulty and persecution may follow those who put their trust in Christ, but, praise God, He sends His own Holy Spirit to overcome, and the latter joy excels the former.

Summer Christian Bandstand at Bournemouth

Report by J. Osman,
Pastor of our Springbourne Church

A GREAT door and effectual is open to the Springbourne and Winton Churches every summer when the Open-air services, entitled "Summer Christian Bandstand", are held at the Bandstand in the Lower gardens adjacent to the Bournemouth Pier. From Spring Bank Holiday weekend until the beginning of September these meetings have been a feature for the past eight summers.

The idea of seeking permission to use the bandstand came after Mr. Joe Fudge had been given permission to show a film at Swanage bandstand. If at Swanage, then why not at Bournemouth? He and Mr. Gerry Derham Q.C., another Winton deacon, discussed the matter and, following a meeting of the Winton diocese, the Parks Department were approached and permission to hold meetings weekly was granted. The Winton Diocese then approached the Springbourne church suggesting a joint effort for what appeared to be an outstanding opportunity.

Prior to this both churches were holding open-air meetings with Winton at the Bournemouth West Cliff and Springbourne at Fisherman's Walk, Boscombe, but amplification was not permitted at these sites.

Meanwhile, both churches were also involved in Sunday night open-air meetings on the West Cliff, taking turns along with local Christian Brethren Churches and Lansdowne Baptist Church. These meetings were arranged by Mr. Roy Snook, of Heatherlands Gospel Hall. West Cliff site was far from ideal, being exposed to the winds and with comparatively few holiday-makers passing by. When Mr. Snook, some two years after the Elim Churches had obtained permission to use the Bandstand, also obtained permission, he asked that a committee should be formed. Consequently plans are formulated for the Sunday evenings (from 8 to 9) with good co-operation between the participating churches, and several united meetings are held. There is good fellowship, a sense of unity of purpose and wholehearted co-operation. A good example of this occurred last year, when our P.S. Brewster spoke at the Lansdowne sponsored meeting. A united prayer meeting is held at the beginning of the summer season.

Our two churches are singularly blessed in having the Wednesdays to themselves (planned at a specially convened meeting) and also having a very good share of the Sunday services.

The opportunities thus afforded are tremendous and far-reaching. The Lower Gardens are crowded on fine nights, and a show of hands often elicits the information that people are there from all the four Home Countries. We are allowed free use of the deck-chairs, and find the parks officers most co-operative. Mr. J. Palmer, a generous local Christian Brother provides us with an electric organ and his own amplification equipment. His help is greatly appreciated and also that of his sons who assist him. Although he is from Charminster Gospel Hall, he makes himself responsible on Wednesdays too, and looks after all the hymn sheets, and counselling literature. This is Christian unity in action.

It has been freely said that we reach more unsaved in one night at the Bandstand with the message of Christ's redeeming Grace, than in twelve months at our own church Gospel services.

Meetings take the form of a fast-moving programme of song and testimony. Talented solo singers, duettists, trios, quartets and groups take part. These include the Springbourne Five, Pam Osman and the Calvary Trio. Community hymn singing is a feature. The Wessex Choir conducted by Mr. Don House; the Evangelaires conducted by Mr. Joe Fudge and the Springbourne Choir conducted by Mr. Arthur Rawlings are greatly appreciated. Able speakers from both churches including, of course, Pastors Backhouse and Osman give punchy Gospel messages. Long-winded sermons are avoided. An appeal is made and packs of literature are made available to enquirers upon request. These contain a Gospel, some tracts, a decision card, a letter and a pre-paid envelope to return the decision card and obtain a short Bible study course. Many take advantage of this and last year approximately 900 enquirers were given literature packs.

Pray for this important outreach, and when you come to Bournemouth on holiday come and see for yourself.

MY sister May was born deaf and dumb and remained so for twenty-seven years. I gave my heart to Christ when I was eleven. Three years later Stephen Jeffreys prayed for May and she began to hear immediately. In the days that followed she began to speak like a baby and gradually became more fluent. This was my confirmation. My belief in Christ at conversion was simple trust in Christ's ability to save and to fulfil all that the Bible claimed. When May was so miraculously healed that Word was confirmed with signs following. If Paul had any doubts about this mission to the Gentiles, surely God confirmed the call when he healed this cripple.

The month of September will be an important one in the lives of many young men and women who this month commence their training in the Elim Bible College for fuller Christian service. Later this month, the National Youth Rally is to be held at the Westminster Central Hall in London.

Our thoughts at this time centre around the subject of Harvest. After our Lord had appointed seventy who were to go before Him into the towns and villages, he said to them, "The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest".

During the recent International Congress on World Evangelism, held in Lausanne, Switzerland, July 15th-25th, a special clock was recording the number of children born into the world whilst the congress was in progress. This recorded a staggering total of 1,852,837 in ten days. This is the magnitude of the task facing the Church throughout the world.

The writer of Proverbs tells us: "He that sleepeth in a harvest is a son that causeth shame".

GOD will give us power for the task, but do we have the courage?

SPECIAL NOTICE:-

EACH morning at 9 at the Elim Church Headquarters, intercessory prayer is made for our churches, our ministers and missionaries and all our sick friends everywhere. If you, or your family, or your friends have sickness or are carrying a heavy burden or weighed down with some domestic problem, or maybe you are passing through some heavy strange trial, and you feel you would like us to share prayer with you, please write today to Rev. P.S. Brewster, Secretary General, Elim Pentecostal Church Headquarters, Box 38, Cheltenham. Mark your letter PRIVATE. All correspondence will be dealt with personally and in confidence.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

SELLY OAK, Birmingham Pastor: D.G. Woodfield

SATURDAY, 9th February, 1974, was the date when Pastor Woodfield was inducted as our new minister at Selly Oak. Since then the Lord has blessed his ministry as he did those of precious ministers to whom we have listened and with whom we have worked. Since his arrival Pastor Woodfield has conducted two baptismal services, the first being on Sunday, 3rd March, when eight people followed their Lord's command to be baptised. That evening six souls were saved. On the second occasion nine were baptised, the youngest being ten years old and the eldest seventy years old and two people found the Lord that night. Nearly every Sunday evening someone responds to the appeal; sometimes it is two or three and occasionally more.

On Sunday, 9th June, 1974, we were privileged to have with us Mrs. Carol Horner. She proved to be a great blessing. After ministering the Word and giving her testimony of her wonderful healing, she prayed for the sick. Praise the Lord, miracles of healing were wrought that night.

Sunday, 16th June, was youth night when to a full house our newly-formed youth choir made their debut. The following Sunday was men's night and again God's blessing was felt.

Sunday, 14th August, was a day that will live in our memory for a long time. Our old friend (no older in looks), Pastor Alan Caple, and his family were with us. They are on holiday from his church in America where God is blessing them and their ministry. Souls were saved that night and we had a wonderful time of fellowship after the meeting when our two choirs, male voice and youth, took part as also did various soloists and musicians.

We look forward to continued blessing and we give all praise and glory to Him who alone is worthy.

BROOKEBOROUGH, Co. Fermanagh

Pastor: R.J. Lynn

MANY members and friends gathered in the Elim Church recently to pay their last respects to Mr. Samuel Crawford an old founder member. Mr. Crawford, who was ninety-four, was brought to Christ under the ministry of Pastor W.J. Martin some forty-seven years ago, and was an active member in Elim until a few months before his death. He, with his dear wife will be remembered for their hospitality and words of wisdom, especially to Pastors and young converts, down through the years. Pastor W. Wilson, the Irish Superintendent and W. Dempster, who officiated at the funeral spoke highly of our brothers influence on their lives and ministry. Our prayers and sympathy go to his dear wife and family at this time.

Pastor: T. McQuicken

DURING the last few months, we of the Wells Elim Pentecostal Church have been receiving blessings from the Lord in so many ways. One of which was a Sunday evening receiving meeting, when four people were baptised with the Holy Spirit as according to the Scriptures. Since then we held a baptismal service in which four young people followed the Lord through the waters of baptism.

The photograph shows one of the candidates with Pastor T. McQuicken. Indeed we can say that our God is good, and doeth all things well.

week visit from Canada and we felt privileged that one of his weekends should be spent ministering to us. He is the minister of a French-speaking congregation in Montreal, even though before he went to Canada seven years ago, he was not a Christian and could not speak French. He is the son of one of our deacons. We enjoyed his testimony of how he was wonderfully saved in Canada. With the guidance of the Holy Spirit he learned to speak fluent French in six months so that he could minister among French Canadians. In the years since his emigration both his parents and sister (who is one of our Sunday school teachers) have come to know Christ.

An Appreciation of a Minister

by G. J. Feasey,
Pastor of our Pontardulais Church.

THE Elim Conference this year marked the retirement of eight ministers. Much could be said of all those collective years spent serving the Master. The endless sermon preparation, the continuous visiting of the sick and suffering running into thousands, the unselfish, loyal dedication to the cause of Christ, and the often lonely task of being a Pastor — all these and more could be listed. Volumes could be written on these eight men.

I would like to give an appreciation to just one of them, Pastor F.H. Coleman, who has been the only Pastor I have ever known at my home church. I was only three years old when he came to the Elim Pentecostal Church at Islington, North London, and for the past twenty-six years I have sat under his ministry. How many times I heard him preach defies the memory; the subjects have become confused by time. One aspect of his ministry, however, is remembered like a brilliant light in the darkness. F.H. Coleman is a man of God and the lead that he showed me enabled me to enter the Elim ministry and to minister in one of his old churches.

He chose to visit America twice and has also travelled the world. It's difficult sometimes in this high-powered age to evaluate a ministry. What success has there been? What have forty or so years achieved? I just want to go on record to thank a man whose longsuffering patience was shown to me in my teenage, backslidden condition, whose ministerial wisdom was shown to me as I won my first convert to the Lord in the streets of Soho, London, and whose deep, spiritual maturity was revealed to me during Bible College days.

Now retirement has come, but not the end of ministry. Pastor Coleman, thank you for being my Pastor, for all the help; for the foundation you laid in my life. God bless you and may you have a happy retirement.

BROADSTAIRS

Pastor: B. Grist

ON a Saturday afternoon a company of brethren and sisters from several local churches gathered on the beach of Viking Bay, Broadstairs, to witness the baptism of three of our church members, Phillip Beastall, Victor James, and Nicholas Lilwall. The weather was dull, with a cool breeze off the sea, but no-one noticed, for we were too happy, singing praises to the Lord, led by members of the Y.W.A.M. team of guitars and conducted by our Pastor. The short address was given by Pastor F.H. Birkett of the A.O.G. Margate.

Afterwards light refreshments were served in the church hall, followed by an evening rally in the church, when Pastor Birkett was again the speaker. The message was an unusual one based on Luke 16: 1-12, but it was much appreciated by all.

"John Wesley's Bible is wrong"

by D. W. Cartwright

DURING the induction of the President of the Methodist Conference the retiring President, with suitable words hands over John Wesley's Field Bible to his successor as an emblem of his office.

This particular Bible which was once owned by Wesley himself was given to him in 1766, and on his death was bequeathed to Henry Moore, one of his assistants, whose executors handed it on to the President of the Methodist Conference in 1844. From that time it has been handed down from one President to another as a living link with Wesley himself. Many folk will probably think that the name "Field" is given because this particular Bible was used by Wesley for his field preaching. The name however is derived from John Field who was the printer of this Bible which is dated 1653. Our photograph shows this particular Bible together with case in which it is contained.

This particular Bible was very incorrectly printed, and of the original number not many now survive. The most notorious mistake is to be found in 1 Corinthians 6:9 where one word NOT is missed out the text which reads "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall inherit the Kingdom of God?"

Quite clearly therefore, this particular Bible is wrong. It was of course simply a printer's error and a very serious one at that. The verse however goes on to say "and such were some of you but you are washed but you are sanctified, but you are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God". Any printer knows only too well it is all too easy to miss even a single word or letter, this is one of the reasons why only a very few firms are allowed to print the Bible. What the Bible teaches is that when men fall into sin and error that God himself will restore them again. John Field the printer may have got it wrong but we must be sure that we get it right.

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

ONE night three horsemen were riding across a desert. As they crossed the dry bed of a river, out of the darkness a voice cried 'Halt!' The voice then told them to dismount, pick up a handful of pebbles, put the pebbles in their pockets and remount. They obeyed, and the voice said, 'Tomorrow at sunrise you will be both glad and sorry'. Mystified, the horsemen rode on. When the sun rose, they reached into their pockets and found that a miracle had happened. The pebbles had been transformed into diamonds, rubies and other precious stones. They remembered the warning. They were both glad and sorry—glad they had taken some, but sorry that they had not taken more!

It has been said that this legend is the story of life and its opportunities. Particularly is this true of life's greatest decision. What shall I do about the Christian faith? Shall I ignore it, evade it, or believe it? Sir James Simpson, the distinguished British scientist once testified, "The two greatest discoveries I ever made were when I realised that I was a sinner, and that Jesus Christ was the Saviour". Many others have made these same discoveries and, like the horsemen in the legend, they were both glad and sorry. Glad they made the right choice, but sorry they didn't make it sooner.

This choice we must all make, for the Bible says, "At this moment God is ready to welcome you, Today He is ready to save you" (2 Corinthians 6:2—Living Bible).

THE FORGOTTEN MINISTRY

OPEN AIR EVANGELISM

by Brownlow Carlisle

THE PERILS

There are great perils to be encountered by the open air preacher, the first of which is cheapening the gospel and thereby making it of non-effect. In an endeavour to be friendly, informal, conversational and explanatory, it is so easy to make the truth a little thing — a shallow thing — when of course it is the biggest thing and the most profound thing in the world. One of my college professors in New Zealand used to say, 'The early church was not nurtured on slap-happy choruses, but on the profundities of the Epistle to the Romans'. We like to sing lively choruses at our open air meetings, but the profundities of our message must never be overlooked. When the gospel is proclaimed, even in the simplest of terms, there will be no danger of making it seem cheap.

The second peril is that of by-passing the church. The outdoor evangelist may quite understandably pride himself in the fact that he is doing a job that the church has failed to do. He may feel that it is necessary to proclaim that salvation is not by the church, or in church attendance, and this is true. But, if he is going to say that, he must be careful never to give the impression that the church does not matter, that a man can be a Christian without going to church. The Church does matter. It is our Lord's own insti-itution. He is its Founder and Head. The Open Air Campaigners like to think that the initial letters OAC also stand for Outdoor Arm of the Church. We acknowledge gratefully our dependence on the Church for our evangelists, and voluntary workers, for our prayer and financial support, and for the nurture of converts won to Christ in the open air. OAC workers must be church members. Indeed, we consider the organisation to be a part of the Church. OAC is simply the Church in action, not in competition.

The third peril is that of failing to follow up converts and enquirers. This is where close co-operation with local churches is essential. It is easy to feel that the decision of a person for Christ is all that is required, whereas it is just the beginning. The policy of OAC has always been to contact converts personally and by mail over an extended period of time, forwarding all names to local evangelical pastors and churches.

THE PERSONNEL

It is obvious that the greatest need in the work is not methods, but men. It is obvious that primarily, above all other gifts, these men must be preachers. But what kind of preachers? What characteristics must they have? Someone once said to me, 'You must have great courage to be in this work!' That is simply not true. I know that courage is not a requirement, for I have none! Apart from the strength and the holy boldness that Christ gives, I shrink with timidity and fear every time I face a group of men at a factory, or a crowd of any kind. No, not mere human courage is needed. What then? A Biblical phrase gives us the answer. We need men of 'faith, hope and love'.

Men of faith — great faith in a great God — great faith in a great gospel — great faith in the great commission and its unwavering promise, 'Lo, I am with you always'. In a special sense, this is true for those who go with the gospel into the great outdoors. 'My presence, My power, My courage, My confidence, are yours' says Christ, 'if you will but trust Me as you go'.

Men of hope, 'hope that maketh not ashamed' of the message of the Master; hope that fills the heart with expectancy as the truth is preached; hope that assures of blessed results as the invitation is given; hope that remains steadfast against all odds and that continues in well-doing to the end.

the indifferent masses; love for the sheeplike multitudes; love for the heckler who ruins your meetings; love for the drunk who fills you with disgust; love for the police officer who tried to move you on; love for the little children, neglected, dirty, and noisy. Love the the proud moralist who dispises your salvation by faith; love for the arrogant intellectualist who questions the very wisdom of God; love for the silly youth who laughs you to scorn. Above all, undying love for your Lord.

Yes, the greatest of these is love. Love will win in the open air when all else is lost.

THE PROSPECTS

The prospects for open air evangelism in Britain are as bright as the promises of God. This is not a lost cause. It is true that in some areas there are problems with officialdom, and restrictions that make the work difficult and sometimes almost impossible, but in most cities and towns the local authorities are helpful and co-operative.

In the cities of this land there are vast industrial areas, mushrooming housing projects, teeming multitudes on beaches and in parks. And, they can be reached. In my own experience, after twelve years as a pastor, I have found that I can reach more unsaved in one good open air meeting than in one whole year of evangelistic church services. This is no reflection on the church, but a great challenge to us all within the church to take our message to these masses.

THE PROJECTION

The task of the open air preacher is simply to be a missionary. The man who begins to preach in the open air at home, will most certainly be a better missionary on the foreign field. The president of a well-known Bible college in America recently said to me, 'Fifty per cent of our students go to the mission field. Most of them will have to preach in the open air, yet they have had little, if any, experience and no training in this area. It is my conviction that the greatest need of our school is instruction in this ministry of real Biblical evangelism'. How true this is! There should therefore be a continual projection of this work from the home base to the missionary outpost. Many missionaries have said to us, 'We wish you could send gospel vans and trained workers to our field. There is a tremendous need and an incalculable opportunity. Thousands more could be reached in this way'. This call has come from South America, Africa, India, Japan, the Phillipines, and Europe. Let us then project this work from here to there, with all our powers. This is a spiritual imperative.

THE PASSION

All else is secondary to this. Passion may be the last in our procession of Ps, but it must be first in the soul, heart, life, and preaching of the open air evangelist. He must know the intolerable burden of the Apostle Paul, who next to the Lord Jesus, was the greatest open air preacher who ever lived - 'Necessity laid upon me; yea, woe is me if I preach not the gospel'. He must feel the consuming purpose of this bondslave of Christ - 'I am made all things to all men that by all means I might save some; and this I do for the gospel's sake'.

The founder of the Church Army, Wilson Carlile, was, when a young man, the choir leader in one of D.L. Moody's great campaigns in the South London Mission at Camberwell. One evening he had an encounter with Mr. Moody that he never forgot. Eight thousand people were in the building, and every seat seemed occupied when Moody walked in. 'Full up?', he asked. 'Yes, full up', said Carlile. Then Moody went up the little wooden staircase on to the platform, and without looking at the great crowd before him, pointed to two empty seats beside his own. 'The place is not full', he said, 'I want two more men here'. 'Oh, those seats are kept for two members of the committee', said Wilson Carlile. Moody turned on Carlile. 'Go outside and fetch me the two worst men you can find', he said. 'But, Mr. Moody. . .' ventured the young choir leader. 'Ah! You don't care for souls', retorted the evangelist. That rebuke made Wilson Carlile flinch, and he went out, got hold of two men, and much to their surprise and consternation, placed them in the two empty seats on the platform before the 8,000 people of the audience. Moody's remarks inspired Wilson Carlile again and again to be a soul-winner, and to care for the lost.

It is this care, this burden, this concern, this passion, that makes an open air evangelist. May God give us such men, men of like passion, men who care for souls, men who will change the forgotten ministry of outdoor preaching into one that will ever be remembered as characteristic of this generation of Christians.

The Enemy

1 Peter 5:8

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

DAVID the young shepherd boy had had a busy morning. He sat down on the hillside to rest and took some food from his shepherd's bag. A couple of lambs nuzzled up to him and David shared some of his bread with them. Suddenly David's rest was interrupted. Out of the corner of his eye he saw something moving in the grass not far away. David rose to his feet in time to see a lion pounce on one of the lambs and take it in its teeth. David quickly grabbed his sling from his belt and inserted a stone. Taking careful aim he fired at the lion. David scored a direct hit, the lion rolled on the ground and the lamb dropped from its jaws, unharmed.

Some years later, David told King Saul of this incident. He had heard that the giant, Goliath, was challenging a man in Israel's army to fight him. All the soldiers were terrified to meet the giant, but not David. "I will fight him", he told King Saul, and David went forth to fight Goliath as he had fought the lion, with a sling and a stone. Again David scored a direct hit and Goliath crashed to the ground.

Peter the apostle tells us that our greatest enemy is the devil. Like the lion, he is strong and fearless and, like Goliath, he seeks to scare us. We, like the lamb, are the special prey of the enemy for we are helpless to save ourselves, but in David we have a picture of our Saviour, who gave His life for His sheep.

Goliath relied on his armour to save his life and today many people rely on good works, money and pleasures of the world, but none of these can protect them or give them eternal life. There is but one way to deal with the enemy and overcome him and that is to stand fast and, like David, put our trust in the Lord Jesus.

Beginnings

BIRTH

by A. L. Hawkes,
Pastor of our Islington and Palmer's Green churches

IF you've got children, I wonder, perhaps, if they are undoing the things that you've just done? Mine do. When I tidy the book shelf they pull it all out. When my wife starts putting the toys away, it seems to be the starting signal to play. Frustrating, sometimes, isn't it?

I had the opportunity to see my youngest daughter being born. Seeing that helpless, very dirty little life cough, splutter, then cry and come alive was, now that I think back, quite a moving happening. At the time, though, I must admit that I didn't think too much, as the midwife was shouting all sorts of instructions and making me jump about. It was almost too hectic to think — nice though! When I look at our daughter now, making a mess of the house, emptying baskets that have no right to be emptied, I wonder if I was only dreaming.

A very strict, religious person, whose story's in the New Testament, Nicodemus, must have thought that he was dreaming when he came to Jesus one night and asked Him to become a Christian. Jesus said to him, "You must be born again". I think I sympathise with him when he said, "How can I, an old man, enter into my mother's womb and be born again?". But Jesus was talking about a different type of birth. Birth that comes from God. It happens when a person says, "I believe that Jesus is the Saviour, the One who can make me into a new person. Please Lord Jesus, come in to my life and make me new". That's what Jesus meant by being born again. The Bible talks about sin having messed up mankind and therefore man needs to begin again. He needs a new start. He needs to be born again. New birth is very much like human birth. Sin tends to make us dirty in our real selves. In our personalities, in our consciences. When we come to God, asking His forgiveness and turning our backs on what we've been before, He puts a new life in us, a consciousness of God, a new trust in Him. He cleans us up, just as the midwife did with my little daughter. We begin to live, and I really mean live, for the Christian life is really the only fully satisfying way of life.

To start with, our cry of faith is quite small. We seem to be struggling and perhaps we look a little fragile in our new-found life. I always think that babies look fragile and helpless, don't you? If we continue to speak with our heavenly Father, if we continue to have fellowship with the family of God, that is, other Christians, if we listen to what He has to show us and teach us, read the Bible and be willing to trust Him, we soon begin to grow up. We become much more aware of our surroundings, of ourselves, of other people, and much more able to cope with things and stand on our own feet.

It works just as it does with a baby — a continuing growing, learning, awareness, only with this new birth, we are now not only conscious of the material things that a young child is aware of, like mum, tea-time, sweets and ice cream, we are conscious of a spiritual realm. A heavenly Father, spiritual problems as well as physical ones, a whole new exciting world to be explored.

Have you noticed how interesting every little spot on the carpet is to a baby who has just started crawling? That's just what it's like to a new, just-born Christian. Don't just stay in one world will you? Be born again!

SUNDAY MORNING

by H. C. Phillips

SUNDAY is a very important day for Christians – especially Sunday mornings.

The Israelites were commanded by God to observe the seventh day, that is Saturday, every week; and that was their Sabbath. It was to be a day of complete rest from all forms of work. We know that in the early days of Christianity practically all the Christians were Jews, and as such, they would want to worship the God of Israel in their synagogues every Sabbath day. They felt however, that as Christians they should meet together with their risen Lord, and before long they came to the conclusion that it would be best for them to gather together on Sundays – the day following the Sabbath. History tells us that Sunday became the recognised day for Breaking of Bread and fellowship.

The Bible however, mentions this custom only three times. In Acts 20:7 the believers gathered together to break bread. In 1 Corinthians 16:2 the Christians were exhorted to put aside their offerings on the first day of the week. In Revelation 1:10 we find that John was in the Spirit on the Lord's day: It would seem that he recognised Sunday even though he himself was a prisoner, unless, on the other hand, the Lord Himself recognised the first day and especially gave John the great Revelation on that day. One can add that the Day of Resurrection and the Day of Pentecost, were both Sundays.

Maybe the early Christians usually met on Sunday evenings because they had to work during daytime on Sundays. We are more fortunate in these days, and can meet together at any time we choose. To meet about eleven o'clock on Sunday mornings has proved itself to be the most convenient time on the whole. We should remember though, that this meeting on Sundays is not a legal matter as was the keeping of the Jewish Sabbaths. They had no choice. We are free to choose our times of worship. At this point, I may remind you that of the ten commandments given to Israel we, of the New Testament, are enjoined to keep nine of them, the one exception being that of observing the Jewish Sabbath. In fact, Paul looked upon the teaching of Sabbath observance to Christians as a sign of falling away from the truth of the Gospel. (Colossians 2:16, 17. Galatians 4:10, 11).

This then is the vital matter, that Christians of all communities should find a time for meeting together as a body, and every single Christian should personally strive to be present. Hebrews 10:25 reads: "Let us CONSIDER HOW to stir one another to love and good works, not neglecting to meet together, as is the habit of some, but encouraging one another, and ALL THE MORE as you see the day drawing near". The subject of this verse is the stirring up of one another to be loving and to be engaged in doing good deeds; and it is inferred that one of the best ways of doing this is to be faithful in "meeting together" as a group of believers. It is hardly necessary to remind ourselves that the "Day of the Lord" referred to is much nearer now than when these words were written. So friends, as it is more than ever urgent now that we should not miss this means of grace, let us not fail God and let us not fail in our duties to our brothers and sisters in in Christ by neglecting regular worship with the members of God's family.

In 1 Corinthians 14:26 Paul wrote "What is it brethren? When you come together". Obviously, this means that the brethren (which term of course means sisters too) in every locality, should come together. We gather as members of the Father's great family, for we are members one of another. To fail one another in this is to sin against the Body of Christ.

Now let us consider the actual gatherings. A regular time at a regular place is naturally the best arrangement. The meeting place may be a hall, a room, a church, or any place where the saints can meet without distraction. It would appear that the first believers, not having their own place of worship, met in the temple at Jerusalem, that is, in the large colonnades of the Temple court, and each day they broke bread in their own homes. At first, breaking of bread was part of a meal, as it is written, "Now, as they were eating Jesus took bread" (Matthew 26:26). Later it became separated from an ordinary meal, as we read in Acts 20:7 "On the first day of the week WHEN THE DISCIPLES GATHERED TOGETHER TO BREAK BREAD". That is how we do it now.

The Breaking of Bread, therefore, should be an important part of the meeting of believers and it should be very simply conducted with the minimum of ceremony or ritual. Instructions and teaching on the subject are to be found in 1 Corinthians 11:17-34, and in chapter 10:14-24. The original records can be found in Matthew 26:17-30, Mark 14:12-26, and Luke 22:7-23. John 13 may also be read as well as Acts 20:7-12. Much may be learned from a careful study of these Scriptures. The heart of the matter is that we remember Him, not only His death; we remember Jesus Christ our Lord, and remembrance of Him begets love, good works, faith, testimony, consecration and worship. In this service the Lordship of Jesus Christ should be emphasised. See how many times Paul uses the word Lord in 1 Corinthians 11.

In the Acts 20 account we find that Paul was a visitor to the Assembly at Troas, and he was naturally the special speaker for the week-end. How blessed to have been there! Eutychus, like many, did not realise what a marvellous privilege he was missing when Paul "prolonged his speech until midnight" and he went to sleep. The sermon lasted a little more than twenty minutes methinks! After the raising of the young man and the breaking of bread and a meal, the Apostle and the saints discussed matters relating to the Lord's work until daybreak.

At our Lord's Breaking of Bread with His disciples, He had very much indeed to tell them and the time was short. Fortunately, we can read a resume of His teaching, actions and His last prayer, in John chapters 13 to 17. What a wealth of teaching is here!

So a Breaking of Bread service can embrace a discourse, or speech, as well as a profitable discussion. This part of the meeting should be properly handled by one or more of the brethren. Then in 1 Corinthians chapter 14 we find a suggestive list of activities helpful in a gathering of Believers. These include hymn singing, teachings, revelations (usually probably through prophecy, but not necessarily so) messages in tongues (to be interpreted and limited to not more than three persons in one gathering, so that a balance in the service of God should be maintained). Interpretations of the tongues (not necessarily verbal translations,) singing in the Spirit) this may be in one's own language or in a tongue). Prophecy is one of the most valuable contributions. There is also "blessing" in the Spirit. How blessed this ministry can be. Not asking but giving. This outpouring of praise can be a veritable foretaste of the worship of heaven. Spiritual worship is spontaneous and comes from the hearts of the Redeemed. Testimony has a place too, and not least and reading of the Scriptures.

Whatever is done publicly must be understood by the church and calculated to build up the spiritual lives and experiences of those present. Disorder does not come from the Spirit of God.

For the proper conduct of these ministries the Biblical baptism into the Holy Spirit is an essential. This experience is the doorway to spiritual ministry and worship. That blessing is not just given for the personal benefit of the one who receives it, but is for the spiritual blessing and growth of the whole assembly.

The leader (or leaders) of the assembly should be conscious of the leading of the Spirit so that every meeting should be helpful and orderly, yet free in the Spirit, so that He may use whom He will. Sometimes fleshly words may find their way into the programme. Lovingly, and wisely, these must be dealt with if they persist. Christ is the Head of the church but He manifests Himself through Spirit-filled leadership. When Paul wrote to the church at Philippi he not only wrote to the saints but to the bishops (or overseers) and deacons — the men and women who helped in a variety of ways.

One would not be honest to gloss over the last portion of chapter 14, which deals with the position of women in the assemblies. Taking these verses alone it would appear that sisters were prohibited from taking any active part in the assemblies of the saints. But Scriptures must be compared with one another to find the whole truth. 1 Corinthians 11:5 clearly indicated that prophecy and prayer are open to the sisters present, and doubtless they were not entirely restricted to these particular ministries. Gossiping and arguing are forbidden.

While in our relations to Christ men and women are entirely equal (Galatians 3:28) yet in social behaviours a distinction is to be clearly recognised in the church. 1 Corinthians 11:1-14 teaches that while women should cover their heads, men, on the other hand, should not cover theirs.

These Scriptures are not included in Holy Writ for nothing. They are anchored down to the relationship between God the Father and God the Son, to the creation of man, and to the existence of angels. Submission to the revealed will of God is precious, and a "gentle and quiet spirit in God's sight", says Peter, "is very precious". Though we are free in Christ, lawlessness is not a sign of spiritual maturity.

So brethren, to what a wonderful God-planned fellowship we have been called, not only with one another, but also with the Father and the adorable Son. Let the Bible be our handbook. Let the Spirit of God control. Let Christ be the Head in all things. Let the weakest member be honoured and helped. Let the light brightly shine outside the place of gathering, as well as inside. Let love be the sign of discipleship. And let Romans chapter 12 be a mirror of what we are and do.

Some thoughts on the creation

by Dr. A. J. "Monty" White, a member of our Caerphilly Church

THE Biblical doctrine of Creation is based on revelation and is understood only from the standpoint of faith. The very core of the doctrine of Creation is found in Hebrews 11:3, "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear". The Bible also teaches that such a doctrine is outside the realm of the understanding of the non-Christian: "But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned" (2 Corinthians 2:14). Hence only believers can really understand and appreciate fully the doctrine of the Creation.

Now the detailed account of the Creation is found in Genesis chapter one, where we read over and over, "And God said. . .", followed by "and it was so". God's Creation was brought about by the Word of God. This is the thought expressed in Hebrews 11:3 (quoted above) and also by the Psalmist in Psalm 33: 6, 9, "By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth. . . For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast". These verses (especially Hebrews 11:3) show that God did not use any pre-existing material for the Creation, but created ex nihilo (out of nothing). The doctrine of Creation ex nihilo is important, for it shows that matter is not eternal, and that God is above all.

The Creation was also wrought by the Word of God in another sense, for in John 1:3 we read that it was Jesus Christ, the Word, that made all things. The same thought is expressed in Colossians 1:16, 17, "For by Him (i.e. Jesus Christ) were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by Him, and for Him: And He is before all things, and by Him all things consist". Here we are told of one of the purposes of the Creation: it was for Him, i.e. for Jesus Christ. Another purpose of the Creation is found in Revelation 4:11, where we read that the twenty four elders say, "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things and for thy pleasure they are and were created".

The Creation also exhibits the following attributes of God:

1. The Deity of God. In Romans 1:18-20 we read, "For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness; Because that which may be known of God is manifest in them; for God hath shewed it unto them. For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being under-stood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse". This is the doctrine of general revelation which states briefly that the revelation of God is around and about us, and within our own constitution; it is clear and plain, thus rendering us without excuse. All men know, in their heart of hearts, not merely that "a god probably exists" but that the true God, the only God, does exist.

2. The Power of God. The prophet Isaiah speaking under the anointing of the Holy Spirit said, "Thus saith the Lord, thy redeemer, and He that formed thee from the womb, I am the Lord that maketh all things: that stretcheth forth the heavens alone; that spreadeth abroad the earth by myself". (44:24) and again He said, "Mine hand also hath laid the foundation of the earth, and my right hand hath spanned the heavens" (48:13).

3 and 4. The Wisdom and Understanding of God: Solomon, in Proverbs 3:19 wrote, "The Lord by wisdom hath founded the earth; by understanding hath he established the heavens", and Jeremiah (51:51), expressed the same thoughts, "He (God) hath established the world by His wisdom, and hath stretched out the heaven by His understanding".

It is interesting to note that Jeremiah 10:21 declares that the Creation shows the power, wisdom and discretion (i.e. understanding) of God.

5 and 6. The Glory and Handiwork of God. The Psalmist wrote, "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth His handywork" (Psalm 19 v.1).

Finally, we should always be ready to praise God for His Creation. Let us with the Psalmist give thanks unto God, for His mercy endureth for ever:

*O Give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good:
for his mercy endureth for ever.*

*O give thanks unto the God of gods:
for his mercy endureth for ever.*

*O give thanks to the Lord of lords:
for his mercy endureth for ever.*

*To him who alone doeth great wonders:
for his mercy endureth for ever.*

*To him that by wisdom made the heavens:
for his mercy endureth for ever.*

*To him that stretched out the earth above the waters:
for his mercy endureth for ever.*

*To him that made great lights:
for his mercy endureth for ever.*

The sun to rule by day:

for his mercy endureth for ever.

*The moon and stars to rule by night:
for his mercy endureth for ever.*

*O give thanks unto the God of heaven:
for his mercy endureth for ever.*

Psalm 136:1-9, 26.

PRAYER and PRAISE

by F. H. Coleman

THIS year, the tercentenary of the birth of Isaac Watts was celebrated in July. He was born in Southampton on 17th July, 1674, the son of a deacon of an independent church there. Churches all over the world owe him a great debt of gratitude for changing their way of singing. Watts first paraphrased psalms, including "I'll praise my Maker while I've breath" (Psalm 146), "O God, our Help in ages past" (Psalm 90), and many others. He then took the daring step of composing Christian hymns. Later Watts moved from Southampton to Stoke Newington, then a small town on the outskirts of London. When he died, he was buried with other famous Christians in the nonconformist burial ground, Bunhill Fields. A memorial was erected in Westminster Abbey.

Following his death, many men and women used their God-given talents to write Christian hymns and poetry. There have been some with this gift in the Pentecostal movement in our land. A Pentecostal minister gave me permission to include in my column the following poem which he wrote on the subject of prayer:

The Miracle of Prayer

*It is a source of wonder
That I ever struggled through,
All the difficulties of life,
And the tasks given me to do;
How marvellous to think,
That every trial, every problem, every care,
Was overcome and solved,
THROUGH THE MIRACLE OF PRAYER.*

*How wonderful to realize,
The Presence of a Loving Friend,
When it seemed as if all was lost,
And life's journey had no end.
'Twas grand to feel His Gentle Hand,
And hear His Whispered Word,
When all alone amid the darkness
Of this present evil world.*

*I cannot say how it happens,
Except by a MIRACLE of Grace,
That I should conquer in the fight,
And win through in life's race.*

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

22. The Feast of Passover (Exodus 12:14)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THE time of Israel's deliverance finally arrived; by one last plague the Lord would break Pharaoh's resistance; an angel of the Lord would pass over Egypt to slay the firstborn, but the houses sheltered by the blood of the Passover Lamb would be spared. Moses gave clear instructions to the Israelites and they obeyed him, sprinkled the blood, and their firstborn were saved. The Egyptians did not sprinkle the blood, so their firstborn died.

The Lord commanded Israel to keep the Passover feast every year in remembrance of their night of deliverance, and also as a thanksgiving to God for saving them. In a way the Passover became the barometer of Israel's spiritual life. When they were back-slidden the Feast was neglected or else it became a formality; but in times of revival, as in the days of Hezekiah and Josiah, the Feast was celebrated with fervent joy.

It was at the Passover that the Lord Jesus introduced the Lord's Supper, a simple meal, when the disciples ate bread and drank wine together. The broken bread spoke of His Body broken on the Cross, and it also declared that all believers are united in His broken Body. The cup declared that His Blood was shed to take away our sin, and that believers have eternal life through His poured out life. As with the Passover it is a service of remembrance and thanksgiving, and the One we call our Lord and Master has expressly commanded that we should often keep this feast.

There are three main reasons why believers should meet at the Lord's Table. First, in obedience to the command of our Lord; second, out of thankful love for His sacrifice which has cleansed our sin; third, to show our unity in the Body of Christ with all believers—to "discern the Body". If we lose the wonder of salvation we shall be indifferent or formal in our attitude to the Lord's Supper, but if we truly love Him we shall meet at His Table with fervent joy.

"Let her own works praise her"

When I gazed at the pure, white memorial stone where her death is recorded and those of her parents I was amazed at her humility. At her express wish, no name is inscribed on the gravestone, only "F.N. 1820-1910" below a simple cross. What a contrast, I felt, to the bold memorial of Thomas Pitt of which I wrote in my last week's page. Even inside the primitive church there was little display or ostentation, just a cross made of bullets from the Crimea and a shabby, framed text: "It is I, be not afraid", which hung once in her bedroom in her house in London's Park Lane, a faded photo of Florence in bed taken in 1905, and a simple plaque placed there by the residents of Hampshire in recognition of her service to the country.

Florence Nightingale was the daughter of a rich landowner and grew up surrounded by every comfort at Embley Park, a secluded estate not far from Romsey. When she was seventeen years old this serious-minded girl, who longed to do something useful in the world, received a direct call from God into His service. She recorded in her diary: "God has something for me to do for Him or He would have let me die some time ago. I hope to do it by living . . . then my eyes would indeed have seen His salvation".

There is no doubt that Florence Nightingale was an earnest Christian, one who gladly gave up home comforts, security, a life of ease and even marriage because of God's call. She faced fierce opposition from her family, but she battled on, though it was not until she was thirty-three years old that she was able to break away from her home and family.

As I left the church where I'd learned so much, I thanked God for a Christian witness in a secluded, country parish through the many centuries. I also longed that many young people today, when there is greater freedom in life and greater opportunity than in the life-time of Florence Nightingale, will hear God's call and will answer with a cry of full surrender and find the fulfilment which comes alone from a dedicated life of service to God and to man. Let us ever remember the words of our Master: "Whoever would save his life will lose it; and whoever loses his life for My sake, he will save it" (Luke 9:24, RSV).

ONE of the delights of a stay-at-home holiday is the chance to explore the nearby towns and villages, places one has to by-pass or rush through when busy on essential journeys. So it was a pleasure for me to go on a leisurely car trip into the New Forest area and to visit at last the Saxon church of Wellow, hidden away down a country lane away from the villages it serves.

I was enchanted with the little church in its peaceful, rural setting, and its history I found to be very fascinating. This church of St. Margaret was founded in A.D. 1215, the year of the signing of the Magna Carta. The parish existed in King Alfred's day and was presented to him by his daughter, Ethelfreda. Strange as it may seem, there grew up in this parish a little girl who was destined to be more famous than Ethelfreda and who worshipped in the church and lies buried in the quiet country churchyard.

I refer to Florence Nightingale, the pioneer of hospital reform, whose genius for administration and loving compassion for the wounded and the dying was shown during the Crimean War. She endeared herself to the British soldiers who gave her the title "The Lady with the Lamp". Her system of nursing was adopted and developed in all parts of the world. Florence Nightingale was finally honoured with a testimonial of £50,000 which she used to found The Nightingale Training School for Nurses attached to St. Thomas's Hospital, London.

"Exhorting them to continue in the faith" (v.22).

AFTER faith for salvation the attribute most required is perseverance. So many cry, "Where is the blessedness I knew when first I saw the Lord?" The reason for this is so often insufficient determination to continue steadfast in the faith. When a little girl was asked why she fell out of bed she replied, "Cos I stayed too near to where I got in." It is only by getting right into the centre of total Christian commitment that new converts will find the tempered strength so necessary to encounter tribulation with fortitude. Any loss we suffer will be amply recompensed. The way of the cross leads to a crown.

Tuesday, September 10th

Acts 15:1-11

"Through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved . . . as they (v.11).

IT was too good to last. The Christians at Antioch were rejoicing in their new faith when some Christian Pharisees began teaching the need of circumcision for Gentiles. Though converted they still clung to the old Mosaic law. After all, wasn't Jesus circumcised, and hadn't He said He had come to fulfil the law and not destroy it? Their argument seemed logical. In this way Satan stirred up dissension, thus detracting the church from its more important task of evangelism. We can fall into the same trap by insisting that our interpretation of the scriptures is the only correct one. When texts seem to conflict, do as Peter and Paul did and follow the Jesus' way.

Wednesday, September 11th

Acts 15:12-29

"Barnabas and Paul declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them" (v.12).

IN presenting the circumcision problem the law supporters had, in effect, queried whether the teaching of Barnabas and Paul was from God, as these men had not included it in the requirements for the salvation of the Gentiles. So Paul and Barnabas defended themselves with an account of the fruits of their labours. Signs had followed their preaching, souls were saved and bodies supernaturally healed. If God had set the seal of the Holy Spirit upon their work who would dare question it? When John the Baptist asked if Jesus were truly the Messiah, Jesus cited His miracles as evidence of His claim. The apostles followed Christ's lead. Can we do better?

Thursday, September 12th

Acts 15:30-41

"The contention was so sharp between them that they departed asunder one from the other" (v.39).

PAUL suggested to Barnabas that they revisit the people in the churches they had established to encourage perseverance and strengthen faith. Barnabas agreed, determining to take Mark as before, but Paul remembering Mark's earlier instability to stay the course, would not consent. This disagreement must have pleased Satan, but God, unwilling that His work should suffer, used it to His glory. The apostles separated, each going to his own country's churches and thus two areas benefited instead of one. How comforting it is to know that things we do which please us but fail to reach up to God's standards, He can still permit and even use them to work out His own purposes.

Friday, September 13th

Acts 16:1-10

"Took and circumcised him because of the Jews" (v.3).

IT had been agreed that circumcision was not an essential for salvation, largely because of Paul's testimony at the general conference. Yet Paul circumcised Timothy. Why? He did it because without it Timothy would be considered ceremonially unclean and so offend the Jewish Christians. Paul was still against the imposition of this rite upon Gentiles who didn't want or need it. But he had no objection to the act if anyone desired it. So it was an act of consideration for the feelings of others. Our conduct in Christian churches of other denominations should be similarly guided by the spirit and not the letter, for love must be central in all our acts.

Saturday, September 14th

Acts 16:11-24

"I command thee in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her" (v.18).

HOW strange it seems that a girl directing men and women to the servants of God through whom salvation could be found, should be a servant of the devil. She worshipped Pytho, who was supposed to be embodied in a python, which reminds us of the form Satan took in the Garden of Eden. The devil possessed her and hoped by speaking the truth through her to discount the apostles' testimony, knowing that devout people would disregard anyone who appeared to use fortune-tellers. But Satan was confounded when Paul cast the demon out of the girl, for this made God-fearing people most willing to hear Paul. The gift of discernment is even more important today.

Sunday, September 15th

Acts 16:25-40

"Suddenly there was a great earthquake . . . and everyones bands were loosed" (v.26).

PAUL and Silas, after beatings, were put in the stocks in the dungeon for absolute security. Despite

A Witchdoctor loses

IN the prison courtyard my accordion playing was attracting the prisoners around us. Yohana beckoned to me and explained in whispers that 'Songo' was the inmate of one of the cells facing us. A prisoner added the further information that Songo had now been in the prison for three days. He was just resting it appeared, he could leave whenever he wished. "By levitation through the roof", he had explained to his awed fellow prisoners. Songo was who? what? "The great power of God," he said. Number ten, a smeller out of witches, doctor of doctors, all others were number nine! He dispensed the elixirs of life and the prayers of a Moslem priest. A constant headache to the British Administrators, who saw only part of his activities! Most of his deeds were done in that dark world or no-man's land of Native medicine, where all happenings have a cause and nothing is by chance; a constant nightmare of demons, omens, menacing in-laws and neighbours. What they did see, deaths without cause, postmortems revealing nothing, people giving up life, was baffling. The African's talk of departed spirits, menacing devils! What Englishman believed in such things?

My first glimpse of Songo was at the head of a long procession heading for the District Commissioner's office. In the grip of two of his apprentices was an evil looking, toothless old man. Triumphant Songo waved a piece of decaying meat. "He had eaten his nephew", he explained. The accused certainly looked the part, but I now know that cannibals usually have nice shining teeth and even look very pleasant. The Administrators chuckled collectively when the old man was freed, the meat was pork and the nephew reappeared.

But the 'elixir' season was in full swing, there was nothing to laugh about really. This ink-like liquid was being dispensed to thousands of people who, at a time when they should have been planting, or hunting crop destroying monkeys or pigs, were gathering at Songo's camp obtaining healing for every sickness, rejuvenation for the flagging, added years for the aging, children for the barren, and cleansing from all demon influence. All these things he could do under cover of his licence to practise Native medicine. But some of his other practices came to light, and with pleasure the Administrators saw him locked away.

The prisoners joined us in the singing and then Yohana began to preach. The door of Songo's cell was ajar, we were wondering if he could hear. Suddenly he was standing framed in the doorway. The prisoners edged nervously away lest we were going to get involved with Songo. Anything might happen to us, they thought. How would Yohana react? I was somewhat confused myself, having never before had such a confrontation. But Yohana was undaunted, indeed he discontinued preaching and addressed himself direct to Songo. As he began to rebuke him, all the prisoners went to the farthest wall and waited to see what would happen to the preacher. Yohana knew much of Songo's life story and related many of his misdeeds. The prisoners were aghast and watched Yohana closely; surely he would falter? drop dead? But it was Songo who retreated into his cell and closed the door.

Songo was there during my next visit. I talked with him several times in the months that followed. Greatly to the regret of his fellow prisoners he did not disappear, by levitation, or any other means. I gathered that the Administrators had beaten him, they were number eleven. We talked together of a 'Greater One', God's Son. Finally, he told me that, for him there could be no change, but he would send word to his people. The children would be sent to the Mission to hear of Yesu. The following year he died. He had acknowledged the claims of Jesus but refused to surrender to Him personally. His son and grandson responded. The grandson is a Government Official now.

their painful condition they sang praises to God. Then came the earthquake that set everyone free, yet none tried to escape. As a result the jailor and his household found salvation. During the Great War neighbours sought safety in our house during air raids believing that as my parents were godly folk, God would consequently shelter them. They crowded in and we all sang hymns and prayed and mother told them the gospel story. At Poplar as well as at Philippi God saves souls as well as bodies from danger through the faithful few.

CHRISTIANS have almost always been a minority; at times they have been a 'substantial' minority, but more generally they have been the 'few' amongst the 'many'.

This little flock, "fewer they are than the world imagines"; says Richard Baxter, "yet not so few as some drooping spirits think".

Not that the first generation of believers seemed unnecessarily pre-occupied with making an impression on the world that then was. Perhaps it was because they did not try to make an impression that they were so effective. It may well be in later ages that some have tried so hard to create a favourable impression ("Woe unto you, when all men speak well of you" Luke 6:26) that they have forgotten that their Master was a humble carpenter who had "nowhere to lay His head". Though they cared very little for popular acclaim, it was the chief business of their lives to make His Name known even in "the regions beyond". That same desire should possess those who follow Christ today.

Let our concern be not so much with creating a favourable impression, but more with making an impact. It is more important to get our message over than it is to build up our own reputation.

Why is it that human behaviour swings so often from one extreme to the other? Fifty years ago when the Pentecostal Pioneers met in their 'tin tabernacles' and 'upper rooms' they endured persecution gladly. Now that we meet in our much more substantial buildings we find that we are welcomed in the most unlikely quarters. Yet do we make any more impact on a world who do not even know why Christ died, let alone care what speaking in tongues is all about? It is to these people that we must go. We must go because they need our message. We will go when we really love them. We have been called to evangelise not to proselytize.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH —

- 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril.
- 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God.
- 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus.
- 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin.
- 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies.
- 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer.
- 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King.
- 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance.
- 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation.
- 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ.
- 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors.
- 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

PORTSMOUTH

Pastor: A.A. Biddle

WE recently entered a float in the local carnival as an act of witness. We gave out over 1,500 pieces of literature in the space of one Saturday afternoon. In the evening the witness was continued at our barbecue on Southsea beach before a large crowd. On the Sunday night a group of sixty of our own young people took part in a great meeting before a packed church. Many people came to the Lord through these efforts.

The annual Summer visit of the London Crusader Choir directed by Pastor Douglas B. Gray, to Eastbourne Elim Church, was another red letter day. An almost capacity crowd filled the church for the afternoon meeting bringing together many holiday makers from Elim churches around the British Isles.

An added joy was the presence of the Eastbourne Victoria Avenue Baptist male voice choir, with their conductor, Jim Bennett, M.B.E., whose renditions were of high spiritual and musical standard. The male section of the Crusader Choir joined with the visiting choir in a moving rendering of 'Sweet will of God'. Pastor D.B. Gray, who is Conductor-in-Chief of the London and Home Counties Festivals of Male Voice Praise, comprising a massed chorus of some five-hundred men, warmly welcomed the conductor and choirmen.

As is usual the church was crowded to capacity for the evening meeting. The guest speaker at both meetings was Pastor Jack Hywel-Davies, who has worked very closely with the choir in radio, festivals, and prison evangelism. It was a great pleasure to meet several past members of the Crusader Choir between the meetings. Special mention must be made and deep gratitude voiced for the most generous hospitality displayed by workers of the Eastbourne Church in caring and catering for such a large family. The presence of Pastor John Lancaster was greatly missed on this occasion, he with Mrs. Lancaster and family being on holiday.

"But the Lord said to David my father, forasmuch as it was in thine heart to build an house for my name, thou didst well in that it was in thine heart. 2 Chronicles 6:8.

THE CHELMSFORD Elim Church still stands on its original site in Mildmay Road, very near the town centre and its new modern shopping precinct. In order to fully appreciate the very pleasing building and the consistently good membership of today, one must take a look at the details of the past. How did the Chelmsford Elim Church come into being?

In November 1926 Stephen Jeffreys felt constrained by the spirit of the Lord to come to Chelmsford and conduct a revival and healing campaign. The Corn Exchange (now called the Chancellor Hall) was hired for this purpose. The first meetings, however, were not very well attended, but as the gospel was preached and miracles of healing were made manifest, numbers increased. Many souls were saved and bodies healed, so that at the end of the first week, 500 were attending the meetings and about 300 made decisions for Christ and many were healed.

Many folk who formerly attended other churches were drawn to the (then) new Pentecostal message, and with other converts of the campaign they became eager to form their own assembly. After Stephen Jeffreys left the town, the Co-operative hall in Barrack Square was hired and Mr. Axcell Snr. was invited to become the church's first leader. The saints were still without their own place of worship but after much prayer, one of the converts of the crusade, Mr. Ager, was asked to build a church on a site in Mildmay Road, so we were born! Although floor boards had not been laid and the floor was of earth, the opening ceremony took place at the Easter Convention in 1927. The services were convened by Mr. Axcell Snr., supported by his son Herbert (who later became pastor) and Mr. George Nunn. This building received the name of "Glad Tidings Hall".

As the time went on a Sisterhood meeting and a Sunday school were brought into being and these have since prospered under the gracious hand of our God.

In June 1927 the first baptismal service was held, and there are still some friends who were obedient to the Lord's call on that particular day who remember the thrill of water baptism. About one month later, during a service, one of the members received his baptism — the first of many.

Collections at that time scarcely exceeded £2.00 per week, but in every way the work was sustained.

After the resignation of Pastor Axcell, Mr. Hall became pastor, succeeded by Pastors B. Moore, J. Woodhead, A. Wright, (two terms of service) G. Backhouse, J. Eaton and our present pastor D. Anthony, who this year completes twenty-four years of pastoral ministry in our Chelmsford church. All these brethren have had the joy of being instrumental in the Lord's hands of establishing a flourishing work in Chelmsford. Today there exists a sincere witness in the town and in neighbouring areas.

After a year or two the church became affiliated to the 'Elim Foursquare Gospel Alliance', now called 'The Elim Pentecostal Church'.

A very successful feature of Pastor Woodhead's ministry was the inauguration of a Monday night men's meeting which eventually reached a peak attendance of fifty.

When war came in 1939 a number of the young men were called up and served in the three services. Every young brother returned safely to their homes and church. As far as can be recalled, no member suffered loss or injury and the church premises escaped damage although at least one bomb fell uncomfortably near. Services were maintained under the pastoral leadership of Mr. Wright throughout the war, defying air-raids and the blackout.

When one looks at the present church building with its lively spiritual activities, one is conscious of the fact that the intervening years from 1927–1974 have not been years which the 'locusts have eaten' neither have they been fraught with a tendency to indifference or complacency on the part of the present or former pastors or members, but are now, and ever have been, vibrant with enthusiasm. Prayer, hard work, initiative, imagination, as well as acts of faith and conscientious giving in tithes and offerings, are still the order of the day. Foundation members are greatly esteemed amongst us and sometimes speak with nostalgia of those early days, yet without exception they rejoice in the growth of the church. Of all the blessing they have received perhaps the most treasured memories are of those early days almost half a century ago!

A few years ago improvements were made to the facade, presenting to the passer-by an indication of the well-maintained interior. Coloured glass to the vestibule reflects the sun, flowers on the patio for most of the year are supplied and nurtured by Mr. C. Gilbey, one of our deacons.

Four years ago the minor hall and kitchen underwent a major modernization operation and a second storey was added, providing a 'large upper room, furnished', a much-needed pastor's and deacon's room, a small utility room and two cloakrooms. The structural work was done by a local building firm, but the remainder was accomplished by Pastor Anthony and the members. Modern central heating and amplifying systems were also installed in the church at the same time.

Of special interest and enjoyment is our choir of about thirty five members. About fifteen years ago Mr. K. Tween and Pastor Anthony were inspired to produce a Christmas musical festival and this has proved to be so great a blessing that for a number of years it has been necessary to give two evenings to this project in order to accommodate friends from near and far. The choir have had many invitations to visit other churches during the year, invitations not confined exclusively to our own denomination. They are blessed with very good musicians as accompanists, the youngest is Nicholas, aged about fourteen years who is adept on the percussion! The choir each year leads Christmas singing with the nurses around the wards of the local hospitals.

For some time a minibus was used to bring to church those friends who had transport difficulties, but as the need became greater a coach was purchased and now we have a forty-one seater bus, which not only brings in the members on Sunday mornings and evenings, and takes them home, but is also a tremendous asset to the Sunday school. Maintenance and driving are a self-imposed duty for some of our brethren and the financial situation is taken care of by voluntary contributions by members of the church.

A bookroom for the sale of Christian literature and Sunday school supplies operates from the church and its facilities are available and much appreciated by many churches both within the area of the Eastern Presbytery and further afield.

Former members in full time service include Mrs. Maureen Butcher, serving with her husband as an Elim missionary in the Transvaal, Michael and Valerie Reynolds, after graduating from the Elim Bible College, are in charge of the Elim Pentecostal Church at Cannock, Staffs.

The Crusader meetings are well attended and enjoy very varied programmes. From time to time they organize a coffee bar and the young people go out into the town equipped with tracts and invitation cards, their enthusiasm is a joy to observe. Results are sometimes not very rewarding but the good seed has been sown. Often, on Sunday evenings they enjoy their own 'after church rally' by meeting together in the 'upper room' for prayer and for the infilling of the Holy Ghost. Spiritual development is very apparent in so many of their lives and we who are older thank God for this.

Since the arrival in 1973 of Pastor S. Renshaw (a graduate of the Elim Bible College) as assistant pastor, a Friday evening children's meeting has been recommenced and this is proving very successful. Pastor Renshaw and a group of others also frequently engage upon door-to-door evangelism which has resulted in children and adults attending services and Sunday school.

Once a month, in co-operation with other Chelmsford evangelical churches, a group from our church conduct a service in one of the wards of St. John's Hospital and this is greatly blessed of God.

Amongst a number of other types of witness in our town is a weekly report of the previous week's services, submitted by one of our sisters to the local newspaper. This indirect means of advertising our meetings has been successful in encouraging others to join us in worship. Another sister contributes to the witness by sending letters of condolence to the bereaved, on behalf of the church.

Chelmsford Elim Church today is an ever-increasing family church for one of its predominant features is the good percentage of young families. On Sunday mornings, although essentially a service of breaking of bread, the number of babies and young children attending with their parents is a joy to see, especially because of their excellent behaviour, for no service is ever disturbed by them and even the infants show an interest in the service. Much prayer attends these children, a number of whom have already taken Jesus into their young hearts.

Inevitably, beloved saints have been called home, but their works do follow them and of those, possibly the youngest worker was Kenneth Tween who for many years, from a boy, in fact, was actively engaged in many of the activities of which I have written. In tribute to all our departed ones we can assert that 'their labour was not in vain in the Lord'.

From the initial thrill of that great beginning in 1926/7 through the years of labour, encouragement, discouragement, war, building programmes, Holy Ghost inspired ministry, campaigns, youth work, choir, sisterhood, conventions, choir festivals, conversions and healings, there has emerged a church in Mildmay Road, (with a minimum seating capacity for 200) a people still keen to witness for Christ. We have full congregations each Sunday and a fellowship of brethren and sisters who still believe in the doctrines of the foursquare gospel — Jesus Saviour, Healer, Baptiser and coming King!

We have not now come to a full stop — plans are afoot, if the Lord tarry, for more activity in the field of witness, decorating and other general improvements for the necessary maintenance of this house of God. May we presume to apply to Chelmsford the Lord's words to David, "Forasmuch as it was in thine heart to build an house for my name, thou didst well that it was in thine heart".

Willy

the little Wildebeest who had no ears

A TRADITIONAL STORY told by
L.A. PFAFF

1. In the big game reserve there lived a mother Wildebeest and her little baby, Willy. 2. The mother taught Willy how to lie still and hide as others would love to eat him. One day she had to go away. "I'll be back at evening" she said, "but until then keep hiding and don't go to eat grass or you will be caught." 3. Later a lion walked by. He looked around but Willy was hidden, his ears looking like the tall grass.

4. Next was a hungry cheetah, he ran near to Willy but the baby looked like a stone. 5. The bold leopard walked straight for the hiding place. Willy closed his eyes from fear, he did not move and the leopard did not see him. 6. At midday Willy felt hungry and said, "I'll just go a little way, the grass is near and the other animals are far away." He listened but heard nothing so Willy got up, walked carefully to the green grass and started eating.

7. The grass was lovely and Willy didn't notice Mr. Lion creeping up. One jump and poor Willy was no more. He was carried back to Mr. Lion's home where he was given to the cook to prepare, while the lion went away. 8. The cook's friend came visiting and was very hungry; so the cook asked what part of the Wildebeest he would like. He asked for the ears; so the cook gave them to him. 9. On his return the lion called for his dinner. The meat was brought on a plate and was lovely, but the lion growled, "Where are the ears, I like them best." Thinking quickly the cook told him it had no ears, but the lion snarled and growled, "It did have, I killed it with ears, and gave it to you with ears. — NOW GET THE EARS!"

10. The cook was afraid and had to get himself out of trouble. He asked the lion to go with him to speak to the one who knew Willy best, the baby's mother. 11. They went together and found the mother eating grass. "We come in peace," they said, "can you help us settle an argument?" The mother said she would, so they asked if Willy did have ears. The mother looked and looked; she was thinking, then she whispered sadly, "No, my baby had no ears; if he did have, he would have been here!" 12a. One day Jesus was teaching the people. He said, "He that has ears to hear, let him hear." Some of the people were looking at Him but not listening to His words,—just like poor little Willy. 12b. People today are just the same, they have ears but they do not listen and obey when they hear the word of God.

Are YOU listening? The Bible is full of warnings and promises.

WARNING: All have sinned and come short of the glory of God. (Rom. 3:23.)

PROMISE: Jesus said, "I am the door (the way); if anyone enters by me he will be saved," (given a new life through Christ) (John 10:9.)

WARNING: The wages of Sin is (spiritual) death. (Rom 6:23.)

PROMISE: but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. (Rom. 6:23.)

WARNING: There is a way that seems right to a man but the end is the way to death. (Prov. 14:12).

PROMISE: Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth and the Life." (John 14:6).

Are you like little Willy or have you listened? Are you willing to obey? Ask Jesus Christ to come into your life right now, to take your sin away and to make you a new person.

If you need further help, write your name here and give it to your Sunday school teacher.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

23. The Promises of God (Exodus 12:25)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THE PROMISE referred to in this verse was first given to Abraham some five hundred years previously. Abraham never saw the fulfilment of this promise even though, in obedience to the Lord, he left Ur and dwelt in tents in the land of Canaan. Several hundred years later, Abraham's descendants lived in the land of Egypt, many of those being spent in slavery. Yet that ancient promise of God was given again, this time through Moses on the Passover night. Israel's unbelief delayed the promise for a further forty years, but it was finally fulfilled when Israel entered the promised land.

Note three things regarding the promises of God. First, some promises are fulfilled at once, such as Israel's deliverance at the Red Sea (Exodus 14:13), and the salvation of the sinner (Acts 16:30-34); other promises are fulfilled later, as with the promise of a child to Abraham (after twenty-five years), and the promise to him of the Seed (after two thousand years). Second, the promises of God are conditional — Abraham had to leave Ur and go where God led him; and the sinner must repent of his sin and believe on the Lord Jesus. Third, the promises of God are sure; the universe depends on His faithfulness and power, He does not change for He is utterly trustworthy (Malachi 3:6; Hebrews 10:23; James 1:17).

We live in an age marked by human unfaithfulness, when people will break the most solemn promises, if they become inconvenient. Yet we can still depend implicitly on the promises of God: first, He does not mock us, every promise is sealed by the Blood of His Son; second, unlike man, God is immortal and His Word cannot be invalidated by death; third, His power is sufficient to fulfil every promise made. We are, therefore, building upon a very sure foundation and our lives should be characterised by inner peace and security. Folk around us, in this insecure age, should be aware of this and, perhaps, through us they too will begin to build on the true rock.

God's wonderful Secretary

by H. C. Phillips

Veteran missionary Mr. Phillips went to be with Christ December 12th 1973 after serving in Africa since 1928.

These notes were sent to us by David Butcher, who tells us that numerics were a favourite topic of our dear brother.

THERE never has been and never will be a writer like the Holy Spirit. Perfection to the last detail is to be found in the writings we call the Holy Scriptures. Yet there remain gems of inspiration and information as yet undiscovered. Most likely many of these treasures will never be discovered. Why, we cannot understand — except that all God's creations are so perfect to the very last detail, whether seen by man or not. This fact is illustrated by the world of beauty, out of sight, at the bottoms of the oceans. Right down there, far too deep for man to descend, even too deep for proper investigation, are teeming varieties of fishes and plants, absolutely magnificent in colour and beauty.

Now our study is based on a short passage in John 3:14, 15. In the Revised Standard Version it reads as follows: "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so must the Son of Man be lifted up, that whoever believes in Him may have eternal life". Before discussing this rather puzzling verse, in which our Lord paints a picture of Himself, saying that one day He would resemble a serpent fastened to a pole, I want you to be very patient with me. We are going to do some arithmetic; but let us talk about writing first, as sums are generally written.

We are all familiar with the fact that we use two kinds of symbols when we write. The first is called the alphabet which, in English consists of the 26 letters A to Z; the second is the numerals 1,2,3,4,5,6, 7,8,9,0. Now we are told that in many of the ancient languages they had no special symbols for numerals; they used the letters of their alphabets to represent numerals. You will remember that on our clocks, and occasionally for other purposes, we still use Roman numerals. Thus I is 1, V is 5, X is 10 and so on.

In the two languages in which the bulk of the Bible was written, Hebrew and Greek, A represented 1, B represented 2, and, all the letters of the alphabets were used to represent, each one, a definite number.

Why am I worrying you with all these details? For this reason. If every Greek (and Hebrew) letter represents a number, and it does, then every word in the original Scriptures represents the sum of those numbers. Let me give you an example. That beautiful name JESUS, when written in the Greek language, is spelt with six letters, each of which we now see represents a number. If we add these six numbers together we find the total is 888. Compare this with Antichrist's number given in Revelation 13:18, namely, 666.

It was realised only about eighty years ago that the whole Bible from Genesis to Revelation has a very real and miraculous background of arithmetical phenomena. So involved are these intricate patterns of numbers in Scripture that we may say that they will never be completely unravelled.

These numbers, from the first verse of Genesis to the last verse of Revelation, form such an amazing background to the Scriptures that they are much more intricate than the delicate traceries printed as a background on our Treasury notes. These numerical patterns confirm the fact that this Book is none other than the handiwork of God Himself. Now every one of us uses arithmetic in his daily life. Coins have to be counted. Our womenfolk measure their cloth in dressmaking, and their materials when cooking, and the men when building, etc. God does this too! Isaiah said to Him, "Who measured the waters in the hollow of His hand and marked off the heavens with a span, enclosed the dust of the earth in a measure and the hills in a balance?" (Isaiah 40:12). Ask the scientific people. They will tell you. All chemical combinations are based on figures. Speeds of light, sound, radio waves follow arithmetical laws. So do musical notes, and the vast movements of the huge bodies of the universe. Jesus said that the very hairs of your head are all numbered. God is a God of figures throughout the whole realm of nature; so also in His inspired Scriptures. I believe there is more arithmetic involved in any chapter of the Bible than in any textbook on arithmetic used in our schools.

This concept of the infra-structure of Scriptures may be new to some, so I have spoken of it at some length by way of introduction. Now we can turn to some actual examples.

Seven, as we know, is a very common number both in nature and in the Bible — seven churches in Asia, seven candlesticks, seven seals, seven trumpets, seven petitions in the Lord's prayer, seven laws of social behaviour in the Ten Commandments, etc. Seven is the perfect number; three stands for the Godhead; six is man's number; forty a complete test; thirteen stands for evil and five for grace. Other numbers, too, have their significance in the Scriptures. The number eight (7 + 1) represents a new beginning or a new covenant. Jewish boys were circumcised on the eighth day. Jesus rose from the dead on the eighth day.

Now we have already seen that the name JESUS has the value 888, which is 111 times 8. The value of the letters in THE CHRIST add up to 185 eights. The letters in the word SAVIOUR make 176 eights. LORD is equal to 100 times 8. MESSIAH has 82 eights, and SON OF MAN 370 eights.

Looking now in the opposite direction, that is at the number 13, we find that SERPENT gives the number 780, that is, sixty times thirteen; TEMPTER 81 thirteens; the word DRAGON is equal to 75 thirteens and occurs in Scripture thirteen times; MURDERER (Satan was a murderer from the beginning) is 140 times thirteen; BELIAL, 6 times thirteen. The phrase CALLED THE DEVIL AND SATAN is equal to $13 \times 13 \times 13$.

Now, at last, we are coming back to our verse about the lifting up of the serpent in the wilderness. Jesus Christ was "lifted up" on the cross, as He had prophesied to His followers. What was His name that was written on the cross? Pilate said, "write Jesus of Nazareth", or, more literally, "Jesus the Nazarene".

You will never guess the number of that name! It adds up to 2,197 or, in other words, $13 \times 13 \times 13$. No eight was to be found here, but the special number which represents SIN, and that, three times! The Bible says, "For our sakes He made Him to be SIN — who knew no sin, so that in Him we might become the righteousness of God" (2 Corinthians 5:21). Men read on the cross, "THIS IS JESUS THE NAZARENE, THE KING OF THE JEWS"; God, who reads numbers as well as words, read, "THIS IS SIN, SIN, SIN, THE KING OF THE JEWS". Here is the cup He had shrank from in Gethsemane, that He, the sinless One, should be made like unto sin. His own loving Father was to make Him just that. He was counted as a transgressor (Luke 22:37) and He was treated as the supreme transgressor. For a few-never-to-be-forgotten hours, He became what was utterly repugnant to the Godhead, and embraced in Himself the sin, sickness, misery, shame, death and curse of the whole world of sinners. The very thought of all this produced the super-human tensions of Gethsemane which were to be followed by the cruel experiences of Calvary. "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have eternal life". Those six awful hours ended with the triumphant word "FINISHED" (John 19:30).

*"It is finished" Jesus cried
When on the cross He was crucified;
It is finished, All is paid, Hallelujah!
All my sins are ever gone
When He died, God's only Son:
It is finished; All is paid; Hallelujah.*

I recently heard this illustration. In a veld fire the safest place is where the fire has done its work. Blessed be God; we find our salvation and safety there, at Calvary, where the fierce fires of judgment completely finished their cruel work — ON HIM.

And now, where is He? John the Apostle said: "I saw the Lamb standing — as though it had been slain. And they fell down before the Lamb and sang a new song saying: worthy are Thou for Thou wast slain and by Thy blood didst ransom men for God" (Revelation 5:6, 8, 9).

*It was His love for me
That nailed Him to the tree
To die in agony
For all my sin.*

*Oh! What a Saviour is mine!
In Him God's mercies combine.
His love can never decline,
And He loves me.*

Desert Island discs

by A. Nicolson,
Pastor of our
Southend-on-Sea Church

MY guest this afternoon is the famous missionary and expositor of the Christian faith, the Apostle Paul. "Have you ever considered the possibility of being a castaway?"

Paul: "Yes indeed. I wrote to the church at Corinth expressing my fear of this very thing."

"Do you think you could escape from your desert island?"

Paul: "No, you see no one could escape from the desert island of 'eternal separation'. So different from our island today."

"Can we have your first disc?"

Paul: "I would like a rendering of Psalm ninety-six, which is a great song of praise unto the Lord."

"And your second disc?"

Paul: "I am an Israelite of the tribe of Benjamin so I would like a recording of the recitation of Psalm sixty with its visions of hope and peace for Zion."

"You say you are an Israelite. What is your view on Jesus Christ?"

Paul: "At one time I hated that name and all who preached it. One day, on my way to Damascus to persecute the Christians, I had an amazing experience when this Jesus spoke to me from heaven, and that changed my whole life. Now that name means everything to me, and I am a Christian."

"Your next disc please."

Paul: "I would love to have a recording of Peter's sermon on the Day of Pentecost."

"What would you say is your greatest ambition?"

Paul: "That I may know Him and the power of His resurrection."

"Our time is running out. What are your next two discs?"

Paul: "First, a recording of 'The Magnificat' which expresses in such a wonderful way the wonder and glory of Mary's miraculous experience in giving birth to Jesus. The second is of a choir with soloist singing 'The Song of Moses' from Exodus chapter fifteen."

"What would be your advice to any young minister of the Gospel?"

Paul: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

"Let's take your last three records together."

Paul: "The first is a recording of a reading from the book of the law of God. This reminds me of Ezra's great moment when he read from this book whilst standing in a pulpit. The second is a recording of David's twenty-third psalm sung by a choir from Israel, and my final record is a personal one, a recording of my own testimony."

"Can you name one article of value that you would take with you."

Paul: "Yes, my beloved parchments."

"And one book, apart from the Old Testament."

Paul: "Any one of the works by my old teacher Gamaliel."

"Thank you, Paul, for being with us, and sharing your records on 'Desert island discs'."

The writer craves the indulgence of every reader for his moments of imaginative musings in his study, and trusts that in some way they may prove a blessing.

GLEANINGS

Christ is all

by S. E. Petts

"Life is in His Son; he that hath the Son hath life" (1 John 5:11)

IT is easy to read into "My God shall supply all your need" that, when we have a need for love, we go to God and He gives us love, when we need humility, we go to God and He gives us humility. It is like going to a doctor each time we have a new ailment and receiving at one time a pill, at another time medicine, and at another time a tonic. Christ is the great Physician. When we accept Christ we have life, all of it, waiting for us. Paul doesn't say, "The fruits of the Spirit are love, joy", etc., but "the fruit is". When we have the fruit of the Spirit we have all the attributes. Similarly, when we have the Son, we have life, full, abundant, complete. One gift of God, His Son, supplies all our need whatever it is. We strive to make each part of our characters holy, for the Word declares, "Be ye holy, for I am holy", yet in so doing we miss the whole point that because God is holy we are holy if we have Him. If we have the Son we have life, every perfect aspect of it. All we lack is the faith to appropriate it.

Further thoughts on the creation

by Dr. A. J. 'Monty' White, member of our Caerphilly Church

IN MY previous article we saw that the Biblical doctrine of the Creation cannot be fully understood by the natural man. We considered that the creation was brought about by the Word of God and that it exhibits many of the attributes of God—His deity, power, wisdom, understanding, glory and handiwork. Finally we gave thanks to God for His creation.

In Genesis 1:31, at the end of God's six day creation, we read, "And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good." This is in sharp contrast to the words uttered by Paul in Romans 8:22, "For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now." Something then occurred between the day that God pronounced His creation "very good", and the time that Paul said that the creation "groaneth and travaileth". This something was THE FALL.

The Fall is the name given to that event recorded in Genesis 3, when Adam and Eve chose to disobey God and ate of the fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. One of the results of the Fall is that the creation groans and travails. Another result is death, "Wherefore, as by one man (i.e. Adam) sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned", (Romans 5:12). In this verse we see yet another result of the Fall: the fact that all have sinned. Paul in Romans 3:23 declares this boldly, "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God." Sin and death then are inextricably joined together—death is the result of sin. The Bible declares this in Romans 6:23, "For the wages of sin is death".

If we read the second half of Romans 6:23, however, the picture becomes brighter, for there we read, "but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." This truth is repeated by Paul in 1 Corinthians 15:22, where he relates this to the Fall, "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."

It is when we look at salvation from this angle that we see the importance of believing in a literal Adam and Eve. Consider carefully for example the words of apostle Paul in Romans 5:19, "For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous", and in 1 Corinthians 15:22, "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." It is obvious that a belief in a literal Adam and Eve is absolutely crucial to the plan of salvation. If Adam did not fall from his original perfect state, then there is no sin, and hence Jesus Christ died for nothing. It also follows that if universal death through Adam's sin is a myth then so is the doctrine of the resurrection, and hence our preaching and our faith are vain (see 1 Corinthians 15: 13-17).

I am sure that many of the problems that Christians have in accepting the literal, historical account of the first few chapters of Genesis, is mainly of their own doing. They have been indoctrinated by the cunningly devised fables of the evolutionist. They do err, not knowing the Scriptures which cannot be broken.

Finally, the Bible records of Jesus Christ the Creator that; "He was in the world, and the world was made by Him, and the world knew Him not. But as many as received Him, to them gave He power (the right or privilege) to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name" (John 3:10-12). The Bible also declares, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31), "... for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12).

GOD'S CUP

*Because I sing sweet songs of Joy's fulfilling, Think not I've never tasted sorrow's woe;
The breaking clouds that spoke of night's soon ending
Awoke those very songs to richest flow.
Because the flowers line my pathway's border
In varied hues, with perfumes mild and rare,
Still know there have been desert roads to travel—
And thorny wastes may yet be mine to bear.
Because just now a quiet sea surrounds me
And glittering sunset rays mark paths of gold,
Believe me—fiercest storms have swept this vessel
When only faith the anchorage could hold.
Yes, there is love—surrounding and abundant—
But just because of that do not mistake;
There have been lonely hours of agonizing
When heart its drink of suffering must take.
Ah, well, God sends to all both sweet and bitter,
So wisely does He mix the cup unknown;
And as we bless the loving hand that offers,
God's fullest grace within the life is sown.*

An Outline

SPECIALISE!

"I have learned. . . I know how. . . I can do all" (Philippians 4:11-13).

"A SPECIALIST is one who knows more and more about less and less"; but not so Paul. Here he tells the outcome of his long years of Christian discipleship. In the school of Christ learning comes by experience. Through experience comes knowledge, and knowledge leads to triumphant achievement. Paul mastered the lesson of contentment and everything else flowed from that. Thomas Carlyle, in his The French Revolution says, "The word 'king' comes from 'konning' = 'canning' = 'the man who can'". "I can do all things . . ." says God's kingly servant. "Living all your life like a king" (Romans 5:10, Phillips)!

An Exhortation

"Let us pause a while in silence and adore"
(R.S. 308)

IN evangelical circles (and especially Pentecostal ?) there has grown up a tradition that what constitutes a really good prayer meeting (or worship or Communion service) is when, with little break, prayer succeeds prayer. A brother recently told the writer of a marvellous assembly that he had attended where you had to be really quick to get into the prayer queue on a Sunday morning for it was just one after another. No doubt this is a swing of the pendulum from the bad old days when scarcely anyone prayed without being nudged and church prayer meetings dried up as a result. But this other, fostered by over-exhortation perhaps, the writer feels to be a mistake. Surely communion with God is a two-way exercise. We speak to God and He speaks to us, or should that be the other way round? We deplore the dearth of the real exercise of the vocal gifts of the Spirit in our gatherings. Could it be that we are so busy talking (praying), singing choruses and what-not, that our God and Father does not have opportunity to speak thus the more to His children? We know what we think of those bores who monopolise conversation so that we "who have so much to tell" cannot get a word in edgeways!

Earlier Pentecostals were great waiters-upon-God. Maybe there is an answer here. Pastors and people, "O tarry thou the Lord's leisure" (Psalm 27:14, P.B.V.) especially on Sunday mornings.

A Quotation

I thought that I knew my Bible!

"SHE read and learned the Scriptures systematically, repeating alternative verses with me. She knew the whole of the Gospels, Epistles, Revelation, Psalms, and Isaiah by heart, and the Minor Prophets she learned in later years".

Gems of truth

THE BIBLE, the living Word, is still making its presence felt and working miracles wherever it is read and appropriated by faith. I attended a British and Foreign Bible Society annual meeting recently, and learned much that confirmed my absolute confidence in the book of all books.

This world best-seller is remarkably cheap when we realise that being God's book it is priceless. We were reminded of the world's set of values; the price of £115 for a rare wineglass at Sotherby's sale, £7,000 paid for a 1933 penny, yet the Bible is available for all to purchase at a reasonable price, throughout the world. We can be justly proud of the progress made in this country in the production of the Scriptures. In 1804 the Bible was translated into sixty-seven languages, in 1973 as a whole or in part in 1,526 tongues, and to-day there are seventy production centres from Hong Kong to Sao Paulo and from Finland to Bangkok. It is hard to believe that every day from the British and Foreign Bible Society headquarters at New Cross unobtrusively, without any fanfare of trumpets, six tons of Bibles and Scripture portions go out with their life-giving message. The bill is £35,000 per week, certainly money well spent, and able to reap eternal dividends, as well as immediate benefits.

I listened with pleasure to the examples of the power of the Scriptures in changing lives and blessing people from all walks of life. The British diplomat Sir Geoffrey Jackson, who was held hostage for months in South America, was allowed the use of a Spanish Bible and has testified to the help and comfort it gave him. Across the world in Africa we learn of John Mpaayee who has consecrated his considerable talents to the task of preparing a Masai Bible and already since this warrior tribe have begun to read the Scriptures a mission hospital has reported that far fewer spear wounds are found among the Masai patients. Surely an example of the peaceable effect of the Word of God. Again across the land and sea to a Korean family whose Bible was of such priceless worth that they stitched and repaired its cover and pages again and again. Today four of its sons are ministers of the Gospel, all because of the life-giving Word. Finally I was impressed by the story of a young man in Singapore, a member of a gang of toughs by the age of fifteen, and from then on he spent the next fourteen years in and out of gaol. During his last sentence, which was one of seven years, he was given a copy of the gospel of Luke. The Word was applied to his heart, the miracle of conversion took place, and now the one-time criminal is a changed man and is studying at Bible School.

We cannot over estimate the value of the Scriptures in bringing the message of salvation to mankind. The British and Foreign Bible Society is 170 years old this year. Born out of Mary Jones' insistent request for a Welsh Bible, today this enterprise for God is the original partner in a mighty complex of fifty-six Bible Societies who work in 115 countries! Today's translations cover more than 90% of the world's population. Don't you feel like shouting Hallelujah?

The Church universal is fulfilling its commission and is distributing the bread of eternal life, the Scriptures, which alone can make man wise unto salvation. David knew something of the power of God's Word, for he wrote a profound statement in Psalm 107:20: "He sent His word and healed them . . . and delivered them from their destructions". The Word of God does bring healing to those bruised by sin and sorrow, and rescues them from self-destruction, and effectively delivers from the damage wrought by the devil. It has never failed, it will never pass away, or be destroyed.

Dear reader, may I again refer to our sense of values. How about you? Can you truthfully say with the psalmist "The law of Thy mouth is better unto me than thousands of gold and silver?" Psalm 119:72.

How to plan a week-end camp

1. Appreciate its value. One can often accomplish as much spiritually with some young people in a week-end camp as three months effort in the church. To have them and influence them for God, even for two or three days without a break, can often be the turning point of their lives. We often have some youngsters for only one hour a week, so think what can take place during three days with God.

2. Get the backing of Church leaders. Seek the help and guidance of the Pastor and deacons. Seek even their involvement. We abhor factions of any kind, and the church will appreciate your thoughtfulness in getting approval. It might mean that week-end numbers will suffer, so make it a church effort. The local church is the Scriptural concept for all evangelism. The church might even be able to help a little financially, regarding it as part of its own outreach.

3. Choose somewhere not too distant. You don't want to spend too much valuable time in travel, and if you have only a week-end every minute is precious. You can often use somewhere indoors. There is a book called Conference centres and holidays for you, published by the Youth Service Information Centre, with a list of hundreds of available places. The benefit of these is that for a small amount, you can just move in, and it is less work. You may wish to go outdoors: well it does not take too long to set up camp, and again there is usually a lot of equipment and tents that can be had free from the local youth service. This includes tents and cooking facilities.

4. Make a list. Preparation for anything is so important; prepare well and also in good time. You will need to check food, transport, cooking facilities, sleeping arrangements and personnel. Although there must always be someone in overall control, a good team of helpers is invaluable.

5. Don't attempt to take too many first time. One always learns by experience, and camping can be hard as well as hazardous work. So you can have a good camp with about twenty to thirty. Once you have done it you will feel ready to tackle something bigger perhaps. . . perhaps not.

6. Get advice. There may be someone in the church or Presbytery who has done this type of thing before. Arrange to see them, ask them if they could

by Pastor Laurie Lambert,
member of

join you and help out. One can read articles like this, or buy books on the subject, but someone who has actually run a week-end Camp would be able to help much more. However if there is not such a person available don't worry too much. It can be done, and it can be greatly used by the Lord.

7. Programme. Work out well in advance how the time will be spent, times for meals, time for recreation, times for meetings. Have a well-planned programme then no one will be bored, and you can maximise the effort for the Lord. You will have to be guided a little by where you are for the type of things you can attempt, but have a varied programme and the youngsters will enjoy it.

8. Discipline. Not a very popular word these days, but it comes from the same word of course as disciple. Therefore even for a week-end camp there will be rules, and there will be the respect for authority. Contrary to many modern ideas young people respond to firm leadership. This will make for a happy camp not mar it. Times for rising and lights out must be firmly kept.

9. Fun and games. Remember the whole man: arrange some games; how exciting a late night swim is to young people, or a camp fire, terrific! Plan some teams with points, and original names for tents. God wants young Christians to enjoy themselves.

10. Have a Pentecostal Camp. Encourage the young folk with Bible studies, times of open prayer and seeking the Holy Spirit. Give talks on the gifts of the Spirit, encourage their use by young people. A Camp atmosphere can often be greatly used by the Lord to touch the lives of young people. A communion service under canvas even with improvised cups can bring a freedom of worship that they have never known before. Why not get your Youth leaders together and plan something for your young people, and for God?

Acts 17:1-15

"Christ must needs have suffered and risen again from the dead; and that this Jesus . . . is Christ." (v.3).

WHEN Paul reasoned with the Jews from Scriptures, some of them believed. To convince them that Jesus was the Messiah, he quoted texts that showed that Christ had to suffer and rise again from death, an idea disliked by those who looked for a temporal king. He had to endure in our stead to procure our redemption, and He had to rise again from death to ensure our place in His kingdom. This scriptural thesis, evidenced and preached with conviction, is the basis of all effectual preaching.

Tuesday, September 17th

Acts 17:16-34

"To the unknown God. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, Him declare I unto you." (v.23).

THE ATHENIANS worshipped many idols, but Paul said he had not come to add to their false gods, but to proclaim the only true God. His God had created man, not been created by him. All idols were futile. Today every man has his god, and some more than one: wealth, fame, power, pleasure, and in almost every case, self. Today the only true God is often unknown. Our task, like Paul's, is to proclaim a crucified, risen Christ, that in coming to know Him men will relinquish all other gods.

Wednesday, September 18th

Acts 18:1-17

"When they opposed . . . and blasphemed, he . . . said . . . Your blood be upon your own heads." (v.6).

WHEN Paul preached Christ in Corinth, the unconvinced Jews opposed him. When he proved his premise from the Scriptures, they had no answer, except blasphemy. Paul knew from Scripture that sinners would die in their sins, but their blood would be required at his hand; and this is why he preached the gospel. But having no desire to increase God's condemnation of them through their further blasphemy, he argued no more. Sometimes we have to preach the Word and leave it there.

Acts 18:18-28

"They . . . expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly." (v.26).

HERE is an excellent example of Christian love bestriding the generation gap. Apollos was eloquent, zealous, diligent and bold, and had a great knowledge of the Scriptures and the ability to expound them. But he had only experienced baptism by John the Baptist and his knowledge of Christ was very limited. The elderly Aquila and Priscilla were drawn to Apollos and told him of the life, death and resurrection of Jesus and the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Apollos gladly received their help and his preaching became more effective. Young Christians should accept any assistance older believers can give them; folk of more maturity should always be ready to help those younger in the faith.

Acts 19:1-10

"Paul . . . said unto them, Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" (v.2).

IS EVERY convert baptised with the Holy Ghost at the moment of believing? The disciples surely were saved during Christ's earthly life, yet it was the risen Lord Himself who told them that they were to be baptised with the Holy Spirit later, and that is what happened. Paul had to wait three days after his conversion before he was filled with the Holy Spirit. The Samaritans were saved through Philip, yet later Peter and John were especially sent "that they might receive the Holy Ghost, for as yet he was fallen upon none of them." In Ephesus too the baptism of the Holy Ghost was clearly a separate and subsequent experience.

Acts 19:11-20

"So mightily grew the Word of God and prevailed." (v.20).

BE WARNED by this account of would-be exorcists. They imitated the actions of Paul and like him called on the name of Jesus, but were overcome by the demon-possessed men. Miraculous blessing certainly rested upon Paul's efforts, but we must remember his baptism in the Holy Spirit and accompanying gifts of power, his utter consecration and unshakeable faith. We must not ignore the methods he employed if we are to be similarly effective for God, but to be so we must also have Pauline dedication and a willingness to suffer trials and tribulations like his. It is as the Word grows and the Spirit lives within us that we prevail.

Acts 19:21-41

"You know that by this craft we have our wealth." (v.25).

DEMETRIUS the silversmith made images of Diana and her temple which afforded him a very profitable income. He called his fellow-craftsmen together and pointed out how their wealth would suffer if many more people believed Paul's teaching. This moved the incensed workers to demonstrate so violently that the town-clerk had to be called out to quell the ensuing riot. The fear of smaller profits aroused such anger that it prevented them from considering the truths of the gospel. Let us make sure that an exaggerated concern for money does not blind us to the eternal riches a loving God has promised us.

GOING ON

by A. L. Hawkes,
Pastor of our Islington and Palmer's Green Churches

IT really is important to get started. There's the washing to do, ironing, cooking, beds to make, letters to write and just look at the garden! But sometimes we feel that we could quite easily sit and look at that cup of coffee all morning. It's no good, though; we just have to get going!

I knew a lad who was always good at starting; he would start about twenty jobs in one day. The main trouble was that he never finished any of them. He'd decide to rewire the house and strip out the lighting. Everyone would have to sit in the dark. Before he'd even started fitting the new wiring, another job would be spotted, like knocking a wall down, and my friend would be in the middle of that, leaving someone else to finish the job that he had previously started. It was all very frustrating, as you can imagine.

Jesus talked about putting our hands to the plough and not turning back. He used quite strong words about those who turn back. Sometimes, though, when it comes to Christianity, we hardly give ourselves chance to get hold of the handle, let alone plough a furrow, before we've had enough, like the young man who said, "I've tried church and all that, I've been to church for the last three years . . . at Christmas!"

When the Vikings came to these shores, they must have really put the wind up the locals. These fierce warriors climbed down out of their equally fierce-looking boats. Much more shocking than that, these warriors then turned round and set fire to their own boats—their only means of escape. There was no going back for them; it was either conquer, or die in the attempt.

Beginning with God is like that . . . burning our boats. People say that they believe in God and that they have faith, but believing in God, at least in the way the Bible talks about it, always includes action. Action in regard to beginning with God is very simple, almost foolish, it's just to call on Jesus Christ. Having faith in God is putting behind us what has been, and trusting Him. Really to trust means to rely on, or lean on, to put your full weight on.

Taking the trouble to begin is often half the battle, especially when it comes to God. Maybe that's because we need to get back to the atmosphere of trust that little children have. If I stand my daughter on the table and say "jump!", she will—why? . . . because she trusts me. The older we get, the less we are able to trust in that simple way. I've never tried putting my wife on the table and asking her to jump; I doubt if she would trust my ability to catch her.

I'm not saying that we should stay children, for even in the Christian life that just isn't so. Paul the apostle told one church to which he wrote to grow up, as they were still acting like children. It's necessary to start with simple, childlike trust, trust, that is, without knowing every answer, or even all the right questions for that matter, just trusting that, if we ask Christ for His help, His forgiveness, His guidance, His strength, He will hear our call and, not only help us to begin, but be with us and help us as we go on.

FROM time to time we will bring certain pieces of Christian literature to the attention of our readers. In subsequent issues we aim to reproduce extracts from some of the best Christian literature much of which may be new to our readers.

The EVANGEL has carried reviews of new books for a good number of years and by such means our readers have been told of worthwhile publications, or in a few cases warned off unhelpful ones. Yet we think it is good from time to time to draw attention to some of the gems amongst the mass of literature that is currently available or even some that may be out of print but is still worth looking for. Christian literature still has a very important ministry to play. The best way to combat error is by proclamation of Truth.

The Reformation in Europe was greatly helped by an enterprising printer who hurriedly put Martin Luther's 95 theses into print. Luther's intention was simply to debate some of the abuses that he saw in the Roman system. It was not his intention to go beyond the learned theologians; in fact the propositions for discussion were very mild and were in Latin in any case. Soon however all Germany was reading his words and he was forced not only to examine in detail the basis of his own belief, but he was called upon to defend himself and his doctrine.

John Wesley, who had been a missionary in America but had left there under a cloud, went one evening in May 1738, to a small meeting in Aldersgate Street in London, where he heard someone reading the preface to Luther's commentary on Romans. "I felt", he tells us, "my heart strangely warmed". Within a short time a failure had become a flaming evangelist.

Christian literature can still be used both to awaken the sinner and encourage the saint.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

Elm Drive Sunday School,
Crewe.

CREWE

Pastor: M.C. Epton

HERE in Crewe we magnify the name of the Lord for His blessings upon us. During the year we have seen the opening of two branch Sunday schools, one on the Moathouse Drive Estate and the other on Elm Drive. These two Sunday schools along with the main one are progressing wonderfully, for which we praise the name of the Lord. We now have over 130 scholars attending.

During our town's Annual Carnival we held a march of witness through the streets. The Sunday school pupils, Cadets and Crusaders carried banners singing joyful praises unto God.

We have also seen a great increase in the attendance at our youth meetings. God has blessed us and many souls have been saved, people baptized in water and in the Holy Spirit.

During the month of July Pastor P. Sanderson from our Kingston-on-Thames Church ministered to us for four days, and our hearts were truly blest by his ministry.

God has made an opening for us at Leighton Hospital and over the past weeks we have been doing hospital radio broadcasts after our gospel meeting on a Sunday night. With God's continuous guidance and blessing we know we can achieve great things.

During the latter part of September we are planning a 'Come together' meeting. We are praying that God will lead us and pour showers of blessings upon this meeting, that souls may be won for His Kingdom.

WISBECH

Pastor: John Barton

"WHAT a lovely hall, I expected an old wooden hut!" So exclaimed Pastor John Barton when viewing for the first time the new W.I. Hall in Wisbech.

It was here on August 17th that the NEW ELIM CHURCH was opened and the services are to continue in the same hall.

After many months of planning between the Wisbech folk, the Peterborough church and Headquarters the vision had become a reality. A good company of people gathered for the inauguration service at which Pastor T.W. Walker was the preacher.

Pastor John Barton was introduced as the first minister of the church. It will be his job under God's hand to shepherd the flock and establish the new work here in the Fens. Pray for him that he will be wonderfully used to this end.

Although no crusade has yet been conducted, sixteen adults attended the first Sunday morning service and eighteen in the evening, besides a number of children. We feel sure that a wonderful move of God's Spirit will take place here and that Elim's newest outpost will become a soul saving centre and an "Elim" indeed.

HANLEY, Stoke-on-Trent

Pastor: W. Crawford

AS Pastor Arthur Thomas bade farewell to our assembly for his new church at Nottingham, he urged the deacons, "Give the new man a good induction".

And we praise God for just that. There was a packed church to welcome Pastor William Crawford, late of Aberdeen, his wife Maureen, and their son, Andrew.

The Lord's anointing was felt throughout the service, and He set His seal on the appointment through the gifts of the Holy Spirit.

Pastor Fred Day convened, and Pastor Trevor Partington, a former assistant pastor at the Crawford's home church at Greenock, gave the address.

Pastor Crawford has arrived in the midst of great blessing. Under Pastor Thomas the work expanded with many pensioners joining the church through the Wednesday afternoon friendly hour and children through sunshine corner, but the real breakthrough has come this year with an outreach to teenagers. Nearly forty young teens have made decisions for Christ, and recently some of them, together with older church members, have received the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

This began when a St. John's Ambulance officer, after being turned down by other ministers, asked Pastor Thomas if he would conduct a service for him.

Pastor Thomas readily agreed and it marked a step toward his conversion. Teacher Mr. Denis Lloyd was instrumental in leading other St. John's members to the Lord, and with one of them, Mr. Stephen Birks, now runs the youth department.

With young souls yielding their lives to the Saviour nearly every week, the church's work is becoming more widely known in the community.

There is an expectancy that our gracious Lord is going to do even mightier works here.

C. PROUDLOVE

RYDE, Isle of Wight

Pastor: I.R. Hall

THE month of August in the Elim Church, Ryde, Isle of Wight, has been marked by a number of meetings singularly blessed of God. An extraordinary fervency and frequency in the manifestations of spiritual gifts including singing in the Spirit have characterised many of the midweek and Sunday morning meetings. An increasing sense of expectancy pervades most of the services.

The month began with the Elim campers from Whitecliffe Bay conducting their annual meetings in the Church. The Saturday evening speaker was the President, Pastor G. Canty, and the Lord richly anointed his ministry and that of the Campers who participated both then and on the Sunday night when Pastor L. Magee preached. The church was well filled with over 90 on the Saturday and about 110 on Sunday. The following Sunday evening, however, the workers of the Junior camp joined with the Ryde congregation and packed the building with over 160 present. Under the direction of Mr. L. Rammell assisted by Pastors Mackenzie and Sanderson they contributed a fine programme of song and testimony and the local pastor preached.

The third week of the month our minister celebrated his fifth anniversary at Ryde and the guest speaker was Pastor H.A. Court from Brighton, who preached with great anointing particularly in the evening meeting when he spoke on 'The Amen and Hallelujah' from Revelation 19. Holidaymakers and church members alike have testified to blessing received during recent weeks in Ryde.

WESTCLIFF-ON-SEA

Pastor: J.J.B. Hounsome

OUR annual convention began on Saturday August 24th. From the outset we felt the presence of Jesus in our midst. Pastor Greaves opened in prayer and the Rayleigh Free Evangelical Choir sang their gospel message with a real understanding of its meaning. Pastor Hounsome who convened introduced us to our speaker, Pastor John Smyth. In his opening address he spoke of Jesus, high and enthroned, far above all. This set the seal on the whole convention. Christ was exalted and we left the meeting with a deep sense of His greatness and glory. On Sunday morning our sister Mrs. Smyth sang her first solo. Her ministry of song was an inspiration to us all. Pastor Smyth again preached, this time on Revelation 5:10, reminding us that we are "kings and priests unto God".

In the evening we gathered again to hear the Gospel. Pastor Smyth spoke on the lost sheep, the lost coin and the Prodigal Son. He brought home to every heart present the love and compassion of our Lord Jesus Christ and His saving grace.

Monday evening saw the church packed to capacity for our final meeting. Pastor West opened in prayer. Mrs. Smyth sang with great feeling "Let me burn out for Thee, dear-Lord" and then Pastor Smyth spoke on John 7:37: "If any man thirst let him come unto me and drink". Truly our cup was full and running over as Get met with us there. To Him be the glory.

L.A. PRATT

Pastor: P. G. Parsons

OUR August Convention this year was a time of spiritual refreshment for all. From the outset, God's blessing was evident. The ministry of God's Word by Pastor Michael Carr of Birmingham was rich and blessed. His refreshing and thoughtful messages were impressed upon our minds and hearts by the Holy Spirit. Time flew and forty-five minutes seemed like ten.

Excellent singers ministered. Lois Buckley, a full-time gospel singer, sang, accompanying herself on the piano. Equally inspiring were the simple yet wonderful solos rendered by Mrs. Glenys George, one of our own members. On Bank Holiday Monday two Southampton singing groups, 'The Gospel Four' and 'The foursquares', sang both separately and together with proficiency and inspiration.

All the meetings were very well attended, with the Baptist Church, where the meetings were held on Monday, full to capacity. The most striking message was on Monday evening when Pastor Carr drew a remarkable amount of spiritual truth from Psalm 23. The grand finale came as the congregation stood and sang the chorus of the great hymn, "How great Thou art". We felt as close to heaven as we could this side of glory.

CHANNEL ISLANDS

EVERY year the Churches of the Channel Isles Presbytery compete for the youth shield. This competition takes the form of a Bible quizz comprising of five rounds of questions. This year the questions, set by the local Elim ministers, were on the life of Samson, the second coming, Malachi, and two general rounds.

Three churches were represented this year, Vazon, Delancey and Jersey, and the Jersey team were happy to carry the shield back to their own island after winning by a clear five marks.

The photograph shows Pastor G. Wallace and the winning Jersey team.

Charismatic renewal rallies in the North-East

Report by David B. Tinnion, Evangelistic Secretary for the North-East Presbytery and minister of our Driffild Church.

WESLEY Chapel in Harrogate was the setting for the first 'Charismatic renewal rally' sponsored by the Churches in the North-East Presbytery. Over 600 people took part in what turned out to be a triumphant occasion. The guest preacher for these special August Holiday Monday meetings was the Rev. David C.K. Watson from St. Cuthbert's and St. Michael-le-Belfrey, York.

It is difficult to believe that nine years ago his congregation numbered six, and that was on a good day. Now more than 600 worshippers attend each service. Thousands attend York Minster when his church holds special 'guest services' and 'lunch time services'. David Watson has no hesitation about the reasons for the dramatic turnabout: prayer, an emphasis on the ministry of the body of Christ, and a charismatic work of the Spirit.

The 'preaching of the Word' was given the priority in the two rallies and many were challenged by the two addresses on 'The Beatitudes' and 'The Church — The Body of Christ'.

Guest singers from Sunderland sang under the anointing of the Spirit and ministers of the presbytery took part in both services. The day ended in a time of praise and worship as people made their way to the front of the Church to be prayed for. As the buses and cars full of Elim people made their way back home, they had plenty to sing, talk and think about. God had spoken by His Spirit. All expenses were met and we look forward to further rallies.

Presidential Perspective

"That's Elim"

by George Canty

TELEVISION and writing bring at least one response. Other Cantys communicate with me, wondering if we're related, even from as far away as America. This is not because of my money! It's the herd instinct. Canty folk cast their lifelines across to one another when threatened as to identity by decades, continents, and the vast seas of Smiths and Johnsons, or the Schmitts and Johannsohns. What is more innocently natural than ancestral ties, family Bibles, armorial crests or even the clan tartan? Families were God's idea.

The family spirit spills over into other areas of human contact. It has created Elim, if my discoveries to date have not deceived me. And we've better reasons than a mere name. But for Elim I'd have been lost and the Saviour a stranger to me. To those Elim people responsible for introducing me to Christ I'll always be grateful, and that gratitude I'll show to their spiritual heirs and assigns as long as they'll let me in through an Elim door. Common gratitude! How could I hive off and set up a new family? Or even try to get adopted by another Christian household, however close their affinity spiritually? And showing me Christ is only the first of a thousand benefits which I owe to Elim.

There it is — my previously unthinking attitude now analysed, defined and put down on paper. I had to do it. Everywhere I've been I've come across this subtle and beautiful bond which makes for the strength of Elim from Brighton to Belfast, Holyhead to Harlow.

Way down in the wilds of the southern coastland (as it seems to me as a northerner) arrived an Elim couple from a hundred miles away, to retire and enjoy a well earned and greatly needed rest. There were churches to go to of good social standing, with satisfying Bible preaching laid on and no demands upon their labours. Elim also was there. It happened to have had one or two slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, and was bereft of leadership for now. But who joins another family simply because their own is up against it? In their seventies they "came unto their own", took hold of things as best they could in the church and were there to greet me and give me hospitality when nobody else could — the last time was thirty-two years ago. That's Elim — far more than a name, a label, an organisation, or a human system. Here is a tangible evidence that God builds together living stones which grow into a temple, a spiritual house, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptance to God by Jesus Christ.

If these folk ever said "I'm Elim", they'd be trounced by anti-denominational theorists who understand nothing of the way thousands of life stories are integrated into the fabric and history of our movement. The word Elim evokes in us no pride of party, no better-than-thou snobbery, no blind prejudice, no fearful discipline, any more than does the name CANTY in my correspondents who like to identify with me. The only great Canty in history was the fictitious little peasant boy in Mark Twain's comedy "Prince and Pauper" — but it is not greatness which provokes family ties either with the Cantys or with Elimites. It is just simple, ordinary, but absolutely delightful and priceless loyalty. Sentiment? Yes — but glorified by grace. In raw, harsh times it is a joy. It is the sentiment which brought Israel into being, and was recognised by God when again and again he refers to "all the families of the earth".

One non-Elim but much Elim-used Bible expositor has just written that denominations seem to find no particular foothold in Scripture. He's obviously doing what he has said we shouldn't do — thinking in terms of "proof texts", against the massive trends of Scriptural movement.

The "I'm Elim" expressions may offend the purists who (unfortunately) cannot distinguish between belonging to a denomination and their smear word 'denominationalism'. I happen to know that "I'm Elim" covers a multitude of virtues. It is not being said that "I am off Paul, I of Cephas and I of Apollos". What is being said is "We love the brethren, not in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and truth". It indicates not indulgence in an amorphous, "I love everybody", unstrained geniality, but a tested-under-all-conditions living concern for a large number of particular individuals — the real thing.

"Choosing to suffer affliction with the people of God" was Moses' act of faith. To accept the discipline, to share the incidental burdens of this group rather than that group, is the only practical way to fulfil the law of Christ. One can dodge a lot of burden-sharing by not getting to know the people of any one Christian group too well. Or you can severely limit your danger of having to put up with things you don't like by choosing some exclusive house group of the sort of people you happen to like — but that is not a church by the definitions of the commands in the New Testament, where all are not the same. Loving one another is pretty easy when there's only a cosy roomful instead of a front-line church full or a Presbytery full, especially when the company is naturally congenial to one's temperament. But that is not quite what Paul had in mind when he wrote to the Romans or the Ephesians or the turbulent Corinthians of a motley and cosmopolitan assembly.

It is that kind of unconscious acceptance of all the ups and downs, and even odd-bods, in Elim assemblies, which I keep seeing, and which humbles and touches me. People who "wist not that their face shone", who don't shout "I love you" from lapel to lapel, but whose unpretentious faithfulness creates that fellowship which God aims at even for heaven itself, without which the whole Divine concept of The Church would be rendered impossible.

That's Elim.

From a Pastor's study

The Meringue

by A. Nicolson,
Pastor of our
Southend-on-Sea Church

MODERN psychology and psychiatry have between them succeeded in brainwashing a very large section of our country into believing that corporal punishment is a retrograde step, a throwback from barbaric ages.

The table was well spread with plenty of bread and delicious butter, not to mention a pot of home-made jam. There was also a plate of cakes, among them one large meringue filled with real, fresh cream.

Father, mother and son took their places at the table and, as was the custom in this home, father said grace. The young son, his eyes closed, could still see that mouthwatering meringue. There was an awful thought going through his mind; his father had rather a strong fancy for meringues. Grace over, the son stretched out his hand and took the meringue from the plate of cakes and placed it on his own. "Put that meringue back!", said his father. The boy made no move. "Put it back and take some bread and butter first". There was a menacing silence. "For the last time, will you put that meringue back?". The boy looked up at his father and, with a note of defiance, replied, "If I do, you'll have it". The father rose from the chair, took his son by the hand and led him from the table. He gave his son a few, good, hard, barbarous smacks on the rear portion of his anatomy and then told him to go back to the table and behave himself. The boy did so and, after some bread and butter had been eaten, the father said to his son, "Now, son, take the meringue and enjoy it". I can assure you that the boy was none the worse for his father's discipline. Indeed I like to think that such discipline taught him how to behave and to respect others.

The writer to the Hebrews leaves his readers in no doubt as to his views on chastening. In chapter 12 he speaks of chastening as a sign of sonship. He admits, as do we all, that the period of chastisement is not joyous. Indeed it is grievous, but the result is the peaceable fruit of righteousness.

What do you think?

"Nevertheless . . . afterward"

by Gerald W. Ladlow

I believe that the writer to the Hebrews expresses a very wise principle when he exhorts believers who are being sorely tried, to bear the trials patiently, waiting until they are past before passing judgment, with the assurance that in the "afterward" their value will be realised and a rich reward will be reaped. Not only in our trials, but with every one of our experiences and situations, it is always difficult, if not well nigh impossible, to rightly assess their value while we are in them. It was with such thoughts in mind that I deliberately withheld sending any report of the Presidential campaign until now.

Months of preparation preceded it, special prayer meetings culminating in daily gatherings for prayer in the final week and during the campaign, thousands of handbills were distributed, hundreds of posters and stickers were used, dozens of personal letters of invitation were sent, good advertisements appeared in the local press and a banner was strung across one of the main streets of the town. Expectations were high, everyone talked of having a packed church and arrangements were made to deal with the crowds and the anticipated converts.—But it just did not happen that way! True the attendances were quite good though the church was never full and the meetings were wonderful and the Spirit of God was truly at work. There was no large number of converts though every service did see decisions for Christ being made. Somehow what had been expected did not take place.

Happily, the saints did not get disappointed, they thoroughly enjoyed the unique ministry of Pastor Canty. What a ministry he has. Not only did he preach challenging and helpful sermons, but at each service he painted a beautiful picture in oils giving a spiritual message as he did so, and also rendered viola solos that were greatly appreciated, and on occasions played the pipe organ. Each night he ministered to the sick and very sympathetically talked and prayed with each one. Time did not matter; if folk were in need, he was prepared to spend time with them until they found release from their burdens. Visiting singers and instrumentalists gave of their best night after night and Pastor Mac Kingsbury, the song leader, worked tirelessly amongst the young people, conducting a coffee bar outreach each night after the campaign service. Pastor John Barton, at the piano, accompanied the enthusiastic singing.

It is now two months since the campaign ended and I am delighted to tell you of the 'afterward', for now looking back we can see how wonderfully God did work even though our original hopes were not realised.

Every Sunday

since has seen strangers in our services and folk who came for the first time during those meetings. Last Sunday we were thrilled when four young people responded to the gospel appeal, one of them the husband of a young lady who had found the Saviour during the campaign. There is a new spirit amongst our youth and it has been thrilling to hear them pray and to see them going out witnessing for Christ on the city streets. Folk who had grown cold have found a new zeal and in our services there is a new awareness of the presence of God.

We may not have seen Salisbury stirred, but it has been my pleasure to meet people in the streets from other denominations and hear from them how the Lord blessed and met them during those days. The campaign is over, but it seems to me that the work has only just begun and the coming days will see the time of harvesting.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

24. The prior claim of God (Exodus 13:2)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THIS verse sets the tone for the whole passage. The words were spoken following the destruction of the Egyptian firstborn on the Passover night. The Lord had spared the homes of the Israelites and therefore He claimed as His right the lives of their firstborn, both man and beast.

The reason for this claim is clear: Israel was an enslaved people in Egypt, and they would have remained so, unless the Lord had intervened. It was the events of Passover night which ensured Israel's deliverance, for the Israelites obeyed the Lord and sprinkled the blood of the passover lamb on their doorposts and lintels. On that night, the angel of the Lord went through the land and, where the blood was not applied, he slew the firstborn of man and beast; where the blood was on the door the firstborn were spared. The Lord, therefore, claimed the firstborn of Israel as His by right of redemption. In saving them from the death the Lord established His claim to their lives.

It was certainly a wonderful night for Israel when the Lord set them free, but how much more wonderful when He saved us from our sin! Israel was saved by the blood of the innocent passover lamb, but we are redeemed by the blood of the Lord Jesus Christ, the spotless Lamb of God; how great, then, is the claim of God upon our redeemed lives. Our sin condemned us, and we faced eternal ruin, but in His great mercy the Lord saved us, and in grace He brought us to Himself. How can we, therefore, deny the just claim which God has upon us? How can we refuse His Lordship over our redeemed lives? Paul declared plainly: "You are not your own, you are bought with a price" (1 Corinthians 6:20). Saved from eternal destruction, we must now live for the glory of God. Others have some claim upon us, but His is the prior claim; we are His love slaves, bought for Him by the blood of His dear Son.

Passionately Unanimous

by Gerald W. Chamberlain

"And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place" (Acts 2:1).

THIS was something bigger than a physical proximity, greater than just being cabined in a violent crisis. They had togetherness. They were one in need and vision. Their lives, their ministries, their future and ours, were wrapped up in the outcome of their passionate unity. The Greek rendering of "with one accord" could be "They were passionately unanimous". We cannot exist as Christians without each other and it is in the fertile, friable soil of Holy Ghost togetherness that the local Church will thrive and expand.

The Law of Togetherness

The greatest Prayer travailed that we all might be one. He was not prophesying "Ecumania", but declaring that this is the life of the Spirit, the law of the Spirit, that we love one another. John declared, "He that loveth not his brother abideth in death", and he further emphasised this law of love by declaring our assurance of virgin salvation thus: - "We know that we have passed from death unto life because we love the brethren". Some are so lacking in this love that one wonders whether their bold assertions of assurance stem from their almost complete lack of it.

The New Commandment given by Jesus stands firmly fixed as the guideline to Life and Victory: "That ye love one another". It is the Law of Jesus. It is not a question of my waiting until I feel more agreeably disposed toward my brother, or until he changes his peculiar beliefs to synchronise with mine which are surely perfect, or until a sudden nice feeling comes over me. I must set myself to love him now positively, just as surely as, as a Christian, I must not steal other people's property.

The Life of Togetherness

This law is not a law of death, but of life. "There

Gerald Chamberlain was saved in the great Birmingham campaign conducted by Principal George Jeffreys in Bingley Hall early in 1930. After a mighty baptism in the Holy Ghost at the age of fifteen, he commenced intensive ministry in the open air. He was for a time Crusader Leader at the Elim Pentecostal Church, Sparkbrook, Birmingham. He later pioneered from a Sunday school the Hall Green Assemblies of God Church. After nearly seventeen years there, he ministered for four years at Moston, Manchester, and then moved to Upper Gornal, where God has signally blessed his ministry. A nation-wide convention speaker, he is also in demand as a Sunday school teachers' and youth leaders' lecturer. He has served on the National Youth Council of Assemblies of God. Together with Alex Tee he spoke at the united Elim and A.O.G. youth rally in the Bingley Hall, Birmingham, on June 24th, 1972. He has recently moved to Chesterfield.

came a sound from heaven. . .there appeared unto them cloven tongues. . .they were all filled with the Holy Ghost": it was all happening. This unity is not a sickly mutual admiration society. This law of togetherness produced violent action from heaven. It was honoured by God. It was possibly a costly business for the disciples to be "all with one accord". It is a rare thing for any 120 humans to be thus united. They had to sink many of their own preconceived ideas. Have you heard about the little orphan girl who prayed, "And, dear Lord, bless all doctors and nurses and if You don't mind from now on, please put all the vitamins we need in cakes and ice cream and fish and chips, and not in cabbage and cod liver oil. Amen."? But the things that are good for us as a fellowship are often costly, demanding. I have to love the people who could well irritate me.

There is life in togetherness; this is why the Devil seeks persistently to drive a wedge between us, and is often so successful.

The Enemies of Togetherness

I would mention just four such monsters.

Covetousness. Jesus said, "Take heed and beware of covetousness, for a man's life consisteth not in the things which he possesseth". Robert Hall once said to a man thus afflicted with covetousness, "Can you see the word 'God' in your Bible?". Then he laid a half sovereign over the word "God" and said, "Can you see it now?".

The love of money is corrupting: plenty of time for overtime, no time for prayer; ideas galore for money-making, no plans for eternity; fat bank accounts here, no treasure in heaven. Covetousness makes fellowship with God or believer a secondary thing.

Carnality. "And I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ. . .For where there is among you envyings and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal and walk as men?" (1 Corinthians 3:1-3). Those who continue as babes in Christ as year gives place to year are a menace to our local assembly's prosperity in God. In the natural a person who does not develop past the baby stage becomes a frightening liability. It is a joy to see baby toddling along with uncertain step, but greater development is necessary for Olympic marathon men. A babe does not reason and has no ideas of values. A babe has a readiness to quarrel over trifles. A babe lives by impulse rather than principle. A babe is impressed by externals. A babe contends for non-essentials. There is no need for endless carnality. You can be cured. Paul said to the Ephesians "Let us grow up into Him in all things, which is the Head. . . even Christ" (4:15).

Concupiscence. "That every one of you should know how to possess his vessel in sanctification and honour: not in the lust of concupiscence" (1 Thessalonians 4:4, 5). The word at the root means, "lust, longing or double love". "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in Him". "The world" here does not mean so much things that constitute worldliness, but this world-system. We are warned against loving this world to the exclusion of the everlasting world. We can really love only one world at a time and the wise man who desires to love his brother in Christ minors on the transient and majors on the eternal. A man is a fool who lives for 614,000 hours of this life and fails to equip himself for a never-ending glory with God. Not only is he eternally pauperised, but he also fails to add his share to the effectual working of the Body of Christ.

Childlessness. Sterility is an offence to God. Into every born-again soul is welded the machinery of reproduction. A childless soul is a drag on the Pentecostal community. A ewe that is determined never to bear a lamb is a reproach to the Christ. From the early days of creation comes the sob of a sterile mother: "Give me children or I die". Rachel had every blessing that her rich husband Jacob could bestow upon her, garments aplenty, jewels resplendent, furnishings lush, but she found no compensation in her own well-being. Her sterility made her desperate to the point of death: "Give me children or I die". Adopted children were not the answer to her desperation. Leah's bonny boys, shouting, laughing, crying around the home were like mocking voices in her ears. She knew that pregnancy meant dislocation of the body. She knew the many inconveniences of children. The smooth running of her own life had to be disrupted. There were to be the long, slow months of child formation. But her desire for children was paramount. "And God remembered Rachel and hearkened to her and opened her womb. And she conceived and bare a son. . . and she called his name Joseph". The Dans and Naphtalis satisfy for but a short time. "Give me a Joseph or I die. . .". When a church has a steady influx of new life, there is a Holy Ghost togetherness that is delightful to the heart of God.

When the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all passionately unanimous. May we determine to slay the enemies of Holy Ghost. Fellowship at all costs must be our desire. It will be the harbinger of a mighty, new move of God.

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

THE Bible contains the record of many who, with the help of God, achieved triumph over their disappointments. They discovered that disappointment meant HIS-appointment!

JOSEPH for instance. What disappointments he had. He landed up as a slave in Egypt, but through it all he had a firm faith in God. He did not allow bitterness to take root, and eventually there came a time in his life when he was able to say to his brothers: "You thought evil against me, but God meant it for good" (Genesis 50:20). Then there was EZEKIEL. He was trained to be a priest in Jerusalem but his hopes were shattered. Nebuchadnezzar invaded the country and Ezekiel was carried away as a prisoner. What a disappointment. But it was while he was in Babylon that Ezekiel had a vision of God and responded with faith and commitment. God used him to be a great prophet to the other Jews who were with him. Instead of being crushed by his disappointment He experienced triumph.

We cannot hope to triumph in our own strength. We must commit ourselves to God, confessing to Him just how we feel. Only then will we be given the courage to carry on. "Trust in God," said one man, "makes the uplook good, the outlook bright, the inlook favourable, and the future glorious".

*"Oh for trust that brings me triumph,
When defeat seems strangely near!
Oh for faith that changes fighting
Into vict'ry's ringing cheer!
Faith triumphant!
Knowing not defeat or fear."*

BOOK REVIEWS

A New Joy by Colleen Townsend Evans, published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott, price 50p, postage and packing 7p extra.

"These pages are not about talking the talk but about walking the walk", writes the author. Formerly an actress before her conversion, she strongly, yet sweetly, expounds the profound truths of the beatitudes, which Christ the supreme exemplar, knowing full well the science of human behaviour, taught. As she unfolds each beatitude to modern thinking and living, she reveals its real meaning for her own life in this day and age. A good title for satisfying Christian experience in this moment of time. A book which will prove most comforting and challenging to every woman who desires a closer walk with God.

Look out, the Pentecostals are coming, by Peter Wagner, published by Coverdale House Publishers Ltd., price 60p, postage and packing 10p. extra.

THIS book is a paperback edition originally issued in America. It should be a best seller. The attractive cover as well as the intriguing title made me want to read it. It was so good that I was up at 5 a.m. to finish it.

Peter Wagner is a member of the staff of the Fuller Theological Seminary and an expert on Latin America. He writes with disarming frankness even admitting in print his own mistakes. There can be no doubt that the Pentecostal explosion in South America has made a very great impression on the writer, and he is able to convey this story most successfully. To select just one example.

In Ecuador in 1962 an evangelistic crusade was held in which many churches cooperated. It lasted six days and cost thousands of dollars. The maximum attendance was 6,000 and the measurable results practically zero. The preacher was not Pentecostal and Pentecostal people shared the disappointment along with the rest. They then began a chain of prayer, asking the Lord for something better. The tiny Four-square church with only thirty members invited a Pentecostal preacher and sought the cooperation of the other demoninations. Not only did they refuse, some even tried to discredit the whole effort.

The first night brought in 1,000 people and the second night 10,000 were there. By the second week 20,000 were present and before the Crusade was over 30,000 had turned up. So many people came that 6 days went into six weeks, by this time 1,500 were ready for baptism.

For the next four years an average of sixty-five new converts were baptised each month. By 1966 they had forty-two churches with a membership of over 4,000.

Get a copy and read this book for yourself; it will inspire and challenge you.

D.W. Cartwright

Countdown to World disaster by Basilea Schlink, published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott, price 30p, postage and packing 7p extra.

In reviewing this book one is depressed by the fearsome and gloomy outlook depicted for old mother earth. "The earth utterly laid waste and few men left".

The book reveals how it will be accomplished by man through the massive stockpile of devastating nuclear weapons soon to be released on an unsuspecting world. It is a vivid reminder of the opening "seals" of Revelation 6, the consequences of national sin.

The chapters on abortion, blasphemy, satanism and sex perversion are horrific — she gives an entirely new concept on suffering, although one may disagree with her interpretation. She exalts the weapon of prayer, and urges its use to bring many souls to the Lord in these days of God's judgements on the earth.

Its a fearsome, revealing and challenging book; a must for every lover of the Lord's return.

Mothers

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

JESUS found a secluded spot near the coast. "Let us rest here for a while", He told His disciples, "away from the crowds".

Their rest was soon interrupted. A woman had discovered where they were and she wanted to see Jesus. "Have pity on me, Jesus", she cried, "my little girl is ill".

The disciples were angry. "Go away," they shouted. "How dare you disturb the Master's rest!"

The woman refused to go. "I must see Jesus", she sobbed. "My daughter is seriously ill. The doctors can do nothing for her. There is no medicine or pill that will ease her pain. It is breaking my heart to see her suffering".

"Our Master is tired", the disciples snapped.

"Send her away, Master!" they implored.

Jesus went over to the weeping, miserable woman and she flung herself at His feet. "Help me, Lord", she pleaded.

Jesus's heart was sore for the poor woman. He knew and understood her great sorrow. "You have great faith", He told her. "Your prayer is answered".

His words of power thrilled the woman's soul and bound her heart to Him for ever. She stammered out her thanks and hurried home to find her daughter lying still and restful, free from the illness that had been tormenting her.

All over the world there are mothers with great sorrows in their hearts. . .mothers whose children are in danger and trouble, mothers whose children have brought some shame and misery to the home, mothers whose sons and daughters are in prisons.

Mother devotes her life to caring for her children. She makes many sacrifices in order to give them the very best. Mother is sad when her children skip school, stay out late and get into mischief.

Let's make mother happy and show her how grateful we are for all that she has done for us. We can do this by trying hard at school, helping her with little jobs around the home and being kind and loving to our family and friends.

The grand old Book

YOU may recall that last week I wrote with enthusiasm about the glories of the Bible and of the ever increasing production of the Scriptures. Not everyone even in Christian circles, however, appears to cherish the same confidence in the Word of God, or to accept it in its entirety. I have just weathered two attacks from the camp of the despisers and the doubters.

I attended a "God squad on parade" youth witness in the Salisbury Guildhall on a Saturday evening, and got into conversation with some leather-jacketed young fellows who may have been "Hell's Angels". Without hesitation they condemned the Bible. It was out of date, its code of conduct not at all acceptable today and its writers were all in a dark conspiracy to deceive the credulous! They trotted out all the pathetic little clichés and showed the ignorance of their minds, yet I enjoyed witnessing to them for they were honest in their criticism and asked quite a number of sensible questions. Praise God they did hear the gospel in spite of remarking "This is not my scene" and leaving the hall; their leader led them back again to listen in the doorway.

Somuch for the despisers, but what about the doubters? There was one speaking on the Radio recently who was actually the Principal of a Theological College. What a dreary faith-destroying "Thought for the Day" came from the lips of one who seemed bent on spreading doubt as to the very authenticity of the Bible. It seems that the four Gospels are suspect and their authors perpetrated a kind of ruse to prove that the Lord Jesus was the Messiah. According to the speaker, the apostles were convinced that our Saviour was the long-expected deliverer and so they wrote their narratives taking care to introduce happenings and incidents not always strictly true, in order to fulfil the Old Testament prophecies.

For example, in Psalm 69:21 we can read a prophecy of our Saviour suffering thirst, and of the offer of gall and vinegar. The speaker said the apostle Matthew introduced this detail into his story of the cross (Matthew 27:34) though it may never actually have happened. It was suggested too, that the casting of lots by the soldiers to determine the ownership of Christ's garment did not necessarily occur but was invented by Matthew to coincide with the prophecy in Psalm 22:18! A further broadcast brought forth more insidious doubt, introducing a big question mark as to the veracity of the miracles of Jesus. It was stated that the more spectacular ones were probably legends. So we can dismiss the raising of the dead, the feeding of the multitude, and Christ walking on the water. However, we are permitted to keep the healing miracles! I wonder how much damage has been done to people's faith by these talks? I wonder too what possible good either the speaker or the B.B.C. felt would be accomplished by them? I have always understood that this programme was intended to give the listeners inspiration to face the day before them; surely the very opposite result was achieved. I am convinced that the airing of one's doubts and disbelief never helps others; positive truth alone can satisfy.

Somehow I would rather face a barrage of "straight from the shoulder" criticism and unbelief than half-hearted mental assent coupled with doubts and reservations from one who should speak with authority. I do not intend to defend the fundamental faith which is being attacked and belittled in some quarters. I am content to believe the Bible and to know from personal experience that, as our Elim founder used to say, "It is God breathed, a blessed Word, an inspired Word". It is also a powerful Word, and I agree with the prince of preachers, C.H. Spurgeon when he reassured an anxious enquirer. "How are we to defend the Bible?" he was asked by one who had been vaguely troubled by cavil and criticism. With a wit and wisdom as well as a shrewd common-sense, that the profoundest scholar could not have outdone, the great preacher answered, "How could you defend a lion? Surely by opening his cage and leaving him to defend himself".

How to organise a barbecue

by Pastor Laurie Lambert,
member of
Elim Youth Committee with much help from Derek Foote, Yeovil

THE World knows what a barbecue is. It means food, fire, and friendship, so don't get them there under false pretences.

Food. Well cooked, within sight and smell, perhaps spit roasted. Chickens or lamb, with stuffed jacket potatoes. The meat can be partly cooked at home first. Hot dogs with plenty of onions available for those who like them. Also crisps and biscuits. At Vacation Venture last year, three men cooked the most fantastic steaks whilst the service was in progress; they were served with chips, and were absolutely delicious. For drinks: hot chocolate, coffee, soup or Coke. All this to be purchased, and prepared well in advance. This will require a responsible person in charge, and several good workers.

Fire. This is the focal point supplying warmth, light and life. Again this must all be made ready earlier in the day, and a couple of young men appointed. You might need permission to have a fire, so make sure you obtain this. If on grass, remove the clods of grass first; they can then be replaced. Have plenty of fuel; wood burns quickly. Sit safely having regard to prevailing wind, and have some buckets of water ready for any emergency, or a proper fire extinguisher.

Friendship. Whilst eating, people are free to mix and make friends. Why not invite other youth groups so that they can assist with organisation? Be sure to invite many unsaved. As food is being served (no gaps) introduce some live music, and as attention is being drawn to the music, invite the audience to participate in singing. The sing-song can lead to a few gospel numbers from a group, then a short message and a real evangelistic opportunity.

The world expects to pay for entertainment and food, and you will no doubt get many more unsaved if you have attractive invitation cards printed and sold, or if you like, charge an admittance fee. Or if it is in an open place the food could be on sale.

Venue. This must be carefully chosen, and remember to get permission if this is needed. A beach, farm, or beauty spot is ideal, but remember the need for an alternative undercover area if wet. A barn can make a splendid gospel venue. Make sure the young folk have something to sit on, also check that there is transport laid on. But crowds of young folk will come to something like this even in an out of the way place.

Variations. You can precede the Barbecue with:

1. A car treasure hunt (maximum twelve cars and instructions to drive carefully, no mad chasing).
2. A boat trip.
3. Swimming, again check the safety factor.
4. Fireworks, the large type, properly fixed, and watched from a safe distance.
5. Even a gospel film show can be effective in this setting.
6. Games for both boys and girls.

Vitals. It is vital to pray much, and organise well in advance. It is vital that it is a team effort. It is vital to remember that although this type of thing is enjoyable we are out to reach souls. So consider the venue and menu as well as the people it will involve. Add the variations and ministrations, the singers and speaker. Organise well in advance, sell the event well. If you are convinced it's going to be great, you will convince others.

Acts 20:1-16

"As Paul was long preaching he (Eutychus) sunk down with sleep." (v.9).

WHY did Eutychus fall asleep? It might have been the heat in a crowded little attic with many lights. Or perhaps he had had no rest the previous night. But let us not blame the length of Paul's sermon alone, though it contributed to it. This was a farewell address from the Spirit-filled apostle; every phrase was so full of spiritual meaning, that all true disciples hungered to hear as much as possible. These didn't fall asleep. Neither shall we if we pray for the Spirit's anointing upon the pastor's word. Perhaps we are lacking. The promise of God is to fill those who hunger.

Acts 20:17-38

"Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." (v.28).

SOME sheep turn to their own way and go astray regardless of the shepherd's voice. But this special flock, the church of God, were constantly tuned in to the Shepherd's call and responded obediently to it. Their one desire was to follow the Good Shepherd. Paul reminded the elders at Ephesus how precious this flock was, that they had been bought with the priceless blood of Christ. The overseers must walk circumspectly, for where they went the flock would follow. Leaders of Christ's flock must take heed to themselves before heeding the ways of others. Only then are they fit to lead and feed Christ's lambs.

Acts 21:1-14

"Thus saith the Holy Ghost, So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind . . . him. And . . . we . . . besought him not to go." (vv.11,12).

AT Caesarea, the prophet Agabus dramatically foretold the binding of Paul's hands and feet, which would happen when he went to Jerusalem. This confirmed similar predictions at Tyre. They all pleaded with him not to walk into the certain trouble that awaited him there. The prophets in both places had been informed of what would happen when Paul went to Jerusalem, and they attempted to prevent it happening. Paul however understood, for he had been told, soon after his conversion, what great things he must suffer for Christ's sake. When the Holy Spirit predicts an event, it must happen. We are wiser to accept the divine direction rather than ineffectually to oppose it.

Thursday, September 26th

Acts 21:15-26

"When they heard it they glorified the Lord." (v.20). ON arrival in Jerusalem Paul recounted to James and others, the wonderful things God had done amongst the Gentiles: miracles of healings at Lystra and Ephesus, the restoration to life of Eutychus, the earthquake and release from prison at Philippi, the conversion of the jailor, as well as Lydia and others, and the setting up of many churches in Turkey and Greece. What a testimony! It is natural for us to want to say what we have done for God, but Paul boasted only in what his Lord had done. This is why the listeners glorified God, not Paul.

Friday, September 27th

Acts 21:27-40

"This is the man that teacheth all men everywhere against the people and the law and this place." (v.28). WHEN the Jews saw Paul worshipping in the temple, they beat him and accused him falsely. Though the temple was a sanctuary they began to drag him out. As they charged him with separating the Jews from their places of worship they perpetrated that same offence. They falsely accused him of profaning the temple, yet they did that very thing in trying to kill him there. Yet we read not one word about resistance by Paul. Was he mindful of Christ's injunctions to turn the other cheek, and to love and forgive ones enemies? He certainly proved the sincerity of his earlier words, "I am ready not only to be bound but to die at Jerusalem."

Saturday, September 28th

Acts 22:1-16

"Brought up . . . at the feet of Gamaliel, and taught according to the perfect manner of the law." (v.3). MASTERS play a very important part in our lives. If we act upon their teaching we become like them. So it is vital to make sure we have the best master. Saul prided himself that he had sat at the feet of the great teacher Gamaliel, and his devotion to the observance of the law resulted in rigorous persecution of Christians. But on the Damascus road he met Christ, and all was changed. From the moment that Saul called Jesus "Lord", Christ became his Master and love his creed. It is not enough to sit before great men, we need to kneel before the Lord and make Him Master of our lives.

Sunday, September 29th

Acts 22:17-30

"I will send thee far hence to the Gentiles." (v.21). PAUL was afforded an interview with God in a vision. In it he pleaded a very strong case to be allowed to preach the gospel to the Jews. He was sincerely convinced that they could not resist his powerful testimony. But the Lord, knowing that the Jews wouldn't accept the message, sent him to the Gentiles. Like Paul, many new converts impatient for service have experienced absolute certainty that they knew where they could be of best use to God. To serve the Lord most effectively however, we must be willing to go where He sends.

"What mean ye by these stones?"

by Ian MacInnes

Ian and Valerie MacInnes

ON HEARING these words, my mind automatically goes back to several heaps of stones in the pages of the Old Testament.

The first pile of stones can be found on the banks of the river Jordan. These twelve smooth stones originally came from the bed of the river. When the children of Israel had crossed over the river-bed on the instructions of God, twelve stones were taken by a member of each tribe from the river-bed and these were placed on the bank. These stones were to show the faithfulness of God to succeeding generations; He led, provided, and cared for His people as they journeyed from Egypt to a land which He promised Abraham years before.

The second pile of stones can be seen a few miles further on. These stones are the ruins of the first city of the promised land. Jericho resisted God's people and in accordance with the plans of God the Israelites walked round that city thirteen times. The final walk ended with a great shout, and the walls fell with a great crash. This ruined city shows that God judges any who resist Him, or attempt to thwart His plans.

The third mound of stones can be seen in the valley of Achor. The stones here tell of the discipline of God. Achan, of the tribe of Judah took clothes, silver and gold from Jericho when that city was conquered. Jericho was cursed by Joshua the leader of the Israelites and Achan took of the "accursed thing". He disobeyed God, and the entire nation suffered defeat by the people of Ai. Achan's sin, which was planned and accomplished in secret, was revealed by God before the twelve tribes and through this he had to be disciplined. He was stoned to death and the stones heaped over his dead body.

"What mean ye by these stones?" In the picture, Jones is placing one of the first blocks to dry in the sun. The architect estimates that nearly 2,000 of these blocks are required to begin the building of a new church at Success. The cost of material is high in Guyana and by doing this work by self-help, much money will be saved. The making of these concrete blocks is progressing slowly because the young men have to work six days a week, and the rain is damping the sand so that it is difficult to get the correct measure to mix. These blocks will be used to erect a building which will bring much glory to God in this predominantly Hindu village.

"What means ye by these stones?". There is another stone which comes to mind. This is the Stone which was rejected by the builders but is become the head of the corner. Although in time the church at Success will be made up of a variety of concrete blocks, all these stones will take second place, for Christ will be uplifted and exalted between these walls. This will honour Him, and as He said, "I... will draw all men unto me". The time, energy and money spent will, on that day, become secondary to the joy of seeing souls acknowledge Him alone as their Saviour and their God.

THIS weeks issue carries the report of the founding of the Oxford Church who this weekend celebrate their 21st Anniversary.

Twenty one years ago I can well remember that I had left the Elim Bible College, and for the first six months I had the privilege of working with Pastor P.S. Brewster in Cardiff City Temple. Mr. Brewster was President during most of 1953 and the Oxford campaign occurred half way through his term of office.

After going into the story of the founding of the Oxford Church, there can be no doubt in my mind that this shows a very clear evidence of the way in which the Lord works. In 1952 we had no work in Oxford at all. Before the end of 1958 a fine congregation were meeting in a delightful building and they were able to hold a special service of thanksgiving for the clearing of the final payment to their loan so that the Church became free of debt.

As I sit writing this Editorial news comes to hand of the passing of Lewi Pethrus former pastor of the Filadelfia Church, Stockholm, Sweden. Another great pioneer has gone to his reward but the work that he was able to accomplish continues to flourish under the mighty hand of God. In this same issue attention is drawn to the special Evangelistic Appeal for the month of October. There are scores of towns in this country some of them even larger than Oxford in which there is no Pentecostal witness at all.

We ask our readers at this time to stand by us both by their prayers and gifts so that in the coming days we may be enabled both to reach out into new areas, as well as building up small works that have already been established.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons. Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

IN 1953 a pioneer Crusade commenced in the Oxford Town Hall. The evangelist was Pastor P.S. Brewster, and the team consisted of A. Tee, W. Plowright, and Willard Cantelon. The London Crusader Choir were also present. THE CAMPAIGN BEGAN just one week before Easter.

when Pastor P. S. Brewster opened his evangelistic campaign. Over seven hundred gathered for the first meeting, and when Pastor Brewster made his appeal the response was immediate; about 200 raised their hands without any pressure.

ELIM EVANGEL

There were over 700 present at the first meeting and about 200 responded to the appeal, but after this initial response things became much harder. Mr. Brewster, who was President that year, asked for special prayer at the Easter Convention at his own church, Cardiff City Temple. Between the meetings there on Easter Monday, the ministers held a special time of prayer.

PLEASE PRAY :

Doctor of Literature healed at Oxford Campaign : Threw away crutches : Brought 20 people at night, three converted. 350 decisions to date.

ELIM EVANGEL
April 18th, 1953

One man who came was a 47 year old Doctor of Literature, Edwin Griffiths; his son and daughter write the following concerning their father's healing:

To any one looking at the history of the Oxford campaign it is beyond dispute that this one healing did more to advertise the meeting and bring in the crowds than any thing else.

The blessing of God was so great that many people expressed the desire for a permanent meeting place. Pastor E. Scrivens then took over the superintendency of the work; before the end of the year, the former Railway Mission, situated on the corner of Helen Road and the busy Botley Road became available, together with renovations and improvements this cost over £5,000. Before the end of 1958 the Oxford Mail carried a report that this debt had been paid in full.

In the twenty-one years of its history the church has only had three ministers: E. Scrivens 1953-1961; F.J. Slemming 1961-1972; the present minister J. Hyde began his ministry in July 1972. During the years the church has been the spiritual home to many young men and women who have come up to the University to study. As well as providing this very necessary ministry amongst the students the witness to the town has continued. The present minister is to be inducted as the President of the local Free Church Council in November, the first Pentecostal minister to be so honoured.

The Sunday evening coffee bar is very well attended, and this gives a wonderful opportunity to meet new people. Another very encouraging thing of late is that several young couples have joined the fellowship. We are experiencing much blessing at the present time and signs and wonders are following the preaching of the Word.

A VISIT TO THE OXFORD CAMPAIGN

By Evangelist Idris Davies

While preaching last week-end in Oxford, it was my privilege to attend the Divine Healing Campaign held by Pastor P. S. Brewster and the revival party who are being so mightily used of God in this city.

Even before the meeting I had heard about the campaign, and that it was just what was needed in Oxford. Over 500 men and women had made a profession of conversion, and many had testified to miraculous healing.

I wended my way to the Town Hall on Sunday evening and found to my amazement almost 900 people present in this lovely spacious building. I learned afterwards that this was the second service of the evening, Pastor Brewster had already preached the Gospel, and sixty people had come forward to accept Christ as Saviour. Mr. Willard Cantelon, whom I was pleased to meet again, was conducting the second service which was the fourth this virile party had had that day.

The presence of Christ could be felt, and the spiritual atmosphere made it easy to sing and pray. After I had given a testimony to the mighty healing power of Christ, and explained how I had been healed two months ago, I listened to others giving their testimony of Divine healing. Miss Roberts of Cardiff spoke of being healed of colitis; Mrs. Lloyd of Cardiff testified to having her arm lengthened in answer to prayer. Do these healings last? was the question that was answered to many minds at that service.

The climax to a great meeting came when Dr. Edwin Griffiths, a 47-year-old doctor of literature, stepped forward to testify how the Lord had immediately and miraculously healed him last Thursday in the campaign. The stillness could be felt as Dr. Griffiths told us how he had suffered from a spinal disease all his life, could not walk, and lived the life of an invalid. He heard about the campaign in Oxford through the press, and with great difficulty, with the aid of a taxi and crutches, and the combined help of his family, managed to struggle to the afternoon instruction service. He was so overcome that he could hardly crawl. Mr. Cantelon laid hands upon him, and claimed healing in the Name of the Lord. New life came to that crippled misshapen body, and he stood and ran up and down the hall for the first time, and throwing away his crutches he was healed. It was a repetition of Acts iii., the "Man at the Gate."

The hush of God was upon the congregation as Dr. Griffiths related what God had done for him. It was the Lord's doing, as the party were so strong in emphasising. Mr. Griffiths then leapt up and down the stairs in front of a delighted audience to show what God had done. On the platform were his two grown sons, daughter, and wife.

This grand service was climaxed when Pastor Brewster gave another appeal and returned thanks to God for His wonderful doings. So many say "Except I see I will not believe." When they saw, as I have this evening, may God give us grace to say "My Lord and my God."

THE CHILDREN TESTIFY

The following letters have been received which witness to the remarkable healing of Edwin Griffiths, referred to in the report above.

From Joyce Griffiths (Daughter).

My father was an invalid for nearly seven years. It was heart-breaking to see him day by day suffering so terribly, and the worst part was that no one on earth could do anything for him. His spine was crooked and diseased, he had internal stomach trouble, and his eyesight was very poor—he could not see out of his left eye at all.

My father made up his mind to go to one of the meetings led by Rev. P. S. Brewster . . . My dear mother and I got him down from his bedroom into a taxi, it was terrible to see him suffer. We arrived at the hall and my father dropped into the nearest seat to the door. Mr. Cantelon came up and said, "I know you are unable to come down to me, so I will come up to you." After laying hands on twenty to thirty people, Mr. Cantelon came to my father and laid hands upon his head and said, "You do love Jesus, don't you?" and my father answered instantly and fervently, "I do love Jesus." Instantly my father sat straight up, tried to stand, and was told to take two steps forward. He did, and then he said, "Walk! I can do more than walk, I can run!" He then ran the length of the hall to my utter amazement and the cries of the sixty or seventy people present.

My father threw his crutches away when they were offered to him and walked uprightly to the platform, and turning, gave loud praise to our dear Lord Jesus Christ.

From Edwin Griffiths (Son).

My wife and I sat on Thursday afternoon, April 9th, in our little home, when the front door bell rang. I went to the door, and there stood my sister Joyce, radiant with joy. She said, "We have brought Dad to see you, he's been made well." I just thought she must be rambling, and went to the front gate, where out of a taxi jumped my father. I was so dumbfounded that I could not speak. . . . In all my twenty-three years I have never known my father to be able to walk properly. To see him actually running was too shattering. We ran into our house where we all hugged one another. My father, who had been an invalid for over seven years and never free from bed or pain, had gone to a healing campaign in Oxford. However he was able to get there is beyond my comprehension.

It is now five days since this wonderful miracle took place and I am still unable to believe it.

Up till Thursday of last week my faith was very shaky, but I can sincerely say from the bottom of my heart, my faith is concrete from now on.

Memories from the Oxford Campaign by P. S. Brewster

EVERY campaign has its own characteristics. My memories of Oxford are still vivid. We were able to book the Town Hall for Sunday evenings, but unfortunately, no hall was available for weeknights or for the follow-up of our campaign services.

In desperation and a little daring, we booked the STUDENTS' DEBATING HALL situated in the grounds of the College. Looking back it was indeed a very great venture of faith for, although very well known to the students of Oxford, it was not in general use by the public.

The first few weeknight services were bleak and the congregations only numbered about fifty people, but eventually the students poured in, until not only was every seat and bench taken, but they were standing three deep around their Debating Hall. There was no heckling, no calling out, and no disturbance; they were held spellbound by the power and anointing of the Holy Spirit. Many of them surrendered their hearts to Jesus Christ.

The remarkable healing of Dr. Griffiths was in a very small afternoon service, but following that miracle the Town Hall, seating 1,000 people, was packed to capacity and very many souls found Christ. The Scripture says, "The Lord went with them confirming His Word with signs following". The miracles and manifestations only come after the Word had been preached, not before. As truth is preached so God honours it.

WILLARD CANTELON joined us for this Crusade and preached alternate evenings and painted some of his remarkable landscape scenes during the services.

Another rather spectacular event took place when a man with a paralysed hand jumped to his feet while I was preaching and shouted, "I am healed"! The man had been fighting with the police some weeks before and had put his hand through a plate glass window and had cut all the main tendons in his hand, leaving it obviously useless, and yet during the preaching of the Word, without anyone laying hands on him or praying for him, the Lord healed him. The love of God sometimes comes in like the ocean sweeping everything before it. This is not the first unsaved person who has been healed during a revival campaign. God is sovereign and He will do what He will and no-one can question Him.

Later, the Lord gave to us a beautiful church and the Pastor, E. Scrivens, took over and he was surrounded by a fine group of men who very quickly worked to pay off the debt. Thus Oxford, the City of debating, the City of scholastic achievement, became one more city with a Pentecostal centre.

Lewi Pethrus now with the Lord

LEWI PETHRUS, Pentecostal statesman, pastor, leader, author and musician is now dead and has gone to his eternal reward.

In his earlier years he was a frequent visitor to the Elim Pentecostal Movement of Great Britain and was a life-long friend of our Founder, George Jeffreys. Recently, when I preached with him at the celebration of his 90th birthday, he hugged me in Swedish style, and spoke of the early days of the Elim Movement. These were possibly the last words he ever spoke to me, only just a few short weeks ago.

World Pentecost knew him best for his great wisdom in establishing the World Pentecostal Conference and to this day we operate the World Pentecostal Conference on the framework of his making. He had attended and preached in almost all the World Pentecostal Conferences which have been convened in various parts of the world every three years for over thirty years. Frequently, he was the chosen speaker for the Communion services, which were usually among the best attended meetings of the Conference. It is so easy to picture him standing before the Communion table telling forth the story of redemption in Christ. The glory of God frequently shone from his countenance.

Brother Pethrus contended for pure love among the brethren and for unity among world denominational leaders of the Pentecostal movement. He constantly urged us to contend for the faith of our Lord Jesus as the only Saviour and Baptiser in the Holy Spirit. He was loving, and happy and he was always laughing, but there were times when his great inner strength was shown and he would not move one fraction of an inch if a point of doctrine, unity or spiritual ethics was at stake.

He was truly loved by all the members of the World Pentecostal Advisory Committee, whose chairman is Dr. Thomas F. Zimmerman. His charm, wisdom and depth of sincerity will be sadly missed by us all.

We sympathise with all the members of the family in the death of their father and grandparent, and also with all the members of the great Filadelfia Church. We also share prayer and love with the hundreds of ministers and missionaries as well as the thousands of Pentecostal believers throughout Sweden and Scandinavia.

Lewi Pethrus belonged to the world, but in particular he belonged to Sweden. A great yet humble leader and spiritual statesman has gone home. Heaven is richer today for his entrance there. We quote the eternal words of Scripture, "Absent from the body, present with the Lord."

Rev. P.S. Brewster
Secretary-General—Elim Pentecostal Churches
Secretary—World Pentecostal Conference

LEWI PETHRUS...

IN 1910 the newly formed Filadelfia Congregation in Stockholm called the young Lewi Pethrus from a small rural town to be their Pastor. At that time they were only about forty in number.

Everything seemed to grow under the hand of Lewi Pethrus, and very soon the congregation became the largest not only in Sweden but in all Europe.

The membership today is around 6,500. At the same time pentecostal congregations mushroomed all over the country. The pentecostal movement in Sweden represents the largest church group outside the state (Lutheran) church. Its membership numbers some 93,000 in about 550 congregations.

In a very full life Dr. Pethrus engaged in many forms of activity. In 1945 he launched a Christian daily newspaper Dagen (The Day). Author of about fifty books, the latest which was only published last year. He also started IBRA Radio which transmits the gospel in fifty-one languages to thirty-six countries. Other schemes he was responsible for was a bank for the needs of the pentecostal movement, a publishing house, and ten years ago a Christian political party, which now has 250 representatives in more than half the local government bodies in Sweden.

The Swedish pentecostals have more than 600 missionaries working in thirty-six countries, a figure that outnumbers all the other churches in Sweden put together.

THE PASSING OF MR. VALIANT-FOR-TRUTH

AFTER this it was noised abroad that Mr. Valiant-for-truth was sent for by a summons . . . and had this for a token that the summons was true, "That his pitcher was broken at the fountain". (Ecclesiastes 12:6). When he understood it, he called for his friends; and told them of it. "Then" said he, "I am going to my Father's . . . My sword I give to him that shall succeed me in my pilgrimage, and my courage and skill to him that can get it. My marks and scars I carry with me to be a witness for me that I have fought His battles who now will be my rewarder". When the day that he must go hence was come, many accompanied him to the riverside, into which as he went he said, "Death, where is thy sting?" and as he went down deeper, he said "Grave, where is thy victory?". So he passed over, and all the trumpets sounded for him on the other side.

John Bunyan

Art and the Gospel

William Blake (1757–1827)

IT IS SAID of William Blake that at the age of four he was frightened by a vision of God. Once, returning from Dulwich, when he was about seven years old, he told the family that he had seen a tree full of angels. On another occasion he was whipped by his mother for having said that he had spoken with the prophet Elijah whilst out walking. There can be no doubt that William Blake was highly imaginative which helps to explain his strange imagery. This however, is not the complete picture.

Blake's art is a reaction against Locke and Newton who gave little place to the imagination in their reasoning. "Both Locke and Newton found a place for God in their reasoning, the former on the ground that 'the works of nature in every part of them sufficiently evidence a deity', and the latter on the principle that the great machine of the world implies a mechanic. But this was not at all what the Romantics demanded from religion. For them it was a question less of reason than of feeling, less of argument than of experience." (The Romantic Imagination—Sir Maurice Bowra, Oxford Paperbacks). In the same essay Sir Maurice Bowra says of Blake and the Romantics, "Their aim was to convey the mystery of things through individual manifestations and thereby to show what it means. They appeal not to the logical mind but to the complete self, to the whole range of intellectual faculties, senses and emotions".

Blake's art owes as much to his study of philosophy as it does to his imagination. Even though his symbols are more often than not Biblical, his usage of them is entirely in accordance with his own views. His art is a synthesis of Biblical thought with that of neo-Platonism and Pagan mystery religions. I would place him in the same category as the gnostics to whom Paul addressed himself in the Corinthian, Colossian, and Pastoral Epistles, and whom John addresses in his Epistles. "Gnosticism combines elements of Greek legend and Orphic mysticism with Christian teaching and other eastern influences, rounding it off with an eclectic admixture of philosophy, usually Plato and Stoicism. The Manichaeian variety of later gnosticism went so far as to equate the distinction between spiritual and matter, with the antithesis of good and evil. In their contempt for the material they went further than the Stoics ever ventured." (Wisdom of the West—Bertrand Russell, Macdonald, London).

by Robert Clarke,
N.D.D., A.T.D.

The gnostics held that the material world is entirely bad and that in order to approach God we must escape from it, that spirit alone is good, and that matter is essentially flawed with evil. The gnostic keynote as this Greek word suggests was knowledge. Hence, the gnostics to whom Paul wrote contended that the gospel needed a far more elaborate knowledge adding to its simplicity. This is the reason why he prayed that the Colossians might be filled with the only true

W. Blake: Soldiers casting lots for Christ's garments knowledge (Colossians 1:9,10). Without this special knowledge they contended it was impossible to reach God, but Paul in his letter to Timothy exhorts, "that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions and giving of thanks, be made for all men" (1 Timothy 2:1). The Encyclopaedia Britannica says of Blake, "Throughout his life he sought to exalt the things of his mind, and for him the imagination was man's highest faculty. Ceaselessly he fought against materialism and attempted to gain his own spiritual regeneration through struggles against self."

If we take a look at his well known hymn 'Jerusalem', we can see something of the meaning behind the symbols he uses.

And did those feet in ancient time
Walk upon England's mountains green?
And was the holy Lamb of God
On England's pleasant pastures seen?
And did the countenance divine
Shine forth upon our clouded hills?
And was Jerusalem builded here:
Among those dark Satanic mills?

It would seem that 'those feet' is a reference not to Christ, but to humanity, that the 'dark Satanic mills' is a reflection of his fear of the mechanical and analytical rationalism that Blake described as 'the state called Satan'. His own comment on Jerusalem was, 'to labour in knowledge is to build Jerusalem'.

In the picture reproduced, 'The Soldiers casting lots for Christ's garments' (Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge), we have what appears to be an orthodox interpretation of the crucifixion. Upon closer analysis however this is not the case. The mercenary soldiers' crime is not the rejection of Christ but an indifference to spiritual matters far outside the realms of salvation and could be epitomized by the word, culture.

There can be no doubt that Blake's art is extremely creative and completely original. As an artist I cannot help but admire him.

The only way to fully appreciate his pictures is to endeavour to understand the thought behind them. His style is illustrative simply because this was the reason why the bulk of his pictures were produced. As a Christian however, it is impossible for me to share his beliefs. Before his conversion Augustine had been a Manichaeon. The Manichaeans believed that evil was a material principle. Upon conversion Augustine came to realize that evil is solely the outcome of a bad will and it is this view that I would heartily endorse.

Years later, a thief repents

Evening Mail Reporter

A THIEF who kept a secret for years has handed over £30 "conscience money" to a Birmingham store.

The "repentant sinner" claimed in an anonymous letter that the money was for "stuff stolen years ago."

Now officials at the Birmingham and District Co-operative Society say they would welcome any other offers from shoplifters, who steal thousands of pounds worth of goods every year. A spokesman said: "Let us just say it would be a nice bonus."

The money, in a brown envelope posted in Birmingham, arrived at the society's offices in the city centre.

A CHRISTIAN

It was accompanied by a hand-written message on a scrap of paper. It read:

"Dear Sir, £30 enclosed for stuff stolen years ago. I am now a Christian and the Lord Jesus Christ has completely changed my life." The letter was signed: "Sinner saved by Grace."

The Co-op spokesman said: "We have no idea what was stolen or how long ago it happened. But this is certainly very nice. We have thousands of pounds worth of goods stolen every year."

How the message was signed...

A sinner saved by Grace

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

25. The Lord went before them (Exodus 13:2)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THE people of Israel were naturally thrilled and excited because they had been marvellously set free from slavery and, at that moment, they could only savour the wonder of freedom. Soon, however, they would be facing the perils of the wilderness and would pass through trial and testing, both from internal division and from powerful, hostile enemies. What strength they would then receive from the visible sign of the presence of the Lord with them — what enemy could overcome them when their almighty God went before them?

The disciples of the Lord Jesus knew that He had taken away their sin and that He wanted them to take the good news of this salvation to all men. They also knew that they were too weak to carry out this great task, for the events of the Passion week had left them without illusions. The Lord Jesus, however, knowing their powerlessness, had promised to send the Holy Spirit to fill their lives and to fulfil the divine purpose through them. Following the Day of Pentecost, filled with the Holy Spirit, they took the gospel to the world; the Lord Himself worked with them so that, until their task was finished, they were invincible.

The same One who was with Israel and the first disciples is also with us, for He has promised never to leave us nor forsake us. He has not saved us and then left us weak and helpless before the enemy of our souls; He is always with us to give to us wisdom, courage, power and love. Like Israel and the disciples we face dangers, trials and problems, and there are bitter enemies, spiritual and physical. But what power can harm us while we go with God (Romans 8:31)? Until our work is ended we, too, are invincible!

GLEANINGS

Feeding on Christ

by S. E. Petts

"They took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus." (Acts 4:13).

TO grow we must feed. When Jesus said, "Man shall not live by bread only," He meant physical food. When He bade them, "Eat the Living Bread," He was referring to Himself, the Bread of Life. The young Christian seeking spiritual stature must feed on Christ. But how? We can all tell of cases where the strong nature of a person has saved a friend with a weak nature. In such cases psychologists say the weaker 'feeds' on the stronger. I recall a lad whom I could not teach to read. In desperation I asked the school cricket captain to try, knowing that he was the poor lad's idol. Such close contact with one he felt he could not let down, enabled him to learn to read reasonably well. The disciples, for the most part, were timid men. But after three years in the company of Jesus, people took notice of what they said and did, realizing that they had been with Jesus. When we enter into fellowship with Christ we feed on Him and get our spiritual strength from Him. Remember, eternal life is knowing God. Talking to God in regular prayer, listening to Him in our daily reading of the Scriptures, we come into close companionship with Him; we feed on the Bread of Life and thus we grow.

"It's harvest time in Bihar, India"

THESE WORDS of faith are expressed in a notice from our Dehri missionaries. Two major campaigns are being launched in October and the ministers and missionaries are pleading for prayer. Through so many years the sowing has been with tears. Indifference and opposition have choked the Word, but latterly there have been encouraging signs that hearts have been softened and ears opened to the gospel. The campaigns have the backing of the Elim Missionary Society; two fine Indian brethren will be responsible for the preaching ministry. An urgent request has arrived from sisters Sylvia Beardwell and Olive Jarvis seeking our help. They write, "Please pray for a HARVEST OF SOULS in the coming campaigns". Dates and details are included, so that we may pray:

DEHRI-ON-SONE from October 2nd-6th.
DALID-NAGAR from October 9th-13th.

The ministers will be Pastor Shipley from Delhi and Pastor Sylvester from Allahabad. They earnestly seek our prayers. It is a cry from the heart and one could quote from the 126th Psalm: "They that sow in tears shall reap in joy. He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him". PRAY, PRAY, PRAY.

Points for preachers

by
J. Alexander Wright

An Outline

Things that Jesus takes

WE are familiar with the things which Jesus gives, but what of the things that He takes?

1. Jesus took the loaves (John 6:11): sufficiency.
2. Jesus took a little child (Mark 9:36): simplicity.
3. Jesus took a towel (John 13:4): service.
4. Jesus took the Cup (Matthew 26:27): sacrifice.

Frances Ridley Havergal brought Him, in her great hymn, her hands, feet, voice, wealth, will, mind, and heart's affections. "What hast thou in thine hand?".

Words

That "A"!

THOSE who are guilty of its misuse are, for the most part, unconscious of their guilt. "If you could see" becomes "If-a you-a could-a see-a". It follows almost every word. We recall one of our best preachers, who as a beginner, was painful to listen to in this respect. We know one pastor who seems to switch on and off. Whole sentences are perfect, and then he switches on. This puzzles us very much. A variation is when its partner in a word floats from it to the next word. Most common is "at all" which becomes "a tall". "An oak tree" becomes "a noak tree" and "another thing" "a nother thing". One M.P. in our present Parliament, whose nationality we shall not divulge, often speaks of "a noppertunity". The writer cannot profess guiltlessness, but he pleads for more care here. The use of "ay" for the indefinite article instead of the short "a" saves some from the variation mentioned. So many listen not only to what you have to say, but also to how you say it, and the how can be off-putting to some—and you wouldn't want that! If you have a kind, perceptive, courageous partner, maybe he or she would tell you of a possible weakness here—if you ask! Other little bits may come up as well.

A QUOTATION

So you don't believe in luck?

IN William Tyndale's Bible, Genesis 39:2 reads, "Now Joseph was a luckie fellow". In Miles Coverdale's (after Tyndale's and before the Authorised), Psalm 129:8 is rendered, "We wish you good luck in the name of the Lord"!

Only boys

A STUDENT in Yale College was such an enthusiastic advocate of missions that the faculty expelled him! He was David Brainerd. He became a missionary to the Indians. His diary, published after his death, fell into the hands of an English cobbler who became a "pillar of fire".

That Was William Carey, who did great missionary work in India of which the world has not yet seen the end.

Three students held "the haystack prayer meeting" during their senior years in college. One declared: "We can do it if we will". The result was that Adoniram Judson went to Burma and translated the entire Bible into Burmese.

A country minister in Scotland prayed earnestly one day that someone would accept Christ during the service. Someone did—but it was only a boy; the boy was Robert Moffat, pioneer missionary to South Africa. Once when he was home on furlough a young student heard him lecture and vowed to go to Africa, too.

That Student was David Livingstone.

Mackay read the story of David Livingstone and, inspired, went to Uganda.

A humble Scots preacher told the story of Jesus in the simplest fashion; a lad heard and determined to serve in a difficult place. On the way home he knelt by a brook and prayed: "O God I give myself to the mission work, if Thou wilt accept". That boy was James Chalmers, who, over a period of twenty-five years, did a mighty work for God in New Guinea.

SLAVANKA

Holiday and Conference Centre

SLAVANKA ... The place of glory

WHEN I first heard the name of the venue for this year's missionary conference I was greatly intrigued. Surely it was a foreign name, from where did it originate, how come that a Christian Conference centre should bear such an outlandish title? On my preliminary visit to Slavanka I learned and saw much that did my heart good and made me marvel anew at the mysterious providence of God.

To begin at the beginning as all good stories do, we must recall the pre-revolution era of Czarist Russia when it was the fashion for the Russian aristocracy to visit Paris. In the gay salons, even at the balls, God had His witnesses. These was a group of Russian believers who had been won for Christ by the personal ministry of Lord Radstock. Impressed by this godly man's evangelical zeal, this group urged him to visit their own country and preach to the nobility and witness to the backslidden church. So in spite of the warning of danger Lord Radstock went during the 1870s and preached the gospel from house to house. So great was the fervour of this English Lord that many of the nobility and even those of royal blood were converted. In 1874 news of Lord Radstock's mother's fatal illness almost persuaded him to return home but his sister sent him a telegram which read: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness" and so he remained in Russia and the revival spread.

Madame Tchertkoff was one of many honourable women led to Christ through the ministry of Lord Radstock and she was the owner of Slavanka. This noble lady became a keen Christian and witnessed for her Lord in the Czar's palace and amongst her own circle in high society and yet was loving and humble enough to care for the widows, orphans, the sick and the poor. When the revolution swept over Russia, Madame Tchertkoff, who was actually a Countess-by birth, fled the country and came to the fine house she owned in England at Southbourne, named Slavanka. It was all she possessed and she had to sell it to meet her personal needs. It had already been a haven of rest in former days and a place where Christians were welcome, so her prayer was that it should be of use to God. Pastor Fetler who had also fled from Russia suggested that Slavanka should become a centre of Christian witness and for sound Bible teaching.

A group of trustees were appointed and the money was found to purchase the property with the aims of having it for missionary conferences, and to let its premises to all societies and Christian workers who stood for the fundamental doctrines of the evangelical faith. A firm stand was to be made against communistic ideas, the growing inroads of "modernism", the theory of evolution, Spiritism and Unitarianism. In spite of early opposition, since September 1921, Slavanka has maintained its witness. The secret of the evident blessing of God on this centre is to be found in the desire expressed in the Scriptural inscription to be found in the lounge. "That in all things He might have the pre-eminence" (Colossians 1:18). The apostle Paul wrote this magnificent statement after contemplating and illustrating the supremacy of Christ our Lord. He was seeking to disprove the heresy of the Gnostics which was troubling the Early Church and attacking the deity of the Saviour. Paul insisted that Jesus Christ the Son of God was God's agent in creation and on earth became the very image of God, possessing all wisdom and knowledge.

How appropriate that this text was placed on the wall of an establishment destined to promote sound doctrine. Our Elim Missionary Conference this week seeks to do just the same and its workers cherish "the faith which was once delivered unto the saints". If the Lord Jesus Christ is given the pre-eminence in our Conference, in our churches, in our homes and most of all in our hearts, we can then expect and enjoy the blessing of God.

INCREASE IN SCRIPTURE TRANSLATIONS

Bible societies around the world are today concerned with 617 scripture translation projects, according to the British and Foreign Bible Society. This represents an increase of 46 since 1972.

The United Bible Societies World Translations Progress Report for 1973-4 says that first translations account for 358, or 58 per cent of these projects, 208 are new translations into languages which already have the scriptures, and 51 are revisions of existing translations. As in previous years the great majority of translation projects are in the Asia Pacific and Africa regions.

HE FAILETH THEE NOT.

1. He never will fail you, so do not despair
Your Father, He knoweth the toil and the care.
His arm is so strong, yet so gentle to you,
To bear you along, and to carry you through.
2. He never will fail you so be of good cheer
Each cloud has a lining, there's no need to fear
Each storm has a calm, that is quiet, serene,
And shadows they pass and give way to sunbeams.
3. He never will fail you, look up to the sky,
Your Father in Heaven stands by you so nigh,
The rainbow is set in the Heaven above
So fear not, oh fear not thou child of His love.
4. He never will fail you, His promise is true,
And He will perform things old, and things new,
Each jot and each tittle He'll never forget
No failure is known in God's Covenant yet.
5. He never will fail you, whate'er be your way
He'll make the night light, and turn darkness to day
He'll take of your sorrow and cause you to sing
Lifted up above all as on Eagle's strong wings.
6. He never will fail you, let this be your song
Each day and each hour as you journey along
That you must not fail Him unto whom you are bound.
A bond-slave of love, close unto Him wound.

Second Series—3

SOME years ago this new type of youth evangelism emerged, the idea spread very quickly, but of recent days there has been some disillusionment with Coffee Bar Evangelism, and a tendency to discontinue the effort. May I suggest some of the do's and don'ts of this youth outreach?

How to have a successful coffee bar work

DO'S OF COFFEE BAR WORK

1. Get out and invite the unsaved young people. A personal invitation can win a soul for eternity. Use attractive invitation cards, there is a varied and good selection available quite cheaply.
2. Pray before, during and after the coffee bar. Some youth groups have a separate room where young people pray all the time the witnessing is in progress, Like Moses up the Mount praying for the battle against Amalek.
3. Have a Bible and good literature handy, but not obtrusively so. Know where to turn to the apposite part of the Word, also read beforehand the tracts or booklets you are using.
4. Plan and use the best talent, whether it's singing, music, testimony or speaking.
5. Seek to get them to another Church meeting. Coffee bar work is often building a bridge of friendship rather than getting definite decisions for Christ.
6. Be efficient, if it's serving coffee, finding seats for a large crowd, selling coke and crisps or arranging amplification. Well run means well done.
7. Be Informal. The venue should be very clean, but perhaps casually furnished, the lighting subdued but not too much so. Without trying too much to be with it, let our conversation be intelligible and interesting, using language they understand.
8. Centralise on Jesus. There is something eternally magnetic about Jesus ("If I be lifted up . . . I will draw"). Lifting Jesus higher is effective evangelism. Young people who might despise the church and ridicule Christians, are attracted to the person of our Lord. In all things bring it round to Jesus and their relationship with Him.
9. Have a genuine love for young people. However difficult they might seem, however outrageous they might dress, however appalling their language, ask God to give you a love for young people. Jesus loves even the Nicky Cruzs of this world.
10. Do rely upon the Holy Spirit. He is working with you and for you. He still convicts and leads people to Christ.

by Pastor Laurie Lambert,
member of
Elim Youth Committee

DON'TS OF COFFEE BAR WORK

1. Group together with all Christians. Mix in with the unsaved.
2. Get an imbalance of unsaved in the Coffee Bar. If the number of unsaved swamp the number of Christians present, they can often take over and ruin the whole purpose. We must sow the seed of the Word, but we must not cast pearls before swine. So keep a balance between numbers.
3. Don't preach at the youngsters all the time. When you sit around the table don't monopolise the conversation, take an interest in them and witness to rather preach at them.
4. Don't be afraid to ask for help. Often you get asked a question or posed a problem that is beyond you; invite someone more experienced to come to your aid. Young folk today appreciate honest dealing and if you don't know the answer say so.
5. Don't worry if the young folk don't get saved immediately. Some have come from very pagan backgrounds. We are out for disciples not just decisions. Nevertheless seek to lead them to Christ.
6. Don't argue with drunks!
7. Don't give money to obvious scroungers.
8. Don't talk or be frivolous during singing items or the brief message. Give your undivided attention to those who take part. There will be plenty of opportunity for witnessing later on. Some Christians ruin a coffee bar by talking during the gospel spot.
9. Don't have too long a programme. Let the first part be informal, with background music, chatting etc. Then have a twenty minute gospel spot in the middle. Expect complete attention, a few good singing items, one or two bright testimonies, and a brief but powerful gospel message. . . then back to witnessing.
10. Don't think its unspiritual to close a meeting. At the right time bring everything to a conclusion.

Acts 23:1-15

"Be of good cheer . . . for as thou hast testified of me . . . so thou must bear witness" (v.11).

"WITNESSES unto Me". There is always a place for witnesses and God has assured us that He will go with us. To Joshua He said: "As I was with Moses so will I be with thee" Joshua 1:5.

Looking back in retrospect to consider the way the Lord has led us, will surely give our hearts cause to cheer. It is with the assurance "Lo, I am with you always," we step into the future.

Tuesday, October 1st

Acts 23:16-35

"Make ready two hundred soldiers . . . horsemen threescore and ten . . . spearmen two hundred . . ." (v.23).

THIS was a mighty force, a secret exit, and a flight by night, all in the interest of protecting one man; but the Apostle Paul was a special prisoner. Is not the child of God a special prisoner also? Has he not also the Lord's armies to protect and guard him? God's army is far greater than any man's. "He shall give His angels charge over thee to keep thee in all thy ways." Psalm 91:11. There is safety and protection for those who fear the Lord, even today.

Wednesday, October 2nd

Acts 24:1-21

"And have hope towards God . . . that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust." (v.15).

PAUL; expounded the truth of the resurrection. It burned within his heart. Here however, he reminds us of the resurrection of the believer, "The dead in Christ shall rise first", 1 Thessalonians 4:16, and also the promise that there will be a resurrection of the unjust. There could be no partial message for Paul; he was always found witnessing to the whole truth.

May the Lord always find us faithful in our presentation, whether in attack or defence.

Thursday, October 3rd

Acts 24:22-27, 25:1-12

"The Jews . . . laid many grievous complaints . . . which they would not prove". (25:7).

THE JEWS brought their complaints and accusations against Paul, but were unable to prove them. This is not surprising since Paul had only preached the truth and spoken in defence of the Gospel. The truth of God's Word must prevail and although accusations may be levelled at us, "Hold fast the form of sound words." 2 Timothy 1:13. We never need fear if we are always perfectly honest and sincere before God.

Friday, October 4th

Acts 25:13-27

" . . . he hath committed nothing worthy of death" (v.25).

THE MORE Paul was accused and questioned the more he was found innocent. Festus had come to the same decision as Pilate when he was faced with Jesus. "I find no fault in Him." John 19:4.

Paul has left us a tremendous record of his life and the instructions in his letters are invaluable, but our blessed Saviour has given us Himself. We find in Him our all in all, the spotless, pure Lamb of God. He is worthy!

Saturday, October 5th

Acts 26:1-18

" . . . to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins." (v.18).

HERE Paul is before Agrippa and declares his life and his wonderful testimony. What tremendous power there is in the gospel of Jesus Christ. God can bring light to the darkest and deliver from the power of Satan. Then wonder of wonders, every sinner may know forgiveness of sins.

What an opportunity Paul had of witnessing. He grasped it with both hands and surely God blessed his soul.

Sunday, October 6th

Acts 26:19-32

"Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." (v.28). ALMOST—Almost but lost! This verse stands out in the passage as a warning beacon.

Life is full of almosts, but! Many heartbreaks and much suffering prevail because of the hesitant.

We hear nothing more of Agrippa, and would feel this could have been his last opportunity. "My Spirit shall not always strive with man". Genesis 6:3. It reminds us that this is our day and opportunity. May we grasp it.

A personal letter from the Secretary-General, P. S. Brewster

Dear Friends,

My whole life has been wrapped up in revival pioneer campaigns. I commenced many years ago by crusading in Llanelli, Neath, Aberdare, Mountain Ash, Trealew, Porth, Aberystwyth, Caerphilly, Newport, Bridgend, Merthyr, Ebbw Vale, Pontardulais and then across into England for Wigan, Bolton, Camberwell, Guildford, Oxford, Newcastle, Bristol, Hereford, then Glasgow, and many other church campaigns.

I have felt a burden and a passion for souls during the whole of my ministry.

Our Lord's Great Commission is set out in Matthew 28, that we are to go out and preach and make disciples.

The Elim Movement from its very inception has been a revival Movement and most of our churches have been established as the result of pioneer campaigns by our founder, George Jeffreys, and by many other evangelists.

On Sunday, October 13th, we are calling the whole of our Movement to major on EVANGELISM and preach the great Commission and I personally would like to collect all the news of that day and set it out in THE ELIM EVANGEL to show what God is doing in our beloved Elim Movement today.

In the Acts of the Apostles, there was frequent mention of how many souls were saved of 'bodies healed and of the people filled with the Holy Ghost.

There are many towns already planned for the expansion of our Movement and we wish at this particular time to ask every member throughout the whole of Elim to pray very carefully about how much they will give towards our evangelistic efforts. God has set in the Church evangelists and they urgently need finance to book halls, publicise their meetings and prepare for the salvation of many souls. We are committed to fulfilling the Great Commission and we dare not fail God or our generation.

Your Minister will have a supply of Campaign Envelopes. Please ask for one and either give it to your Minister or send it direct to the Field Superintendent, Rev. T.W. Walker, Elim Pentecostal Church Headquarters, P.O. Box 38, Cheltenham, Glos.

We are relying on you. May I express our sincere thanks for the tremendous thanksgiving gifts which you gave last year for evangelism.

Thank you most sincerely, and may God bless you.

Yours sincerely in Christ,

P. S. Brewster

What a strange mixed up world we live in. At a time when we are thinking of making a special effort for evangelism; when many of our churches have plans for expansion well in hand. At that very time footballers, who are reckoned to be too old at thirty-two, are on sale for half a million pounds.

A big fight is to be staged in Africa, when the two men are finally ready, and even the loser stands to gain a million pounds.

An Indian farmer is expected to bring up a family, yet he will receive less for a years hard toil, than one fighter will be paid in the time that he takes to blink.

Surely we need to look again at our scale of values.

One of the problems that is constantly present to the Christian is that of reconciling a first century doctrine with a twentieth century standard of life. The problem is illustrated by the following story:

A reporter asked Billy Graham, on the eve of his London Crusade, "don't you think that it is wrong that you should come from America in one of the great liners? After all Jesus only rode on a donkey."

"That is quite true" said Billy, "but I do not know of a donkey that can swim the Atlantic. Do you?"

We do not need to go back to any previous generation; we have to work in, and witness to, the age in which God has placed us.

The Son of God was reckoned among the deprived in His day. "Though he was rich, yet for your sake He became poor, so that by His poverty you might become rich."
(2 Corinthians 8:9 R.S.V.)

Affluence is not a sin avarice is!

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons Father Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love joy peace longsuffering gentleness goodness faith meekness temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom knowledge faith healing miracles prophecy discernment tongues interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death baptism by immersion for believers the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

STOCKPORT Pastor: D.M.M. Richardson, B.D.

THE members and friends of our Stockport church firmly believe that they stand on the threshold of a wonderful new era of the work of God in this town. Under our previous minister, Pastor E. Snelling, we saw a beautiful new church opened to the glory of God. The assembly grew, being united by the Holy Spirit into a wonderful loving fellowship. At the beginning of this year the church session felt assured that the work was to expand even further, and that the time was right for a full-time minister to take over. There was therefore a tremendous air of expectancy at the recent induction of our new minister, Pastor D.M.M. Richardson. The church secretary Mr. F.B. Morris, in his word of welcome, congratulated our new Pastor on obtaining his Bachelor of Divinity degree from London University. Pastor Richardson in reply stressed the need for both Pastor and people to work together under the controlling and enabling power of the Holy Spirit. A welcome to the presbytery was given by the district superintendent Pastor J.M. Seaman. It was thrilling to hear the appointed singing of Miss Megan Stokes who gave a beautiful rendering of Psalm 121, in her own delightful and inimitable way as she accompanied herself on the guitar. Pastor A. Lambie gave a challenging word from 1 Corinthians 2, stressing the need for our message to be "in demonstration of the Spirit and of power", emphasising how Paul "determined to know nothing among them, save Jesus Christ, and Him crucified." Pastors D. Beresford and D.B. Tinnion also took part in this service.

This meeting had special significance for one of the Stockport deacons who had been in severe pain for three days. After the induction the ministers laid hands on him and our new Pastor prayed for his healing, he later testified that he had not felt a twinge of pain since.

Over the past few weeks we have experienced rich blessing from the Lord and it has been encouraging to see several new people in our meetings. Many have already been challenged and inspired by Pastor Richardson's dynamic ministry, and we face the future with even greater anticipation as we look to the Lord to give the increase.

COLWYN BAY

Pastor: D.C. Lewis

THERE was a full church for the first anniversary services of Pastor and Mrs. D. C. Lewis. Great blessing was on all the meetings. Greetings from various churches were given by visiting friends. Pastor and Mrs. Glass of Chorlton-cum-Hardy, Rev. David Smith, Vice President of the Birmingham Bible Institute and Pastor D. Phillips of Birmingham, were all present at the evening meeting, when solos, recitations and an item by a few members of the Sunday school were enjoyed. The Bible reading was by a Sunday school member, ten year old Mark Davies.

There was an after meeting fellowship, when tea and cakes were enjoyed, and an anniversary cake, made by the church's oldest member, Mrs. M. Bellamy, was cut and handed round. We thank God for the blessings of the past year and look forward to greater blessings in the future.

SUNDAY NIGHT August 11th will long be remembered by all who were present in the evening service. This was a baptismal service and the church was

A great Soul-Winner is now with the Lord

by P. S. Brewster, Secretary-General

PASTOR W.T.H. RICHARDS of the Full Gospel Tabernacle, Slough, affectionately known among his ministerial friends as "Billy Richards", is now with the Lord. He was called home on Saturday, September 7th, 1974. His work on this earth is now finished.

We lovingly extend to Mrs. Richards and her family our sincere sympathy and assure them of our prayers.

Our brother was an outstanding pioneer pastor, and his Slough Church is evidence of this. He was a spiritual leader in his own right and sat on the Executive Council of the Movement that he loved and served, the Assemblies of God in Great Britain and Ireland. He was a man who felt deeply and who had very strong convictions concerning the things of God which really matter.

Perhaps the one thing for which he will always be remembered most will be his passionate conviction that all believers should be SOUL-WINNERS. He wrote, preached and spread this truth everywhere. He initiated the Soul-Winners' Course which is now being used in many countries. Many Elim friends have shared in the annual soul-winning conferences with great profit.

He will be a great loss to his church in particular, to the Movement which he served for so many years and also to the testimony of Pentecost.

Some months ago his prayerful interest extended to the WORLD PENTECOSTAL CONFERENCE and he was elected to sit on the Advisory Committee of the World Pentecostal Conference. During this short period he served with distinction and will be greatly missed by his brethren. He also served as Chairman of the British Host Committee to the World Pentecostal Conference which is to be held in London in 1976.

We extend to the Executive Council of the British Assemblies of God our prayerful sympathy in the loss of one of their members. May God ever bring our two Movements closer together, especially as we consider the days in which we live with the END TIME SIGNS all around us.

A tribute to Stephen Cotter

The Cradley Heath church was parted from one of its most faithful members on August 17th.

Stephen was only fourteen years old, yet it was the time for him to meet his Lord. During this years conference at Morecambe we received the news that our young brother had a tumour on the brain, and that humanly speaking, nothing could be done to ensure a recovery.

As his minister, I wish to pay tribute to a young life that was wholly given to the Lord. He was converted to Christ following a Good Friday Communion two years ago, he was baptised in the Holy Spirit the following summer. He packed far more for God into his short life than some who live the full life span. Those who visited our church will recall the young fellow who more often than not started the worship period on Sunday morning, creating an atmosphere of God's presence, this was Stephen. His days of suffering were days of praise; this spoke volumes to those who visited him, not least his family who lovingly cared and sought to make his pain more tolerable.

The day after his passing, God comforted the church by reminding us through the ministry of the Spirit of the corn of wheat, which though it died, it brought forth fruit. This was fulfilled the following Thursday at the funeral service. What a tribute to this young man as we witnessed people standing to make a commitment to Christ. The name Stephen means crowned—what a climax to his earthly life.

As his Pastor, I had nurtured the impression that God would one day call Stephen to the ministry. If somewhere among the crowd of onlookers at Stephen's death and funeral there was a 'Saul of Tarsus', may the Spirit of God soon make it evident.

PRAYER AND PRAISE

by F. H. Coleman

THE prophet Isaiah draws a graphic picture in his sixty-third chapter of the triumphant Christ coming from his conquest over the enemies of His people. The last three words of the first verse are only small words in themselves, but how wonderful they are, "MIGHTY TO SAVE".

The one who saves is mighty. The dictionary defines this word as, 'powerful, strong in body and mind'. It includes a Biblical definition which is; 'mighty works, miracles'. The one who saves is able to work mighty things, and perform miracles.

Then we get the word save, which means, 'to rescue, preserve, deliver from'. So we have one who is a mighty Saviour, able to do mighty works and perform miracles; He is the Saviour who hears our prayer and works mighty things on behalf of His people.

When we seek the Lord in prayer, let us see Him as a mighty Saviour, one who is able to work mightily on our behalf, who can also perform miracles.

It was my privilege to listen often to that early Pentecostal preacher and evangelist, Smith Wigglesworth. I can remember his telling a story about a woman who lived in Liverpool whose husband was a drunkard. At the close of a service this woman went to Mr. Wigglesworth and asked him to pray for her husband. This man of God took a handkerchief, annointed it with oil, and prayed over it, that God would not only deliver the man from his drunken condition but also save his soul. He gave the handkerchief to the woman telling her to put it under her husband's pillow; this she did, and her husband's head lay upon it all night. At noon the next day he went as usual to the public house and ordered some beer. When he tasted it, he spat it out. He complained and another glass was given, but this tasted just as bad. He stamped out and went to another pub. The beer there tasted even worse. He went to several others, but the beer all tasted the same. That evening, to his wife's joy, he returned home earlier than usual and sober. He complained to her that he thought all the publicans of Liverpool had banded together to poison him. Then she told him about the annointed handkerchief under his pillow and how Mr. Wigglesworth had prayed for him. This man was delivered from drink, and a few nights later was saved in an evangelistic service.

Jesus is mighty to save. He can save from sin, save from drug addiction. Why should I go on further? There is nothing He cannot do. Then why not go to Him in prayer? He can do that which is impossible to man. Yes, HE is MIGHTY to SAVE.

FIGHT EVIL

THIS IS THE LAST WILL and Testament

WITH A WILL!

Do not leave the distribution of your estate to chance. Here are some reasons why you should make a will:

1. It prevents misunderstanding over your intentions about your estate.
2. It provides opportunity for you to continue to exercise Christian stewardship.
3. It helps to avoid heavy expenses, which can sometimes drain away valuable assets.
4. It gives you opportunity to designate who shall benefit from your possessions.

You can show your gratitude for blessings received and also continue the fight against evil by making a gift to the Elim work in your will.

The following wording can be incorporated in a will or codicil:

I bequeath to the Elim Pentecostal Church, of 117 St. George's Road, Cheltenham, Glos, the sum of £ free of duty for the general purpose of its work, and I declare that the receipt of the Secretary-General for the time being shall be a good discharge for the said legacy.

Is it not better to know that your possessions will be used for the Lord's work rather than be spent by those who have never honoured or revered His name?

packed to capacity. People were sitting on the floor on the window sills and the children were sitting around the baptismal pool.

There was a spirit of expectancy from the beginning of the service. Pastor Leavesley convened the service and preached the Word, giving a challenge to the candidates. Four sisters were baptised, and afterwards the Pastor challenged the congregation by asking if there were any in the meeting who wished to follow the Master through the waters of baptism. The result was that five sisters stood to their feet and requested immediate baptism. Mr. Cyril Jones, who convened this part of the service spoke to the congregation and candidates on the seriousness of the moment. A true sense of God's presence was felt, and each candidate gave a clear cut testimony before being baptised. Young and old alike were thrilled by the way God had moved in the service.

During the past few weeks the church has been full on Sunday nights; many people on holiday in and around the town come and join us in fellowship, this has given great encouragement to our minister.

We are looking forward to a move of the Holy Spirit in our midst.

Report on Skye

THE Elim Skye Project Team arrived in Skye on Monday 2nd September. The weather was extremely miserable. Work really started on the Tuesday when half of the group moved south to Broadford for a one week stay.

The main group in Portree began a systematic visitation of the northern half of the island and found itself facing an understandable suspicion of something which was unknown to the local people. Further difficulties were presented by the fact that the Jehovah's Witnesses have been canvassing the island for the past twelve months. The outlook was very bleak. Here and there, we found an individual with a saving knowledge of Christ and our fellowship with them was much appreciated. Nevertheless, the outward signs in the north were far from encouraging.

Meanwhile, the group in the south had had the advantage of having some definite contacts beforehand and these proved invaluable. So much so that good advice was given to "go and talk to the ministers first." This was done and began to yield fruit. Doors began to open and opportunities presenting themselves were grasped with both hands.

During Sunday, September 8th, the team ministered in one children's meeting, one Sunday school, two evening services and one after meeting, all in the church of Scotland. They found in this area a readiness to accept the Word preached and open commitments to Christ were registered by children and teenagers. There is, in the hearts of the people in the south, an earnest desire for spiritual power and they are open to receive the Baptism with the Holy Ghost. At the moment, a waiting meeting has been arranged in Breakish to take place Sunday September 15th. Opportunities have also been given to address Junior and Senior Crusaders, (not Elim), so we are looking to the Lord to break through in mighty power.

The local hospital has been visited and prayer offered with the patients.

So the work continues—hard work requiring dependence on God for the victory. It can only come by prayer, Prayer and MORE PRAYER.

PLEASE PRAY for SKYE.

Peter Smith

IRENE HOSELTON suddenly awoke and sat up in bed, choked by terror. Hot panic shot down her neck.

"My children! My children!" she cried in anguish. "O God, help me find my children!"

This was not an isolated experience for Irene, an acquaintance of mine. She was 30 when her husband took the children to their grandparents' house for the weekend—and never returned. He and his parents packed their belongings and moved to another state where Irene couldn't find them.

Weeks, months, and years passed with no trace of her missing children. Although she searched throughout the Western states, even with help from authorities, they seemed lost forever.

But the mother never gave up. Often she awoke in the night as anguish nearly ripped her emotions apart. She worried about her two boys Waldo and Wendall who were 11 and 7 years of age when they disappeared, and her little daughter Jessie, age 9.

And she prayed. She prayed God to take care of them. She prayed she might find them.

False hopes would be raised at times, only to be dashed and to deepen her anguish. She became so emotional she couldn't work or do anything but sit and brood.

Only a mother can understand how she felt. To think one might never see her children again is a distressing thought.

Only bereavement itself could be worse. Being separated from loved ones when one knows it is final is perhaps the most terrible earthly experience.

But some day a worse terror will come when those who have rejected Jesus Christ as Saviour will be separated eternally from God! They will never again taste His joy, peace, and love (Revelation 20:12-15).

Fortunately Irene Hoselton's story

"O God, help me find my children!"

A mother's search

By ADA NICHOLSON BROWNELL

has a happier ending. She was miraculously united with her children in May 1972, after searching for them 38 years.

A phone call did it. After Irene's children were old enough to have homes of their own, she would call long distance to cities all over the U.S. asking the operator if her boys' names were listed. The calls were fruitless until one day, after a particularly fervent prayer session, she seemed to hear a voice say, "Call Kansas City, Kansas."

With trembling fingers she dialed Kansas City, Kansas, and asked if a number were listed for Waldo. In a few minutes she was talking to Waldo's wife! They were shocked to find she was still living, as her husband had told them their mother was dead.

In only a few weeks she saw all her children and grandchildren.

What joy to be in each others' arms again!

Now her home is filled with pictures of her family, and her heart is bursting with joy.

That separation of 38 years was a painful ordeal—but what if the separation were eternal! How tragic if families are not united in Christ but are divided between heaven and hell. That final separation will be the most awful of all!

If you are one of God's lost children, He is seeking you. Like this mother who sought her children, the Lord will never give up the search while life remains.

Jesus indicated this when He told about the search for the lost sheep, the lost coin, and the prodigal son. He summed it by saying, "There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth" (Luke 15:10).

Repent and follow Christ now so that you may not be lost. Call on the Lord and let Him save you today.

SOUTH LONDON CRUSADE

Held August 5-14 at Crystal Palace football ground, Selhurst Park, South Norwood, with Evangelist Melvin Banks

A little over a year ago, three ministers from the Croydon area travelled to Peterborough to meet Melvin Banks, to discuss the possibility of holding an interdenominational crusade in their locality. Mr. Banks felt that this was of God, and agreed to hold a tent campaign in the area. However this did not materialise: instead, the venue was the ground of Crystal Palace Football Club, at Selhurst Park, South Norwood; the meetings were to be held in the large grandstand, with a seating capacity of 5,000. Melvin Banks was delighted with the idea, and as the vision and the possibilities enlarged, so did the committee. Invitations were sent to known evangelicals to share in this project, and eventually fourteen churches, sympathetic to evangelism and divine healing, shared the vision. The area covered included Croydon and Thornton Heath, Sutton, Wallington, South Norwood and Bromley.

Members of the Crusade committee with Pastor and Mrs. Banks.

Night after night the Gospel went out in a simple and forthright manner that was relevant to the needs of the hearers. A response was demanded, and during the crusade some 800 enquirers were personally counselled, and each was given a copy of 'The Little Green Book' explaining the way of salvation, and also a copy of 'The Greatest is Love'—the New Testament in the Living Bible version.

Following the appeal for salvation, opportunity was given for those in need of healing for body or mind to come forward for prayer, and approximately 2,500 did so. God heard the prayers of His servant and glorified His Name in that "signs and wonders followed the preaching of the Word". One lady who was blind received her sight, and another left her wheel-chair, returning to the crusade the next night, having travelled there on the bus!

The crusade committee feel that a very worthwhile venture has been attempted under the direction of the Holy Spirit, and that it is but the beginning of an extensive work to bring the full Gospel to a very needy part of our beloved land.

The photograph shows a section of the congregation at one of the meetings.

Interest in the crusade was stimulated over the whole area by the distribution of over 200,000 leaflets, and the use of posters and shop-cards. In the two weeks immediately before the crusade, the secretary reported that over 200 enquiries had been received by phone concerning the meetings. Attendance at the first meeting was 2,500, and varied over the ten days from 1,000 to 3,000 on the final night.

Each evening there was ministry in song from a visiting soloist, and also from the crusade choir, made up of members of the participating churches under the leadership of Mr. John Crawley. Mention should be made of the Thursday evening meeting which was arranged in conjunction with 'Prayer for Israel' who supplied the soloists who sang in both Hebrew and English, and on this occasion Mr. Banks preached on the subject "When shall Messiah come?"

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

YEARS ago I read a book, "The craft of the Sermon", by the late Dr. W.E. Sangster, that great Methodist preacher. Most pastors have on their bookshelves books similar to this. They are designed to improve our preaching. Above all else, preaching, and indeed your witnessing, must be based on the eternal truths of God's Word. One man, who lost faith in the Bible, confessed that his preaching was of the "repent as it were and believe in a measure, or you'll be lost to some extent" variety, "I was just not in the will of God", he said. Paul urged Timothy to "preach the Word" (2 Timothy 4:2). The pastor always improves his preaching when he does that.

But what about you, a member of the congregation? How can you improve your pastor's preaching? The following poem sums it up well:

*Sunday the sermon was sluggish,
'Twas hard attention to keep.
The theme was faultily chosen,
It almost put me to sleep.
Monday was blue with sheer boredom;
Tuesday was carnal by choice.
Wednesday my conscience was awakened
By pleas from a still, small voice.
Prayer meeting left me uplifted,
Loyalty lingering long.
Thursday my heart was responding;
Friday His nudging was strong.
I came to thorough repentance
The following Saturday
I yielded in full surrender
As all on the altar I lay.
Sunday the sermon was perfect,
Superb and quite at its peak;
Amazed how greatly that pastor
Improved in the space of one week!*

Art and the Gospel

by Robert Clarke, N.D.D., A.T.D.
Pastor of our Blackpool, Marton Church.

The writers drawing from a painting of Savonarola by Fra Bartolommeo. The Latin inscription underneath reads: "A drawing of the prophet Gorolamo* born at Ferrara, sent by God". *Hieronymi is Latin for Jerome of which Girolamo is Spanish—or so the Latin master tells me!

SAVONAROLA has been called a religious bigot, a fanatic and a harbinger of the Reformation. As an art student, however, I was led to believe that he was nothing but a public nuisance whose influence had an adverse effect on Botticelli's art. But whatever art historians might feel about Savonarola they can hardly afford to ignore him.

At the peak of his career he was drawing crowds of up to 14,000 people, a goodly congregation by anybody's standards. His complexity was such that it enabled him to appeal to an extraordinary range of people. He is said to have men spellbound, and it is recorded of one of his sermons, "it caused such terror, alarm, sobbing and tears that everyone went about the city bewildered, speechless, more dead than alive."

Girolamo Savonarola

"I shall no longer . . . relate things that are past, but shall tell of things to be."

Savonarola preaching

Savonarola had two themes, the wickedness of public morals and the wickedness of the church, and two aims, the reform of both. He was completely fearless in denouncing Rome and left no doubt that the source of church corruption was the Pope himself and his cardinals and higher clergy. He predicted that Lorenzo di Medici, ruler of Florence, and Pope Innocent VIII would both die in 1492 and both did.

The extraordinary influence that this Dominican friar had over the daily life and politics of the city of Florence is reflected in the art of his contemporaries. True art always reflects the philosophical climate of its day, and the High Renaissance (14th–16th centuries) was the age of Humanism. The precise effect that Savonarola had upon artists can be seen in the following quotation from "Renaissance and Mannerist Art" by Robert Erich and Wolf and Ronald Miller: "In the ideal—so soon to be shattered by Savonarola after Lorenza's premature death in 1492—there was no contradiction between spirit and flesh, between Christianity and pagan Antiquity. All were reconciled in the Godhead that was before time: Plato and Moses alike announcing the Coming. The thought was fundamentally Christian, but the forms in which it was expressed could be pagan". Hence, it can be seen why Savonarola's preaching had been described as anti-Renaissance revivalism.

Botticelli was fifty years old when he was profoundly aroused by the preaching of Savonarola, despite his friendship for, and gratitude to the Medici. There is no doubt that this is the explanation for the deep change in his art from vivacity to religious feeling expressed with painful intensity.

He inspired affection in Fra Bartolommeo: all the Della Robbia were devoted to him. Nearly sixty years later, Michelangelo, sculptor, painter, military engineer, architect and poet, said that he could still hear Savonarola's voice resounding in his ears. It is generally felt that one of Michelangelo's greatest works, "The Last Judgement", on the altar wall of the Sistine Chapel, The Vatican, was profoundly influenced by Savonarola's sermons. When this enormous fresco measuring 48 by 44 feet, was unveiled, it struck its viewers with the impact of a storm—even Pope Paul III fell to his knees in prayer, and all Europe felt its reverberations.

After attempts at bribery failed—a Cardinal's hat was held out as bait—the government decided upon Savonarola's arrest. No sooner was this made public than the populace attacked the convent. His disciples made a desperate defence, but Savonarola, upon the suggestion made by a cowardly monk that the Shepherd should lay down his life for the flock, gave himself up. Day after day he was tortured. Mock trials were rearranged. Savonarola was to die "even if he be a second John the Baptist". On May 22nd 1498, sentence of death was pronounced. Savonarola listened unmoved and then quietly resumed his interrupted devotions. During his remaining hours he uttered other prophecies which years later were fulfilled. During the degradation ceremony the following utterance was made by the representative from Rome: "I separate you from the church militant and the church triumphant", to which he replied, "that is beyond thy powers". He was then hung between the already hanging bodies of two of his disciples and the public burning for heresy and sedition commenced.

The execution

Savonarola's courageous protests against corruption and debauchery, his fearless deposing of those concerned, his reliance on the Bible as the only certain guide although at times extravagantly allegorized, surely constitutes him a forerunner of the Reformation. Not only did he have a profound effect upon society in an immediate context but the evidence provided by the art of his contemporaries shows that his contribution to Christianity was anything other than temporal.

Tongues -a Testimony

I was a teen-age Christian when I first became aware that members of some 'Pentecostal' churches 'spoke in other tongues', and I was rather disturbed by their noisy and exuberant praying. I asked a deacon of the evangelical church which I belonged to about this, and he gave me a tract to read which denounced this practice as an excess of emotionalism which was being used by the devil. Consequently, although I had committed my life to Christ, and believed in the in-dwelling presence of the Holy Spirit, I was also fearful that over-emphasis on the Third Person of the Trinity would lead to an unbalanced Christian life.

You can imagine my feelings, therefore, when some twenty years later I received a letter from a dear missionary friend testifying to the fact that she had received the gift of tongues, and found great personal strength as she praised the Lord by this means in her private devotional times. For two or three days I could think of nothing else, it all seemed so weird and disturbing. Here was someone I knew—a mature, practical and level-headed Christian, who had overcome many obstacles and shown great faith in reaching the mission field—and I began to doubt my long-held views regarding this matter. When I wrote to her, I referred to her experience, and questioned her about it. Consequently, she sent me a booklet entitled Speaking in Tongues, God's gift for the Body of Christ.

I well remember on the afternoon of 23rd February, 1968 settling down to read this booklet, and as I did so a strong conviction came to my heart. What impressed me very much was the author's insistence that because a spiritual gift had been mis-used, it should not therefore be dis-used. Any spiritual gift can be abused if we are not humble, and careful to give God all the glory. I did not have a desire to be able to pray in another tongue, but I did have a great and earnest desire to know the fulness and power of the Holy Spirit in my life, and particularly to demonstrate the greatest of His gifts, which is love (see 1 Cor. 13). In a simple prayer I told my Heavenly Father this, and added that if He wanted also to give me the gift of praying in tongues I would not hold back from receiving it. Whereupon I opened my mouth, and a sound came out. Startled, I shut it again quick! Then, as I felt prompted to open it again, a strange language flowed out, in a rather child-like way, and joy flooded my soul, so that I was thanking and praising the Lord for answering my prayer. I kept thinking 'the Holy Spirit really is dwelling in me; I really am a child of God', and assurance and faith filled my heart.

Following this experience, I did have doubts, and also wondered if I would be able to 'do it again'. I soon learned, however, that whenever I opened my mouth in faith, the tongue of prayer and praise flowed out, becoming ever more fluent and mature. I am convinced that I speak a recognisable language, and know the name of Jesus is very predominant. My praying sometimes turns to singing, tunes I have never known before—this threw new light on Paul's words in Eph. 5: 20: '... singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord.' It is something which is intensely personal, and few people know of my experience. I relate it here in this anonymous way, hoping other Christians who are bothered and confused about this gift will be helped, and urging them to recognise the necessity of living Spirit-filled lives, that is, to empty themselves of self and sin, and yield themselves completely to the controlling power of the Holy Spirit, Who will make our lives fruitful with His gifts (see Gal. 5: 22-23). Whether you will receive the gift He has given me, I do not know, but I do know that God's will for every believer is to be filled with the Spirit (Eph. 5: 18). If Satan fails to keep a person from receiving Christ as saviour, he will then try to keep him from understanding the importance and work of the Holy Spirit. Do not make this a subject of division and argument in the church, but with open mind and heart submit yourself to the power of the Holy Spirit, who will draw you closer to our Lord Jesus Christ, and keep you in the centre of God's will.

AGREED WITH AN ATHEIST

I was talking to an atheist one day, and he said, "I do not believe, Wilson, what you are preaching." I said,—"You have told me what you do not believe; perhaps you will tell me what you do believe."

He said, "I believe that death ends all."

"So do I! Shake on it," I said.

"What!" he said, "you believe that death ends all?"

"I certainly do," I replied, whereupon he said, "You are a strange Christian," and I said, "I am sure of that: there is none other like me in the world. As a Christian I assert the belief that death ends all."

He said he had never heard such a thing, and I added, "It is time you heard something new."

He said I was playing with him, so I said, "Death ends all your chance of doing evil, death ends all your joy; death ends all your projects, all your ambition; death ends all your friendships; death ends all the gospel that you will ever hear; death ends it all for you, and you go out into the outer darkness. Death ends all my wanderings, all my tears, all perplexities, all my disappointments, and all my aches and pains; death ends it all, and I go to be with my Lord in glory."

He said, "I never thought of that." I was able to lead that man to Christ just by agreeing with him that death ends all.

Very special people

Matthew 9:13,14

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

WE can read, in the Old Testament, of things that were happening in the world in preparation for the coming of the Lord Jesus. The people who lived then did not know this and were puzzled by all that was going on around them.

"Who watches over my sheep when I am asleep?" the shepherd asked. "Who turns the tiny seeds into great fields of corn?" was the farmer's question. "Who sends the mighty waves racing across the sea?" asked the fisherman. "Oh, what is it like, up there!" the astrologer wondered as he studied the stars.

No-one knew. The people needed something to turn to, something to make them feel easier, something to protect them from all the bad things, so they made idols, big golden idols they could pray to and worship.

At that time lived a young lad, Abram, and he, too, wondered about the big world about him. He did not believe in the idols at all, "They can't talk, or move, or hear, or speak!" he told himself. "They cannot do anything! They cannot help anyone!" Abram believed that someone more powerful was behind it all, someone who gave the birds their song, someone who put the sunshine in the sky. Abram thought out his ideas until one day God put it into his mind to go to Palestine. Abram went, and so it was that Palestine grew into a nation of Hebrews.

The Hebrew prophets learned from God that a child was to be born, "Whose name shall be called, Wonderful."

Jesus knew that the people had been puzzled for a long time and so, when at last He came, He answered all their questions and set their minds at ease. "God is a God of love," He said, "He cares for each one of you. 'Not even a sparrow falls without God knowing.'" He told them about the world from which He had come. "It's a wonderful world. A world of love and happiness. One day you shall share it with Me."

The children loved to be with Jesus, to hear all he had to say. They sat on His knees and held His hands as He told them His stories.

One day Jesus told them, "you are very important children. You are so very special that there are angels in heaven watching over you every moment of every day."

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

26. Israel at Pi-Hahiroth (Exodus 14:2)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THE command of the Lord must have puzzled Israel, for their natural route would be to the north of the Red Sea. In order to reach Pi-Hahiroth they would have to turn back to the south of the Red Sea, and must then face the seemingly unnecessary problem of crossing the Red Sea. Soon they became even more puzzled and alarmed because Pharaoh and his pursuing army found them enclosed in the wilderness. It was then, however, that the Lord revealed His glory and power; the menacing Red Sea became His means of salvation to Israel and of destruction to the Egyptian army. The exultant Israelites gave worship and praise to their great God.

At one period in his ministry Paul had a time of great frustration when doors which he expected to be open were closed by the Holy Spirit. Then his "Macedonian vision" revealed his sphere of service and he departed for Macedonia. His first campaign was in the great city of Philippi, but within days he was in prison with his back lacerated by the Roman whip; before the campaign could really get going he was run out of town! Appearances would have suggested that he had mistaken the will of God; yet, in fact, it was the beginning of an exciting and fruitful period of ministry, which saw the opening up of Europe to the gospel of Christ.

Have you ever had an experience like that of Israel or Paul? You have done what the Lord commanded, yet you at once ran into a time of trouble and distress, when one thing after another went wrong; you were baffled, wondering if you had mistaken the will of God? A clear lesson is taught by the experience of Israel and Paul. The will of God may sometimes bring immediate trouble, for Satan will attack us, but doing His will is certain to bring blessing in the end. God will use our obedience to glorify the Lord Jesus, defeat Satan, bless others, and bring us closer to Him. Brother, sister, trust Him to work out His mighty purpose, whatever the circumstances may seem to be.

How dear is life to you?

I HOPE you liked the story of the founding of the Slavanka Conference Centre, on my page last week. Now I want to tell you of another Christian Centre in far away West Africa. During 1970, my husband, myself and our son were invited to a splendid establishment in the highest part of Ghana. After travelling by a tortuous zig-zag route up a scarp we eventually reached the town of Abetifi and were kindly received at the Ramseyer Training Centre which was the venue for the Annual Conference of the Church of Pentecost.

This well equipped centre, surrounded by beautiful grounds, was built and financed by the Presbyterian Church of Ghana in order to prepare the people of God for better service and to carry the gospel into unconquered areas. So reads the dedication in the brochure, describing the aims and activities of the centre. The name of the Basel missionary to Ghana, F.A. Ramseyer is the inspiration for the centre's work. He spent twenty years in Abetifi (1876-1896) preparing himself and his people to bring the gospel to the heart of the Ashanti people. So today by Bible studies, training classes for Christian workers, music courses and retreats for fellowship, the Centre seeks to emulate the great missionary's aims by prayerful preparation and endeavour.

It is interesting to learn that the first Protestant missionaries in Ghana were those intrepid pioneers, the Moravians. In 1737 the first two missionaries set foot on West African soil, five more followed in 1767 and a further four brave missionaries arrived in 1770. All eleven died, seeds sown in the soil of Ghana and destined in God's good time to bring forth fruit unto eternal life! The Basel Missionary Society was founded in 1815 and four of their workers were sent to Ghana in 1828. Sadly, in eight short months three of them were buried and the fourth only survived for three years. Four more missionaries were to perish through the scourge of tropical fevers and yet the work was to continue, for God had sent out from Switzerland to the Ashanti, Ramseyer and his brave little wife. At the commencement of the first Ashanti rebellion, their mission station was burnt down and they were held captive in the city of Kumasi for four years. At first they were badly treated and kept in chains. Their little son who had been captured with them, died on the march to Kumasi, but some months later a baby girl was born and this event caused great excitement in the town. Even the king of the Ashanti was greatly interested and their conditions of imprisonment were improved. In fact Mr. Ramseyer who spoke fluent Ashanti was able to assist the king in his dealings with Europeans on the coast, and during the years of imprisonment he learned to love and understand the Ashanti people.

The release of the Ramseyers took place in 1874 but the proud Ashanti still stood aloof from the Gold Coast Colony, so the missionaries had to withdraw and establish their mission at the town of Abetifi, where for twenty years their policy was to labour and wait. Teaching, preaching, winning souls for Jesus yet always ready and eager to go back and evangelize amongst the Ashanti when the door opened. In 1896 it was judged safe for them to return, and God gave them four years in which to bring the gospel to the Ashanti people. In the year 1900 war flared up between the Ashanti and the British. The Ashantis believed that Ramseyer who spoke their language fluently, had learnt about the whereabouts of the golden stool and had passed on the information to the governor. Their water-carriers were murdered, their house surrounded and an attack upon them was feared. Ramseyer and his wife, and those they had won for Christ, had to flee from their mission house on April 25th and seek refuge in the British fort at Kumasi. There they remained until the successful break-out from the besieged fort; they reached the coast in July together with five other Basel missionaries, and in company with the British governor and his party. An interesting testimonial was given to Mrs. Ramseyer and the other lady missionary, in the official report of the journey by the military governor, in which he stated his admiration of the way they had endured hardship, and how, with a cheerful spirit had got through the long, arduous marches, often waist deep in water without a change of clothing.

Thinking of the sacrifice this man was prepared to make for the cause of Christ I am reminded of the

How to arrange a march of witness

HOW to arrange a march of witness

1. Persuasion. Be fully persuaded in your own mind of the value and effectiveness of this means of witnessing. Seek to persuade others, so that the whole project is approached with joy and enthusiasm. Young people like to do something for Jesus; you can harness both their effort and ingenuity. Remember enthusiasm means God in us, so get them all enthusiastic.

2. Permission. It is necessary to get police permission to hold a march of witness, especially in places where crowds are likely to gather. You will usually find the police both helpful and cooperative in these matters; they will most likely provide escorts for the march and will probably suggest various routes and dates. A personal visit is better than a letter when seeking approval, so pop along to the police station and explain and explore.

3. Place. Remember it is a march of WITNESS. Its not really much good parading around empty streets. I remember in one town where I pastored, the churches had a march of witness around the town on a Good Friday evening. There was not a soul in sight, and I suggested that whilst it was a march, it could hardly be called a march of witness. Go where the people are; it might be the town centre; it might be a housing estate, but it is essential you are seen. At the Birmingham Youth Rally two years ago we obtained permission for a march of witness, and 4,000 young people marched around the town centre, and they were seen and heard by tens of thousands of people.

4. Participants. First of all you need a reasonable number. If it is only a small group it can look like a march of weakness. So get a good number together. Try and bring in the whole church, with all its departments. Maybe join with other evangelicals in the area (they are going to heaven you know). Have a united Pentecostal march.

It's essential too that we behave as children of the King; acting foolishly dishonours His Name. Look joyful of course, but avoid anything stupid or unseemly, like the plague. Have plenty of singing, or even a Jesus shout, be radiant, but never ridiculous.

5. Provide. Plenty of banners, these really make a march something. Let the young people suggest slogans of their own, you will find that they come up with some great ideas. Give them their head a bit, don't worry about making mistakes in this, you will find that Pentecostal young people can be full of excellent ideas. Make the banners colourful, large enough to be read, but not too large so that they cannot be carried easily; make sure that the name JESUS is given prominence.

Make sure you also have plenty of good tracts, and invitations to your meetings; some young people should walk on either side of the road cheerfully giving these out. If the area is crowded have an ample supply, you can give out hundreds in a matter of minutes. Again make sure the printing is of a good quality. Provide some music too, accordions/guitar/etc.

6. Prayer. Should I have put this first? I am sure I should, but all we undertake for Jesus should be covered from beginning to end with prayer. Not just a hurried prayer at the start, but times of prayer before the event; keep praying even as you walk, and then commend it all to the God of grace.

7. Purpose. Well of course the main purpose is to go out and tell people of Jesus. It is right we should go out; Jesus went into the highways so did the disciples, so have all successful evangelists. Not only does a march of witness reach the lost, it also strengthens your own young people, it brings your church to the notice of the public. It lets people know that many still love our living Lord.

8. Progress. It is after all a march, not a stroll. Walk quickly enough to denote you have purpose; this also will not hold up the traffic for too long. Do not go too fast, in case there are some older folk who cannot keep up the pace. Keep together; it is neither a funeral procession nor a gallop. You will find the police will appreciate something that is done decently and in order.

9. People in charge. It is a wise thing to appoint stewards to lead and guide and also to bring up the rear of the march, especially if a lot of people are involved. These can be identified by armbands or something else which will give them a measure of authority. Ask the people to obey instructions from these in charge.

10. Pinnacle. It is great if you can be marching somewhere (especially to Zion of course, although Zion is a very steep hill, so I don't know how many would actually march up there) but if we can finish the march either with an open-air, or a gospel rally, it will seem all the more worth while. So plan a finale of gospel outreach. Marching on in the light of God.

by A. D. Sandford

Monday, October 7th

Acts 27:1-20

"Exceedingly tossed with a tempest . . . neither sun nor stars . . . all hope taken away (v.18-20).

THIS passage is an example of what can be accomplished by those in touch with God. Paul saved by grace, lived for God; when he was in trouble he knew how to call upon the Lord.

One cannot imagine a more frightening experience. All hope gone but man's extremity is God's opportunity. The darkest hour comes before the dawn. Our God never lets us down. His desire is to show us His power and to do us good.

Tuesday, October 8th

Acts 27:21-44

"Wherefore I pray you take some meat: for this is for your health" (v.34) "Then were they of good cheer" (v.36).

COULD any shepherd be more interested in his flock, than Paul was for his fellow-passengers? His thoughts were not only for their safety (salvation), but for their health and comfort. That's God's order too; salvation, health and every need supplied. Revival begins, not with the social needs of men but within sinful hearts. After the assurance that none would perish, they could eat with gladness of heart. "O taste and see that the Lord is good". (Psalm 34:8.)

Wednesday, October 9th

Acts 28:1-16

"Paul . . . thanked God and took courage" (v.15).

THE ministry of encouragement to the hearts of God's weary servants, is within the reach of us all. Our little self-sacrifice for their sakes will not go unrewarded. There is wonderful comfort and consolation in mutual faith and love. Go and meet them rather than wait for them to approach you for sympathy. That little word of encouragement can help someone to take courage, and lift their heart in thanksgiving.

Thursday, October 10th

Acts 28:17-31

"when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging; to whom he expounded and testified" (v.23).

HOW wonderful. The prison was turned into a Church; the prisoner now becomes the preacher. The arguments are centred around Moses and the prophets; the sermon lasted from morning till evening. Here we see Paul, faithful unto the end. He knew nothing among men, save Christ and Him crucified.

This should always be the preachers message, "we preach Christ crucified". (1 Corinthians 1:23.)

Friday, October 11th

Psalm 121:1-8

"The Lord is thy keeper" (v.5).

THIS Psalm is full of precious promises regarding the safety of the godly.

The keepers job is to do everything in his power to protect that which is committed to him. What assurance of safety and protection the people of God enjoy. Through every avenue of life we are "kept by the power of God" (1 Peter 1:5.) Man's power falters and fluctuates but God's power is unfailing. "He that keepeth Israel will not slumber nor sleep" (v.4). We may rest in the sure knowledge that he surrounds us day and night, and none can harm that which is committed to Him.

Saturday, October 12th

Esther 1:1-22

" . . . bring Vashti the queen before the king . . . to shew the people . . . for she was fair to look on" (v.11).

SHE was queen of Ahasuerus, the greatest king upon earth. What an honour to share the glories and riches of such a king. However a greater than Ahasuerus is here, and it is our privilege to belong to Him. Queen Vashti was no more beautiful in the eyes of her king than the child of God is in the eyes of the King of kings. She is a peculiar treasure and precious in His sight.

Sunday, October 13th

Esther 2:1-23

"the king loved Esther . . . and made her Queen instead of Vashti" (v.17).

VASHTI, because of her disobedience had been rejected, now Esther the orphan is appointed Queen. What a tremendous privilege to be loved by a King! As sons and daughters we are loved by the King of kings. His love is everlasting and knows no change. Because of His love, our hearts should respond in love, in worship, giving and going.

words of that other great missionary pioneer in Acts 20:24, "neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify of the grace of God".

May I ask a pertinent question? How dear is life to you?

One of the saddest facts of the witness of the church today, being experienced by all missionary societies, including our own, is the appalling lack of candidates. In spite of all our earnest appeals we still need a doctor and teacher in Rhodesia, replacements in Tanzania and Hong Kong. . . . None will have to suffer the privations and hardships that faced the Ramseyers, and yet it would appear that the love of the comfortable life in the homeland prevents folk from making what small sacrifice is involved in carrying the "good news" to the regions beyond.

The Prodigal's Party

by Alexander Tee

WHAT do you most enjoy at a party?

Some people enjoy seeing all the nice clothes that the guests are wearing. Others enjoy all the lovely food, while others enjoy the games. Teenagers often enjoy being taken home by a boy-friend or a girl-friend after the party is over as much as the party itself. Some people do not like parties at all.

When the father of the prodigal son embraced his wayward boy, he was so happy that he felt that he must have a celebration, so he had a party. There were plenty of food and home-fed beef available and the best clothes were worn by those in attendance. There was dancing and singing; everybody was chatting and laughing. It was a very happy occasion for the old man whose younger boy had come home. As far as he was concerned, the part that he enjoyed most was that his wayward son was home again. There was only one spoil-sport in the whole of this brilliant story. It was not the farmer over on the next small-holding, nor was it the mother who had all the baking and work to do. It was not even the servants who might have an extra under-manager. It was the elder brother, the one who should have been as happy as his parents. He could now share the responsibility on the farm with his brother and discuss the many problems which would arise from time to time. This young man had a bitter spirit. The Bible speaks of "a root of bitterness". The fruit from the herb of bitterness is poisonous, his reasons for being bitter were selfish and sad.

EVANGELISM IS IMPERATIVE and we must ever be on the look-out for opportunities to welcome back those who have gone astray. There are countless backsliders in our country who have become disillusioned with the far country. They have found that drugs and drink have kicked a great deal harder than the so-called

"kicks" that they thought they would enjoy. The elder brother never once looked for his brother, as far as we know. There is no record that he ever asked his father if he could have a party and invite his friends. He never took the initiative. It is always sad to see Christians who never try to invite either backsliders or sinners to gospel meetings. A crisp, evangelical vision will look out for opportunities. There are so many thrills awaiting every believer who will try to bring in the lost. To see the rags being exchanged for the robe is a great joy. I believe that there are hungry prodigals everywhere who are lonely and sick of the swine-trough which this world is offering. What can compare with the joy of seeing a life transformed by the power of the gospel? The heart of our heavenly Father is shown in John 3:16. "For God so loved the world that He gave . . .". The father in the story of Luke 15 had a heart and an attitude which are most commendable.

The story of the prodigal son was not told to sinners with a view to welcoming them back home to God. It was told to bring home to the hearts of the listeners the unfortunate attitude of the elder brother. May God help us all to have hearts of love and to do all in our power to welcome home the prodigals. Is there not someone on your horizon somewhere whom you could invite to your church this coming Sunday. If so, down tools, so to speak, and run to make him feel that he is wanted and welcome. The many thrills that follow cannot be fully explained, but they can be enjoyed.

We write this Editorial after the date of the announcement of another General Election.

Whatever our readers' political views, we feel sure that when we say that the nation stands in particular need at this time, that the majority will agree with us.

Dr. Edwin Sangster, who was minister of Westminster Central Hall for sixteen years, preached a famous sermon on the first Sunday in 1953. The sermon sought to answer the question, "What would a revival of religion do for Britain?" He then gave ten points.

1. It would pay Old Debts.
2. It would Reduce Sexual Immorality.
3. It would Disinfect the Theatre.
4. It would Cut the Divorce Rate.
5. It would Reduce Juvenile Crime.
6. It would Lessen the Prison Population.
7. It would Improve the Quality and Increase the Output of Work.
8. It would Restore to the Nation a Sense of High Destiny.
9. It would Make us Invincible in the War of Ideas.
10. It would give Happiness and Peace to the People.

The sermon was to be found in all the National Daily Papers (except the Daily Worker) on the following morning. Amongst the congregation on that Sunday morning was Donald Gee, who tells us something of the tremendous impact which that one particular sermon had, so much so, that he drew attention to it ten years later in his book called 'Spiritual Gifts in the Work of the Ministry today'.

Can there be political solutions to what are really moral problems?

"Righteousness exalts a Nation, but Sin is a reproach to any people". (Proverbs 14:34).

"HE MAKES NATIONS GREAT" (Job 12:23).

Pentecostal News

The 29th Biennial Conference of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada at their meeting in Regina, August 22-27, elected a new General Secretary in the person of Rev. Charles Yates. Mr. Yates, who emigrated to Canada in 1956, received his training in the Elim Bible College in London. From 1949 to 1956 he was Pastor of the Elim Pentecostal Church, Crumlin Road, Belfast. For the past six years he has been District Superintendent of the Alberta district in Canada.

Also nominated were Rev. Robert W. Taitinger, General Superintendent; Rev. A. Graydon Richards, General Treasurer; Rev. Carman W. Lynn, Overseas Missions Executive Director; Rev. Robert M. Argue, Executive Director Home Missions and Bible Colleges; and Rev. S. Donald Feltmate, Executive Director of Christian Education and Youth.

WEYMOUTH

Pastor: E.R. Gaudion

THE induction of Pastor E.R. Gaudion took place on Saturday, 31st August. The Church was well filled with friends from near and far, including a Salvation Army Captain from Japan! The meeting was led by Pastor W.J. Maybin of Southampton, the District Superintendent. We were all blessed by the stirring ministry of Pastor Osman from Springbourne. Mrs. Joy Inight, who will be known to many in the movement, was the soloist. Pastor E.J. Thomas of Yeovil led with prayer, and Pastor Thompsett of Merriott brought greetings on behalf of the Presbytery. Churches of other denominations were also well represented. Greetings were brought by the Vicar of the Parish, the Methodist minister, and the Salvation Army Major. Letters were received from the Baptist minister, and the local Free Church Council, and there was a telegram from a United Reformed Church in Guernsey (the home island of Pastor and Mrs. Gaudion) assuring them of prayer support in their new ministry. The roll-call seemed almost complete when Dr. Eric Hutchings, who was visiting the town, called in to wish God's blessing on the new ministry.

We are looking forward to what God has for our assembly.

INDUCTION OF RICHARD LIGHTON AS PASTOR OF GRAHAM STREET CHURCH

Report by John Coleman, Pastor of our Stinchley Church.

A crowded church witnessed the heart-warming service which welcomed Richard Lighton to Birmingham. How heartily we sang, "There is Power", and listened with blessing as the Young People's Fellowship rendered "I will Sing the Wondrous Story".

With obvious sincerity and deep feeling, Mr. Bentley, the secretary of Graham Street, welcomed Richard Lighton to the pastorate. A letter was read from the Secretary-General in which was stressed the good foundation laid by John Dyke and Edward Cole. It was incredible to realise that this was only the third induction service in Graham Street in thirty-two years. Since Pastor Cole's retirement the congregation had been waiting for an appointment to be made. In expressing appreciation of Pastor Cole's extra year of service, Mr. Bentley said they had had "a Cole to keep the fire burning, but there would be no suffering from power cuts, there would always be a Lighton!"

In his reply, Richard Lighton was obviously thrilled to have in the congregation friends from Leicester (the scene of a former pastorate) including the Congregational minister and his wife. Referring to the warm welcome he had received, Mr. Lighton told us that Pastor Cole was the first preacher he heard when, as a seven year old boy, he attended the farewell of Pastor Cole from the York Church. Mr. Campbell of the Greenock Church told of the blessing experienced through the ministry of Richard Lighton, and that Graham Street was gaining from their loss. Stanley Brown, Secretary to the Presbytery, reminded the congregation, "we have prayed for a long time for the right man to come to Graham Street".

It was evident that the sentiments and wishes expressed in the service, and by telegrams from colleagues and friends, that the desire of Pastor and people were expressed in the solo of a young man as he sang:

"All there is of me, Lord,
At Thy feet I lay".

When David Woodfield of Selly Oak rose to speak, he said that his message had already been given in what had been expressed by other speakers. Taking John 1:6 as his text, he spoke of the incoming minister as being the right man to meet the challenge of the hour. The man must have the right message amidst a famine of God's word. The man must be there at the right time, in the right place and to the right people.

A fitting climax to the evening was when Pastor and Mrs. Lighton knelt before the congregation, hands were laid upon them and they were commended to God and the charge of the church by Pastor R. Moore of Leeds.

Our hearts echoed the closing hymn, "Lord, dismiss us with Thy blessing".

Dorothy Bentley writes:

SAMUEL faced a formidable task when God commissioned him to find a suitable man to rule over Israel and be their anointed King (1 Samuel 16). The responsibility of this task was increased when faced with Jesse's seven sons: which one of these upright, good-looking and likeable men was God's chosen one!

Such was the dilemma facing the Deacons of Graham St. Church as Pastor Cole's retirement day approached and passed and they were still without a replacement Minister. Like Samuel, they too, wanted to be sure they had selected God's man. Waiting time, patience and prayer was rewarded when Pastor Richard Lighton's name was put forward and God unmistakably said "This is the one — appoint him and I will anoint him".

Therefore it was with a deep sense of relief and thankfulness to God that Mr. Herrick Wells our Church Treasurer and longest serving Deacon, welcomed our New Minister, his wife and family into our Assembly two days before the official Induction Service. We fully intended this to be an informal, friendly get-together with a cup of tea and a biscuit, but God surprised us for He had prepared a rich feast of spiritual things and through the Gifts of the Spirit confirmed Mr. Lighton's appointment and promised future blessing for our Church.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 8TH was a unique occasion in the History of the Graham St. Assembly. A full church had gathered to bid farewell to seven of our young people who have obeyed the call of Christ to full time service. Pastor Cole addressed them and us with a very solemn but encouraging and challenging word from Acts 13 calling upon each one by name to testify of God's dealings in their lives.

Linda, Lorna and Jonathan are entering the Elim Bible College. Jonathan (with friend Graham Bounds) has just completed a successful year of musical ministry visiting Secondary schools in and around Birmingham. Margaret, Jill and Sue are to be Bible students at WEC and Lebanon Colleges and eventually full time workers. Graham Wells, YPF Leader (son of church Treasurer and church Pianist Mr. and Mrs. H. Wells) has just given up a good job and promotion in a large Oil Company to work as a missionary in Iran under Operation Mobilisation.

The testimonies of these young people really touched our hearts as we listened to glowing accounts of their Salvation and their determination to follow Christ.

Pastor Lighton followed with a further timely and challenging Word — "What is your life?"

As a Church we have been deeply moved by the total commitment of these young lives. We cannot afford to lose them and we certainly shall miss them, but we are proud that from our Assembly hearts have caught the vision and felt the thrill to the call of the Master and have answered "I WILL".

Thoughts on the book of Revelation

The scope of the book

Chapter 1

by Charles J. E. Kingston

ONE WRITER has called Revelation "that golden thread on which can be strung all the earlier pearls of prophecy". If that be true we may expect other prophecies, both in the Old and the New Testaments, to fit on to this golden thread, filling out its beauty and grace.

The scope and structure of Revelation

Defined by our Lord Himself, these were threefold. "Write the things which thou hast seen" (that is, Christ, standing in the midst of the churches); "and the things which are" (that is, the seven churches of Asia, representing the whole Church, dispensationally); "and the things which shall be hereafter" (that is, the prophetic events of the last days, which take place after the Church age has ended (Revelation 1:19)).

Revelation is unique among the books of the Bible

Whereas other books of the Bible were inspired by the Holy Spirit (2 Peter 1:21), this one was given by Christ, through an angel. Another mark of the uniqueness, an especial blessing is promised to those who read, hear and keep the things written in the Book (Revelation 1:3). It has its message for the whole Church and may not be interpreted in such a way as to shut out from its blessing any particular period of Church history; its message is for all ages.

Revelation's theme is the Apocalypse of Jesus Christ

The Greek word apokalupsis, translated "revelation" in verse 1, appears eighteen times in the New Testament. It means an uncovering, manifestation, revelation, appearance. This word is used for the uncovering of certain truths (see Galatians 1:12; 2:2), but frequently it refers to the manifestation of Christ at His second coming (see 1 Peter 1:7; 2 Thessalonians 1:7).

Revelation's title includes both meanings

It contains God's revelation of certain truths concerning the last days; it also speaks of the manifestation of Jesus when He returns in His glory.

The Arch of Titus: the candlestick
with seven branches

This revelation "God gave unto Him" (Revelation 1:1).

These words fix the exact scope of the book. Apparently, only one disclosure of the future was withheld from Christ's knowledge while he was on earth. He knew of those events of history which lay between His first and second advents, but He did not know, because His Father did not reveal it unto Him, the time of His second coming to this earth. This event, Jesus said, neither the angels, nor the Son, but only the Father knew its day and hour because the Father had put this in His own power (Mark 13:32; Acts 1:7).

But now, having ascended to the Father and being seated beside Him at His right hand, Jesus is told of His Father's plans for His own return in glory and, in great detail, the events associated with it.

Daniel had prophesied, hundreds of years before; that "One like the son of man" was to be given by God, "dominion and glory and a kingdom" after the destruction of antichristian world-powers (Daniel 9:9-14). Revelation, then, speaks of those stupendous world events leading up to the glorious manifestation of Jesus Christ at His second coming.

It is clear to my mind, then, that the great body of the book of Revelation must be interpreted as detailing events associated with, and culminating in, the glorious return of our Lord Jesus Christ, His millennial reign on earth, the final judgment and the eternal ages which follow. This is usually termed the Futurist view of the book and it is along these lines our thoughts will proceed.

The revelation of Jesus Christ as our High Priest (Revelation 1:13-18).

But first, John, now banished to Patmos, condemned to the mines there by the Roman emperor, Domitian, must be assured of the overriding sovereignty of God in all matters concerning the churches. Troubled as to the effects of the persecution on the Christians of his day, he is given his vision of the risen Christ as our great High Priest. He stands in the centre of the seven golden candlesticks (or lampstands) tending them, caring for them, watching over them, lest their light grow dim.

John wrote about A.D.95. In A.D.70 the Romans had taken Jerusalem, burned the Temple there and carried the Jewish seven-branched lamp-stand to Rome, where it was installed in a heathen temple.

The light which the Jewish people had was put out and John is shown that the Christian churches are now called to carry on as lights in a dark world.

How majestic is our Christ!

Hair as white as snow, eyes aflame, His face radiating light, His feet glowing, His voice as of thunderous waters, His mouth uttering words like a two-edged sword! No wonder John, who once leaned on the Saviour's bosom, now fell at His feet as one dead!

And there is a Scripture which tells us we shall be like Him for we shall see Him as He is (1 John 3:2). Look, then, at what you will be like when changed into His likeness. May God hasten the glorious day of His coming and of our glory, too!

The Precious Seed

Psalm 126:6

by Sheila Price

JESUS never ever preached long sermons. He always told short, simple little stories which both grown-ups and children could understand, interesting stories which people would remember easily. Here is one he told to a crowd of people who had gathered by the lakeside early one Spring morning.

The people at the back of the crowd pushed and struggled to get a better view of Jesus, and Jesus Himself was being pushed and elbowed. So that all the people would see and hear Him clearly, Jesus got into a boat and used it as a pulpit.

As He waited for the people to settle down, Jesus thought about what He was going to say. He noticed a farmer on the nearby hillside sowing his seed. "Look at that farmer over there!" Jesus told them. "Some of his seed is falling on the stony pathway and the birds are swooping down to pick it up. There is also some seed falling into the thorns. When the thorns grow, that seed will be choked. There is seed falling on the shallow ground too, the sun will soon scorch it there". Jesus sighed. "What a waste! All that good seed lost!"

"But look over there!" He said. "That seed is falling on to the good rich soil. It will grow tall, strong and healthy there, and bring forth much good fruit".

"I am just like that farmer", Jesus told them, "and so are all pastors, missionaries and Sunday school teachers. We are sowing seed, God's seed. Some people do not listen to God's message and the seed falls on the stony path. There are those people who listen for a while, until they find other pleasures and interests, and then God's message gets choked, as by thorns. Still more people are eager at first to hear the message but then, perhaps because their friends poke fun at them, their interest fades.

"But", said Jesus, "there are many men and women, boys and girls, who receive God's message in a true and honest heart, and there the seed grows strong and healthy and brings glory and honour to God".

YOUR PASTOR AND MINE A Quaint bit of Philosophy

If he is young, he lacks experience; if his hair is grey, he is too old; if he has five or six children, he has too many; if he has none, he is setting a bad example.

If his wife sings in the choir she is being forward, if she does not, she is not interested in her husband's work.

If he speaks from notes, he has canned sermons and is dry; if he is extemporaneous, he is not deep.

If he spends too much time in his study, he neglects his people; if he visits, he is a gadabout.

If he suggests improvements for the church, he is a dictator; if he makes no suggestions, he is a figurehead.

If he uses too many illustrations, he neglects the Bible; if not enough, he is not clear.

If he condemns wrong, he is cranky; if he does not, he is a compromiser.

If he preaches an hour, he is windy; if less, he is lazy.

If he preaches the truth, he is offensive; if not, he is a hypocrite.

If he fails to please everybody, he is hurting the church; if he does please everybody, he has no convictions.

If he preaches tithing, he is a money-grabber; if he does not, he is failing to develop his people.

If he receives a large salary, he is mercenary; if a small salary, it proves he is not worth much.

If he preaches all the time, the people get tired of hearing one man; if he invites guest preachers, he is shirking responsibility.

So what! They say the preacher has an easy time.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

27. The triumph of the Lord (Exodus

15:1,21)

by F. Lavender,

Pastor of our Croydon Church

WHAT a day of rejoicing that was for Israel! A few hours before they had faced despair and destruction, when it had seemed that nothing could save them from Egyptian revenge; yet they had been saved by direct divine intervention. No self-effort could have delivered them, yet soon they looked back in amazement at their wonderful salvation! So Moses led the whole nation in a psalm of praise to the Lord, declaring in their song the glorious triumph of their God.

The disciples were defeated and dissipated following the death of the Lord. They expected that arrest and death awaited them, but all their gloom was dispelled by the wonder of Christ's resurrection. The glory of this event left the soldiers prostrated; it confounded both the human and spiritual enemies of the Lord, but the resurrection transformed the outlook of the disciples. Wherever the disciples went they told of the glory of His rising from death; it was a constant source of wonder to them. Christ's resurrection was the mighty act by which the Lord "triumphed gloriously". The Son who humbled himself was exalted "far above all".

The world around us is full of sadness and wickedness, and many are despairing as the pressure increases upon them. You and I, as Christians, must never despair. The Lord will soon intervene in the affairs of this world, He will shatter the powers of sin and darkness and will establish the reign of His Son over all the earth. Satan and the forces of evil are resisting desperately, but they will be overwhelmed by the glory of His Coming. All creation will rejoice and sing when Jesus reigns. Look up, take courage, and let the glory of His future reign be seen in your life now.

oooooooooooooooooooo

The trumpets which blew down the walls of Jericho were trumpets which gave no uncertain sound.

For one thing, then, the spiritual reformers of the last century taught constantly the sufficiency and supremacy of Holy Scripture. The Bible, whole and unmutilated, was their sole rule of faith and practice.
They accepted all its statements without question or dispute. They knew nothing of any part of Scripture being uninspired. They never allowed that man has any "verifying faculty" within him, by which Scripture statements may be weighed, rejected, or received.
They never flinched from asserting that there can be no error in the Word of God; and that when we cannot understand or reconcile some part of its contents, the fault is in the interpreter and not in the text. In all their preaching they were eminently men of one book.
To that book they were content to pin their faith, and by it to stand or fall. This was one grand characteristic of their preaching. They honoured, they loved, they revered the Bible.

Furthermore, they taught constantly the total corruption of human nature. They knew nothing of the modern notion that Christ is in every man, and that all possess something good within, which they have only to stir up and use in order to be saved. They never flattered men and women in this fashion. They told them plainly that they were dead, and must be made alive again; that they were guilty, lost, helpless, and hopeless, and in imminent danger of eternal ruin. Strange and paradoxical as it may seem to some, their first step towards making men good was to show them that they were utterly bad; and their primary argument in persuading men to do something for their souls was to convince them that they could do nothing at all.

Furthermore, they taught constantly that Christ's death upon the cross was the only satisfaction for man's sin; and that, when Christ died, he died as our substitute—"the just for the unjust". This, in fact, was the cardinal point in almost all their sermons.
They never taught the modern doctrine that Christ's death was only a great example of self-sacrifice. They saw in it something far higher, greater, deeper than this. They saw in it the payment of man's mighty debt to God. They loved Christ's person; they rejoiced in Christ's promises; they urged men to walk after Christ's example. But the one subject, above all others, concerning Christ, which they delighted to dwell on, was the atoning blood which Christ shed for us on the cross.

Furthermore, they taught constantly the great doctrine of justification by faith. They told men that faith was the one thing needful in order to obtain an interest in Christ's work for their souls; that before we believe, we are dead, and have no interest in Christ; and that the moment we do believe, we live, and have a plenary title to all Christ's benefits. Justification by virtue of church membership—justification without believing or trusting—were notions to which they gave no countenance. Everything, if you will believe, and the moment you believe; nothing, if you do not believe,—was the very marrow of their preaching.

Furthermore, the reformers of the last century taught constantly the inseparable connection between true faith and personal holiness. They never allowed for a moment that any church membership or religious profession was the least proof of a man being a true Christian if he lived an ungodly life. A true Christian, they maintained, must always be known by his fruits;
and these fruits must be plainly manifest and unmistakable in all the relations of life. "No fruits, no grace", was the unvarying tenor of their preaching.

Finally, the reformers of the last century taught constantly, as doctrines both equally true, God's eternal hatred against sin, and God's love towards sinners. They knew nothing of a "love lower than hell", and a heaven where holy and unholy are all at length to find admission. Both about heaven and hell they used the utmost plainness of speech. They never shrunk from declaring, in plainest terms, the certainty of God's judgment and of wrath to come, if men persisted in impenitence and unbelief; and yet they never ceased to magnify the riches of God's kindness and compassion, and to entreat all sinners to repent and turn to God before it was too late.

These were the doctrines by which they turned England upside down, made ploughmen and colliers weep till their dirty faces were seamed with tears, arrested the attention of peers and philosophers, stormed the strongholds of Satan, plucked thousands like brands from the burning, and altered the character of the age. Call them simple and elementary doctrines if you will. Say, if you please, that you see nothing grand, striking, new, peculiar about this list of truths.
But the fact is undeniable, that God blessed these truths to the reformation of England. What God has blessed it ill becomes man to despise.

Epsom Pioneer Campaign

by George Canty

EPSOM is in the "stockbroker belt"—and by the look of the shares index, stockbrokers will have to tighten their belts a bit. How could one advertise Elim services in a monied area? My last London series was in Canning Town, part of London's dockland, strongly Communist, and it was threatened I could have a strike on my hands if I had insisted on using the hall I wanted. Epsom let me have their best place cheaply and whenever I wanted, though the maximum unbooked period was only two weeks—12 days actually. The old-time crusades would take twelve days even to start, and then go on for weeks. I sat long hours pondering newspaper and handbill publicity.

Distribution, under Frank Lavender's care, showed his real flare for such things. He mustered 120 people to give out handbills, and had one lady tackling the vast job of addressing 5,000 envelopes on a typewriter. Posters, of course, are infradig in this area. Even outside the hall we showed only a couple of 10x15 bills.

If there is a worse moment than the first night, for a pioneer evangelist, it is the second night, and even worse the third night as you wait in the wings for the signal to walk on to the platform. Epsom folk are quiet. Dead silence from the hall; might mean nobody in at all. We began on Tuesday and went through ten nights non-stop before a break of one day. My most anxious nights were the two Sundays, when we began at 6.30 (not an after-church rally) and the extra day in the hall to be used regularly. Now that night—the only bad weather—all the bad weather in fact, was saved up for it. Wild, wet, windy.

But, thank God, there were more Epsom people present than supporters from other Elims, and obviously they were there because they wanted to see what was going to happen in the future.

Field Superintendent, Tom Walker welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Thom, young South African folk with Bible College and pastoral experience, whom the Lord had undoubtedly put there in Epsom for such a time, to take over leadership of Elim's newest church.

The Epsom background is not one with which I am too familiar—money, I mean. How conservative and calm would we have to be? I find it difficult to be either when I think of the gospel. Mark Drew, leading the services, had no inhibitions, and talked to everybody as if they were old buddies, telling them about his bargain price suit and borrowed shirt, not to mention the unmentionable inconveniences of his bachelor existence in his 300 year old cottage. So—away we went in full Elim style—banter, choruses, laughter, singing, and the gospel of Pentecost with repentance and faith.

It was just as effective and acceptable there as anywhere I've been, and brought healings, decisions for Christ, and a general revelation to the public that Pentecost had something new and powerful for Epsom.

I don't really think many held high hopes for the success of this campaign originally. Maybe it didn't matter. One could hardly start a church with a campaign likely to be noticed on less than £500. It cost £760 actually and Epsom people gave me £222 towards this. Considering that some campaigns in this country have cost over a quarter of a million pounds, we might say we did this one on a shoe string. Even twenty years ago Elim spent £700 on single campaigns—sometimes twice as much. Certainly not a penny was wasted. I have in mind the appeal now in progress for the Evangelistic Funds—I'm just letting you know!

"And now," said District Superintendent Frank Lavender, "there's REIGATE and LEATHERHEAD"

Well, we've got Geoff Cooper and his wonderful organ playing, and Frank Lavender's organising enthusiasm, and several available evangelists, and enormous prayer backing and the right message, and the power of God, and Mark Drew in his new suit, and now new people in Epsom to back things up elsewhere—all we want is some premises to preach in. We're sure your cash will come. So—we'll be there as soon as possible—or before.

No one wept for the preacher

By ALAN J. LOHMANN

surance firm and had decided to accept it.

That Sunday morning his ministry died—and no one wept.

What a tragedy! Yes, it was sad to lose this bright young minister. But like the other hundred or so people in that congregation, I had failed to see another great tragedy which culminated that Sunday morning.

For over a year I had sat under this man's ministry like a spiritual parasite. I failed to return the encouragement and spiritual support he so freely had offered to me.

Time and again we are reminded of what a pastor should be. He is called to serve and shepherd the flock. His calling is one of offering encouragement, exhortation, and love.

The Word of God is full of admonitions for pastors.

But what of the congregation? Are we simply to sit Sunday after Sunday and draw our spiritual life and encouragement from the man in the pulpit without ever considering his need?

Yes, friend, your pastor needs encouragement and uplifting too.

Even the apostle Paul needed the prayers and support of the churches. Writing to the Romans he said: "Now I beseech you, brethren . . . that ye strive together with me in your prayers to God for me" (Romans 15:30).

How often do you pray for your pastor? Does he know you care enough to stand behind him in prayer?

We read in Deuteronomy 3:28 that God commanded Moses to encourage and strengthen Joshua as Joshua was about to lead the Israelites into the Promised Land.

Paul wrote: "We beseech you, brethren, to know them that labor among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you; and to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake" (1 Thessalonians 5:12, 13).

Pray for your pastor. Encourage him and love him. Tell him how much you appreciate him.

May you never watch a ministry die—and realize that no one wept.

PENTECOSTAL EVANGEL

A Modern Jonah

IN FEBRUARY 1891, the whaler Star of the East launched two whaleboats. The men harpooned a whale which, in its last agonies, struck and shattered one of the boats, throwing sailors overboard. One of them was not recovered.

After the monster was hoisted alongside the ship, the crew spent a day and a night cutting it up. Imagine their surprise to find inside the creature their missing comrade, James Bartley, unconscious but alive!

They had trouble reviving Bartley and he was delirious for days. After three weeks, he recovered and recounted his harrowing experience—difficulty in breathing, sensation of being boiled alive, and losing consciousness. After treatment in London, his general health was found not seriously affected, but his skin was "tanned . . . by the action of the gastric juice," and he lost all hair.

Bartley died in Gloucester. His tombstone reads, "James Bartley, 1870-1909, a modern Jonah."

An Outline

God's Guest

"Lord, who shall dwell in Thy holy hill?" (Psalm 15:1).

THE true guest of God is—

1. Blameless in his Life (v.2); walk=work, conversation.
2. Charitable to his Neighbours (v.3), biting with the tongue, not the teeth!
3. Careful in his Friendships (v.4).
4. Trustworthy — his Word is his Bond (v.4).
5. Merciful in his Dealings (v.5).

The Bible

"The Bible says"

USUALLY, a text follows, but a text is not the Bible. If a text conveys the consensus of a truth concerning a matter, i.e. all that the Bible says, then the claim is correct. In our Lord's wilderness temptation, Satan said (in effect) "The Bible says", quoting a text, which Jesus countered with a further quotation. It is not what the Bible says about a particular subject, but what it says again and again. Let all sects and cults, together with all total abstainers (the writer is one), vegetarians, Sabbatarians, Calvinists, Arminians, Futurists, Historicists, Pre-, Post-, and A-millennialists take notice of this. We are all prone to emphasise those texts or Biblical aspects which most appeal to us and to disregard those which we find awkward or embarrassing to our scheme and understanding of things. Query—did the apostles believe in a "systematic theology"?

A Poem

My Shopping List (Revelation 3:18)

*THERE are items on my shopping list that I must have today,
Tho' they mean a sacrifice of all I do, and am, and have, and say.
Of items there are three my Friend has counselled me to buy;
And though my Friend's the salesman, I know He'd never try
To cheat or rob me, or sell me short at all. In fact
The goods to me are priceless for they cost His all in all.*

*The item He suggested first was gold tried in the fire;
Then raiment whiter than the snow my body to attire.
Then He suggested eye-salve, that He to me will sell,
So I'll be rich and fairly clad and see the truth as well.*

*He says if I will buy these things, He'll eat with me to-night,
A thought that to my glowing heart is one of great delight.*

GLEANINGS

A new song

by S. E. Petts

"He hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God" (Psalm 40:3).

IN EVERY revival there is singing. For a long time afterwards, gospel hymns and choruses are sung in home and factory, school and office. When life is at low ebb no one feels like singing, but when we are lifted up out of the horrible pit of sin, our feet set upon the Rock, the joy of our salvation cannot help but express itself in song. Where there is joy there is also singing.

At the birth of Christ, the angel proclaimed great joy to all the people and when Christ is born in our hearts by faith, then a song must go forth from us. When a believer cannot sing praises unto his God he is in serious danger (see Psalm 137:2-4). It is not enough to have a new song in our hearts; God has put it into our mouths for he wants us to share it with others. When we thus cherish the new song, our joy will remain. We shall sing it before the eternal throne. John declares it is the song of the redeemed in glory. Such singing gives glory to God.

Multiplied pardon

Isaiah 55:7

THE dramatic announcement by President Ford that he had granted Richard Nixon a full, free and absolute pardon, was given banner headlines in many newspapers. I understand that the decision to lift the threat of prosecution against the ex-President startled America and stirred up a whole maze of legal complications. Two days later it was learned that President Ford was considering granting a blanket pardon for ALL people involved in the Watergate conspiracy. This possibility aroused public opinion and protest to such an extent that letters and telegrams arrived at the White House at the rate of 25,000 per day. Six out of seven of these communications strongly denounced Mr. Ford's pardon.

Now what of this pardon? On the one hand, a member of the House Judiciary Committee stated, "President Ford has made a tremendous mistake. It is not for him to determine whether Nixon has suffered enough". On the other hand, Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller insisted that, "It was an act of conscience, compassion and courage". The essence of the criticism of the President's action seemed to be that, if a blanket pardon were given to the Watergate offenders, it would not only have to include the late President's advisers and henchmen, who still awaited trial, but all those already convicted and serving prison sentences. This would of course entail pardoning the men who actually made the break-in, and have been convicted of burglary. It was said by some, that this would mean granting a pardon for such offences as theft, lying, perjury, dishonesty, deceit and the like, and the question was then asked, if this were done in the Watergate case how could the keeping of others in prison for similar offences be justified? As one Senator said, "The granting of a blanket pardon in the Watergate case could bring about the total collapse of justice".

I turn gladly from further discussion of the rights and wrongs of this complicated business, to the very basis of our Christian faith: the indisputable fact that we have a pardoning God, who far surpasses all presidents in the scope of His forgiveness. In the Old Testament we are confronted with this scope of God's pardoning grace. In Isaiah 55:7 we read, "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon."

The word "abundantly" used here actually means "multiply to", as the Amplified Bible has it. We can say, "for He will multiply to him His abundant pardon." Such a lavish pardon makes our hearts overflow with praise and gratitude. It is in the New Testament that the theme of pardon and God's ability to give a just pardon is seen in all its glory. If we turn to Romans 3:19-28 we find a masterly treatise on the theme of justification by faith. No words of mine can develop this doctrine more clearly, but the contrast to, and the superiority of, God's pardon, to that of an earthly ruler, brings such comfort to my heart. President Ford may be praised for his compassion and magnanimity, but God's pardoning act is perfect and just because He has provided a substitute for all who have broken His laws. Our Lord Jesus has paid the penalty for our transgressions, He took our place and died for us; as we by faith accept His sacrifice, God grants us a full and free pardon. He remains a just and holy God, though He justifies the ungodly, and we can cry aloud in triumph with the great apostle Paul, "Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect, for it is God that justifieth?" (Romans 8:33).

The noted divine Dr. Innes was one day called to the sick-bed of a well-known infidel, who in his sickness had turned from his infidelity and professed to be relying on the mercy of God. "But" said the sufferer, "as my weakness increased I began to think is not God a just Being, as well as merciful? Now what reason have I to think He will treat me with mercy and not with justice? And if I am treated with justice," he added with much emotion "where am I?"

THE MASTER'S FACE

*I had walked life's way with an easy tread,
Had followed where comforts and pleasures led,
Until one day, in a quiet place,
I met the Master face to face.*

*With station and rank and wealth for my goal,
Much thought for my body, but none for
I had entered to win in life's big race my soul!
When I met the Master face to face.*

*I met Him and knew Him and blushed to see
That His eyes full of sorrow were fixed on me,
And I faltered and fell at His feet that day,
While my castles melted and vanished away.*

*Melted and vanished, and in their place,
Naught else did I see but the Master's face;
And I cried aloud, "Oh make me meet
To follow the steps of Thy wounded feet!"*

*My thought is now for the souls of men,
I have lost my life to find it again,
E'er since that day in a quiet place
When I met the Master, face to face.*

Only God had time to make an original

"Don't let the world around you squeeze you into its own mould" (Hebrews 12:2, Phillips)

by David Ayling, Pastor of the Ulster Temple, Belfast

HAVE YOU ever realised that Satan is the first plagiarist? Everything that he does is simply trying to reproduce the originals that God creates. He doesn't seem to have a new idea in his head. The temptations that he besets us with are the very ones that he used in the Garden with our first parents, though, no doubt, you have felt under temptation, that no one has ever undergone the fires which you have endured. If you had the courage to ask those older than yourself, you would soon find that they were far more sympathetic to your testing than you would ever have guessed, because they have come the same way. Satan once visited them, with probably the same problem as you now face, although he would like you to feel that you alone are receiving his undivided attention. This is not only true about temptation, but also about behaviour. Satan has not got any original ideas about what he wants to do with that life of yours. He wants you to conform to the general pattern of modern youth that is easiest for him to control. That is one reason why so many young folk dress alike. . . look alike. . . go for the same music at the same time. Some one in Carnaby Street will dictate that boots are in and flares are out, and a whole generation jumps into line, and the cash tills ring once again in a million boutiques; they are the "puppets on a string"! A song only has to be announced as No. 1 for the week and its sales, if not settled before, are assured afterwards. Surely you remember the recent court case that showed the manipulation that goes on in the pop chart world. There seems no limit to what some people are prepared to do just to get records into that top twenty. But before a thousand young people reach for their fashion boots and L.P's to hurl at me, let me get my plea in.

God has a personal plan for your life. Your Creator is the only one who can take the time and thought to plan a perfect design for you. Make sure you find it. Do not waste your youth being an imperfect second rate copy of Freddy Jones the drummer or Sally Smith the singer, or even less trying to ape Eldin Corsie or David Ayling, when God has got a brand new "You" which he wants you to find.

He reckons that it is worth a life-time's work to produce that masterpiece which his creative genius has seen in you. Surely it is worth your prayerful dedication and seeking to become that original which God wants to shape you to. Copies are two a penny, it is only originals that grow in value eternally.

Monday, October 14th

Esther 3:1-15

"But Mordecai bowed not, nor did him reverence." (v.2).

HE refuses to acknowledge the haughty Haman and give to him the worship that is due to God alone. In this way he shows his faith and his reverence for God. If it is of any value, it is vitally necessary for our faith to affect our daily living. Mordecai might never have been appointed to the place of honour had he yielded to Haman.

There is no reward for those who are mere men pleasers, but to the faithful is promised a crown.

Tuesday, October 15th

Esther 4:1-17

"And who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this" (v.14).

THE sentence of death had been passed upon the Jews, but Mordecai pleads with Queen Esther for her assistance. Realising her own position weak and helpless, she calls a time of fasting and invites Mordecai and his fellow-Jews to join with her.

Could it be that God is still looking for those who will set themselves to pray and fast for such times as these? The early Church acknowledged the need (Acts 13:3). Do we?

Wednesday, October 16th

Esther 5:1-14

"What wilt thou, Queen Esther? and what is thy request? it shall be given thee to the half of the kingdom." (v.3).

HALLELUJAH— what an unexpected turn of events! The king promises more than she asks or thinks. (Ephesians 3:20) Prayer and fasting change things and bring results. Our King has promised "If ye shall ask anything in My Name, I will do it." He keeps His promises; let's ask Him today, even for the seemingly impossible.

Thursday, October 17th

Esther 6:1-14

"Then the King said to Haman, Make haste, and take the apparel and the horse . . . and do even so to Mordecai the Jew". (v.10).

THIS must have been a humbling moment for the haughty Haman. The man for whom he had prepared the gallows was to be honoured more than himself. God has His own way of comforting them that mourn in Zion. He gives the oil of joy for mourning, and the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness (Isaiah 61:

3:) Here the haughty in heart is made low while "he that humbleth himself is exalted" (Luke 18:14). Surely a lesson we must always remember.

Friday, October 18th

Esther 7:1-10, 8:1-8

"Then the King held out the golden sceptre towards Esther." (8:1).

SHE again finds favour and pleads for mercy for her people. She proves her worth as an interverner. Her request is answered, victory is hers and her people are delivered.

We are reminded of one greater than Esther, who on the cross of Calvary accomplished victory on our behalf. Because of His sacrifice, intercession and victory over death, He is now Prince and Saviour. His Name is glorious.

Saturday, October 19th

Esther 8:9-17; 9:1-15

"For Mordecai was great in the King's house" (v.4).

WHO would have thought that in one week, the man who had erected a gallows on which to hang this Jew, (who refused to bow to him) would himself, together with his ten sons, be hanged? Mordecai now wears on his finger the ring of authority worn by Haman.

It doesn't take God very long to turn our tears and wailing into songs of gladness. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matthew 6:33).

Sunday, October 20th

Esther 9:16-32; 10:1-3

"The Jews rested from their enemies, and the month . . . was turned . . . from sorrow to joy . . ." (v.22).

MORDECAI and his fellow-Jews had been vindicated. Their enemies had been destroyed, and a day set apart for "feasting and gladness" (v.18).

"And the Jews undertook to do as they had begun" (v.23). A day has been set apart for worship and thanksgiving. "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy" (Exodus 20:8). In the light of our Saviour's victory at Calvary on our behalf, how can we make excuses for not remembering Him on the Lord's Day, as well as every other day? "This is the day the Lord hath made" (Psalm 118:24).

I showed him," said Mr. Innes "that this was the very difficulty the gospel was sent to remove, as it showed how mercy could be exercised in perfect consistency with the strictest demands of justice, through the atonement made by Jesus Christ."

Guilty I stand before Thy face,

On me I feel Thy wrath abide,

'Tis just the sentence should take place;

'Tis just—but O Thy Son hath died!

Full life—or empty

by Adrian Hawkes,
Pastor of our Islington and Palmers Green Churches

All evening, squashed in a corner of a local youth dive, my head under the extension speaker of the juke box, my ears had become part of the throbbing music that thundered out. There wasn't much chance of my moving, even if I wanted to. A fellow looked my way and yelled above the noise, "What on earth are you doing here?". His surprise at my presence was attributable to my clothes. I had a suit on; the rest had gear. I'd come straight from my job which required a suit. I took a deep breath and said, "I've come to talk to people about Jesus Christ". My even more surprised friend gaped at me incredulously and sort of exploded: "What ya want to do that for?". We don't want religion here. We're having a great time. Why do you want to bring boring things in like that?" He clearly regarded me as an anti-enjoyment crank. How could I get it across that being a Christian is a liberation, bringing a new kind of good time? I asked him a question: "As you are having such a great time, tell me about it". Again he looked at me as though I was from another planet. To help him, I said, "Tell me what do you do on a Monday?". "I come down 'ere", was the reply. "And Tuesday?" "Down 'ere", he said. "Wednesday?" "Down 'ere?" "It's Thursday tonight", I went on, "and you are obviously down here tonight. So what do you do on Friday?" "Friday is pay day, so I go down the pub with the lads and Saturday we go to town. Sundays I'm usually broke so we all hang around on the corner. Monday I cadge some money and come back down 'ere!".

I replied, "Is that really what the great human race was made for? Christianity is about bringing a fuller life. Maybe your life isn't that boring, but I am sure that many people are robbing themselves of the very best in life. They have got stuck in a routine, a job, a situation which to them has become life. Religion, many people think, is boring, old hat. This must be so or more of our churches would be fuller. I know that Jesus Christ is not boring, nor is He old hat. He said that the reason that He came to earth was to make sure that he could pass on to people abundant life, life that is really full, life that is not humdrum, life that is not boring or ordinary, life that has purpose and meaning. To have life we need to know Him, for He is life. Although somehow we seem to have another impression today, joy, peace, happiness are all God's ideas and we can have all these when we belong to Jesus Christ. If any man is in Christ, belongs to Christ, is captivated and controlled by Christ, then he is open to a new life. He is spiritually alive and moves on a higher level of experience. 'Wouldn't you like that sort of full life?'".

My friend in the coffee bar, still looking at me as though I was funny peculiar, breathed out and said, "Well, I think you are queer, but I think that you've got something I haven't".

"The Bishop of Woolwich (Dr. Robinson) sees a parallel between himself and Martin Luther, whose 95 Theses were also caught up in a publicity explosion. I wish him well. He has now only to be unfrocked, tried and condemned for high treason, to write four of the world's classics, to translate the Bible and compose a hymn book, and to write some 100 folio volumes which 400 years hence will concern scholars all over the world, and to become the spiritual father of some thousands of millions of Christians—to qualify as the Martin Luther of a New Reformation".

THERE was considerable excitement in St. George's Road the other day when one of our committee meetings was delayed for a few minutes owing to the fact that a small car, parked on the other side of the road from the office, burst into flames. One member of the committee turned right in order to stop traffic coming from that direction; another member left, to stop the traffic coming from that way. Someone phoned for the Fire Brigade, and watching at a safe distance, we were expecting that there would be an explosion at any time as smoke and flames poured from the vehicle. When we stopped and thought about it of course, we realised that there were several Fire extinguishers in the offices. None of us however had the presence of mind to tackle the blaze, not because of cowardice but rather out of caution.

When the Fire Brigade arrived, they soon got the blaze under control, and much to everyone's relief there was no explosion at all, although it seemed to us that the fire was getting very near to the petrol tank. What we had done was to leave it to the professionals.

Many of us learn all sorts of useful things during our lives, for example, a good number of years ago I learned life-saving, which fortunately I have never had to put into practice. I do remember once even having to put Judo practice into operation at an induction service, but that's another story.

There are some things that are best left to experts; we do not think that it would be a good idea for ordinary citizens to tackle armed criminals; such matters are best left to the members of the police who are trained in such matters. On the other hand however, there are many other fields in which we all too readily shirk our responsibility, under the misapprehension that we are not qualified, either to express an opinion or take any action.

There is no better example than the field of evangelism. We readily admit that Christ has given to His Church evangelists (Acts 21:8, Ephesians 4:11; and Timothy 4:5). The task however of proclaiming the good news is incumbent upon every Christian. Detailed study of men and movements which have been effective for God over many centuries, has convinced us that the success of any movement depends upon more than any individual can accomplish; it depends upon the degree of the involvement of all members. In this month of Evangelism let us resolve, ministers and members alike, to not only support those that the Lord has especially called and equipped as Evangelists, but let each of us seek to speak to someone and share with them the good things that God has done for us.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

Vacation Venture 1974

Report by Janet Ayers

Vacation Venture group Jersey '74 young people and workers. Pastors Lambert, Vidamour and Wallace are in the picture.

Welcome to Treasure Island

SO ANNOUNCED the first poster we saw as we stepped off the boat at St. Helier, Jersey. Vacation Venture was here again, and we had arrived safely on terra firma with a sense of expectancy in our hearts that indeed the Lord was going to open to us His good treasure. The church minibus arrived and soon we were heading for the Hostel aptly named Bethel, which would be our home for the next two weeks. They came from far away bonnie Scotland, nearby Guernsey and many places between the two, to join the local young folk for V.V.'74.

A team of ladies from the church set to work to provide excellent meals for their suddenly enlarged family, with mammoth appetites. But the ladies certainly excelled and we were served with three 3-course meals a day, plus mid-morning coffee and biscuits, which were served with a smile and a happy Christian spirit for no extra charge!

This year we had three ministers leading Vacation Venture, Pastors L. Lambert, B. Vidamour and G. Wallace, affectionately known as "The men from the Ministry". They worked together to co-ordinate the daily activities as well as sharing the ministry in the evening crusade meetings, which brought blessing to all who attended.

The first Saturday night meeting was an informal get-together, but we knew God's blessing upon us right away. How thrilling it was to stand before Him in spontaneous praise and worship. Victory comes through the gates of praise, and those gates were opened that very first night.

Sunday brought the official commencement of the VV Crusade. Sunday schools at 9.30 a.m., communion at 11, open air at 6 pm, followed by a marathon march of witness to the church for the gospel service at 7. (For those not used to long walks the march was hard work!).

The newly formed VV choir (under the leadership of Reg Ayers from Yeovil) sang twice each night, plus singing items from various Venturers and local church members — all of which brought blessing through their messages in song.

Monday—Thursday each week from 9.45 pm to 11 the gospel coffee bar at The Cellar was in full swing. Every night many young folk came in and heard the gospel through personal witnessing and the 'gospel spot'. One night about twenty French young people came in, so Pastor Vidamour rose to the occasion and interpreted the gospel message for them — we think they understood. At 8.30 each morning we had a Prayer Meeting in the Little Chapel at Bethel. Breakfast was followed by the morning session, one of the Pastors taking a different topic each morning which produced lively and helpful discussions. This was followed by choir practice, coffee and biscuits; we then split up, and while some did door to door work, others went to housing estates for open air Sunshine Corner meetings. On one of these occasions someone decided they didn't like the look of us and just as we were about to start they opened every window in their house and put the record player on full blast. We couldn't hear ourselves think, but then from the next door neighbour's house appeared a burly eighteen stone lady who pounded heavily on their door, and sure enough, their music ceased.

Friday night was barbeque night. One church family kindly invited us to their lovely home and about 100 of us had a super barbeque in their back garden. It was a real thrill to hear one teenager girl give her testimony who was saved only two days earlier at the Crusade, who was contacted through the coffee bar.

We thank God that quite a few young folk from the coffee bar also came to the meetings at the Church, and the vast majority of those who made decisions for Christ were young people in their teens and twenties. It was also thrilling to see those who had accepted Christ at the coffee bar come on to the church.

Afternoons each day were free, so during the first week we all headed for the nearest beach as the weather was glorious. During the second week we visited places of interest, the German Underground Hospital, Jersey Potteries and a tour of the Island. The weather had changed from the sublime to the ridiculous, with gale force winds and rain; but we didn't mind as the fellowship was so good. There was a really tremendous family spirit the whole time, every person fitted in perfectly, and our hearts were knit together in love.

Yes, we had come to treasure island; God had opened to us His good treasure, and we know that "we have this treasure in earthen vessels that the excellency of the power may be of God and not of us". With all our heart we say —

"To God be the glory, great things he has done".

WISBECH

Pastor: John P. Barton

SEPTEMBER 15th marked the beginning of the fifth week in the life of the Elim Church, Wisbech. During the first four weeks we have seen God begin to unite us as a fellowship; the communion services grow more precious each week, and we are now starting to get new people coming, both the saved and the unsaved.

The average adult attendances have been as follows: ten Sunday morning, fifteen Sunday evening and twelve at the Bible study/prayer meeting; on the evening of September 15th we had nineteen adults. Praise the Lord! Please pray for this new work.

Starting October 12th we shall be having a Saturday rally once every four weeks at Gordon Fendick School. Why not join us when you can?

J.P. BARTON

ROCHESTER

Pastor: R. Williams

THURSDAY September 12th will long be remembered by the members and friends of our church. An informal evening was held in which we said farewell to three young couples. One couple were going to the Elim Bible College. The second couple were to go to the London Bible College. The others were having to move to Leatherhead as the husband's firm were moving there from London.

Another of our young ladies, who is a school-teacher, is going to Birmingham University to study for a further degree.

After refreshments, each one gave a testimony, and a small presentation was made as we assured them of our continuing prayer for them all.

Dead or Alive?

DR. LORIMER once asked a man who was a Christian why he did not unite in fellowship with some group of believers, some church. The reply was that the dying thief did not join any church, and he was saved. "Well", said Dr. Lorimer, "if you don't belong to any church or meet with any Christians regularly, you do support missions, I presume". "No", the man replied. "After all, the dying thief did not support missions, but he was saved, wasn't he?" "Yes, he was saved", the preacher said. "But remember, he was a dying thief. You seem to be a living one".

Jubilee Youth Rally

WESTMINSTER CENTRAL HALL 1974

IT WAS a dismal, wet day in London on Saturday 21st and we wondered what effect it would have on the Youth Rally planned for afternoon and evening. Would the young people come and in what numbers? What kind of a programme had Eldin Corsie the Youth Director and the Youth Committee arranged that would hold the attention and satisfy the Youth of today? One need not have entertained any doubts about the ability of our Youth Leaders, or the talents of the youth, or the inspiration of the preachers.

From the first moment when we arrived in the rain, and saw the young people thronging the street outside that magnificent hall, passing by the book-stalls with eager crowds, and as we watched the hall filling with youth for the afternoon meeting, we were convinced that the meetings to follow were to be an ample reward for all the hard work involved.

I write as one of the older generation who has known the revival enthusiasm of former days among the Crusaders when they were first formed; yet I pray for the younger generation of today, who are passing through a world so different in many ways from the world of my youth. One sometimes wonders how they are going to carry on the great work commenced in yester-year, yet one need have no fears. The dress may be different, the choruses and style of music different, but the enthusiasm, dedication and love for the Lord has not changed.

It was a tonic to see the Bristol City Temple, New Creation young people on the platform, and to hear their thrilling singing. The singing of the soloists, the recitations of Scripture, and the musicians were so good and brought such a blessing that one felt the world has nothing on these talented, consecrated Christian youth.

We liked the freedom expressed in the leadership of the meetings, the opportunity given to freely worship; no hidebound formal control, but an evident desire to let the Holy Spirit do the leading. The choruses were a delight, modern in style, but all based on Scripture, having worship and praise of the Lord as their theme; they could not fail to lift the heart and induce a spirit of worship, and they did just that. The preachers were under an evident divine anointing, and were listened to with rapt attention.

In all my long years in Elim, I can say that I cannot recall any youth rallies I have enjoyed more. I came away thanking God for the Elim Youth Movement in all its parts, for the Director and Committee and for all who labour among our children; they are doing a great work and we shall see, in the days to come, the youth of our land turned from the evils of this generation to the ways of the Lord.

It was a delightful moment in the programme to witness the respect and honour which the Youth Director, Eldin Corsie and the Youth Committee, paid to Pastor D.B. Gray, Elim's first Youth Director. We were delighted that he was able to come and present the prizes to three splendid Youth Teams from Liverpool, Rotherham and Brecon who fought out the final of the Scripture Quizz that afternoon. Rotherham winning by one mark! Mr. Gray has, over the years since the first meetings in the Royal Albert Hall in the 20s, rendered to the Lord and to Elim, service that is unsurpassed for faithfulness, consecration and continuity. Mr. Gray: a very big thank you.

Thoughts on the book of Revelation

The seven churches Chapters 2 and 3

by Charles J. E. Kingston

THE letters to the seven churches of Asia comprise the second section of the Book: "the things which are".

Seven is the perfect number.

These churches are representative of the complete Church.

Thus the seven epistles reveal the spiritual condition of these churches as they were when John wrote to them; they are typical of the spiritual condition of churches in any age since then; they are also so arranged that they give a prophetic picture of the whole Church age, with its ebb and flow of activity, until the final Loadicean period ends with Christ's second advent.

As one writer puts it: "It seems strange to me that some who deny any prophetic significance to these letters as regards Church history, yet think they find Church history everywhere under the seals, vials, trumpets. I think, if Church history is to be found anywhere in the Revelation, it will be found here in this portion that plainly deals with the churches". G.R. Crow: The Lamb and the Book.

The word "church" does not appear again after Revelation 3 (except once in the last chapter) (Revelation 22:16) which would argue that the Church, as a whole, disappears from the worldly scene at the end of chapter three.

Revelation is meant to be read.

A blessing is promised to those who read or hear. Ordinary readers, unversed in the events of secular history, would never imagine that God required of them a profound study of history before His last book could be understood. Since Scripture must be its own interpreter, we propose to compare Scripture with Scripture to seek the meaning of the world-shaking events recorded in this Book.

The message of the seven epistles.

Intended, as they are, for the guidance, warning and encouragement of Christians during the whole

Church age, each letter contains an individual description of Christ; an assertion of His complete knowledge of the spiritual state of the church and either His praise or blame; a reference to His coming to reward or judge; a command to hear what the Spirit is saying to the churches; finally, a promise to those who overcome.

The letter to Ephesus. (Revelation 2:1-7).

Founded by Paul, it was a working church. Sadly, its first love was waning, its light was in danger of going out. A church without love must perish. If no repentance restores that first love, Christ will come in judgment to remove its candlestick. Prophetically, the Ephesian period dates from Pentecost to about A.D.100.

The letter to Smyrna. (Revelation 2:8-11).

Smyrna, poor but persecuted, was one of the two churches of which Christ found nothing to blame. Its name means "myrrh", used in embalming the dead (John 19:39). Fittingly, for persecution meant death; Christ reminds that He is alive from the dead and offers the crown of life to the overcomer. Prophetically, the Smyrna period speaks of those pagan persecutions which only ceased on Constantine's conversion to Christianity.

The letter to Pergamos. (Revelation 2:12-17).

This city was the centre of Emperor-worship and Christians of that day had to conform to the State religion or die. The "doctrine of Balaam" led to Christians mixing with the "world" of that day.

The name, Pergamos, contains the idea of marriage and prophetically speaks of that alliance of the Church with the ungodly world when Rome, under Constantine, stopped her persecutions of the Christians. Satan, having failed to destroy the Church through persecution, now began to corrupt her from within. One result of this marriage was the introduction of many pagan practices into the ritual of the Church, such as the worship of the virgin Mary in A.D.381.

The letter to Thyatira. (Revelation 2:18-29).

A busy commercial city, Thyatira had, among others, a guild of dyers to which Lydia, converted at Philippi, probably belonged (Acts 16:14, 15). A working church, showing love and faith, yet faced with spiritual danger from a false prophetess, claiming to lead her followers into greater depths, Thyatira's sin was the tolerance of evil in her midst. Prophetically, this period of Church history speaks of the moral darkness of the dark ages, brought about by the corruptions of the Roman Catholic hierarchy.

The letter to the Sardis. (Revelation 3:1-6).

Sardis, capital of Lydia, was celebrated for its wealth and voluptuousness. The church was dead. Some, barely alive, were "ready to die" and were urged to hold fast and repent. Christ promises the overcomer that He will not "blot out his name out of the book of life". Prophetically, this period of Church history would correspond with the deadness of the Roman Church prior to the Reformation.

The letter to Philadelphia. (Revelation 3:7-13).

The name means "brotherly love". This church was blameless; they had kept Christ's word and He promised to keep them from the hour of trial. He opens the door to service and invites us to pass through it, our little strength made strong in His. As we love each other He promises the conversion of those who before were foes. (Revelation 3:9).

Prophetically, to this time belong the revivals, missionary enterprises, the Pentecostal outpourings of the Holy Spirit and the renewal of interest in the second coming of the Lord Jesus which have marked the period of Church history since the Reformation. To the Philadelphian church are made two definite promises: "Behold I come quickly" and "I will keep thee from (ek, out of) the hour of temptation (trial) which shall come upon all the world (that is, the habitable earth)".

Alford notes: "The time imported is that prophesied of in Matthew 24:21, namely, the great time of trouble which shall be before the Lord's second coming".

The letter to Laodicea. (Revelation 3:14-22).

The spiritual state of the Laodicean church was neither on fire for Christ, nor completely without any spark of life, but rather lukewarm from mixed motives. One lukewarm Christian can do untold harm to a church; the pouring of tepid water into boiling will take the whole lot off the boil. Christ's threat of being spued out of His mouth refers to His action in the Judgment Day and corresponds to His "I never knew you, depart from me" of (Matthew 7:21-23).

But there is still hope. Christ waits outside the door and will enter any one's life who will open to Him. (Revelation 3:20).

Prophetically, the Laodicean period pictures the last days of Church history before Christ comes again. It is noteworthy that the overcomer in this time of spiritual lukewarmness will be granted the privilege to sit with Christ on His throne; chapter four introduces us to the throne in Heaven.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

28. Marah (Exodus 15:23)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

WHAT a welcome sight the waters of Marah must have been to the hot, tired, thirsty people. They had followed where the Lord had led them by the pillar of cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night, and this had led them directly to Marah. When they had tasted the water; they found it to be undrinkable; yet the Lord had led them, they had trusted Him. Their trust did not extend to this situation, and the people murmured against the Lord.

The Lord, of course, had not made a mistake, He had a purpose in bringing the people to Marah. First the Lord healed the waters in response to Moses' prayer, then He used the incident to reveal Himself in a new way as JEHOVAH-ROPHICA—the Lord Who gives health. The Lord had shown His destructive power in Egypt, but at Marah He revealed His authority in giving healing. He then declared if Israel obeyed His voice they would not be destroyed but would, instead, know His power to give health.

This incident is one reason why we teach Divine Healing. "JEHOVAH" means the unchanging One who is forever the same; "Ropheca speaks of Him giving physical health to men and women. He is, then, the unchanging One Who gives health, and what He has revealed Himself to be He will be for ever; He is still, therefore, the Lord Who heals and restores. The Word declares that the Lord Jesus took our infirmities and bare our sicknesses (Matthew 8: 16-17); and that He is "the same yesterday, and today, and forever" (Hebrews 13:8); so He will still give healing to us today.

Ordination Service

On Saturday October 26th thirteen ministers are due to be ordained at a special service to be held in the Elim Pentecostal Church, Clapham, London.

Our photograph shows eight of these. Left to right: D.C. Crawford, J.C. Ritter, J. Burgan, M.A. Drew, D.B. Tinnion, P.N. MacInnes, D.G. Blake and K. Lannon. Also to be ordained but not in photograph, R.A. Holdstock, R. Lynn, W. McCandless, D.G. Kilpatrick and R. Nugent.

GLEANINGS

Death Destroyed

by S. E. Petts

"That through death He might destroy him who had the power of death, that is the devil". (Hebrews 2:14).

WHEN a criminal has been made to suffer for his wrong-doing he has been known to betray his accomplices. His object has been to make as many as are guilty with him to share his fall and his punishment. This is just how the devil works. He sinned and fell from his high estate and knew that his end would be the lake of fire and exclusion from the presence of God. So he determined to drag as many down with him as possible.

As sinners we are in the same condemnation.

Through Adam's sin, the devil brought death, for this was a power granted to him. But Jesus came to destroy the works of the devil. So Jesus died. Wood that is burned to ashes cannot be burned again. By accepting Christ's death on our behalf we are crucified with Christ; thus having died once, we cannot die again. By dying on the cross, Christ destroyed death for all believers. The devil cannot make us share his final doom, for Christ not only destroyed the devil's power over death, but rose again to make His resurrection life available to us. Thus we sing: "death no longer has dominion, Satan's power is broken down".

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

AT Portland Bill on the Dorset coast there is what is known as "the Pulpit Rock". The Independents used these particular rocks for their open air meetings in the days when they were banished by the Established Church. One day I was urged by an experienced local (Pastor Tom Stevens of our Halifax church!) to climb right up on to the Pulpit Rock. The only way that I could get on to it was by scaling a narrow ledge which acted as a kind of bridge between me and the ferocious waves below. There on top, with the wind swirling and the sea roaring, I was glad of the assurance that this rock—tested through the years—was absolutely unshakeable.

In the Christian faith there are some unshakeables. On these we can set our feet and anchor our faith. For instance, the Word of God is an unshakeable truth. When we come to know and love the Lord, we become assured of the fact that He always keeps His Word. The presence of our Saviour is another unshakeable. Jesus is alive and well. He is here today to help us in temptation, sorrows, and "when defeat seems strangely near". We know that we can depend on Him. The Church of Jesus Christ is an unshakeable, too. Against the Church, said Jesus, that body of true born-again believers, "the gates of hell shall not prevail" (Matthew 16:18). Our economic systems change, our educational programmes go, our governments decline, but the Church continues.

All these unshakeables are based on Christ and find their centre in Him. He is the Rock, and our feet are set on Him from the moment we become children of God. "He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and SET MY FEET UPON A ROCK, and established my goings" (Psalm 40:2).

Dr. Cunningham

An adult layman, ordained to the ministry, will preside over the 'normal' Christian community of the future. The ministry will be an exercise of leisure rather than a job. The 'diaconia' will supplant the parish as the fundamental institutional unit in the church. The periodic meeting of friends will replace the Sunday assembly of strangers. A self-supporting dentist, factory worker, professor, rather than a church-employed scribe or functionary, will preside over the meeting. The minister will be a man mature in Christian wisdom through his lifelong participation in an intimate liturgy, rather than a seminary graduate formed professionally through 'theological' formulae.

I foresee the face-to-face meeting of families round a table, rather than the impersonal attendance of a crowd round an altar. Celebration will sanctify the dining-room, rather than consecrated buildings the ceremony. . . .

IT'S NOT the content of this passage that is, in the first place, striking. What Illich is anticipating has been the vision and practice of many a Nonconformist through the centuries. Rather, of prime significance is just who it is who's putting across this piece of ecclesiastical radicalism. For the author is not some axe-grinding Protestant layman, but one of the most distinguished Roman Catholic thinkers in the world: a former parish priest in New York City, one-time Rector of the Catholic University of Puerto Rico, and co-founder of the Centre for Inter-Cultural Documentation in Cuernavaca. And Illich is representative of the revolution now going on in western Christendom — whose symptoms include neo-pentecostalism and the explosive growth of the house-meeting. What we are seeing is an assault on institutionalism in the churches, a revolutionary undermining of clericalism, priesthood and the old rigid ecclesiastical hierarchies: an assault that is affecting even the iron-bound sacerdotalism, the episcopal bureaucracy, of the most hierarchical church in the world, the Roman Catholic.

But where do we, the Old Pentecostals, find ourselves in all this? On every hand, the ground we've fought for is being conceded. The principles of the local church as a body of Spirit-baptised and filled

by Dr. Valentine

believers, ministering to each other and to the world, not only through the Word but also through the Gifts and Ministries of the Spirit, are being welcomed all over the place. We now find Christians who once were locked into a view of Christianity that held hierarchies, priests, cathedrals, and all the rest, to be vital necessities, going in for de-structured, de-centralised gatherings in homes, where the ministry is provided by the Holy Spirit's men, irrespective of whether they be lay or cleric. Even the more cautious denominations are ordaining worker-priests or lay deacons, to work and live out in the community that's alienated from Christ. The old right-wing, as it were, is rapidly stepping leftwards. And we, who started amidst a rhetoric against 'one-man ministry', who were led and established more by men from the mine, the factory, and the Co-op counter, than by men from theological college and denominational pulpit, we who have always asserted the priesthood of all believers, where do we stand? Isn't it true that, ironically, we tend to be moving in the opposite direction? In fact we who began with laymen and 'worker-priests', who once met (willy-nilly to be sure) in houses, store-front rooms and hired halls, have over the years gradually become more churchy, more professional, more clerically hierarchical.

Our worst possible reaction to the revolution now in full spate all about us, is to be haughtily dismissive ('We knew all this kind of thing, years ago. . .'), or to be actively hostile: disgruntled as at upstarts stealing our pitch. The serious question now facing all pentecostal denominations is whether or not our systems, our arrangements, really reflect as honestly as possible our present understanding of the New Testament teaching about the church. In other words, are we really as pentecostal as our labels claim we are? Would the newcomer, open to the New Testament, find in our church order the sort of thing we're led to believe was current and normal in the early church?

One could do worse than begin by scrutinising the role of 'layman' in our communities. Where others are now, widely, bringing the 'laymen' back into the ministry, seeking to blur that old distinction between clergy and laity, we have developed a distinct pastor-layman mentality. In our recruiting and training of pastors, in the activities we assign to pastor and congregation as the proper sphere of each, in the generally current expectations we have about what each should do, we assume a fairly sharp gap between clergy and laity. Yet there's no such division in the New Testament. There, people with ministry gifts sometimes work at a secular occupation for their living, sometimes they 'live of the gospel'. There are certainly distinct kinds of ministry, and there are certainly leaders, 'chief men among the brethren'. But there is no clear pastor-congregation split, such as we commonly endorse: no great gulf fixed between the minister and the ministered-unto. Everybody, of course, will not be a leader - not all are apostles, not all are pastors and teachers - nor will everybody have the more prominent gifts. But the expectation is that everybody will exercise some gift in the worship, perform some function in the local church. 'When you meet for worship, each of you contributes', as the NEB puts 1 Corinthians 14:26. And so apostles, prophets, evangelists and pastors and teachers are given in order 'to equip God's people for work in His service', or 'for the work of the ministry' (Ephesians 4:11). Ideally, all the congregation is being trained for the ministry of the church: all the people are to be involved, with the more prominent ministers, 'in the ministry'.

The commonest NT word for ministry - it's the one Illich himself uses - is diaconia. It means simply 'service', and it's what apostles and prophets and teachers and elders do - it doesn't just indicate the activities we associate with the group we have distinguished as 'deacons'. Acts 6, where the order of 'deacons' is established, is very revealing. The word for what the 'deacons' are to do is diaconia (they will serve the tables, will be deacons of tables). But diaconia is also the word for what the apostles want to do (they will serve the Word, and are to be in fact deacons of the Word). The picture is one, in short, of service of different kinds, participated in by all - the whole, united effort making up the ministry of the church. It's clearly not a picture that suggests a hierarchy (apostles at the top, then pastors/elders, then deacons, then, at the bottom, the mass of the congregation), nor one that supports a rigidly demarcated ministerial class.

Of course, our present situation isn't uniformly bleak. Our people are frequently involved in the work of the ministry. Indeed, without 'laymen' our churches would instantly collapse - there would be no youth work, no Sunday Schools, no door-to-door evangelism or hospital ward-services, and so on and on. And even in the most rigid of 'one-man-ministry' churches there is frequently to be found a Brother So-and-So who has 'got a good Word'. But we can profitably learn from the ministerial shake-up going on all around: at least, the looser ministerial structures of the NT can help rescue us from several manifest plights.

We do need full-time ministers - there are often enough jobs in a church to keep several full-time workers going - but a totally professional ministry cruelly cuts off ministers of the Word from society. The 'worker-priest' may be pressed for time, but at least he meets people, can't evade local and national issues, and knows how people are really thinking and feeling. We probably don't want to send our full-time pastors out to office and factory (many pastors are already there, of course, like it or not), but there's a strong case for churches recognising many more of their men as co-pastors. And granting wider ministry opportunities to the congregation does help meet many of the legitimate dissatisfactions that commonly develop in our churches. Many men, well gifted to minister the Word, have been stifled because 'the pastor' will keep the pulpit to himself. People with ministerial and leadership gifts are often given frustratingly little chance to develop them. So lots of men end up spending their Sundays away from the fellowship they belong to, ministering to outlying churches or in other towns - prevented from using their gifts where God has planted them. And - irony of ironies - young people, gifted and talented, frequently leave their home church to minister elsewhere, on other fields, while ministries, talent, assistance, are imported from elsewhere to supply needs the home-grown ministry itself might, and very often could have met.

It's manifest that one man cannot by himself satisfy a hungry congregation: he dries up, they get bored. Not only is the burden of constantly preparing ministry too great for one person: the variety of needs and personalities in one congregation usually demand different kinds of ministry. And, of course, even the ablest of preachers and pastors rely on assistants, and I've never yet found a church that didn't invite visiting ministry, if only because 'it makes a change'. One of my particular concerns is with what happens to graduates in our churches: young people who are often intelligent, eager and able, coming out of their training with manifest intellectual skills, equipped to study the Word and to communicate it effectively. Again and again they complain to me of feeling restricted and quenched. The church they've joined may already have a strong ministerial team which is difficult to break into; or, at the other extreme, one man — often, they hint (rightly or wrongly), less able in many respects than people kept idle in the congregation — keeps all the ministry to himself. And again and again I see people who should be drawn into the ministerial activity of our churches driven off in frustration to other denominations, where, it may be, their ministry finds a place, or, at least, the one-man ministry is abler. It's in the interest of every church, every pastor and elder, to be able and ready to spot and use the ministries God chooses to place in the local church. And if that means loosening up our churches, shaking out our established notions, so be it.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

May I be permitted through the pages of your magazine to express to Mrs. Margaret Ladlow, the deep appreciation of possibly all the readers of the ELIM EVANGEL, including myself, for her lovely page appearing so faithfully week by week.

Mrs. Ladlow's articles bear a keenness of perception, are very informative, often challenging and always stimulating. She is not afraid to speak forth and uncover events and trends, contrary and harmful to scriptural standards, as for example the article entitled: "Whose Conscience?" in 10th August issue. Here with scriptural support she deplores the Methodist Conference in their swing over from forty-one years staunch stand for total abstinence from alcohol to their ruinous decision of leaving the matter open to every one's conscience. Now this is at a time when staggering statistics show the alarming increase in the number of alcoholics in our country, followed by a crazy rush of teenagers going the same way.

We are grateful to Mrs. Ladlow for the courageous stand she takes in her articles against all forms of compromise, so easily slipped into by uninformed Christians.

May God strengthen the writer of these articles to continue to wield her pen fearlessly in contending as she has done for the maintaining of Bible standards in all matters of the Church.

"Whose conscience?" Let our consciences in Elim be kept very sensitive to the clear teaching of scripture in all that pertains to our church life, remembering to whom God has committed much from them will He expect the more.

A. Henderson, Malvern

Miss Adelaide Henderson who now lives in retirement was a member of the Elim Evangelistic Band in 1922.

Dear Editor,

May I be given space in the Evangel for this unsolicited letter?

The Assemblies of God and Elim have arranged a spiritual conference for their ministers in November. I was able to attend the two previous gatherings and was blessed and edified. It occurs to me just how important this conference is to us ministers, for we are living in the last days, when there is a building up of the forces of darkness and some strange and wonderful manifestations of God's power. How necessary and desirable it is for us to meet together to wait before the Lord and minister to each other.

I urge my colleagues to attend this conference and our brethren and sisters nationwide to pray for their pastors that they may be sensitive to God's will at this time.

Yours sincerely in Christ,

John Bristow

Romans 5:8

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

CONSTABLE BENNETT was patrolling the far end of town as usual when a message came through from the police station on his walkie-talkie. "Proceed to High Street", the sergeant said. "The jeweller's shop has been broken into and the thief has been seen in the lane at the back".

"I will go at once", replied Constable Bennett. He made his way along the street, past the station and the school. When he got to the jeweller's he saw the smashed window and the brick lying inside on the shelf. "He went up the lane", the jeweller told him. Constable Bennett turned the corner and saw a man running at the far end of the lane. He gave chase, and when the man realised he was being followed he tossed his haul over a hedge. As he did so he collided with a dustbin and fell, giving Constable Bennett the opportunity to catch up with him.

"I have reason to believe you are responsible for the break-in at the jeweller's", he told the man. "I would like you to accompany me to the police station and answer a few questions".

The burglar denied the theft. "Prove it!" he shouted. "Yes, we can do that", the sergeant said, "our men have found the bag of watches you dumped, and the fingerprints on the bag match those on the brick. Now, sir, we'll just take your fingerprints and if they match the others we'll have all the evidence we need!"

The prints matched. The criminal was taken to court and tried, found guilty and sent to prison.

Sin always leaves its evidence behind. One day all sin will be revealed. On the day of judgement the unsaved will be judged, found guilty and punished.

Constable Bennett can bring the guilty to justice but he cannot bear the punishment. Unlike our Saviour who took the guilty sinner's place and bore all his punishment on the cross at Calvary.

When we seek His forgiveness He removes all charges of guilt and we can rest assured that, when we meet Him face to face, our sins will not find us out.

Jamboree?

I DIDN'T appreciate Lord Soper's words as quoted in the Christian Record of August 9th. Speaking at Chiswick Methodist Church, London he attacked Billy Graham's "evangelical jamborees". "Most of the people who enjoy a conversion under Billy Graham are people who would have been converted anyhow" he said, and went on rather facetiously to add "I knew a couple who got converted every Easter — its as good as a spring holiday to them"!

I have no wish to quarrel with Lord Soper but I must speak up on the subject of conversion. We all know that there is a difference between man's converts and those of the Lord, and Billy Graham would be the first to acknowledge this difference. Carried away by the emotion of the moment and the fervour of the preacher, there are some who go forward for conversation, and yet it is only a shallow experience. Nevertheless there have been countless thousands down the years who have been truly born-again in great evangelistic services. We have the scriptural precedent for the preaching of the gospel when a great crowd gathers, be they genuine seekers after truth or merely the curious and sensation-mongers.

The apostle Peter did not hesitate when a great multitude gathered in Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost, but standing up with the eleven he preached his heart out, and the response to the gospel was overwhelming. Throughout the history of the Church there has been a succession of evangelists given by God, and they have reaped a harvest of souls at the appointed season. How dare anyone assume that these people would have been converted anyhow.

I believe that God planned that I should be drawn to the revival campaign held in the City of Sheffield and there in the great tent pitched on the fairground I should be soundly converted. No-one spoke to me, I was not coerced, I never signed a decision card but the miracle had taken place in my young heart — Jamboree or no jamboree! and the reality of that experience has lasted over forty years. I begin to wonder if the critics of mass evangelism would have approved of dear old John Wesley's tactics. He was severely criticised and was asked to explain why he dared to assemble Christians, not of his charge to sing psalms, pray and hear the scriptures expounded. This surely is all that Billy Graham can be accused of doing, following in the footsteps of the founder of Methodism who once faced a congregation of 20,000 at Gwennap in Cornwall and gave the wonderful words of life, as a result of which many Cornishmen were converted.

There is much talk today of mass media, and at a time when the world population is so staggeringly large, why should we not apply mass evangelism whenever possible? Apparently it is in order for the crowds to mass at a football match, to pour into the race meetings and the stands at a speedway, to pack theatres and the pop festivals, but to crowd into a gospel crusade, well that's fanaticism and highly irreverent! Once more we can refer to the New Testament standards and the examples of our Lord and His disciples. Conversion of the soul, the message of salvation, the new birth, call it what you will, must be preached. Ordained by God, empowered by the Holy Spirit, foolishness of preaching is effective.

Lord Soper, in the rest of his address attacked evangelical preaching, implying that it has no relevance to life in this world but is solely concerned with the hereafter. "If we are to commend Jesus Christ and if we are to offer life in His name", he said, "a great deal more of this life has to be offered here and now". What Lord Soper fails to realize is that when folk are truly converted, they find real life of a higher quality and in a new dimension. As the apostle explains it, "all things are become new". This life is expressed not only in terms of personal joy and happiness, but in a change of conduct and a right relationship with others as is seen in the story of Zacchaeus and testified to by multiplied thousands who have found the Saviour in an evangelical "jamboree".

Why I catch People

BRENDA, a very nice girl whom I know, was out walking one day in Birmingham. She had some little orange tickets which she passed to people along the road. A group of lads stopped her and said, "What you doing, here?". Her prompt reply was, "Fishing for men!". The fellows' faces were a picture at their good fortune. Almost in chorus they sang out, "Won't we do?".

Brenda didn't quite mean that. Her fishing was to get young people in to a special service that we were running in the church. Her quick response to the lads reflected the famous words of Jesus: "I will make you fishers of men".

Maybe Brenda chose her phrase rather unwisely under the circumstances, but she was certainly on the right track. If I remember correctly the lads came along to the service in the end.

If a man is "fished in", it sounds as if he's been hooked or caught, and that sounds like captivity and loss of freedom. This is most people's fear and their objection to Christianity. Being converted, they think they are entering a sphere of restrictions, limitations, taboos. Then, too, when people hear that even a great Christian like Paul talked about being the "slave of Christ" they tend to shy off.

On a mountain, without a guide, whose knowledge and authority will tell you where to put almost every foot, you'd soon be in trouble. A person who decided to go it alone on a mountain and got himself into that sort of position would not be a very free man, would he? The most free man on a mountain is the one on the rope doing just what he's told. If you were a mountaineer and had a perfect guide then you could really say that you were free to climb the mountain.

Paul said, "Perfect freedom lies in being a slave of Jesus Christ", in being captured by Him. Pop songs talk about being chained by love; that's the real sort of capture that we need. We need to be captured and captivated by Jesus Christ.

Freedom becomes perfect when we've got the rules right, or have placed ourselves into good hands. Christ has those good hands. He is that perfect guide. When he catches you, He saves you from falling.

Watch your brother

By NORMAN L. GANNON

WHEN I was still in grade school a near tragedy taught me a lesson in trusting.

My older brother Ron and I were playing on a railroad bridge throwing some rocks.

We had been there for quite a while when we heard a train whistle. It sounded as if it were far off in the distance, so we went right on playing.

I was just about to throw another rock when I saw the train coming around the curve not more than a quarter of a mile away.

We looked for a place to climb. There was none. There was no walkway or anywhere else to stand except on the tracks.

Two sets of tracks crossed the bridge; but at that distance, and because the train was still in the curve, we couldn't tell for sure which track it was on.

We began running for the end of the bridge.

Since Ron is 3 years older than I, he quickly had 15 or 20 steps lead on me.

The train was really coming fast. I glanced back to see if I could tell which track it was on. I decided it was on the right track, so I said to myself, "Jump to the left!"

But when Ron reached the end of the bridge, he jumped to the right.

I was frantic. Should I jump to the left as my own senses told me? Or should I trust my older brother and jump to the right?

When I finally reached the end of the bridge, I quickly jumped to the right—just as the train screamed past!

My trust in Ron's judgment had saved my life!

In our Christian walk we are inclined to follow our own judgment. We have a decision to make so we try to figure it out, using our own senses. We become quite sure of ourselves—until a crisis arises. All too often we fail to make the right decision.

Sooner or later, all of us are out there running for the end of the bridge, not knowing which way to jump.

There is a simple solution to that dilemma: look to your elder brother Jesus. He will show you the way.

Monday, October 21st Zephaniah 1:1-18

"Hold thy peace. . . for the day of the Lord is at hand". (v.7).

THE prophet is found predicting the downfall, not only of Judah but of all nations. He looks beyond the immediate and sees God working to fulfil His plan and purpose. If only we could do likewise we would see a wonderful plan prepared for each one of us, and resting in Him; we would be assured that He is working out His purpose in our lives.

Tuesday, October 22nd Zephaniah 2:1-15

"Seek ye the Lord. . . it may be ye shall be hid". (v.3).

THE seeking heart can be sure of finding satisfaction in our Lord. He never turns the hungry empty away. But oh the joy of finding Him; more than that, hiding in Him. Precious hiding place. Midst the stormy winds of adversity the hidden soul is kept safe. Rest content, our God is a sure stronghold and "upholdeth the righteous". (Psalm 37:17).

Wednesday, October 23rd Zephaniah 3:1-13

"The just Lord is in the midst thereof". (v.5).

HOWEVER we may look upon our Lord, He shines out as One full of justice and truth. Whether in judgment or mercy, we shall find this to be true at the judgment seat. "The wicked shall be cut off. But the salvation of the righteous is of the Lord" (Psalm 37:38, 39). Here and now, He is in the midst to uphold those that honour Him; His rewards are abundant.

Thursday, October 24th Zephaniah 3:14-20

"The Lord thy God. . ." (v.17).

LOOKING beyond the immediate, the prophet sees God working for the salvation of mankind, and describes the kingdom blessings of Israel. We too look forward to that wonderful moment when all sadness and sorrow are behind us, and the promise fulfilled, "forever with the Lord". (1 Thessalonians 4:17).

Until that moment "he will save, he will rejoice over thee with joy; he will rest in his love. . ." (v.17).

"Fear thou not. . . Let not thine hands be slack" (v.16).

Friday, October 25th

Haggai 1:1-15

"Consider your ways" (vv.5 and 7).

HERE is the most outstanding phrase of this passage. When a great event in life's journey comes upon us, we find it is necessary to pause and consider. We take stock of the past, and with new determination, resolve and go forward, trusting for the better.

Here is the Lord's exhortation: "consider". Let us likewise take stock of our spiritual condition TODAY, and resolve to go forward into the future with more zeal and determination. - "The Lord of Hosts is with us" (Psalm 46:7).

Saturday, October 26th

Haggai 2:1-23

" . . . be strong, all ye people. . . saith the Lord, and work for I am with you" (v.4).

WHAT a wonderful promise! Whether in work or pleasure we know He is with us. Here is an assurance that as special work is carried out for Him, He will not desert His workers. "And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men" (Colossians 3:23). That's it - unto the Lord. He will abide with you, and daily renew your strength. The supply will be sufficient for the task.

Sunday, October 27th

Revelation 1:1-8

"Blessed is he that readeth. . . that hear the words . . . and keep those things". (v.3).

JOHN commences his letter to the churches in which he expounds the glorious truth of Jesus Christ, and here we are promised a blessing just for reading this book. "Peace from Him. . . who is faithful. . . and washed us from our sins" (v.5). He has made us kings and priests unto God for ever. What a tremendous privilege has fallen to the believer, but oh the responsibility. Lord keep us faithful until you come.

Apprentice Missionary

THE YEAR 1941, place Harar second town of Ethiopia. Myself, matron and wardmaster of a large hospital for African soldiers. Far from the restraints of home and under the influence of local custom, it was common for men of my rank to instal in their quarters one of the attractive Ethiopian girls as a servant. I was of the same common clay as my comrades but I had been apprehended by the great potter and was being re-moulded into His likeness. There were only four in the whole garrison who knew the Lord. The Anglican chaplain was 'high' (candles, vestments, confession and all). In peace time he had been a missionary and knew something of African culture. It was hard in those days for such Anglicans and a Pentecostal to find anything in common, but we recognised the Lord in each other. I marvelled at his dedication as he spent day and night with one of our dying patients. This man who was only slightly ill, had told me that he was dying. I replied, "nonsense! there is nothing seriously wrong with you". As I arranged his burial three days later, I pondered on the mystery of his death. From his home a thousand miles away had come a short letter to inform him that a neighbour had obtained a spell from a powerful witchdoctor and that he must die. My boss, Doctor Warman, who had to fill in the certificate, had to find an immediate answer to the baffling question, 'Cause of Death?' Now after thirty years in Africa I might be able to help any doctor with such a problem, but it would depend on the measure of understanding the doctor had of African life.

I was called at two a.m. for my next encounter. Three men had died in the space of half an hour. Each one in a separate ward and all from different tribes. A 'court' was convened. The officers found no negligence on the part of our staff. The treatment for each patient had been as ordered. None of them was seriously ill. What was the cause of their deaths? The relatives of the dead men were not concerned as to how they died but who had bewitched them. They probably found an answer to their enquiries which were carried out in the no-mans land of the spirit world by one who had power to communicate with the spirits. My staff was composed of Italian medical prisoners of war, African dressers and Ethiopian cleaners. I picked up a little of the Italian language from our Interpreter, Antonio, but was myself becoming the translator of the lingua franca of East Africa. I carried a grammar with me and was constantly referring to the Kiswahili/English dictionary. How else could I hope to fulfil the ministry to which God had called me when I first set foot in Africa the previous year. The chaplain and I were both posted to Madagascar which is about 2,000 miles from Ethiopia. The ships sailing to that large island were subject to enemy action. Just before departure my posting was cancelled. The chaplain went with the ship which was never heard of again. His fight was over. He had gone to that place where they need no candles, for the Lamb is the light thereof. He is among that great company who confess, thou art worthy. For 'vestments' he wears a white robe. He has joined them, that are made perfect. There is no such thing as a perfect pentecostal here on earth; though many of them are being perfected. I am also persuaded that this perfected Anglican now dwelling in the presence of God, is part of, one with, permeated through and through with the Spirit of the Trinity—'Pentecostal'.

One of the thrilling and exciting things about being the Editor of a Christian magazine is, that we receive News Reports about meetings and various happenings in different parts of the country. In a good number of cases there are reports of a new found freedom in our meetings, particularly those amongst young people. One of the characteristic features of such gatherings is, that there seems to be a new found freedom of expression in worship. A special feature of this is the revival of the singing of Scriptural choruses with special emphasis that these have upon the Word of God. This, we feel, is an extremely healthy sign. As I write this Editorial on the eve of relinquishing a Pastorate after 20 years, I look back upon a number of instances that have brought me particular delight. It has been a joy and privilege to lead others into a saving experience of Christ. It has also been the cause of a great deal of joy when people to whom one has ministered have, perhaps after many years, suddenly entered into a new experience of liberty and freedom in worship. We do not suggest that for a moment there is a simple ready formula that is to be followed but we have observed particularly of late that where there is a preparedness to abandon one's (even pentecostal) conformity there is oftentimes a new found liberty. A particular chorus containing the words, "I will lift up my hands unto Thy Name" has been blessed of God to a good many in recent days. By this, we are not suggesting that the adoption of this procedure as a formula will guarantee success, is to be entertained at all. The Bible in fact comes out very strongly against all sorts of man made tradition. The Almighty Himself was nauseated by the vain repetition of those sacrifices which He Himself had instituted. Furthermore the Scriptures pay very little interest to man's posture in prayer but, they are concerned very much with man's attitude. It is perhaps, when one's hands are lifted up to heaven and their hearts are opened, that their tongues become full.

Many of us have carried over from our childhood the attitude that in prayer we ought to close our eyes and bow our heads. Dr. Oswald J. Smith tells in one of his books how difficult he found it was to concentrate on prayer but one day being a busy and active man he began to move about his study with his eyes fully open and he began to call upon the name of the Lord in intercessory prayer; for him this was a new found liberty and freedom.

There is no quicker way to "Kill" a live prayer meeting than persistence of some people in a continuation of a form of prayer that has been unaltered for many years. "God did not give us the Spirit of Timidity but a Spirit of Power and Love and Self-Control" (2 Tim. 1:7 R.S.V.) "Now the Lord is the Spirit and where the Spirit of the Lord is there is freedom" (2 Cor. 3:17 R.S.V.)

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hand and the anointing of the sick with oil.

EALING

Pastor: F. Frost

WE are rejoicing in God's breath of revival blessing at Ealing under the dedicated ministry of Pastor and Mrs. F. Frost. Throughout the summer, decisions have been made for Christ on most Sunday evenings, and it is a thrill to see the converts following on to know the Lord. One of our Crusaders, Michael Jackson, spoke of Christ recently to two young men in a bus queue, which led to their salvation and both have been baptized in water and in the Holy Spirit, and are active in His service.

Two baptismal services have been held in the last few months with a total of twelve believers being immersed in water. Our minister has just concluded two series of Bible studies on the gifts and fruit of the Holy Spirit and these have proved a great blessing.

The West London Presbytery organised a Youth Rally at Ealing in the spring and the Church was packed, the congregation, including people from fourteen nations. Pastor Robin Rees led the meeting, and singers were from Luton and Ealing Crusaders; Pastor Peter Sanderson gave an inspiring and challenging word. The meeting was the occasion of the final of the Presbytery Youth Quiz between Watford and Ealing. In a very close contest Ealing won for the second year in succession, thus retaining the challenge shield which was presented by Mr. Thompson of Letchworth. The spiritual tone of the meeting was very high as Jesus was excelled throughout. Glory be to His name!

The Crusaders are flourishing and increasing in numbers under the leadership of Mr. Colin Reed. Colin has organised a Junior Choir, who render a youth spot in song, accompanied by guitars, on most Sunday evenings.

The primary and junior Crusaders open evening was held on a recent Wednesday; many parents and members attended when they saw a typical weekly meeting, in which the children rendered items, and Pastor Peter Sanderson gave an appropriate message.

We are very sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. R.S. Garrard who have removed to Worcester where their son is Pastor of the Elim Pentecostal Church. Mr. Garrard was the Church treasurer for over forty years. May the Lord give them every blessing in their new district and Church.

PORT TALBOT

Pastor: J.A. Taylor

BECAUSE we had envisaged the completion of our new church building by the end of the summer a Beach Mission was planned for August 4-16 on the lovely Aberavon sands, under the leadership of Pastor Michael Epton and team from Crewe.

The weather was not ideal for beach evangelism, but fortunately we were able to borrow a local Presbyterian church, and whether, inside or outside, our hearts rejoiced to see young people and older ones listening to the gospel of Jesus Christ.

In spite of poor weather, the meetings were well attended with up to ninetyfive children at any one time. One could feel the moving of the Holy Spirit, which was born out by over fifty counselled decisions for Christ by young people and children.

We extend our thanks to Pastor Epton and the team for their selfless devotion, and above all, we thank the Lord for His goodness in saving precious souls.

As a result of the mission we have now established a weekly Sunshine Corner meeting in the locality of our proposed new building. The photographs show a group on one of the rare occasions when we were able to go on the sands.

BOB DAVIES

The Penhalonga Elim Church Annual Convention.

THIS Convention was slightly different from our usual conventions, which take place normally during the school term, because this one took place during the school holidays. However, praises be to our God because the attendances were far better than usual. People came from various Elim churches, including Inyanga North.

Pastor Chapman preached at every service, except one afternoon when Miss Garbutt spoke, and Mrs. Chapman sang in each service. Throughout the Convention we felt and enjoyed the presence of our Lord and some people were convicted of their sins.

The Sunday morning meeting took a special form. The School Headmaster officially welcomed Pastor and Mrs. Chapman. Thanks were given to God for having allowed such a couple to come and work amongst the people of Penhalonga and the surrounding areas. Mr. Chapman responded by thanking God for His guidance and grace said that our co-operation was needed if they were to be successful for God. Then two speakers, Mr. Gonye and Mr. Katerere, gave farewell messages to Miss Garbutt, thanking God for having used this faithful lady amongst the people of Africa. She was involved in various developments with the schools and churches and helped families and individuals spiritually and physically. The service lasted over three hours and the hymn "Amazing Grace" was sung frequently throughout. The words in Shona go like this:

"Tsitsi dzinondishamisa
Dzakandiponeas
Ndakange ndisingaone
Zvino ndaoneswa".

J.C. Denguri (School Teacher, Penhalonga).

footnote from R.B. Chapman:

Pray for me when you see a language like that and realize we have to sing that way all the time whether we know what we are singing about or not.

A young Pastor called Home to be with Jesus

THE funeral of Pastor Peter Hill took place on Friday, 4th October, in Elim Pentecostal Church, Croydon, which was his home church. It was conducted by Rev. Wynne Lewis of York.

Those who took part included Pastor J. T. Bradley who was the Pastor at Croydon when Peter Hill entered the ministry, and Pastor P. S. Brewster, who as Secretary-General gave a tribute from the Movement. Members of the Presbytery and personal friends also attended and took part. There were over thirty ministers at the funeral.

Members of the Executive Council, G. W. Gilpin, J. C. Smyth and T. W. Walker also took part in the service at the crematorium.

Pastor Peter Hill graduated from the Elim Bible College and ministered in Essex, Derby and Knottingley. He was esteemed very highly by his ministerial brethren, and, after serving for eleven years in the Elim Movement, the Lord called him Home. We express our sincere appreciation for his ministry in our Movement.

We extend our love and prayers to Mrs. Maureen Hill and to their son, Paul. May God bless them.

P. S. Brewster,
Secretary-General

An appreciation of Peter J. Hill by J. H. P. Upton

THE young minister arrived at his new home one afternoon in February. That evening the church treasurer arrived to welcome him, only to find that he had already gone out to find the church secretary. That was typical of Peter Hill, he always wanted to be active in the service of his Lord. I met them on their way to the church, where he was to labour tirelessly for three years and that despite frequent visits to hospital.

It was during his ministry that I left for the Elim Bible College and it is in this direction that I owe my greatest thanks to Peter Hill. I shall always be thankful for the advice, help and encouragement that he gave me as I set out to enter the ministry.

A church member described him as "a hard worker", which he was, but I shall remember him more for the many long conversations which we shared. We were often talking of the things of God and of Elim, long after everyone else had left the church.

He is better off now, but we all sorrow at the loss of a brother beloved. It was brought home to me the Sunday after he died, since a young man was leaving our church to go to Bible College and I ministered on Acts 20. I sorrowed for my friend as did the Ephesian elders, but I rejoiced at the thought of that meeting where we shall part no more.

We pray for his wife, Maureen, his son, Paul and the rest of the family that God will comfort and strengthen them in their loss and may we be "your servants for Jesus' sake" as Peter was to so many.

Notes of a message preached at Bournemouth Bandstand

by J. Osman

"And ye shall know the TRUTH and the TRUTH shall make you FREE".

MANY believe they are free because they are not in prison, but there are other forms of bondage. Money, ambition, cigarettes, alcohol, drugs, T.V., are just a selection of such things. If you think it through it is possible to be in bondage to your own free-will.

Not everyone knows or wants to know the truth. In Romans 1 we read of those who changed the truth of God into a lie.

In 2 Thessalonians 2:10-12 we read "Because they received not the love of the truth that they might be saved. And for this cause God shall send them strong delusion that they should believe a lie, that they all might be damned who believed not the truth but had pleasure in unrighteousness."

The difference between salvation and damnation rests in believing and receiving the truth of God.

We live in a sceptical age and not without cause. Many of the clamouring voices condition us to half-truths, e.g. in advertising. We have experience of "unbreakable china" that won't stand up to the "drop" test. One soap powder claimed to wash "whiter than white." In the Midlands, I saw one frozen food company advertising their food as "fresher than fresh." What nonsense!

Jesus said "I am. . . the truth." John wrote "Grace and truth came by Jesus Christ." Jesus also said "If ye continue in my word . . . ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

That Word tells us:

1. The truth about creation. This world didn't just happen. The most factual, balanced and clearcut way of accounting for the world with all its intricacies is a creative hand. The only balanced explanation of man's condition and problems is a fall. If you ever do the crossword puzzle, you know that if you get one word wrong to start with, you just can't get the rest to fit in. It puts the whole thing out. So it is with us, we can't understand many things if we are wrong about the beginnings. The more I read about the amazingly intricate way in which just one of our bodily organs is fashioned, and the exceedingly complicated way in which they all function, so the more convinced do I become of the evidence of a creative mind. Even more so than the fact that my wristwatch, a comparatively uncomplicated small machine bears witness to a manufacturer.

2. The truth about ourselves. "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God". Actually we are all aware of this. The present permissiveness is an attempt to escape the sense of sin, but the guilt complex is a plague in a sick society. Nervous and mental disorders are frequently associated with guilt feelings. A psychiatrist said to me, "I hold it against the church that it makes people conscious of sin." Friends, it isn't the church that makes us conscious of sin. We are conscious of sin because we know we are sinful. That is a painful fact. What can we do about it? We need forgiveness.

3. The word tells us the truth about forgiveness. We are conscious of sin. Jesus Christ makes us conscious of forgiveness. Wherever sin is mentioned in the Bible, forgiveness is mentioned too. Forgiveness comes by Jesus Christ. Confession to God and repentance will bring forgiveness that is complete and lasting; (see 1 John 1:8, 9).

4. The truth about the future. People are interested in what is going to happen. Hence the unhealthy seeking to palmists, mediums, clairvoyants and the interest in horoscopes. The Bible provides the only reliable look into the future. "It is appointed unto man once to die and after this the judgment." But the same Bible tells us that Jesus came to deliver us from judgment (John 5:24). It also tells us that Jesus is coming again. This same Jesus. There will be peace on earth when Christ reigns, and not before, and there is no peace in the heart till Christ reigns in your life. Freedom from sin can be yours. Freedom from fear of the future; freedom from dread of God and fear of death.

5. The truth about the love of God. God loves every one of you. This is the truth told by Jesus Christ: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life." Love alone cannot blot out sin, but it can and does provide the cleanser from sin. It is the Blood of Jesus Christ. You can find forgiveness, cleansing and salvation in Christ tonight. How? It can be summed up in the closing words of a lovely song:

*"He came to me when I needed Him,
I only had to pray.
And He'll come to you if you ask Him to,
He's only a prayer away".*

Book Reviews

Hansi by Maria Anne Hirschman, published by Coverdale House Publishers, price 75p, postage and packing 7p extra.

A VERY readable autobiography by Maria, who was given the nick-name Hansi after she had joined the Hitler Youth Movement when she was fourteen years old.

Hansi became a dedicated Nazi youth teacher who hated "The Jew from Nazareth". Her story tells of the horrors of the Russian occupation of Czechoslovakia and the way God answered her mother's prayers and Hansi was finally brought to a total commitment to Christ.

This book would make a good present, particularly for those of Crusader age.

May Osman

Jesus the Liberator by Alan Walker, published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott, price 60p, postage and packing 8p extra.

"JESUS was the freest man who ever lived". This opening statement sets the theme of a work which relates the Christian message to our present generation's needs and points to the only truly free person who can set people free. Written in non-technical, easily read, brief chapters, this work can claim to be 'different' in its presentation of the Gospel. Chapter headings such as "The answer to violence"; "Free from slavery to things" and "The Unmentionable fear — death", present a picture of both the wide scope and relevance of the contents. It will most likely find a limited use among the reading younger generation, though it can hardly claim to be a bargain at 60p.

Gordon Hills

Congo Miracle by Harold Womersley, published by Victory Press, price 70p, postage and packing 10p extra.

HAROLD Womersley, pioneer evangelist and penetrator of jungle remotenesses, condenses a life of preaching the gospel in Central Africa into a most interesting book. He guides the reader through over fifty years of missionary reliance on God, relating the progress of a miracle church, from primitive foundations to the mature body of believers which now thrives under a mighty anointing of Holy Ghost power. The martyrdom of Teddy Hodgson and Elton Knauf, told so dramatically, reminds us of the great sacrifices the church suffered during a period of revolt and discord. The recounting of many mighty acts of God is a thrilling proof that He is just the same today. This is a book to stimulate faith and is well worth buying.

Seventeen years for God to keep a promise

THE young man in the Royal Air Force couldn't understand why God directed him to a small town in South Wales that he had never heard of. Upon demobilisation Eric Hutchinson headed for Pontypridd, arriving in the pouring rain, with the Welsh hills shrouded in mist; he felt miserable, but not misdirected. In a dream the Lord had given him an address and this was to be his dwelling place until marriage. He joined a Congregational church which needed the sound witness of a born again believer; becoming a licensed local preacher he threw all his energies into the work of God. The Lord gave him a promise, "You will do a work for youth in my name in this place". It came as a great surprise therefore when, because of his fundamental views and evangelistic zeal, pulpits closed to him and his licence was removed. He battled on in the church but as a result of the invitation of Pastor T.W. Walker, he sought fellowship in the Saturday meeting at Elim across the way. A little later this fine Christian young man had his membership removed and was forced to join the Elim Church.

Years passed, the Congregational Church was closed due to dwindling congregations, and through a miracle of God's provision the building has become an Elim Youth Centre. Eric, now a Sunday School superintendent and deacon, worked with understandable enthusiasm to get the building ready for our annual convention, when five hundred guests were catered for in the centre. Eric's prayer is for the Sunday school, boys club, coffee bar and other evangelism that will be carried out there, for God has kept His promise.

EMS feature

THE giant lizard flicks its tail angrily and plunges into the foam-flecked pool with a splash. A crab scuttles nervously into hiding amongst the spray drenched rocks. In the grass a sinuous green shadow glides silently away.

Downstream, on the massive rock slabs that lie tilting into the swirling river, three great grimy trucks belch diesel fumes as they jerk into position beside the water. They have arrived for their weekly wash.

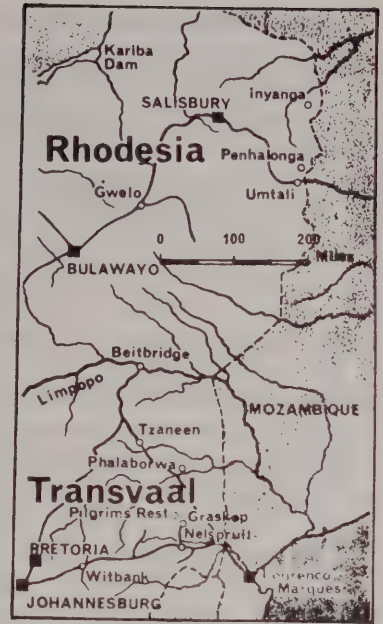

Upstream, another sound merges and blends with the sounds of the valley — voices in song. Beneath the trees in the dappled shade, a colourful crowd slaps and sings in festive mood. The older women wear their traditional saris, the younger girls in mixed garb or miniskirts and jeans. The men and boys wear anything from Sunday best to bell-bottomed jeans. Some sing with apparent joy, whilst others stand shyly at a distance, aloof and wondering. Little boys punctuate the scene like so many verbal exclamation marks while harrassed mothers admonish silently with pursed lips and still index finger, their dark eyes flashing.

In the surging stream a young Indian mother affirms her faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and is baptised in the silt-laden water, her waist length hair gleaming black as she is helped, dripping, from the water. Three teenagers, two young mothers and an older man enact this scene which smacks so realistically of Bible days beside the Jordan so very long ago.

(An Indian Baptismal service at Nels River, near Nelspruit, Transvaal, 4th May 1974)

Elim in Africa

A young Indian Christian man speaks beneath the trees, his earnest voice lifting above the battle of sounds again and again with the name of Jesus. More singing, some tearful handshaking and no little joyous backslapping ensue as slowly the crowd disperses.

The screech of cicadas, the rustle of leaves and the roar of the gushing water recur over the valley again, and a giant lizard crawls from the water to bask on the rocks in the afternoon sunshine.

Thoughts on the book of Revelation

The Throne of God Chapter 4

by Charles J. E. Kingston

THE third section of Revelation, detailing "the things which must be hereafter" (Revelation 1:9; 4:1) are now revealed to us and will occupy the rest of the Book. This then is the message of Revelation, not the things happening to the churches but "after these things" (Greek: meta tauta).

We need to pause before entering into the stupendous events that herald the glorious triumph of the Son of God. Heaven is opened to view and we are permitted to gaze with awestruck wonder at the glories of the Throne Room, the Holy of Holies of God's awful presence. He who fills all, permits us to see Him, seated on His Throne.

John is caught up in the Spirit into Heaven. v. 1,2.

Possibly, like Paul, he was not sure whether he was in the body or not, when transported into heaven. Anyway, he had eyes to see, ears to hear, and his capacity to speak and to weep remained with him.

Many see John here as representative of the "rapture" of the Church when Jesus comes again. As D.M. Panton puts it: "John rapt upward (is) doubtless a hint of impending rapture immediate at the close of the Day of Grace." Is it only coincidence that the Philadelphian era is given both the warning of Christ's coming quickly and the promise of an "open door" and then Revelation 4:1 reveals the "open door" through which John is rapt? Since the Church on earth is not mentioned after Revelation 3:22 it would seem obvious that she must have been translated somewhere between that verse and Revelation 4:1. God's Word promises that "The Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air". (1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17).

The Church age, ending in Laodicean lukewarmness, now gives place to God's judgments upon the earth.

The Throne of God in Heaven. v. 2, 3.

John sees "One on the Throne". He does not describe Him for, like the Israelites, he saw no "similitude". Evidently, He is God the Father, not God the Son, for in the next chapter the Lamb takes the sealed roll from the hand of Him who was on the Throne.

John describes the glorious colour of His presence. Before his eyes was the "light which no man can approach unto", clear as crystal, like jasper, (Revelation 21:11) a blazing red, like sardius, while thunders roared and lightnings flashed from out the Throne. Voices, too, God's decrees, were obeyed by His angels then they heard them.

From this Throne, which dominates the rest of Revelation, pour the judgments of the last days, days not of mercy but of justice, the "day of wrath and revelation (apocalypse) of the righteous judgment of God, who will render to every man according to his works" (Romans 2:5, 6).

"Therefore within the sphere of the coming age all judgment falls, and by its triple tribunal it exhausts judgment." D.M. Panton.

(1) At the Judgment Seat (the Beam) our Lord will reckon with His servants after the rapture of the Church. "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that everyone may receive the things done in his body. . . whether it be good or bad." "Every man's work shall be made manifest, for the day shall declare it." (2 Corinthians 5:10; 1 Corinthians 3:13).

(2) At the Judgment of the Nations (Matthew 25: 31, 32), when the Son shall come in His glory He will divide the nations that are alive on earth at His return. Then will He fulfil His promise to the apostles "in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of His glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel". (Matthew 19:28).

(3) At the Great White Throne (Revelation 20: 11-15), where "the dead, small and great, stand before God" to be judged according to their works. This dread assize completes and exhausts judgment.

Yet is there mercy, too. A rainbow, the sign of God's covenanted mercy, emerald green in colour, surrounds the Throne. In wrath, God remembers mercy.

The sea of glass like crystal. v.6.

The Throne itself was set on a sea of glass like crystal. The common glass of the ancients was cloudy and semi-opaque. This sea is like rock-crystal for transparency and beauty. Later, this sea afforded space for the whole army of overcomers to celebrate their triumph in the immediate presence of God (Revelation 15:2). When Ezekiel caught sight of God's Throne it was amber in colour as the appearance of fire, while under the Throne was the "colour of terrible crystal" (Ezekiel 1:27, 22).

The Court of Heaven. v.4.

The King of Kings has His Court. First seen are twenty-four seats (or thrones), as if the thrones were there before and were awaiting "them for whom it is prepared".

Who are the twenty-four Elders? They are the representatives of both the Old Testament saints and the New Testament Church. And they are in Heaven, around the Throne. They are called Elders and are not therefore the whole Church but the seniors of the celestial assembly. The Church on earth is composed of "little children" (babes in Christ), "young men" who are strong, and the "fathers" (1 John 2:12, 13). But only those who suffer with Christ will reign with Him (2 Timothy 2:12). The number, 24, is symbolical of the whole Church and its priestly character. David divided the priests into twenty-four courses, led by twenty-four individuals (1 Chronicles 24:1-19).

Next seen by John are the four living creatures v.6.

(Greek word is Zoon, living-ones; a different word, therion, is used for the "beasts" of Revelation 13).

Because of their likeness to the Seraphim, seen by Isaiah, and the Cherubim, seen by Ezekiel, in their visions of God's Throne (Isaiah 6:2, 3) they are, doubtless, angelic beings, created intelligences (full of eyes), very near to God's immediate presence. First appearing to guard the gates of Paradise, in Revelation they execute God's purpose (Revelation 6:1-7; 15:7).

Yet they are different from the rest of the angelic host, who all come to us in the likeness of men; whereas only one of the living-creatures has a human countenance. They seem to stand in some relation to the whole of earth's created inhabitants.

With the twenty-four elders, the four living-creatures join in the Creation song: "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power; for Thou hast created all things and for Thy pleasure they are and were created." All created beings, angelic, human, or animal, can join in an act of praise to Almighty God, the Creator of all.

The stage is set for the opening scene in the drama of the last days, the seven-sealed roll.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

29. Human fickleness (Exodus 16:3)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THE fickleness of Israel is a constant source of wonder! They witnessed the mighty power of God in Egypt, yet they panicked at Pi-Hahiroth before the waters of the Red Sea. The Lord gloriously saved them at the Red Sea and destroyed the Egyptians, yet the Israelites at once questioned His goodness at Marah. Their Lord had healed the waters and supplied the need, but faced by a food shortage, the Israelites were rebellious. The Lord's miraculous, loving care should have caused them to trust Him, they should have brought their needs to Him in childlike faith; instead, they constantly murmured, complained and rebelled.

Israel in the days of the Lord Jesus was no different. The people ate the bread He miraculously provided and wanted Him to be their King, but the next day His words caused them offence and they tried to stone Him. On Palm Sunday He rode in triumph into Jerusalem to shouts of "Hosanna!"; but later in the week the crowd were demanding "Crucify Him!" The Lord revealed His power and glory when He rose from the dead; but the Jews bribed the guard and persecuted the disciples who bore testimony to the truth!

Unbelief is a sin which constantly hinders people; they experience the life-changing power of God in salvation, see answers to prayer, perhaps experience healing, and find how faithful the Lord is in providing for their needs; yet when difficulty or trouble comes they turn from Him. Perhaps with shame we have to confess that we have been like this and have behaved like spoiled children, resenting any adversity; yet the Lord's loving care has been proved being sealed by the blood of His dear Son. The thought of Calvary should cause us to trust Him implicitly. Let us not be fickle, but rather may we lovingly trust the Lord at all times.

Go and Tell

by Ramon Hunston, City Temple, Cardiff

THE great commission that Jesus gave to His disciples, found recorded in the gospels (Matthew 28:19,20, Mark 16:15, Luke 24:47, 48) clearly shows that He planned His Church to be an explosive force in the world, revolutionising society. The Church of Jesus Christ was not to be a serene ship sailing placid seas of human history, it was to have a life-changing impact in every generation.

The great commission to go and tell is not limited to one era of history, one stratum of society or one aspect of church outreach. The great commission envelops every Christian believer.

The great commission is fulfilled in each generation

The Bible says (Acts 13:36) that David served his own generation by the will of God. It is God's will that the commission to evangelise should be perpetual. The purpose of the Church is evangelism, and the reason for Pentecost and its accompanying blessing is not limited to personal exhilaration but to powerful evangelism. "Ye shall receive power. . . . ye shall be witnesses unto Me."

We are called to serve our own generation: the traditions of the past and even the prospects of the future will not meet the situation of today's sick and lost generation. The great commission is that we must serve our generation by the will of God. Time is fast running out for our generation and opportunities are slipping by so quickly, opportunities that can never be recalled. We must fulfil the commission to reach our generation in our cities and in every part of our nation now. The challenge of "Go and tell" cannot be limited to missionary outreach across the seas or even to be expressed forcibly in great missionary rallies. The great commission lies at the threshold of life of every individual Christian.

The great commission is perpetuated through each generation

In terms of the message that Jesus committed to His Church there must be the perpetuation of truth from generation to generation for this is the Bible pattern. The Scriptures declare that truth is to be committed to faithful men, who in turn shall teach others also (2 Timothy 2:12).

The Bible speaks of increasing fulfilment, and the Old Testament often refers to the Almighty as the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Abraham the great pioneer, Isaac in whose life there was a consolidation of God's promises, and Jacob the man in whose life there began the growth and expansion from the family to the nation of Israel. We are now in the third and fourth generations of pentecostal believers. Many of the pioneers of our beloved Movement have gone to their reward. We have passed the age of consolidation, moving from temporary places of worship to beautiful buildings. We have built our Bible Colleges, we have opened our printing presses and we have sent missionaries to the far corners of the world. Now, in the third generation this must be the era of growth and of expansion; the great commission perpetuated in our generation.

The Church age is spanned by the commission. Jesus Christ on the threshold of His ascension gave the command "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel", and thus the Church age was born in the enduement of power from on high to fulfil this. The prophetic word declares that the Church Age will be concluded with a fulfilment of this commission. "This Gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come" (Matthew 24:14).

The great commission must be practised by each generation

The full implications of what the commission is, are found in the three records that we have in the New Testament.

1. The purpose of the commission is evangelism.

In Luke 24:27, 48 Jesus is conveying by His words, total involvement in His own purpose of reaching men and women with the transforming power of His Gospel. Evangelism is repentance and the forgiveness of God. It is not a social programme, but a spiritual revolution. Reaching men with the gospel is both the public function of the local church and the personal responsibility of the individual believer in that church.

Evangelism is the proclamation of truth with a burning passion by the individual in his personal contacts. It is the planning of church programme, geared to this greatest of all realities. The fulfilling of the great commission is the responsibility thrust upon us by Christian conversion; Biblical Christianity knows nothing less than every believer witnessing for Christ. As pentecostal people we should remember that in the words of Jesus, Pentecost is directly related to personal evangelism in the great commission.

2. Involvement in the commission is church membership.

Jesus said, "Go and teach all nations," or as a modern translation has it, "Go and make disciples." The act of making disciples involves church orientation. The book of Acts clearly shows that God added to, and caused to be established, local churches. Evangelism is church building, and involvement in the commission means public attachment to a local assembly for this fulfils God's purposes. For according to 1 Timothy 3:19 the local church is also the pillar and ground of the truth. Church membership by this public attachment to a local cause, demonstrates our love for God and for fellow believers, for love is never really without commitment. This demonstrates fellowship, for we are connected to Christ and therefore to each other. The Bible speaks of the local church as being "members one of another."

Church membership fulfils God's plan for fellowship. In the beginning it was God Himself who said it is not good for man to dwell alone. The need of fellowship was demonstrated when Elijah was assured by God that he is not the only one left. The meeting in a local congregation is expressed as a divine pattern by our Lord, "And as His custom was, He went into the synagogue on the Sabbath Day" (Luke 4:16). When Paul was almost despairing and in great need of comfort, it was in fellowship that God provided the answer to his servant's need (11 Corinthians 7:6). At the end of his life, Paul's longing for fellowship is clearly seen in his plea to Timothy to come quickly to Rome; in these latter days we must not forget the assembling of ourselves together "the more so as ye see the day approaching" (Hebrews 10:25). The imminence of the Lord's return clearly demonstrates the vital need of local church attachment.

3. Identification with the commission—water baptism.

In all instances where Jesus Christ stated the commission to His Church, He also spoke of water baptism. Thus emphasising its importance. Water baptism expresses identified commitment to Christ, and this is what Christianity is all about—total commitment and obedience to Him. Water baptism is therefore not an optional extra to Christian living or an after-thought in church doctrine, but it is vital and essential to obedience and power. The great commission of Christ is commitment to Christ and His cause.

4. Enduement in the commission—Pentecost.

Jesus Christ in setting out his programme for the future generations of His Church, linked this with the experience and blessing of Pentecost. He spoke of it in terms of His divine promise in Luke 24:49, and expressed again in Mark 16 the very practice of Pentecostal experience and living as allied to the proclamation of truth.

It is necessary to seek and to receive the baptism of the Holy Spirit to be fully empowered to undertake the great commission. Paul in Acts 19:2 asked the Ephesian church if they had received the gift of the Holy Ghost. Subsequent to this conversation and their experience of the mighty baptism of power the same chapter records, "So mightily grew the word of God." This is the relationship of Pentecost to the great commission and conversion. We may say that a pentecostal experience or doctrine that does not evangelise is contrary to the New Testament order.

To conclude then, it can be clearly seen that the great commission must be experienced before it can be expressed. Jesus said, "As the Father hath sent me" (John 20:21). But how was Christ's ministry expressed? In Evangelism—"I came not to call the righteous but sinners to repentance." "In involvement—"I will build My Church."

In water baptism—"Suffer it to be so now", so Jesus submitted to water baptism by John. In enduement; the Holy Spirit anointed Jesus as He began His public ministry! He stated catagorically, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me." If we are to fulfil the great commission we must remember these four basic factors for Jesus said, "As the Father hath sent me SO SEND I YOU."

May God help us in this generation to answer the challenge of Jesus—"Go and tell."

Mortimer's Idea

2 Peter 3:14

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

DO you remember Mortimer, the leopard who tried in vain to get rid of his spots? Last week Mortimer had another silly idea. "Come here, bird", he said. "I've a job for you".

"What's that?" the bird asked.

"I want you to count my spots", Mortimer told him.

"But that will take days!" the bird said.

"Get on with it, then", said Mortimer. "The sooner you start the sooner you finish".

Mortimer settled himself into a comfortable position and the bird hopped on to his back and began to count. . .one. . .two. . .three".

"Don't miss a single spot," Mortimer interrupted, "count the small ones and the big ones, the black ones and the orange ones!"

"Be quiet", the bird said, "or I'll lose count."

"One hundred and five, one hundred and six", the bird counted.

"Haven't you finished yet?" Mortimer asked. He was very bored, and was getting stiff lying in the one position.

"No", said the bird. "There are hundreds to count yet. Do be still!"

"Hurry up!" Mortimer cried impatiently.

"I give up, I really do!" said the bird. "It's an impossible task. Count them yourself, Mortimer!" He flew back up to his branch. "Silly animal!" he muttered to himself.

Suppose we tried to count all the spots in our lives; the big spots of pride and dishonesty, the bad spots of greed and selfishness, the ugly spots of bad language and lies, we would soon give up, wouldn't we?

The Word of God says that we are all born with a sinful nature, and this shows itself in our bad thoughts and deeds. The most ugly, the most awful spot of all, which stains our lives, is the one which denies the Lord Jesus and refuses His offer of salvation.

When we acknowledge Him as our very own Saviour, and accept His free and wondrous pardon, He removes all our spots. Then He forgets all about them, for ever!

From a Pastor's Study

Puffing Billy

by A. Nicolson,
Pastor of our
Southend-on-Sea Church

IT WAS raining heavily as I stood with my new found Australian friends at a spot just off the main road. Above me was the "Horse-shoe curve" a stretch of railway line along which Melbourne's famous 'Puffing Billy' would come.

A ride on 'Puffing Billy' up into the Dandenong Mountains was a must for every child in and around Melbourne. Dads and Mums would tell their offsprings of their first ride on 'Puffing Billy', and by the look on their faces it seemed to me that they still enjoyed the excitement of a trip on the quaint but beloved steam-powered train.

Suddenly there was the chuff, chuff, chuff of the famous engine and Puffing Billy swung majestically into view. The carriages, with their open windows, were filled with laughing, waving and very excited children. No one paid any attention to the rain as they watched the famous train make its way round the horse-shoe curve. I stood there for a few minutes after 'Puffing Billy' had disappeared round the bend, and I thought of the men and women who had given of their time and skill to preserve this old steam engine and the carriages with their wooden seats, and I asked myself, "Why did they do it?". The answer was not difficult; in a world of fast moving diesel and electric trains, they had a love for the steam engine and that love was translated into action which has not only been enthusiastic but sacrificial.

Let it never be said of us that men of the world could generate more enthusiasm over a steam engine than we Christians do over the great message of salvation.

Talking organs?

An Outline

Mysteries of the New Testament

LIKE some other words in our old Bible, "mystery" means the exact reverse of our modern use of it. These truths are a mystery to the unregenerate, but to the initiated, the born-again, they are revealed. The word indicates knowledge imparted, not knowledge withheld.

1. The Mystery of Godliness (1 Timothy 3:14-16; Mark 4:11; Romans 16:25): the Incarnation.
2. The Mystery of Israel's blindness, partial, and pending (Romans 11:25, 26).
3. The Mystery of the Church (Ephesians 3:1-8): "the unsearchable riches of Christ."
4. The Mystery of Immortality (1 Corinthians 15:51): "we shall all be changed".
5. The Mystery of Iniquity (2 Thessalonians 2:3-8): Protestant Reformers and the translators of the A.V. Bible (see the Preface) saw in this man the embodiment of the evil papal system of Roman Catholicism. Others think that his appearance lies in the future. Whichever may be so, he will be destroyed at the coming of Christ for His own.

6. The Mystery of the Woman and the wild Beast (Revelation 17:7).

An Exhortation Switching Hymn-tunes

HOW much of this goes on. As a general principle we ought not to do it, unless we have really found the set tune inadequate and prefer the alternative. Many pastors and leaders just skip the tunes that they don't know for the more familiar substitutes, and so congregations are deprived. This is not good enough, nor is it fair to the hymn-book committee, who in their wisdom and judgment set the tunes. Besides, if you don't know the tune, brother, the congregation may. How many ever sing R.H.36 to the set tune? Most go to the more familiar alternative, no. 16. Did the writer of the beautiful hymn of worship, R.H.96, "Thou the Rose of Sharon", who supplied his own tune, intend that we should march through it to the stirring martial strains of "Onward, Christian Soldiers", no. 429, the invariable alternative? Did the writer of the worshipful, devotional "Floods of Revival", with its "much slower" refrain, R.H. 253, consider the galloping no. 370? What is wrong with Douglas B. Gray's grand tune? Many of these substitute tunes do not really "scan" anyhow, if you know what that means. Look it up!

Recently we heard R.H. 588 matched to the tune of no. 480. There were a couple of superfluous lines, which just couldn't fit, but what's that?

Ginger's story

HERE is a fine testimony that recently came to me from Michael Harrison a member of our newest Elim Church, the assembly at Wisbech. Please do continue to pray for the witness there.

Known as Ginger Harrison, I had quite justifiably earned myself a very bad reputation before I was out of my teens. I'd been to court several times for being drunk and disorderly, on probation for theft, and in a detention centre for being involved in gang warfare resulting in a charge of grievous bodily harm. I'd stolen from relations, bullied my grandmother and my crippled mother, and took life into my own hands to lead it as it pleased me.

From the age of eighteen, I travelled around with a construction firm, becoming a heavy drinker, car wrecker, brawler and bully, increasingly involved in permissive sex and drug taking. Experiences with cannabis and LSD took me into deep spiritual wickedness and darkness, so much so that for several years I enjoyed the exalted hippy identity of a mystic and was intimately acquainted with the devil himself. My life left behind a trail of broken hearts which I could not mend. I began to use other types of pills, such as morphine and heroin. More and more I was searching for a reason for life.

One evening, with several others, I sampled some drugs which had been stolen from a local chemist. That night one friend died of an overdose and I was taken unconscious to hospital. I was there for a week and for some time my senses of, sight, hearing and balance were shattered and it was feared that I had permanent brain damage. But the very day I was out of hospital I smoked cannabis.

I was desperately lonely and my drug experiences gave me the weird companionship of demons and spiritual beings which were very real to me. I then began to trip on LSD quite frequently with a friend. We searched together for the answer to the deep questions of life. Who am I? Where did I come from? We even recognised demon manifestations within each other. Finally my friend was caught by the police for several drug offences and he was sent by the court to a Christian rehabilitation centre in Gloucestershire, called Northwick Park. Some time later he wrote to tell me that he had repented of his past and had found Jesus Christ to be real, and his life was completely changed.

In utter confusion and torment I turned to the Bible to search for answers to my questions. I realised that I was a sinner and under the penalty of death and hell, a slave to the Devil. My past life haunted me day and night, with unbearable physical and mental pain. Finally I was taken to a mental hospital convinced that I was the Devil and so evil that no-one could help me. I wanted to commit suicide, yet I knew I would go to hell. I ran away from hospital and was then put into a prison hospital cell. As I lay on the cell bed utterly broken I called on the name of Jesus. Somehow just saying it made me feel good, my being received strength. I repeated it, "Jesus". I wrote a few scratchy lines to my old friend in the Christian re-habilitation centre, telling him that I knew I was a sinner who didn't deserve God's salvation, but wanted it. I began to believe in God and to pray. I knew my only hope was in Jesus, who died to deliver men from the bondage of sin and the penalty of death.

Eventually I went to Northwick Park, where I met people who really loved and cared for me. I was sorry for my past and wanted a new life. I prayed for forgiveness and asked Jesus to come into my life and He did. During the months that followed my conversion my mind was healed and the guilt of my life taken away. My life became meaningful and I grew to love Jesus more and more, and Jesus gave me a capacity to love others. I have known Jesus now for two and a half years and He has never failed me and has supplied all my needs. My own problems may appear very grievous, but there are many whose lives are in the same or even worse state. But whether you take drugs or not, everyone needs Jesus no matter what the extent of his problems.

Report on Skye: Response

Dear Friends,

Greetings in the Saviour's Name. We would like to take this opportunity of thanking every member of the Elim Church who, in any way, helped sponsor the recent Crusade to the Isle of Skye.

Both my wife and I have many happy memories of the time spent in Fellowship with all members of the team here in our own home and we were both greatly blessed by meeting and talking with them.

Praise the Lord, it was through speaking to members of the team that we sought and received Baptism in the Holy Spirit. We both feel closer to our Lord than we ever thought possible and this has helped us to go on with Him in His work.

Thank you for your prayer support and we would ask you all to continue praying for the work here in Skye as we feel it is only really beginning and that before very long the Lord will put the burden on your hearts to send the team once again to our island.

God Bless you all,

Jim and Della Marshall

The Field Superintendent wishes to express grateful thanks for the following anonymous gifts to the Skye Evangelistic Project:

A sister in Christ of the Eldad Church, St. Peter Port — £10; G.L.B. Walthamstow — £5; O.A.P. — Torquay — £1.

Jesus is not Lord

by David Woodfield,
Member of Elim Youth Committee

FOR millions of people living today, JESUS IS NOT LORD. He is anything but Lord. To many folks in this country He is an obscure figure, something between Father Christmas and Robin Hood. To some He is no different than Buddha or Krishna. To others He was a left wing revolutionary. Some see Him as a divine teacher with advanced knowledge of the universe. To some people He is a nuisance. Most folk never give Him a thought. Sad to say there are still people who have never even heard of Him. No, He is not Lord.

BUT HE IS LORD. He does not need the plaudits and acknowledgement of men to make Him Lord. He has always been Lord and He always will be. There is no-one greater than Jesus in heaven; upon earth or under the earth. He is above all others and He has a name far above all names. He is Lord.

He is Lord over creation because He made it all. He is Lord over Satan and evil powers because He destroyed them whilst on the cross. He is Lord over death because He came back to life. He is Lord over the Church because He planned it and is building it. In fact, He is Lord of all.

Christian, He is your Lord. Every area of your life is under His control. He is the centre of all your actions, desires and motives. Nothing has a greater place in your life than Jesus. No-one else has pre-eminence over Him. HE IS LORD.

If only that last sentence were true. We know it ought to be like that, and often we deeply long for it to be like that, but if we are honest with ourselves, we know that there are areas of our lives which have never been handed over to Him. That habit we cannot break and which has such a grip upon us. He's not Lord of that. The doubtful friendship that we're not sure about. Perhaps the places we go to or the way we spend our money and time. What about these areas? If He is not Lord of them then who is?

Jesus has the right to be Lord over every area of our life.

Take for instance the physical part of us. Our body. The eyes with which we see; the ears with which we hear; the mouth with which we speak; the hands with which we work and do; the feet with which we walk and go places. Are the things I read and see; the things I hear and say; the things I do and the places I go to, are they all under the control of Jesus the Lord? Has my body been presented to God as a living sacrifice?

What about our mentality? The part the Bible calls the soul. This is the emotional part of me that has to do with loving. The intellectual part of me that has to do with my thinking. The volitional part of me that has to do with choosing. What do I love most? What are my thoughts and desires like? Who chooses the way for me? Is Jesus Lord here?

And then there is the spiritual part of us. The part that is so closely linked with God. The part of me that is affected by my praying; my reading of God's Word; my attendance at God's house; my tithing of God's money. Jesus needs to be Lord of this area too.

It will not be long now until every knee will have to bow to Jesus and every tongue will confess that He is Lord. Ours is the privilege of making Jesus Lord of every area of our life right now. He has every right to every part of us because we are not our own. He has bought us at tremendous cost. We Christians have no rights at all for we are His, and HE IS LORD.

Monday, October 28th

Revelation 1:9-20

"I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day" (v.10). JOHN explains his situation. He tells how he was banished on the Isle of Patmos. Out of touch with the general world but in touch with the Spirit of God. Although we may be out of touch in the material realm, we need never be out of touch with God.

"I am he that liveth and was dead" (v.18).

Fear not, for although we cannot see Him with naked eye, "He ever liveth" and "hath shed forth this which ye now see and hear" (Acts 2:33). His Spirit is here to guide, to quicken and to empower. "Receive ye the Holy Ghost."

Tuesday, October 29th

Revelation 2:1-7

"who walketh in the midst" (v.1).

IT IS the assurance that One walks among His people that has brought untold joy to the people of God. This is our guarantee of life, peace, joy and satisfaction, and enables us to walk with firm steps in the midst of trying circumstances. Without the revelation of His presence, and the thrill of His touch upon our lives, life would be empty, but Praise God He is always there!

Wednesday, October 30th

Revelation 2:8-11

"and I will give thee a crown of life" (v.10).

REVELATION is a wonderful book, filled with tremendous promises. To the faithful Jesus says, "I will give thee." Oh the lavish displays of His love towards us, yet He is not impoverished by His much giving; from a never ending supply He has sufficient for all. The cup of His supply and the bucket of His mercies, are new every morning. "He giveth, and giveth and giveth again".

Thursday, October 31st

Revelation 2:12-17

"To him that overcometh I will give to eat of the hidden manna" (v.17).

HERE is the promise of hidden food for those who are hiding in Him. Those hidden by God have meat to eat that others know not of (John 4:32). And lest we doubt its quality, the Psalmist assures us that it is the finest available (Psalm 147:14). O taste and see that the Lord is good. Dine upon His provision and be satisfied.

Friday, November 1st

Revelation 2:18-29

"... the morning star" (v.28).

CHRIST says in chapter 22:16 that He is Himself the morning star. The morning star is the immediate forerunner of the day. During the saints' weary night of watching, they have the Word of God to shed its light upon their path. When the morning star is given to the overcomers, they will be drawn into so close a relationship to Christ that their hearts will be fully illuminated with His Spirit, and they will walk in His light.

Hasten on, O glorious moment, when the light of heavens bright day, shall shine upon the uplifted faces of His own.

Saturday, November 2nd

Revelation 3:1-6

"... and they shall walk with me in white" (v.4).

THE LORD is mindful of His people in every place, however few their numbers. Lonely Christian, with none of like faith to commune with, do you ever feel that the hosts of unbelievers would consume you? You are not unnoticed or forgotten by your Lord. The multitude around you cannot hide you from His view, and by keeping unspotted from surrounding evil the promise is sure to you. "Clothed in white" this speaks of the white raiment of the overcomer; these will walk with your Lord in glory.

Sunday, November 3rd

Revelation 3:7-13

"Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast" (v.11).

THE second coming of Christ is brought to view, with more startling emphasis than elsewhere in Scripture. The nearness of that event is here urged upon the attention of believers. From these messages we see the imminent return, so hold fast.

Let no one, and no thing, induce you to yeild up the truth, or turn you from the ways of the Lord; for by so doing they will cause you to lose your reward. To Overcomers there is the promise of being a pillar in the temple of God.

Editorial

SO THE General Election is over and we now know who are to be our leaders for the next few years.

There are several lessons that we may profitably learn from the present situation.

It seems that modern elections are won or lost, at least in some people's estimation, but the success or failure of the party leader's ability to project his own image. The individual personal qualities of our political leaders, of all persuasions, gives very little cause for confidence. Why is it that so many, who have so little to say for years, seem to be so full of brilliant ideas when their time for re-election comes round? Where have the men of calibre and individual conviction gone? Have they all been crushed by the party machine?

The nation of Israel were content for a time to be directed from above, yet as Samuel the prophet advanced in years, they requested that they might have more tangible evidence, especially as his sons were not walking in the footsteps of their father. They compared what they had at present, with what they thought they would have with the passage of time; they could not see beyond Samuel, or at least not past his sons. At the same time they did not mind casting their eyes to their neighbours in Philistia. The solution proposed by these carnal men was for a leader of their own choice, preferably the one that looked the best; the bigger the better. The man whom they chose was 'head and shoulders above' those around him. The newly chosen national leader was soon faced with a giant problem in the form of Goliath of Gath, who was head and shoulders above even the massive frame of Saul son of Tish. When the time came for the aged Samuel to anoint a successor to Saul, even he looked first at Eliab, in the hope that such a man would be the Lord's choice. The man who was hardly counted even by his own father, such a man was the one chosen by divine approval, and it was through him that the nation was to recover something of its true identity.

We must have leaders both in the Nation and in the Church but the standard by which the Church is to be led is by those who are designated "Men of God".

Our readers will notice that with this week's issue we have had to increase the price of the EVANGEL. This increase has been brought about partly by the increase in postal charges which now run to over £75. per week and also of course the steep rise in the price of materials used in printing the magazine.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons. Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER:
We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7.
THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE:
We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

DOWLAIS

Pastor: J.A. Crimp

WITH the prospective closing down of the Elim Tabernacle, due to redevelopment in the area, we held our final services on September 14th and 15th. Saturday evening was tinged with nostalgia and not a little sadness as in reminiscent mood we recalled the former years. All were thrilled and blessed as members related their varied experiences under the good hand of God. The church, affectionately referred to as "The Mission", was the first one brought into Elim, and for a number of years was favoured with the miraculous ministry of brothers Stephen and George Jeffreys. It was also the spiritual home of many wonderful saints, giants in the faith — now with the Lord — whose faithful ministry in church and Sunday School brought forth loving tributes from those taking part. Sunday morning was a time of rich blessing as we came to worship the Lord at His table, and God, through the gifts of the Holy Spirit, exhorted us to a full consecration, with the assurance of His continued presence with us wherever we may go.

At the final gospel meeting, which culminated in a baptismal service, we were happy to welcome a number of visiting friends. We rejoiced as a young man and his sister, recently restored to the Lord, were baptised, but greater still our rejoicing when a young woman, who had been attending our meetings for some time, wept as she opened her heart to receive Jesus Christ as her Lord and Saviour.

As we now go to an alternative place of worship until our new church building is completed in the spring, we give God all the glory, praising Him for all that is past and fully trusting Him for all that is yet to come.

MRS. G. CRIMP

BRAINTREE

Pastor: A.P. Atkinson

SINCE October 1971 when Pastor Atkinson came to our Church, the Lord has really blessed our children's work. On his arrival we had a small Sunday school, with about a dozen children. Soon after he came, we decided to change the name to "Good News Club". This soon began to grow, and children gave their hearts to the Lord. We then began to pray about other areas of the town and the Lord opened up a community centre at the other end of the town, which we are able to have every Sunday afternoon.

Over fifty children came. Some knew nothing about the Lord, but many came to know Him personally. Since we started this "Good News Club" many other children have started to attend.

We then had a home offered to us as there is not a church or hall in that particular area. The first week there were only half a dozen children, but within two or three weeks we were full to capacity, with around thirty-five children in this small front room. Praise God, there is a community centre being built in the area so in a few months we should be able to use this, and increase this work further. At the same time the number at the church has also increased to about thirty-five and we have been able to open a club on Wednesday nights. This October we plan to start a fourth club in the nearby village of Silver End. A much earlier Sunday school held in the village of White Notley, started eleven years ago, was getting rather low, but it has now taken on a new lease of life. Now with all the clubs we are ministering to around 130 children each week. We praise the Lord for what He has done, and for what is yet to come.

(Miss) S. BROOKS

BRECON

Pastor: G.H. Neale

THE Lord continues to bless the work at Brecon, for which we praise and thank Him. Over the past months we have had the joy of welcoming three new persons into church membership and have also seen three young men, who were saved in our church, being baptised in water, this being the second baptismal service this year. Our harvest thanksgiving was an opportunity to make new contacts. Our guest preacher was Mr. S. Bowen, a deacon of our Aberystwyth Church.

YEOVIL

Pastor: E.J. Thomas

THE Lord has been much in evidence in our services in recent weeks and we have had wonderful blessings.

Barwick House School, near Yeovil, is a school for boys who are in need of care and protection. Some of the boys are from broken homes, some of their parents do not want them and others are orphans. The main thing that has been missing in their young lives is love.

A few months ago one of these boys started to come to our services. He brought another and so on, until we had about a dozen boys attending the services each Sunday. Each of the boys found Christ as Saviour. Quite often the boys would be found in our Tuesday night prayer meetings and they also attended the young people's meetings.

God was still working on that school and on Sunday 7th July, we had the honour of holding an end of term church parade in our church. The boys (all fifty-six of them) marched into church in their naval uniforms, accompanied by their Lieut-Commander. We had the ministry in song of the Harvesters and also Mrs. Barbara Moore and her sister, Mrs. Ann Smith. Then Pastor Thomas delivered his message on the love of God. How the boys listened to the Word!

When the appeal went forth forty-two hands went up for salvation. Over thirty were the boys from Barwick. We pray that the hand of the Lord will be on them guiding and keeping them.

PETERBOROUGH

Pastor: K.J. Cave

THE three months preceeding our third Anniversary have been full of blessing and happenings among our various sections of the fellowship.

Following our Sunday school outing, when over 200 spent a great day by the sea, a third Sunday school was added to us, with a ready-made, double figure nucleus of young people. We now have Schools in two of the largest areas of expansion programmed for Peterborough.

Little ones have been dedicated to the Lord, and new members have been received into the local Church. Three groups have shared fun and fellowship in Holiday Camps at Lowestoft and the Isle of Wight, where young lives have been given over to the Lord. The Holiday Bible Club in August was attended by the devil, who sought to disrupt in many ways, but we entered our Adventure week with Jesus and won the victory, as new girls and boys heard the happy message that Jesus Saves!

On Anniversary day brothers and sisters from Nuneaton, Leicester and Northampton shared an afternoon of sporting activity, and although the local girls won the rounders trophy their male counterparts fell short of perfection in the football league, and subscribed to the victories of others on the grounds that if you can't beat 'em, help 'em to win!

The church was full to capacity for the evening Rally when Pastor Ron Williams was introduced as our week-end speaker. The opening hymn "Who is on the Lord's side" was joyfully thundered out, the congregation rising to the last crescendo "Saviour we are Thine". Items were presented by young people from Northampton with music in the modern idiom, concluding on a note of witness "Let me tell you what my Lord can do". Pastor Williams spoke positively of the manner of men we ought to be, citing the three mighty men of David (2 Samuel 23:8-12) in a powerful address.

Sunday morning, and prior to sharing fellowship around the Lord's Table, we were reminded again of the powerfulness of the Grace of God which is our sufficiency in all situations. Our Guitar Group during the evening presented the Gospel with effective appeal. The final message was a direct challenge to those "not far from the Kingdom", and as we sung our closing hymn "All must be well" we prayed that the Word that does not return void shall be accepted in the hearts of the hearers and Jesus magnified.

In looking back we rejoice in all that has been accomplished in Peterborough through the effective witness of Pastor Cave among us, and now look ahead for greater things.

AN eleven-day crusade has just concluded and we thank God for the moving of His Spirit in bringing many people into the church for the first time to hear the gospel faithfully proclaimed by Pastor E. McComb, minister of our Alexandra Park Avenue Church, Belfast. Despite some poor weather and roadblocks (familiar now in Belfast), attendances increased as the crusade progressed. Some testified to healing and one young lad made a public acceptance of the Lord. Many others were deeply moved by the Word of God and we are looking for a reaping in the near future.

Children's meetings were conducted by N. Christie and the response was more immediate. Many children were counselled and there has been an increase in the Sunday school and Sunshine Corner meetings.

New opportunities are open to us and a new enthusiasm has been engendered in the Church. We are looking forward to a greater move of God in the district.

Thoughts on the book of Revelation

The Lamb and the sealed Book Chapter 5

by Charles J. E. Kingston

JOHN still gazes at the Throne. Out of the brilliant light, hiding God's glorious Person, John sees a stretched-out hand and on it a seven-sealed book or roll.

This action from the Throne is felt to be of tremendous importance to all in Heaven; all eyes are riveted on the sealed roll. A challenge is flung out for one worthy to unloose the seals. When no one answers the challenge John begins to weep copiously but is commanded to dry his tears for "the Lion of the tribe of Judah" has conquered to open the book.

The seven-sealed book.

This was a roll, not a book in the modern sense, and the whole theme of Revelation revolves around it. The seals contain the "story-flow" of Revelation, not the written, but undisclosed, contents of the roll itself.

This is important since the roll, as we shall see later, is the title-deed of man's forfeited inheritance of this earth. Sold to Satan for nought (Isaiah 52:3), the words inscribed within the roll could well have been notice of the transfer of man's rights in the governance of this world (Genesis 1:26-28) to Satan, following man's disobedience to his Creator.

Thus, when Jesus, our Kinsman-Redeemer, came to pay the Ransom price, Satan offered Him the kingdoms of the world in return for one act of obedience to him instead of the full price demanded by the mortgage-deed, death by the mortgagor-sinners or by their Kinsman-Redeemer Himself on their behalf.

No wonder John "wept much" when "no man, in Heaven, nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the book" (v.3). Was there to be no redeemer, then? Is mankind eternally lost? Will no one have pity and in love, redeem? John's fears are allayed when the Lamb takes the roll from the hand of God.

The meaning of the sealed roll.

The fact that the challenge brings the Lord Jesus, as the slain Lamb, to take the roll, as the only one able to do so, proves that the roll has reference to our redemption. John looked for a lion and saw only the Lamb, still bearing the marks of the wounds of His sacrifice, but alive and victorious.

The sealed roll cannot therefore contain the secular history of Christendom or even of the Christian Church. One cannot imagine John weeping from unsatisfied curiosity over such mundane matters as these. To understand the real meaning of the roll we must compare Scripture with Scripture.

The roll in Scripture.

Under Mosaic law, land could never be finally alienated from the tribe or family in Israel which owned it. If, through distress or debt, it was sold to a stranger it had to be returned by him to the original owner in the Jubilee year. However, a kinsman could redeem the land at any time before this date. When an inheritance was sold, two deeds recorded the transaction; one open, the other sealed (Leviticus 25:25-28; Jeremiah 6:6-12). Later, instead of two deeds, one only was used, written on both sides so that, when rolled up and sealed, the terms of the redemption price could be read on the outer side.

A beautiful illustration of the working of this law is recorded in the book of Ruth (Ruth 4:3, 4), Naomi could not buy back her inheritance, sold when the family emigrated to Moab, so Boaz offered to do so and got a wife into the bargain!

Jesus, our Kinsman, (bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh), redeemed us by His own blood "as of a lamb without blemish" (1 Peter 1:18, 19), which is why John saw Him as a Lamb, wounded to death for us sinners, but alive and triumphant in Heaven and able to take the roll and break the seals. And He has, besides ransoming our inheritance and us, obtained His Bride, the ransomed Church (Revelation 19:9; 21:9).

The scope of the seven-sealed roll.

Scripture shows that there are to come "times of restitution of all things" (Acts 3:20, 21) but this is linked with the return of our Lord, who will come to take over the restored "all things". Completed redemption awaits the second advent of Jesus. Redeemed from sin by His precious blood we yet await the final act of redemption. We have already received "the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession" (Ephesians 1:14). Indeed, the whole creation awaits the day of deliverance from the effects of sin, as we, too, wait for the "redemption of our body" (Romans 8:19-23).

As said above, the "story-flow" of the book of Revelation is carried in the seven seals; the seventh seal brings into view the seven trumpets and the seventh trumpet ushers in the seven vials of wrath. Occasionally, the "story-flow" is interrupted to give "insets", or chapters, with fuller details of some of the characters taking part in the drama.

Set out diagrammatically, it would look like this.

Seals* 1 2 3 4 5 6 7

Trumpets† 1 2 3 4 5 6 7

Vials 1 2 3 4 5 6 7

*(Revelation 8:1,2) †(Revelation 11:19 with 15:5,6)

To sum up.

The sealed roll is the mortgage deed of our alienated inheritance; only Jesus, as the slain Lamb, can pay the price of our redemption from the slavery of sin and Satan; the deed has lain on the hand of God awaiting the day of redemption; the "times and seasons, which the Father has put in His power" (Acts 1:6, 7) having arrived Jesus dramatically proceeds to take over from the usurper the Kingship of the world. Each seal, each trumpet, each vial marks a further stage in events until finally Jesus reigns. Hallelujah!

Creation's response.

First the cherubim worship the Lamb; then the twenty-four elders sing a new song of redemption and joyfully anticipate reigning with Christ on earth; then a multitude of heavenly angels (unnoticed hitherto but no doubt silent watchers of the events recorded in this chapter) burst into song; finally, the whole of creation in Heaven, on earth, in the sea, and under the earth (i.e. in hell) (Compare Phillipians 2:10, 11) join in the chorus of praise to God and the Lamb. When John Bunyan got a glimpse into Heaven he said: "When I had seen, I wished myself among them". And we too, shall be, on that great day, by His grace.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

30. Divine Faithfulness (Exodus 16:4)

by F. Lavender,

Pastor of our Croydon Church

DIVINE faithfulness is the one fact more remarkable than human fickleness. Time after time the Lord has shown His love and power, all that He did testified to His tender concern for Israel; yet they constantly provoked Him by their unbelief. We might reasonably expect the Lord to turn from them but instead, He patiently provided for their needs. Israel's fickleness could not change the faithfulness of God!

The Lord Jesus declared: "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father"; and we see how He wonderfully revealed the faithfulness of God. He came to seek and to save those who were lost in sin, yet those very ones hated and rejected Him. They were willing to eat the bread He miraculously provided, and to receive healing from Him, but they loved their sin so much that they hated Him for exposing it. In spite of the evil which they did to Him, He still loved them; their faithfulness did not turn Him from the Father's will. We can only marvel and worship before His unfailing faithfulness (John 13:1).

We live in an age of increasing human unfaithfulness. So often men and women will break the most solemn promises. The Word warns: "Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived" (2 Timothy 3:13). In such days as these one thought should give us great strength; man's faithlessness cannot effect the faithfulness of God. The apostle Paul said: "God will be true though every man is a liar". The Lord said that man will not be allowed to destroy himself (Matthew 24:22); for He shall intervene in order that His Son may reign over the earth. This purpose has not changed, He will fulfil His promise, and we can look, with complete trust, beyond the darkness of this age to the glory of the coming of Christ and His wonderful reign.

DID YOU ever hear of Hart P. Danks? He and his devoted wife spent many happy days together.

Then he composed "Silver Threads Among the Gold," a ballad which brought him fame and fortune. Wealth destroyed their beautiful dreams of growing old together. Instead it brought discord and separation.

After Danks died in 1903, an old copy of his famous song was found on which he had written "It's hard to grow old alone." He was famous, but something was missing.

Some find fulfillment in education. Man has an insatiable desire for knowledge; and the peak of success, in the minds of some, is to write a book and get it published. It's reported that one of the oldest known bits of writing in the world, the Presse Papyrus in the Municipal Museum in Istanbul, states that "everyone wants to write a book."

But one day a Chicago policeman caught a man trying to break into a safe. It turned out the man was a research analyst! He was a graduate of the University of Chicago. He had earned a psychology degree from the University of Kansas, studied law for a year at the University of Missouri, and was working on a doctorate in psychology at Northwestern University when he turned to safecracking! Evidently education was not the answer to his quest.

Some find happiness in music. Felix Powell composed the tune, "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag and Smile, Smile, Smile"—the ditty that made a singing army of American troops in World War I.

But 27 years later Felix sat down at a piano and played his tune for the last time. He found no comfort in the song—so he went to another room and killed himself.

Then there was Major Bryon L. Bennett. He played a large part in developing the Salk antipolio vaccine. Surely there would be a great degree of satisfaction in knowing he had helped save thousands from polio—but Bennett became despondent and shot himself fatally.

What was missing? Why do people work and study, make every effort to be successful, only to end up disappointed, disillusioned, dissatisfied, and discouraged?

Sometimes they aim at the wrong goal. Like the young heir who thought that money and pleasure would bring happiness. In his own words, he "tried everything." Finally he wrote on the flyleaf of a book, "Died of old age at 21"—and committed suicide.

But even among people who work for worthy goals, there is discontent. They may succeed in their business or profession, yet fail to find happiness.

The reason, in many cases, is that they do not know Christ. They have never found that rest for their spirits that Christ offers to give. "Come unto me," He says, "and I will give you rest."

That inner peace and contentment will come when they give God first place in their lives and set aside time for prayer and Bible reading by which they can get acquainted with Christ.

David found what is missing in so many lives. He sang a song to God in which he was able to say, "Thou wilt show me the path of life: in thy presence is fullness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore" (Psalm 16:11).

Something was missing

Once he played a leading part in "Hair";
now he sings about Jesus.

From 'GRASS' to GRACE

BARRY McGuIRE thought he was a god, lived as if liberation was the answer, and believed Christianity was outdated.

Fortunately for him, God didn't think Barry McGuire was outdated.

Barry McGuire was a leading actor in the Broadway production of "Hair" in New York and also wrote the well-known song, "Eve of Destruction."

The idea of becoming a Christian had never entered his mind. To him Christianity with its "rules and regulations" was the reason for the problems in the world.

I thought it was impossible for us to live up to the Ten Commandments, so why should we try to?" he said. "If we could just get rid of those archaic, outdated Commandments, then we could take our place as human beings in the world."

Liberation was his "whole thing." That was what "Hair" was all about when he starred in it.

"I felt we were all gods and if we would finally realize that we were gods, then we could take our place as gods," he said.

"Well, all my different philosophies, when carried to the ultimate end, led to a dead end. Nothing worked."

Barry met people who carried his philosophies to the extreme, and they were "just monsters."

"If you are going to be liberal how liberal are you going to be? I backed up a little bit and started looking for some absolutes."

THEN ONE DAY he was confronted by a man in the street who told Barry that Jesus was the Son of God.

Barry said, "I tried to forget what the man told me, but the thing kept ringing in my memory. I couldn't forget what he said about Jesus."

Barry had been in the drug world for about 10 years. One day, about a month after his street "confrontation," he went to the home of a friend who had some "grass" under the coffee table.

That particular day the friend had a copy of "Good News for Modern Man" (the American Bible Society's translation of the New Testament in Today's English Version) on the table. Barry didn't know it was the New Testament.

"I thought, Hey, I am a modern man and I could use some good news."

BARRY took the book home. "The first thing I saw was that it was the New Testament. I said, 'Oh, no! It's that Jesus trip again.'"

"When I started to read the words of Jesus, I was 35 years old. I had never read a Bible in my life. Man, it just convicted me; it opened my eyes; it showed me who I was, where

I was, who God was, who Jesus was, the link between God and myself through Christ, what the Resurrection and Crucifixion were all about.

"It was just so heavy for me that I didn't know what to do.

"I felt that, well, Jesus is the Son of God. This is the truth. Then I saw my life and I felt, man, I will never be able to accept Jesus as my Saviour, I will never be able to change the way I am living.

"It really knocked me down because all my life I had been going one direction—and all of a sudden I realized it was wrong.

"There I was at the end of the road and it was the wrong road; so I felt, 'Well, I have blown it!'"

Barry decided that if he was going to be in hell a long time, he might as well go out and live it up.

"But I tell you, because I knew the truth I couldn't have fun any-

The Picture Bible for All Ages

Volume 1

CREATION

This is one of six picture strip books covering the whole Bible. It begins with creation and concludes with the giving of the ten commandments. The drawings are in black and white and there are carefully chosen comments, all of which are well done and faithful to the Scriptures. I was impressed by the quality of this book, especially as it only costs 40p. It is cheap but of good quality, and this goes for all of its 157 pages. Its widest appeal will be to children and young people, but the claim on the cover that it is for all ages is not easily dismissed. I heartily recommend it, and hope it will have a big sale. I feel sure it will have, because this first volume made me want to get the other five.

CREATION—Comment by Elizabeth Jones (aged thirteen)

The book CREATION has been put together very well. Good detail gives a real impression of what life was like in early Bible times. The Bible being presented in picture form can now be read by many different age groups. The pictures are well drawn but not over done or childish. It is a very interesting book to read, and puts over the Word of God very well to the unbeliever, as well as to the believer. On the whole I thought it was a very good book, and I enjoyed reading it.

The trespass offering

by J. Alexander Wright

FOREMOST in Jehovah's gracious provision for His people Israel were the five offerings of Leviticus chapters 1 to 7 which set out the five stages on the pathway to reconciliation and fellowship with God, designed, with their typical significance, to bring us to the beating heart and centre of our Christian faith, the many-sided sacrifice of Calvary.

The fifth and last was the Trespass Offering, chapters 5 to 7. Whereas the fourth, the Sin Offering, dealt with the principle of sin, in general, this one had to do with the matter of specific sins, Godward and manward. Sacrifice and confession were to be made to God, and restitution and amendment to the person or persons wronged. Ignorance was no excuse: "Though he wist not, yet is he guilty" (5:17). The restitution was to be to the value of the thing in question, plus one fifth, (6:5), or, as we might put it, 120 pence for each pound. How thoroughly changed in heart and mind was Zacchaeus (Luke 19) who did not merely promise to pay for past wrongs, but declared that where he had inadvertently overcharged anyone he was already paying such £4 for every £1. On top of that he gave half of his income to the poor. No neat and precise tither he, careless of personal wealth, he was assuredly a true son of Abraham, and not merely a descendant. (John 8:39).

When speaking of these things to the students of our Bible College, the writer stressed the need for an emphasis on the matter, of sinners saved by grace doing all in their power to make amends for their past misdeeds, which, in the mercy of God, have been forgiven them. (Ephesians 1:7; Colossians 2:13.R.V. and RSV). I told the story of the newly-converted Irishman who, when approached about the matter of a little debt outstanding, replied, "Sure the Lord has forgiven me all my debts!", and stressed the need for candidates to the Christian ministry above all people, doing their utmost to right past wrongs in their own lives, for how could they preach to others about the transforming power of Jesus Christ if they haven't done so?

Years later, a thief repents

A THIEF who kept a secret for years has handed over £30 "conscience money" to a Birmingham store.

The "repentant sinner" claimed in an anonymous letter that the money was for "stuff stolen years ago."

New officials at the Birmingham and District Co-operative Society say they would welcome any other offers of goods every year. A spokesman said: "Let us just say it would be a nice bonus."

Evening Mail Reporter

The money, in a brown envelope posted in Birmingham, arrived at the society's offices in the city centre.

A CHRISTIAN

It was accompanied by a hand-written message on a scrap of paper. It read: "Dear Sir, I am now a Christian and the Lord Jesus Christ has completely changed my life. The letter was signed: 'Sinner saved by Grace'."

The Co-op spokesman said: "We have no idea what was stolen or how long ago it happened. But this is certainly very nice. We have thousands of pounds worth of goods stolen every year."

How the message was signed...

A sinner saved by Grace

This may involve long-standing apologies due, public or private, and even financial restitution, which should never be done merely by letter if the wronged one is accessible, but ever personally, if possible.

We testify that down the long years after conversion, as memory has afforded, we have personally sought to do this, even in the matter of childish and youthful escapades, and that the reward of so doing has brought rich inward peace and contentment, the blessing of the Trespass Offering!

As for the people wronged, whose forgiveness we sought, they have been wonderful.

The young man

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

THE people wondered a great deal about the young man who lived in the woods. Children talked about him in the playground and customers discussed him in the shops. "He's a strange man", said one. "He lives all alone and eats wild honey".

"He wears such strange clothes", said another. "I think he must make them out of camel's hair!"

"He says such strange things, who can he be?"

"Well, I heard he comes from Hebron and that his father was a priest", the shopkeeper said.

"I was at school with his mother, Elizabeth", one of the women said.

One day they asked him if he was the Great One who was to come from heaven. "Oh, no", the man replied. "I am just the messenger preparing the way".

Each night when the man settled down in the woods, he thought of the day, many years before, when he came home from school and his parents told him that he was to prepare the way of the Lord. He thought what a lonely task he had, for there was no one to talk to or share his thoughts with. But God was with him and he was happy doing the work God wanted him to do, preaching to the people and baptising them. They nicknamed him John the Baptist.

From far and wide people came in their thousands to watch the baptisms in the river Jordan. Among the crowd was a young country man who came every day to listen and watch. When John had finished baptising one day, the young man stepped into the water and asked to be baptised. John stared at him and wondered who he was and what he thought he was doing. Then the man looked into John's eyes and suddenly John knew! This was the day he had longed for, the person he had waited patiently to see — Jesus, the hope of all Israel, stood before him, and He wanted John to baptise Him!

"Oh, but I can't!" said John. "I am only a poor man! How can I baptise You?"

"Go ahead", Jesus told him.

As Jesus rose from the water a truly wonderful thing happened. A voice from heaven said, "This is My beloved Son in Whom I am well pleased".

John knew that at last he had found the Christ. He would never forget that day. No-one can ever forget the day he found Jesus! Have you met Him yet?

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

A SKILLED electrician was asked if it were true that electricity could not get into you unless it can get out of you again. "That is quite true", said the man, "I know that almost to my own sorrow. Years ago when I worked in a coal mine my brother was operating the underground train, while I was on the rear. Suddenly the tracks divided and my head was caught in the overhead 'frog' of the circuit. There I was suspended for a moment, my feet just clearing the ground, which explains my being here today. You see, the high voltage current couldn't get into me because it couldn't get out of me again".

I believe that story has something to say to us as Pentecostals. To be baptised in the Holy Spirit is to receive God's power, but can it get out of us again? If not, does this explain why, since our baptism, we have not been blessed with subsequent fillings of God's power? Certainly we need to be constantly filled with the Holy Spirit. "Ever be filled and stimulated with the Holy Spirit" (Ephesians 5:18 Amplified Bible).

One man has said that privileges and responsibilities are like twins — they come in pairs. The privilege of being blessed is invariably linked with the responsibility of being a blessing; and this applies to the baptism of the Holy Spirit. Remember, God's power cannot get into you, unless it can get out again, it has to be shared with others greatly needing that power.

Love's Demonstration

IT was the occasion of the fortieth anniversary of my husband's entry into the Elim ministry. I suppose it could be said that I was basking in the reflected glory, for quite unexpectedly I was confronted by two charming little girls bearing a magnificent bouquet of flowers in tints of gold, palest yellow, bronze and orange. The other floral tribute was a single gold tea-rose just a simple button-hole. Our little friends, usually with plenty to say, were speechless, overwhelmed by the importance of the occasion and the watching congregation. Looking down into their smiling faces as they proffered the flowers, I said, "Are you going to give me a kiss?". Sarah responded immediately, but little Samantha shook her head, turned from me and, holding her arms up, gave my husband a hug and a loving kiss.

I was surprised and amused at this incident, which was to have a sequel. "Why wouldn't you kiss Mrs. Laddow?" asked a friend later. "Oh well", replied the astute little maid, "She had a lovely big bunch of flowers, but Pastor only had one little flower so I kissed him". What a delightful glimpse into the logic ticking over in the mind of a four years old child.

We can learn from what I've related and in the process can search our hearts and examine the hidden motives which govern our actions. The British temperament is traditionally reserved and as a nation we are not particularly demonstrative, but, when we consider our function in the Church, the Body of Christ, as believers we must be motivated by a love and concern which have an outward expression.

It is a great pity that shyness or reserve prevents many people from showing their love. Christians fail to act or speak to register appreciation until it is too late. What a great need there is for this ministry of encouragement and surely true love over-rides even natural reticence. A wonderful example of love and appreciation expressed in lavish giving has been recorded for us in the gospels. I refer to the unnamed woman who, regardless of the fact that she was known as a sinner, expressed her love and devotion to the Lord Jesus in front of the watching critics. There were tears of repentance, kisses which conveyed far more than words, and the gift of the alabaster box of ointment, broken and used to anoint the Saviour. What a contrast to the cold, formal reception afforded to Jesus by his host, Simon the Pharisee.

Jesus was a warm, loving person and He responded readily to the love and worship poured out. He saw nothing ludicrous or unseemly in the emotions of the woman. He commended the extravagance of her giving and decreed that it should be remembered always and told wherever the gospel would be preached.

Do you express your love to the Lord Jesus? Do you show your appreciation of your fellow-believers? Never become so matter of fact or inhibited that you hesitate or even refuse to do a loving deed when prompted by the Holy Spirit. We can give and receive such joy when, like little Samantha, we yield to the promptings of love, for love is of God, as I once heard it said "He's made of the stuff". The proof of His love is His giving. "God so loved that He gave" and, as Paul triumphantly summed it up, "He that spared not His own Son. . . how shall He not with Him freely give us all things?" (Romans 8:32). We can have no doubt whatsoever of God's love for us. May He never have cause to doubt our love for Him and for those of the household of faith.

Love

LOVE bade me welcome; yet my soul drew back,
Guilty of dust and sin.
But quick-eyed Love, observing me grow slack
From my first entrance in,
Drew nearer to me, sweetly questioning,
"If I lacked anything".

"A guest", I answered, "worthy to be here".
Love said, "You shall be he".
"I, the unkind, ungrateful? Ah, my dear,
I cannot look on Thee".
Love took my hand, and smiling, did reply,
"Who made the eyes but I?"

Happiness or holiness?

by Phillip Niblett, Pastor of our Gosport Church

WELL, which would you choose?

We often look upon these and think we can only have one but not both. For some, holiness seems to be the opposite of happiness, it is being restricted, pious, gloomy and completely unrelated to our surroundings. Nonsense is not a word I use very frequently regarding the views of others, but I gladly use it of such views as these. I am convinced that we can only know true happiness as we know true holiness. We often condemn the world for the fact that their pleasure is derived from things that don't last, and that they are only happy when things are going right for them. Yet it must honestly be said that many Christians are just the same. They only survive by going from one 'glory' meeting to another, and to give up some of their habits would really ruin their life.

Holiness is not popular because it is associated with unhappiness, whereas, it really brings true happiness by bringing us into a closer walk with God. Other circumstances do not matter so much, for He is always with us, so we can always rejoice. Think of Paul in the jail, able to rejoice; read Romans five and you will find how to be happy despite circumstance. "We also rejoice in our sufferings" (Romans 5:3 New International Version) (Psalm 16:11) "...in Thy presence is fulness of joy; at Thy right hand are pleasures for evermore". These things can only be fully known when we seek to live holy lives; but not "holier than thou" lives. Holiness is not a question of giving up it is a question of gaining.

Holiness is not being old-fashioned

Holiness goes far deeper than some people suppose, and is not determined by the fashion of any generation, whether it be old or new. Paul gave us the right guide line for a holy life when he wrote "Since you have been raised with Christ, set your hearts on things above, where Christ is seated at the right hand of God. Set your minds on things above, not on earthly things".

(Colossians 3:1, 2 N.I.V). When we truly seek Christ then first He will teach us our correct relationship to the things of this life; He will show us how to behave in the home, school or work-place.

Years ago when I used to ride a bicycle I learned that my dynamo-operated lights showed how much effort I was putting in. When I put all my effort in I got a brighter light; the Christian life is also like that. When we put Christ first we can see that our witness to others is greater. If we get so entangled with the pop music scene, the modern fashions, sport our boy-friends or girlfriends our Christian life must begin to suffer. When we come to that place where it is difficult to choose between doing something for Jesus, or our own pleasure we can realise our priorities have gone wrong, but don't get too depressed, just ask the Lord to bring you back to where you should be.

Well you know my views now, why not let the Editor or the National Youth Director know your views.

A.D. Sandford

Monday, November 4th

Revelation 3:14-22

"These things saith the Amen" (v.14).

THIS, then, is the final message to the churches and, although the description of the condition of the Laodicean church is fearful and startling, nevertheless it cannot be denied, for the Witness is "faithful and true". Moreover, He is "the beginning of creation" (v.14), and "without Him was not anything made".

It is true of the last Church, as of the first, that all their works are known to Him who walks in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks. While His threatenings to hypocrites and evil workers are awful, how comforting, gracious and glorious are His promises to those who love and follow Him with singleness of heart.

Tuesday, November 5th

Revelation 4:1-11

"They rest not" (v.8).

THE theme of constant worship of these Holy Beings is "Holy, holy, holy, Lord God almighty, which was, and is, and is to come" (v.8). No more precious strain ever passed created lips. They repeat it day and night, or rather continually, for there is no night where the throne of God is.

We sometimes shirk the repetition of a single testimony to the goodness and mercy of God, even perhaps being tempted to say nothing, but we learn a profitable lesson from the constant repetition of those who grew not weary. Praise never becomes monotonous, for with every utterance we gain a new view of His almightiness.

Wednesday, November 7th

Revelation 5:1-14

"And I beheld" (v.6).

JOHN had been introduced to heaven (4:1). Now by the same door he beheld the heavenly hosts. Ten thousand times ten thousand and thousands of thousands, Paul describes it as "an innumerable company". John saw this company and every voice was joined in song, singing "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain", a fitting song of admiration to Him, who, by the shedding of His blood, became a ransom for many, and who, as our great High Priest, still pleads its merits on our behalf.

Thursday, November 7th

Revelation 6:1-17

"How long, O Lord, . . . dost thou not judge and avenge? . . . And white robes were given unto every one of them" (vv.10, 11).

THESE had suffered persecution and loss, with their reputations tarnished and names defamed, but "vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord" (Romans 12:19). Then it was seen that they had suffered "for the Word of God, and for the testimony which they held" (v.9), and white robes were given to every one of them.

Seeming loss here will surely bring great reward when we arrive at home.

Friday, November 8th

Revelation 7:1-17

"The Lamb" (v.9).

AFTER the sealing is accomplished, John sees a countless multitude worshipping God in rapture before the throne. Saved out of every nation, kindred, tribe and tongue, they cry, "Salvation to our God which sitteth upon the throne and unto the Lamb" (v.19). The centre of heaven is the Lamb. The song of every heart gathered around his blessed feet will be "Blessing and glory and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might" (v.12). We are lost in wonder, love and praise!

Saturday, November 9th

Revelation 8:1-13

"The smoke of the incense, which came with the prayers of saints, ascended up before God" (v.4).

GOD has always placed value on prayer — secret, public, personal, communal. The cry of the youngest to the petition of the eldest must be answered and none escape His ear.

Do we realise the value, the wealth, the success, the protection and preservation that are ours through prayer? Pray on!

Sunday, November 10th

Revelation 9:1-21

"Neither repented they" (v.21).

GOD expects that we should note His judgments and act upon the lessons that they convey, but how slow we are to learn. The events under the sixth trumpet constitute the second woe, yet those who escaped learned nothing by their manifestation upon earth.

God "hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son" (Hebrews 1:2), and we would do well, not only to hear the truth, but also to act upon it. True repentance brings restitution.

"Truth, Lord, but I have marred them: let my shame Go where it doth deserve".

"And know you not", says Love, "who bore the blame?"
"My dear, then I will serve".

"You must sit down", says Love "and taste my meat".
So I did sit and eat.

PRAYER AND PRAISE

by F. H. Coleman

ON the radio the other day, I heard a man interviewed who, we were told, was the manager of the largest firm of publishers of religious books. He told us many interesting things, but my ears pricked up when he said that the Christian public bought more books on prayer than on theological or devotional subjects. How interesting is this! The Christian public want to know how to pray!

Why should Christians want to know how to pray? Has the Church been at fault in the teaching of this subject? Many hear in their churches prayers read from a book. Does this fail to meet their need of how to pray? Is it the fault of the vicars, the ministers, the pastors? Have they failed their people on this great and important subject? I am not in a position to answer this question, but, all the same, people want to know how to pray.

What is prayer? It is human need relying on divine sufficiency. Prayer is not an attempt to overcome God's will, but a desire to embrace His willingness. Jesus told us that prayer is not some complicated thing; it is simply asking. "Ask and ye shall receive". If we are sure that God is willing to give to us, we have simply to ask and to believe God will give to us. I can recall an evangelist who was greatly used of God telling me that, if he needed a great sum of money for the Lord's work, he would go to God in prayer, put the need before Him, then forget about it until the answer came. On one occasion, the need was put before God and shortly afterwards he and his wife, before setting off for a journey, were given a large box of chocolates. They ate the top layer of the chocolates and, on removing the paper underneath, found not chocolates, but bank notes. These notes were exactly the amount that they needed and had simply prayed for. I like chocolates in a box, but so far have discovered only chocolates under the paper! Perhaps I have not needed as this good man did!

The Elim Pentecostal Church launches a new magazine to be called DIAMOND JUBILEE MAGAZINE

36 pages and in four colours

The content will include: The Birth of Elim, by G. Canty; The Bible name "ELIM", by S. Gorman; The Ordinances, by J.T. Bradley; The Ministry Gifts, by T. W. Walker; The Gifts of the Spirit, by J. Lancaster; The Fruits of the Spirit, by D. Ayling; The Expansion of Elim, by A. Tee; The Challenge to Youth, by Eldin Corsie; Pentecostal Children, by A.A. Biddle; the Latter day outpouring of the Holy Spirit, including the Charismatic move among the traditional churches, by P.S. Brewster; some facts and figures, with an insight into our Elim Movement, by J.C. Smyth; Evangelism, by W. Lewis; the Baptism of the Spirit, by R. Hunston and the Royal Albert Hall Services, by D.B. Gray.

This will be a publication you will want to keep and also give to your cherished friends. The magazine will not only silently preach the gospel to the unsaved, but will give a wealth of information about the Elim Movement that can be passed on to church people everywhere. I suggest that Elim members place a copy of this Jubilee Magazine with — The Mayor, the local Council, the Library, the Hospitals, every minister in your town, Doctors' and Dentists' surgeries, etc. By doing this, you will become a witness and you could become a forerunner like John the Baptist. You will be a voice in the wilderness of this sinful age. The cost will only be 25p per copy, plus postage. Special discounts allowed for quantities, but CASH WITH ORDER to obtain discount. All orders to:

LIKE most preachers I have kept a file of odds and ends which I look through periodically, particularly if I am looking for inspiration. It was not lack of inspiration however, but rather the necessity of removal, that caused me to look through my collection very recently. Among a mixed collection, I came across a curious extract, which told me that Dr. John Lightfoot (1602-1675), who was Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge University in 1654, had once stated that the date October 24th, 4004 BC. "at 9 o'clock in the morning", was the precise date of the creation of man. This particular date, but not the time, he owed to James Ussher (1581-1656). Archbishop of Armagh in 1625, through whom they were to eventually find their way into many English Bibles, from their first appearance in the London Folio, issued in 1701. We suspect that this particular anniversary will have gone by almost unnoticed. A few people, like Jehovah's Witnesses, attach a great deal of importance to the precise date of creation; they do in fact very clearly teach that man's period on earth can be expected to reach its conclusion in the Autumn of 1975. By the curious addition of 4004 BC to the expected date of 1975, they arrive at the convenient figure of 6,000 which they make the total of man's dominion on earth. Curiously enough a similar view is put forward by the anonymous author of the Epistle of Barnabas, which is one of the books belonging to the New Testament Apocrypha. We do not complain that this particular anniversary has been overlooked, because it is almost certainly wrong; we are afraid however that a more important matters has been forgotten, and that is that GOD CREATED THE WORLD, and no man, be he politician or preacher, can ignore that fact.

GOD created the world and placed man therein. Firstly that he might have dominion over the created world, and secondly that the Creator and his creatures should have fellowship one with the another.

It would be difficult to improve upon the wording of the shorter Catechism when it asks the question: "What is the chief end of man?", giving as its majestic reply: "The chief end of man is to know God, and to enjoy Him for ever".

It may well be that the philosopher will say: "O man, know thyself". The Christian however recognises the authoritative statement of Scripture which says: "AND THIS IS LIFE ETERNAL, THAT THEY MIGHT KNOW THEE THE ONLY TRUE GOD, AND JESUS CHRIST, WHOM THOU HAST SENT" (John 17:3).

ILFORD

Pastor J.F. Hardman

SUNSHINE greeted those who made their way to share in a buffet tea held at the outset of a week-end's meetings marking the occasion of our minister's fortieth anniversary in the ministry. A highlight of the gathering was the cutting of a two-tier iced cake made by one of our sisters, Miss Doris Cable.

Many friends from other assemblies in the Presbytery joined with us for the evening meeting which was a joyous occasion as tokens of gratitude in letters from churches previously pastored by J.F. Hardman were read out, showing the high esteem with which he was held. Mr. Charles J. Pendrill, our church secretary, who so ably convened the meeting, expressed deep appreciation on behalf of the Ilford assembly for all his work and excellent ministry, as also did Pastor J. McBurney, who conveyed the good wishes of the Presbytery, with sincere thanks for Pastor Hardman's help as District Superintendent. Each concluded by handing a cheque to Pastor Hardman and a bouquet of flowers was presented to Mrs. Hardman by Mrs. Rose Langridge on behalf of the sisters. We were delighted to have as our guest soloist Pastor W.M.E. Plowright. Our guest preacher was Pastor P.S. Brewster (Secretary-General and Editor of World Pentecost). His message on faith, applied to our lives, resulted in the majority of the congregation standing to signify their willingness to trust God fully for the future both of their local assembly and the Elim Movement.

On Sunday morning, a spirit of praise prevailed. Mr. Brewster spoke on finding God's place in the church. A good number gathered for the evening gospel service during which Pastor and Mrs. Hardman and their daughter Pamela, who, with her husband and family, was with us for the week-end, rendered family musical items to the blessing and pleasure of all. Mrs. Brewster gave a wonderful testimony of God's saving grace.

In forthright and powerful manner, Pastor Brewster preached, the outcome being that souls were saved, and backsliders restored. At the close of this service Pastor Brewster shared with us some of the remarkable evidences of the wonderful moving of the Spirit of God in a number of countries that he had visited during his travels as Secretary of the World Conference of Pentecostal churches.

By request, on the following Thursday, our pastor gave his testimony to a packed minor hall and held us enthralled as we listened to his varied experiences over the forty years. Together we thank God for His providence and blessing.

WE praise God for a moving of His Holy Spirit during the past few months. We have also been very much encouraged by our summer visitors.

On October 2nd, our young people held their harvest thanksgiving service and the presence of the Lord was manifested in our midst. The proceeds were taken to the Home for the Blind and were gratefully received.

We were richly blessed on October 6th, when Pastor F.H. Coleman ministered. Before the breaking of bread service we had the joy of receiving a sister into our fellowship. Following a blessed time around the Lord's Table, Pastor Coleman spoke on the two Gardens—Eden and Gethsemane. At the evening service his theme was the fulfilment of prophecy, based on Daniel 2.

We covet your continued prayers that we may soon have a church building of our own in this needy town.

A FOUNDRY accident, a lost home, a son with a broken leg, a wife with a slipped disc — could all these possibly be the prelude to an estate crusade? Yes, thank God, they could, for without these events we would never have come to live here on Woodside Estate. Here we were surrounded by houses, 3,500 to be exact, with two sets of twin estates only a couple of miles either way down the road. Children by the score, teenagers, rough, wild, bored, prison cell fodder, unless somehow Christ should be made known to them, abounded, as did parents, too bent on material things to care. One estate, which, according to the planners, should have been a blessing turned into a hot-bed of sin, for Woodside is known hereabouts as "Sin City". It is like all places, a mixture of good and bad.

What could we do? We have no great evangelistic talents, nor could we boast of any great organisation to call upon, nor could our little church afford to support either with funds or labour. All we had was a burning desire plus determination to "have a go". We looked to God, put our shoulders to the wheel and pushed!

We booked the largest hall available on the estate for one week. We were our own evangelist, own campaign manager, in fact everything needed to run the crusade.

I would like to say it was tremendous, etc., but there was no overnight explosion to turn the place upside down, but, praise God, we were able to commence our weekly "One Way Club" and it's still going strong eighteen months later.

This summer again we decided to make use of the children's long holiday and booked the hall for one week (afternoons). Numbers reached the 200 mark by the end of the week. Our programme was simple: a good rousing chorus session to commence, various forms of quizzes to encourage participation, object or story time, and the highlight of each day was the "Jungle Doctor" filmstrip stories that we hired from the Elim Youth Movement Film-strip Library. God alone knows the victory which was wrought, for what the Council could not achieve with all its play-leadership schemes, etc., our simple form of children's meetings did. Parents were delighted with somewhere to send their children. One Roman Catholic nun said, "There should be more of this"!

After a week's rest, we started our second week's session (evenings), with a Bible Holiday Club, which resulted in roughly eighty regular attenders throughout that week.

Being encouraged by what God had done, we took a number of boys and girls to Bonsall Holiday Camp, Derbyshire an Assemblies of God camp, which resulted in twenty of the Woodside children professing salvation and two being baptized in the Holy Ghost.

Again believing God, we have commenced a regular Sunday evening service here in Woodside, which so far is mainly attended by the local teenagers.

This is what God can do, even when there is no big evangelist to do the work, when there are no funds available, only the prayers of fellow-Christians and one housewife, one postman and one helper.

If this report encourages those of like mind to "have a go", we shall be amply rewarded. To God be the glory!

JOYCE AND KENNETH FROST

SPRINGBOURNE, Bournemouth Pastor: J. Osman

WE have had quite an eventful year. In spite of poor weather, many visitors have had fellowship with us and have enjoyed the blessing of God upon the meetings. The meetings at the Bandstand have been a successful means of outreach.

There are signs of spiritual health among young and old. Early in the year God called us to fasting and prayer in specific months, and we are following a planned programme of fasting. We were promised times of difficulty followed by blessing and this pattern is emerging. We are anticipating that the Lord will bless in particular ways and we can truthfully say that it is starting.

A visit by Pastor Ron Mackenzie with "Robbie the Robot" was most profitable. Many difficulties made us think of cancelling his visit, but we decided to press on. Not the least problem was that Sunday school superintendent, Dave Watkins, of "The Springbourne Five", has been laid up for nearly six months with a badly broken leg. The decision to have Pastor Mackenzie proved to be right. Our schoolroom was packed with children for the five-day effort. The Sunday school has felt considerable benefit with increased numbers and we have started a Tuesday night "Adventure Club" with really good numbers attending. Thanks are due to Pastor Mackenzie for his splendid work and for the excellent support of the local workers, especially Peter Watkins, who is now in charge of "Adventure Club". In quick succession we have celebrated our Pastor's eighth anniversary at Springbourne, Missionary Sunday with Pastors G.W. Gilpin and George N. Miller and harvest thanksgiving with Pastor P.S. Brewster (Secretary-General) as guest preacher. The ministry of our visitors has been splendid and much appreciated.

Book Reviews

All One in Christ? published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott, price £1.95, postage and packing 20p extra.

THIS book is a collection of ten papers written by different authors around the common theme of Race. The quality is uneven, ranging from pedantic beginnings to incisive, challenging and informed writing. This is only partly the fault of the Editor whereas responsibility for the book's repetitious character is entirely his. Nevertheless, it is well worth reading if only for the two outstanding chapters, both provided by black contributors, that deal with the history of racism in the Church and the psychological and sociological roots of facism. The former, though brief, traces three attitudes of white Christians to other races — oppression, paternalism and egalitarianism. The latter is the most disturbing chapter, revealing how deeply racial prejudices may be rooted in us all.

Dr. Donald Evans

What the Bible says, by Dr. Lewis Drummond, published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott, price £3.00, postage and packing 23p extra.

THIS is not a reading book, but it is a volume that will prove of great value to the Bible student. It cannot be read alone, it being essential, as Lewis Drummond says, "to be read with Bible in hand". It could not replace Torrey's What the Bible Teaches though it is certainly more contemporary in its approach and presentation of Biblical doctrine.

It should not, however, be thought of as a dry theological reference book. "Scriptural truth demands a practical response. These are not merely truths to treasure in our hearts. They must be applied in our daily lives". (p.25). Such is its practical appeal to ministers and laymen alike.

A note of warning must be given in reference to the section "God Is a Spirit", particularly pp.77-86 where the terminology could lead to confusion — and also to the faulty exegesis on pp.176 and 178 in relation to the purpose of tongues on the day of Pentecost.

A useful book for the study whether for minister or member.

R.L. Currie

There's a new world coming by Hal Lindsey, published by Coverdale House Publishers, price £1, postage and packing 15p extra.

THIS is the third book from the pen of Hal Lindsey, and it is based on the final book of the New Testament, the Revelation, which he describes as "the Grand Central Station" of the whole Bible. There is a clear chart given by way of introduction, showing the contents of this book in relation to history, past, present and future. The prophetic outlook in the book as a whole is what is known as the Futuristic approach, and even those who might not favour this outlook will have to admit that here is a book that is written to convince and win readers.

There are twenty-two chapters, as in the Apocalypse, and the headings of these are designed to intrigue and interest. For instance, chapters two and three relative to the seven churches are designated, "Panorama of Church History", while chapter four is introduced as "The Church goes Extra-Terrestrial". Chapter 18 is described as "The last days of the Common Market", while chapter twenty, dealing with the Millennium is entitled "One thousand years of New Management". I suggest that all who expect the blessed hope should add this book to their collection.

Fifty-nine decisions for Christ

OUR Evangelistic Sunday outreach has now gone, but some of the news arriving at Headquarters is very encouraging. The first few letters recorded fifty-nine decisions for Christ and four people baptised in water, with many more requests for baptism. One of our churches was sending a group of young people to conduct a weekend outreach in the North of England, another church told of record attendances over the weekend; some of the churches at diaconate level have decided to double the evangelistic offering which the people give. One Church has set the target for £1,000.

It seems that God is beginning to move upon our Movement and we trust that the wind of God's Holy Spirit will blow right through our country. As well as hunger, desire, passion and zeal, there is also the sovereignty of God in revival.

Thoughts on the book of Revelation

The Six Seals Chapter 6

by Charles J. E. Kingston

THE sealed roll has been lifted from the hand of God. Heaven waits in expectation as the Lamb begins to break the seals. Dean Alford comments: "The close connection between our Lord's prophetic discourse on the Mount of Olives (Matthew 24) cannot fail to have struck every student of Scripture . . . it (is) the anchor of apocalyptic interpretation . . . If its guidance be not followed in the interpretation of the seals . . . the true key to the book is lost" (Dean Alford's Prolegomena to Revelation).

Before the alienated inheritance of man can be recovered, the usurper, the "god of this world" (2 Corinthians 4:4) and his followers must be dispossessed. John Bunyan in his Holy War pictures Emmanuel besieging the city of Mansoul to deliver it from Diabolus. When Mansoul finally surrenders, Diabolus and the Diabolonians have to be driven out from their hiding-places before Mansoul can be fully delivered. Thus, in each seal, we can see progress toward the final deliverance of creation from Satan's power.

The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse.

On breaking each of the first four seals, a horseman is sent forth. To Zechariah, who was given a similar vision of horsemen (Zechariah 1:8-11; 6:1-8), they represented various aspects of divine judgments on earth. In Revelation the horsemen represent steps leading up to the Day of the Lord; they are personifications of God's providences and decrees in the earth. Keeping Matthew 24 as a guide-line in our interpretation, what is the meaning of the seals?

The first seal. 6:1,2.

John sees a rider on a white horse go forth. White is the colour of righteousness and peace (Revelation 19:8,11). Christ's first move in re-taking the world is to offer terms of mercy and forgiveness to those who have opposed Him. Before the calamitous judgments of the trumpets and vials strike the earth He offers terms of surrender.

The rider on the white horse is not Christ (for He breaks the seal which sends the rider forth); nor is he the Antichrist (for the command to go forth is from Heaven and Christ does not speed Antichrist on his way). Evidently, however, the messenger of Christ, the rider represents the victories of the gospel in preparing for Christ's second advent; he goes forth "conquering and continuing to conquer".

No time limit can be set for the duration of this seal. It began with the proclamation of the gospel on the Day of Pentecost; it continues right to the end of this age; its final fulfilment is in the great outpouring of the Holy Spirit (of which we are privileged to see the beginning today) before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes (Joel 2:28-32).

The second seal. 6:3,4.

The red horse and rider speak of war and bloodshed. "Nation shall rise against nation", Jesus foretold (Matthew 24:7). The rider does not so much engage in war as stir up strife among the nations. The sword he carries is not the ordinary sword of war, but the great slaughter-knife, used in public executions. James was killed with this kind of knife (Acts 12:2). "Then shall they deliver you up to be afflicted and shall kill you, and ye shall be hated of all nations for My name's sake" (Matthew 24:9).

Again, no time limit may be set for this seal's duration; it begins with the martyrdom of Stephen, continues with all the wars and persecutions of history, and ends with those who suffer under Antichrist and are killed at the Battle of Armageddon.

The third seal. 6:5,6.

The black horse and its rider tell of food scarcity. A measure of wheat was a man's daily ration; the cost one penny, was a man's wage for a day. The seals reveal God's judgments upon a rebellious world; one of God's "four sore judgments" (Ezekiel 14:21) is famine. With the present-day population explosion, we are threatened with a world shortage of food.

Though including the "famines . . . in divers places" (Matthew 24:7) prophesied by Jesus, this seal threatens food shortages before the return of Christ. Even today half the world goes to bed hungry.

The fourth seal. 6:7,8.

The pale, or livid, horse personified Death, for its rider foretells the violent means by which a quarter of earth's inhabitants will perish. Hell follows, as death's attendant, ready to engulf his victims.

Alford suggests that the influence of this rider extends over a fourth part of the earth, "perhaps owing to the fourfold division of these former seals". Accepting this suggestion it can be observed that the three previous seals exert influence over only a part of the earth. The gospel has not conquered all peoples; war and persecution have not affected the whole world; famines are usually localised and death by God's "four sore judgments" (Ezekiel 14:21) is also limited to a quarter of earth's inhabitants.

The fifth seal. 6:9-11.

A judgment seal, as are all the others, this seal portrays the persecution and martyrdom of some of God's saints and the vengeance this calls forth upon their persecutors. Representative of all martyrs who "were slain for the Word of God, and the testimony which they held", from the early Church martyrs (Matthew 24:9) to those in these days who have paid the supreme penalty for their faith in communist countries and other places, their number is not complete until they are joined by those who will die under Antichrist in the Great Tribulation (Revelation 7:14; 13:15; 20:4).

The killing of their bodies is not the end of them. They are alive in soul, spirit and conscious; they can hear; they still have their memories; they are in heaven and receive white robes, the reward for overcoming (Revelation 3:4,5).

The sixth seal. 6:12-17.

The breaking of this seal gives warning of the approaching Day of Judgment. It has not yet dawned, but the inhabitants of the earth are troubled at its immediate approach. A sure anchor in any interpretation of the Book must be the sixth seal. As Alford puts it: "Any system which requires it to belong to another period than the close approach of the great Day of the Lord stands self-condemned" (Alford's Prolegomena P.249).

Scripture many times tells of signs in the heavens and in earth, presaging the Day of the Lord (Joel 2:30,31; Acts 2:19,20; Matthew 24:29; Luke 21:21-26), and foretells how people will flee into holes and caves for fear of the Lord "when He arises to shake terribly the earth" (Isaiah 2:19). Then those who have never prayed to God will pray to the very rocks to hide them from His face. These prophecies find their fulfilment under the sixth seal.

Who shall stand in that great day? Not the hypocrite, nor the liar, nor the swearer; not the licentious immoral, nor the drunkard, nor the drug addict; not the formalist, nor the Christ-rejector! Only those saved by the grace of God, washed, cleansed from their sins in the blood of the Lamb (Revelation 7:14) will stand.

To sum up the matter.

Inasmuch as the death and resurrection of Jesus were His triumph over "principalities and powers" (Colossians 2:14,15) we have back-dated, so to speak, the meaning of the seals to that moment in time. We must hold strongly the fact that from these stupendous events Jesus began His task of dispossessing Satan.

Yet the full "redemption of the purchased possession", of which the sealed roll speaks, awaits the glorious return of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. In the waiting time we may have, through the sealing with that Holy Spirit of promise, "the earnest of our inheritance". (Ephesians 1:13, 14). Hallelujah!

GLEANINGS

Blessed Assurance

by S. E. Petts

"Knowing . . . your election of God, for our gospel came unto you, not in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost and in much assurance" (1 Thessalonians 1:4,5).

MOST folk, when about to undergo an operation, seek an assurance that the surgeon is confident of the outcome. When we fly abroad we are comforted if we know that the pilot is certain of his ability to bring us safely to our desired destination. Would we risk our good name by engaging a lawyer of doubtful reputation? Yet we daily risk our eternal lives if we are neither sure of our course through life, nor of the one to pilot us into the next world. Like the Thessalonians, all Christians need have no doubt. They can be certain of their faith in Christ, who described Himself as truth, and promised eternal life for all who trust in Him. Jesus said that those who did His will would know (John 7:17). Christians have this assurance, for the evidence is within; it is the Spirit of Christ Himself who enables and empowers them to be triumphant over fear and doubt as well as sin. Can you say, "Blessed assurance, Jesus is mine?" Only if He is your Saviour can you have this foretaste of certain divine glory.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

31. The Rock in Horeb (Exodus 17:6)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

ONCE more there was a rebellious complaint from Israel at Rephidim; on that occasion they complained because there was no water for them. The Lord intervened in response to the prayer of Moses who was told to take his rod and go to the rock in Horeb — evidently it was one distinguished above other rocks, so Moses could make no mistake.

Moses was told to smite the rock with his rod in the sight of the people of Israel; the rebellious people deserved to be smitten, but the rock was destroyed instead. From that stricken rock came a thirst-quenching, life-giving flow of water and the water brought blessing to those who deserved destruction.

In Scripture the rock speaks of God (see Deuteronomy 32:3); so the incident showed that God must be smitten in view of the people (Zechariah 12:10). Sinful, rebellious humanity deserved to be smitten, but the eternal God would Himself bear their punishment; from their smitten God would issue the life-giving flow of the Spirit; "I will pour... the spirit of grace and supplication" (Zechariah 12:10).

The clear teaching of the New Testament is: "That Rock was Christ" (1 Corinthians 10:4); and, certainly the Lord Jesus was smitten on Calvary in sight of all people (John 19:34, 37). It was those around the cross, representing all men, who deserved destruction because: "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23). The Son of God, the sinless and spotless one, was pierced instead of sinners. As a result, the Holy Spirit has been poured out on those who once were rebels, and He convicts, fills, empowers and completely satisfies.

Israel alone was satisfied by water from the rock in Horeb; similarly, only the true Church is satisfied by living water from the Rock, Christ. He died for all, to provide satisfaction for everyone; but only those who believe on Him actually receive that blessing. Have you believed on the Lord Jesus Christ?

Many have proved the proverb true.

He who hesitates...

By ELVA J. HOOVER

WHEN the great German poet and philosopher Goethe was a university student, he became desperately ill. A devout young Moravian nurse who attended him urged him to accept Christ as his Lord and Master.

Under deep conviction he almost yielded, but he hesitated—then he rejected Christ's claims.

His godless philosophy and writings were influential in shaping the Germany that led to World War I.

A contemporary of Goethe, John Wesley, came under the influence of the same godly line of people at about the same time. He decided for Christ, and influenced countless others to follow Him also.

When Aaron Burr was in Yale University, he attended a revival meeting conducted on campus. One night he responded to the invitation. As he walked toward the front, he heard someone say, "Look at Aaron Burr going to the inquiry room." Unwilling to bear the reproach Burr hesitated, then turned back saying, "I was only fooling."

The result of his almost decision is written on the pages of American history for all to see. Having first betrayed himself, he eventually found it possible to betray his country.

One of the most pathetic persons in the funeral procession of David Livingstone in London was a shabbily dressed "burn" who fought his way through the crowd. When they would have hindered him, he cried out, "I have a right to see David Livingstone. I knew him better than any of you. We were in Sunday school together. He decided for Christ; I decided against Him."

Jim Maples and Forest Ritter grew up in the same Kentucky hill community. They were often together and had equal opportunity to hear the gospel. Forest accepted Christ as a teenager, and Jim rejected Him.

Years passed, and the men parted ways. Forest became a preacher of the gospel, and Jim a moonshiner in the Kentucky hills.

The men were in their middle 50s when they met again—in a little mountain schoolhouse where Forest preached and Jim came to listen only out of respect for his old friend.

Forest made the gospel message plain that night, then gave an appeal for decisions. No one moved, but all felt the presence of God's Spirit still dealing with Jim after all those years.

Forest left the platform and walked to Jim, and their tears mingled as Forest pleaded for decision. Jim hesitated, but at last the two men walked together toward the platform. Then instead of kneeling to pray, Jim pulled out his billfold and laid a five dollar bill on the preacher's open Bible on the altar.

No one heard what he said to Forest as he turned and slowly walked away from the altar, his head still bowed. And no one knew the battle that went on in Jim's heart during the next 2 months. They could only guess when the news came that Jim had been killed and robbed while intoxicated—just a few miles from the place where he was almost saved.

The rich young ruler who came to Jesus was "not far from the kingdom," but he was lost because he hesitated over the price he would have to pay.

"Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation" (2 Corinthians 6:2). He who hesitates to decide for Christ now may be lost eternally.

Be ye Holy

by H. W. Greenway

"Holiness to the Lord" (Exodus 28:36).

ACROSS the whole spectrum of the divine revelation there sounds the cry of the Almighty; from the early days of Israel's development as a nation to the closing of the day of grace, "Be ye holy; for I am holy" (1 Peter 1:16). The world's view of the early church is given us by Paul in 1 Corinthians 4:13: "...reviled. . .persecuted. . .defamed. . .we are made as the filth of the world, and are the offscouring of all things unto this day". Not a pretty picture this! "Scum of the earth, the very refuse of the world!" says Moffatt: "...the world's rubbish", writes J.B. Phillips. Strong words are used in the original by the Apostle Paul. How strange must this estimate appear to some students of God's Word, set as it is against the demands of sacred Scripture that we must be a holy people. No two concepts could be more diametrically opposed.

I began to muse on this theme after a visit to a prayer warrior who was advancing in years and has had much experience in association with Christian ministers. She took me to task as she described her violent feelings about the present situation and the apparent lack of miracles in the Pentecostal movements. She listed for me some of the practices of present day Christians and their failings which seemed so clear to her. "The priesthood must cleanse themselves", she declared, waving her hands by way of emphasis.

I came away with an uneasy feeling. It is so easy to dismiss these demands of the prophets of the prayer chamber as so much abrasive criticism emanating from personal egotism, but I began to think. Are we becoming too much this-worldly in dedicating ourselves to the cult of material progress? Have we abandoned the sacred for the secular? Have we been rebaptised but this time into the stagnant pool of carnality? How many of the Sunday-perfumed orthodox churchmen, who nod their heads in the energetic approval of criticism of other denominations, are themselves guilty of thoughts and acts unworthy of the Master they serve?

The Bible has such simple maxims for saints that one wonders why their value has been ignored by so many for so long. Like ram-rods in their upstanding defence of the severe censures of the Master, they yet fail to bend under His gracious hand of correction. The words of reproof that have a direct bearing on their own lives they discreetly transfer to some less pompous neighbour. And in their very protestations against the defections from truth in others they fall prey to the very sin that brought ruin to the whole human race — pride.

Pride is the primal sin; it brought about the fall of Satan himself. It is still the snare of individuals and of communities. In our advert-conscious society we fall victims to the habit of building up personalities, we shout our spiritual commodities to such a degree that we are in danger of forgetting the needs of the world around us. One writer points out, "Many local churches are far clearer about the Church's need to evangelise than they are of the world's need to be evangelised. We need to ask, is our witness made for the sake of the Church or for the sake of the world?"

Though we may not wear the badge of holiness as a denominational label, we are nevertheless called to be a holy people. God is holy, and if we are filled with the Holy Spirit we must exhibit as Pentecostal people, the characteristics of holiness.

But what does holiness mean? Accepting the Bible as our standard we find the answer quite simple. Holiness is not some baptism that comes to us as a dramatic experience, or a gift from an outward source. Holiness is positional. It is dissociation from defilement and separation unto God. We are told to be holy, thus it is a volitional act on the part of the saint. Holiness is spiritual isolation from all forms of evil; it is nevertheless spiritual association with a God who dwells in the atmosphere of complete holiness. Fundamentally it is what we are as against what we do, and yet the success of what we do is authenticated and motivated by what we are. Without holiness we are in danger, for all association with evil leads to distress and ultimate frustration. The cross currents of moral pollution set up turbulence within the nature. Was this the reason for Peter's warning to his readers, "...abstain from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul" (1 Peter 2:11), and for Paul's warning in the imperative mood to Timothy, "Flee also youthful lusts" (2 Timothy 2:22)? The thoughts and acts of sin are detrimental to the believer's well being. Whatever our modern pundits may tell to the contrary, we know from the Word of God and from our own acquaintance with life in the raw that the deeds arising from the lower desires of man destroy our happiness and peace of mind.

It will be seen therefore that holiness is the result of a conscious decision: we put ourselves in a place apart from sin. But it is not merely a negative posture. We are not only separated from, we are separated unto. Paul continues in the passage we have already quoted: "...but follow righteousness, faith, charity, peace, with them that call on the Lord out of a pure heart". Behaviour patterns are determined by mental exercises. If our thoughts are holy thoughts, our actions will also be lifted into higher realms of spiritual activity.

Religious culture cannot of itself bring holiness, nor do we become holy merely by sacrifice; the Pharisee is evidence of this. He had plenty of religion; he fasted twice a week; he gave tithes and gifts; he prayed at street corners. But Jesus pointed to the sham behind his facade of pretence: "Woe unto you" He cried. "Pure religion and undefiled before God" writes James, "is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world" (James 1:27). The practical apostle gives us both aspects of the Christian life: do something worthwhile, be something worthwhile.

As evidence of the truth that holiness is positional we would point to the fact that buildings were holy, the vessels of the sanctuary were holy, the garments of the priests were holy, etc. Whatever was used for the service of the Almighty must be separated for His exclusive use. And likewise the believer, who is the Temple of the living God, must be a holy dwelling-place: "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you...for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are" (1 Corinthians 3:16, 17); "For ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be My people. Wherefore come ye out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you" (2 Corinthians 6:16, 17).

During these days in which we live the devil is making every effort to defile the people of God: by corrupt visual appeals to debased fleshly appetites; by pressures on the mind through depraved music and lying propaganda, which includes religious deviations of many kinds; by demonic powers through the spread of spiritism. Never was there greater need for the appeal of the apostle Paul than there is today: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God" (Romans 12:1, 2).

Let us step in line with the lowly Nazarene and out of the line of the world, for if we walk in the Spirit we shall not fulfil the lusts of the flesh (Galatians 5:16).

The Greek word for world which is most commonly used by New Testament writers is kosmos and this has three distinct meanings:

(1) The physical universe. "God made the world" (Acts 17:24); "He was in the world" (John 1:15); "Go ye into all the world" (Mark 16:15).

(2) The inhabitants of the world. "God so loved the world" (John 3:16); "The world is gone after Him" (12:19); "...whom the world cannot receive" (14:17); "...if the world hate you" (15:18).

(3) Material and abstract obstacles to Christian living. "The things that are in the world" (1 John 2:15); the spirit and wisdom and fashion of the world (1 Corinthians 2:12; 3:19; 7:31); "worldly lusts" (Titus 2:12); "...the corruption that is in the world" (2 Peter 1:4); the lust and vainglory that pass away. (1 John 2:16, 17).

The point of collision between the Son of God and all that constitutes the glory and power of the world occurred at the cross. Calvary was the arena where Christ overcame the world and it is the moment of triumph for the believer when as a humble suppliant he recognises the Saviour as Lord of his life. This is the full and final severance from his doomed associations. Paul provides us the triumph song of our detachment from the world and our identification with Christ: "I am crucified with Christ; nevertheless I live: yet not I, but Christ liveth in me" (Galatians 2:20). He was dead to the world, but alive in Christ. The hostility of the world is expressed in its evil works and hatred of Jesus Christ: "If the world hate you, ye know that it hated Me before it hated you" (John 15:18), and in its inability to receive the Spirit of truth (John 14:17).

The very character of the world drives the Christian into splendid isolation, for the friendship of the world

Elim in Brazil

PASTOR Henry Jeffery has sent us a photograph of the latest church in Brazil. The congregation, which was meeting in a hired hall, was started by Pastor Jose de Lima. This brother moved with his family from a fine building and a thriving congregation, near our Headquarters church in Sao Paulo, to begin a new work for God in the superb of Parque Bristol.

In the photograph can be seen Pastor Jose de Lima, who is standing on the ladder; he is shown here with his two sons.

"IT'S IMPOSSIBLE to teach children of migrant workers anything," one teacher said at our departmental teachers meeting.

"I disagree," another said. "I believe the teachers' presence and stories are bound to make a lasting impression."

"I still say it's a waste of time," muttered the first teacher. "They'll never amount to anything because they're so mobile. Anybody who moves around as much as they do has no roots, and without roots who can grow?"

As superintendent I had been listening to the discussion but thought it was time to step in. "You're putting too much emphasis on the mobile factor and not enough on the subject matter, the children."

I cleared my throat before continuing. "I could have been included in that transient group you are downgrading."

"You! What do you mean?"

"I mean that by the time I was 21 I had lived in 21 houses in seven states. We moved because of my father's specialized work."

The teacher who had been so frank stammered, "I-I-I didn't know." Then quickly she added, "But you turned out all right. I can't believe it. I just can't."

HER WORDS, "But you turned out all right," stayed with me. It hadn't occurred to me before that our family could be considered underprivileged because we didn't stay put.

I remember once telling my mother I wished I wouldn't have to leave old friends and make new ones so often. She had smiled and said, "But we're fortunate to have the opportunity of meeting so many people and seeing so much of God's beautiful country."

My two brothers and I attended four schools in 6 years. Usually we had to start the new school after the term had begun but we soon caught up with the others.

What made us unique, if indeed we were, was our background: our parents' belief in the importance of the family unit, integrity, honor, aspiration, industry, belief in oneself to achieve, and the place of the church in our life.

It could be so easy to lose oneself in a new community. But when we moved to a new locality, the first thing we did was to locate our church. We didn't wait for someone to come to us.

The very first Sunday found us in the new church. Even on that first Sunday we felt at home. We were among people of the same faith, among friends.

WITHOUT ROOTS who can grow? It all depends on the individual. A person can live in the same state, city, or even in the same house all of his life and not put down roots, while another can be on the move continually and have deep roots.

The early Hebrews had roots, even though they wandered. They worshiped wherever they went. At the end of the day, after long and dangerous journeys, they built an altar. They thanked God for His care. They were migrants but they had roots.

The pioneers in our own country had roots although they were on the move. They worshiped at dawn and at sunset, beside streams or in the forests. When they arrived at their destination, one of their first projects was to build a church.

A MONTH had passed, and another teachers' meeting was in session. The subject under discussion was the same as before, children of migrant workers.

But this time it was in a different vein. During the interim they had recalled the words of Jesus, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel"—which included every race, color, and creed and those in all stations of life, mobile or whatever.

They realized that if anyone receives the Word of God and lives by it, he has the taproot that can sustain him through life. For ultimately, our only security is God himself.

WITHOUT ROOTS WHO CAN GROW? By LENELLE MARCH KANTHACK

Points for Preachers

by J. Alexander Wright

An Outline

Paul's commission (Acts 26:18).

See the mighty gospel at work in—

1. The awakening of the soul: "To open their eyes".
2. The enlightening of the understanding: "To turn them from darkness to light".
3. The conversion of the will: "From the power of Satan to God".
4. The purifying of the conscience: "Receive the forgiveness of sins".
5. The renewal of the whole nature: "Inheritance among the sanctified".

An Incident

"Christian, rise and shine!"

The great Methodist Bible commentator, Dr. Adam Clarke, was a slow worker, and he could only produce his wealth of literary treasure by long and patient toil.

He therefore made it his custom to rise early every morning. A young preacher, anxious to emulate the distinguished doctor, asked him one day how he managed it. "Do you pray about it?" he enquired. "No", the doctor quietly answered, "I get up!"

Dr. F.W. Boreham, Mountains in the Mist.

Pastor George Kingston, of beloved memory, founder of our Essex and East Anglian Elim Churches, laid it down that his young pastors should be washed, shaved, and breakfasted by at least 9.30 a.m. which is late enough. What about you, dear brother?

A Quotation

"This is My body".

"We trample on the laws of nature, on the laws of language, when we force these very plain words to tell us that this bread has become God. Many excellent people have fallen into that opinion. Yet, in the Scriptures, the word 'is' never means 'becomes' or 'is changed into', but very often it signifies 'represents'. The scientific and commonsense interpretation of one figurative utterance would sweep from the earth much religious error".

... His righteousness unto children's children

Psalm 103:17

A FORTIETH anniversary has a biblical ring about it and in Christian circles almost instinctively we feel compelled to look back over the years.

We are living in gloomy days just now, yet when my husband recently celebrated his fortieth anniversary in the Elim ministry it was invariable the happy occasions that sprang to mind or that we recalled without effort. There has been a conspiracy of secrecy in the Salisbury church for several months, and it was a wonderful surprise therefore on our day of celebration to discover that we were to be treated to a "This is your life" programme, commencing with our first guest Rev. C.O. Ladlow, my husband's brother, a retired Methodist minister and on to the sisters of the family. Again and again it was recounting of blessings, joys, precious family memories, little intimate details, reminiscences, triumphs and battles and above all the evidence of a loving Heavenly Father with His providential care were remembered and shared with a responsive congregation.

Our own dear daughters, their husbands and our grandchildren came all the way from Scotland and I could hardly believe my eyes when they appeared, almost it seemed by magic, for I thought that they were 400 miles away! My mother, my sister and her husband, colleagues in the ministry and a host of messages, tapes, letters, telegrams and cards all combined to bring tributes of love and esteem which were deeply moving. There were laughter and tears, long forgotten happenings and humorous anecdotes brought to light and as I was sitting, absorbed and radiant, savouring each moment to the full, the richness and glory of the Christian life came as a fresh revelation. How could I ever, in my wildest dreams as a teenager, have imagined such a full and happy life. To grow up in a Christian home, to be in at the exciting days of Pentecostal pioneering, to serve in the churches in so many parts of these islands and overseas, to meet and fellowship with so many choice believers—what a privilege and what joys have been mine!

To be permitted under God to have believing children is a priceless blessing, and to be part of a great Christian family is a wonderful heritage. The Superintendent Methodist minister in his closing remarks stressed that the testimonies of the Christian families had greatly impressed him and we give God the glory. Now that I have simmered down and come back to earth after all the excitement, I am more convinced than ever that we do not live to ourselves; an early commitment to Christ not only opens the door to a full salvation for the one concerned, but ushers in the full sweep of God's providential care and promised blessings for his or her family.

It is a firm Bible principle that God delights to bless the families of His trusting children. Right from the days of righteous Noah, when God established a covenant with him, this has been the pattern. Faithful Abraham experienced God's blessing on his immediate family and so it continued with his descendants. Psalm 103:17 and Psalm 128 are still true; the lovely promise of Proverbs 20:7 "The just man walketh in his integrity: his children are blessed after him", underlines the divine order very plainly.

To sum up, neither I nor my husband can allow any pride or sense of achievement to enter our thoughts as we have reached this fortieth milestone. We have ever, since before birth, been surrounded by prayer and loving Christian influences. Our two families nurtured us in a godly environment and the good Lord saved us, kept us, trained us and used us. What more could we desire? To God be all the glory! May I humbly use the words of the Lord to Moses in Deuteronomy 2:7 as a testimony to the faithfulness He has shown? "For the Lord thy God hath blessed thee in all the works of thy hand: He knoweth thy walking through this great wilderness: these forty years the Lord thy God hath been with thee; thou hast lacked nothing".

is enmity with God (James 4:4). The child of God cannot afford to be identified with the kingdom of this world doomed as it is to eternal judgment, nor need he apologise for his belligerent attitude toward the world, for the carnal stands in opposition to the spiritual and is therefore subject to death: "For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit. For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be" (Romans 8: 5-7).

The Roman Christians were dwelling in an atmosphere of awful pollution, and Paul takes the trouble to point them to the conquest of the Spirit; the indwelling Christ is the guarantee of our spiritual purity: "If Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness" (8:10), indeed, "the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death" (8:2). We walk in the realm of complete victory, where sin shall not have dominion over us, and where in a life of service to God we have our fruit unto holiness: "For sin shall not have dominion over you . . . now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life" (Romans 6:14, 22).

It is by our fruits we are known, not by our roots.

HOW DO YOU ~~FEEL~~ think

by Ron Williams, Pastor of our Reading Church

I ONCE read an account of a man who said to his friend, "If you were an ambitious man you would not stay in this sort of place". "How do you know I am not an ambitious man?", said the friend. "You do not act like one", was the reply he received.

To be ambitious is not an unspiritual quality. Behind all Christians, especially young ones, there ought to be a propelling force that drives them through their various spheres of life.

I wonder if Christians have really discovered the vitality there is to be found in a vigorous service for God. Too often we look effete, and the spiritless effort we sometimes make is a contribution the Church can do without.

Ambition is the one thing which is so often lacking in life; it is not enough to have your aim set by the Pastor or Youth Leader, nor even a policy which comes from your departmental head. To have a great objective in life is to exercise a potency that gets things done. We spend time invoking the power of God that we may function more capably; this is because we find ourselves unnecessarily deficient through lack of exercising the faculties God has vested in us. We already possess in our natural make-up the most effective component of life — THE MIND. It is not how you feel, but how you think, that really matters. We can succeed at anything if we have enough interest.

It is important that we get our thinking right. Our thoughts give birth to our aims. How we think shows in our effort on the factory floor, in the office, our attitude at the shop counter, and certainly has a bearing on the fulfilling of our responsibilities in church life.

Sometimes, the lack of spiritual attainment is the product of our faulty thinking processes. We admit defeat too readily; the restrictions placed upon us are often self-imposed. A person who believes should be full of faith in God. Such faith with effort will work, and it can accomplish amazing results.

Such a principle of life was evident as far back as the time of Paul, who exhorted the Romans that they should not be "conformed to this world: but... be transformed by the renewing of your mind" (Romans 12:2).

Why not sit alone for a while, and in the quietness, stop and think; what are the energies that give propulsion to your life? Are you being driven into greater depths of apathy? Are you convinced that for you there will never be any opportunities? Can it be that you are content to leave things as they are? If such things are true of you, there is very little prospect; unless you make up your mind you have had enough of such a negative outlook. Ask God to help you transform your thinking. You will see opportunities in every obstacle, victories in every battle; this can be your new life style if only you start believing that it is true. Why not say, "I can do all things through Christ" (Phillipians 4:13). That's it, say it, and start believing it. Do this, and life will open out before you in a way you never believed possible.

A.D. Sandford

Monday, November 11th Revelation 10:1-11

"...by him that liveth for ever and ever..." (v.6).

THESE words can only cause us to fix our thoughts on One who is from everlasting to everlasting. Something of the greatness of our God is seen in His creative power. "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end" (Revelation 22:13). Can we rest the future of our existence upon anyone less, of whom the Psalmist said: "shall neither slumber nor sleep" (Psalm 121:4)? He is the One who inhabiteth eternity.

Tuesday, November 12th Revelation 11:1-19

"Rise and measure..." (v.1).

MAN measures standards according to himself, but God has a different measuring line. He measures our love in the light of His love; our longing in the line of His longing, so we see that, "My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways My ways, saith the Lord" (Isaiah 55:8). His ways are ultimately the best ways, and to err from them is to suffer loss.

May we always measure our acts and deeds according to His measuring line (the Word of God) and we shall not transgress far.

Wednesday, November 13th Revelation 12:1-17

"And they overcome him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony" (v.11).

HALLELUJAH, Satan is defeated, therefore fear him not.

The same being who fought with Christ in heaven had attempted to destroy the Babe of Bethlehem. In one case he fought in person, in the other he used human instruments; he failed in both cases. Jesus proved victorious in His conquest over the grave, and we may rest assured that He is on our side. We shall be victorious.

Thursday, November 14th Revelation 13:1-10

"Here is the patience and the faith of the saints" (v.10).

PATIENCE and faith are two precious qualities needed by every child of God. "...faith and patience inherit the promises" (Hebrews 6:12). Whether in persecution or in tribulation we must always see the gentle hand of the Master at work. In the end may we be counted worthy to share with Him in the fruits of those precious promises. "...Run with patience the race that is set before us. Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith" (Hebrews 12:1, 2).

Friday, November 15th Revelation 13:11-18

"And he had power to give life" (v.15).

THE outstanding feature of this passage is the power and the authority given unto the beast. "He doeth great wonders...and deceiveth them..." (vv.13 and 14). Many fear the power of Satan, others may share in it. As we ponder the words of our Lord Jesus "All power is given unto Me" (Matthew 28:18), we look away from the powers of darkness and see the glorious possibilities. Resting upon the assurance that nothing is too hard for the Lord, we can take fresh courage and invest our trust in Him.

Saturday, November 16th Revelation 14:1-5

"These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth" (v.4).

BLESSED Lamb of God—the very mention of His Name is as ointment poured forth. Some would follow men, who will lead them astray, but the soul that is wholly following Jesus need never fear. He leads along the surest pathway; He enables us to rise over every hurdle and strengthens the weakest. For all who follow the Lamb there is certainty, surety and prosperity. None other Name for me!

Sunday, November 17th Revelation 14:6-20

"...Thrust in thy sickle, and reap: for the time is come...to reap: for the harvest...is ripe" (v.15).

SEEDTIME and harvest have been appointed through every age (Gen. 8:22). We are constantly reminded that we should be up and doing in the harvest field. The sickle is a sharp and effective instrument; so also is the Word of God "sharper than any two-edged sword" (Hebrews 4:12). If we continue to use it effectively, we shall come rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves, for the fields are well and truly "white unto harvest".

Real results from radio

by A. I. MacInnes

THE Elim Half Hour which goes out each Saturday morning is widely received. Letters arrive regularly telling of the satisfaction and help which the broadcasts give; people approach our members and express their joy in hearing God's Word preached in such a simple yet forthright way.

At a recent baptismal service we baptised two believers who were saved through the radio broadcast; this was a great thrill to everyone, especially my father (John MacInnes) who usually preaches over the radio.

While this baptismal service was in progress, the organist at another Elim Church was testifying how, earlier in the week, she received a letter from her father who lives about forty miles along the coast. He wanted to see her immediately. This letter upset this lady because her father is seventy-two years old and earlier in the year was very sick. She arrived at her father's home with a heavy heart, wondering what she would find. As she talked to her father she discovered that he was very strong and healthy, but that over recent days he had become sick with sin. On hearing John MacInnes preach over the radio, he had become conscious of his sin and had accepted Christ as his Saviour and Lord. His Bible was now before him and was marked with notes taken, and of sermons preached and songs sung. This aged man had called his daughter so that she might pass on the message that he wanted to be baptised as soon as possible.

Just over a week later, John MacInnes went up to Eldorado village with Sister Niles to see her father, and they were able to talk with him about the Lord and water baptism. During the conversation this new convert told that over twenty years ago he went to the Elim Church when he was in town, but had gone out unsaved. Over the years he had been an active church-goer and choir leader, but only now through the Elim Half Hour had he come to know Christ. How true are the words, "Cast thy bread upon the water: for thou shalt find it after many days" (Ecclesiastes 11:1).

Continue to pray for broadcasts sent out by Elim throughout the world, and give liberally and cheerfully as Christian responsibility demands. Moslems, Communists, liberation movements, etc. are spending huge sums of money to disseminate their false teachings, while many Christians begrudge giving to the greatest cause on earth. Jesus said: "I am the way, the truth, and the life..." (John 14:6). "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptising them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost" (Matthew 28:19).

THE ordination service in our Clapham Church on Saturday, October 26th was a very moving service.

For thirteen men this meeting was the culmination of a long period of training; the majority of those who were ordained had begun their training with two years in the Elim Bible College, after which they had continued with further studies, as well as gaining practical experience in the pastoral ministry.

For many young men there may be a particular attraction about preaching; to watch a great preacher hold a vast congregation, who wait on his every word, that is a thing to seek to emulate. Alas, however, even for the best of preachers, such occasions are rare and treasured moments. There is much more to the ministry than the preaching of fine sermons; even the finest have to be prepared. To build a delightful edifice you need a deep foundation. Ministers spend only a very small fraction of their time in the pulpit.

It needs to be said that these men who are recognised publically in the Ordination service have first of all to make proof of their ministry to the satisfaction of their ministerial colleagues. It is to be expected that a man should be able to communicate verbally, for men are still to be saved by the hearing of the Word of God. There is more to the ministry however than preaching.

The old idea that a minister was called to the cure or care of souls, has much to commend it to us today.

The Scriptures tell us far more of the "burden" (Jeremiah 20:9), and awesome responsibility (James 3:1 RSV) attached to the ministry than they do of the glamour of the work.

Do you pray for your minister? His sermons will be better for your prayers; even if they are not, it will do you a power of good.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

ROMFORD

Pastor: P.E. Streeter

BAPTISMAL services always bring blessing, and at Romford was no exception. Twelve young people, four brethren and eight sisters, mostly young converts, followed their Lord through the waters. Each testified to Christ's redemptive grace after receiving a verse of Scripture. The youngest candidate, aged ten years, was paradoxically, the senior Christian, having given her heart to the Lord five years earlier. The oldest candidate, almost the youngest spiritually, was recently saved after serving for twelve years as a Jehovah's Witness. One young lady, converted about five months ago, was baptised in the Holy Spirit in July at the youth camp in the Isle of Wight. Another received her baptism in the Spirit in her bath at home the day after the baptismal service. Another candidate is the daughter of the superintendent of the branch Sunday school at Harold Hill, while another is now sharing the experience with her husband, he having been baptised in water at the last annual Easter baptismal service. The church was packed for the service, even in the vestibule, it was "standing room only".

God is blessing the church at Romford in a spectacular and splendid way, praise His name! Most Sunday nights finds the church almost full, often numbering in excess of 100; all other meetings are well-attended, especially the prayer meetings.

Pastor P.E. Streeter has just concluded a marathon series of mid-week Bible Studies on the Book of Daniel, running for thirty weeks. His ministry at all times maintains and ensures a high spiritual standard in the Church and we look forward to fuller, further outpourings of God's blessings. Plans are being prepared for the extension of the church building, when it is anticipated that the seating capacity will be increased by 40-50% and also for door-to-door evangelism in the new block of flats being built opposite the church.

F.E. CROKER

SOLIHULL

Pastor: David E. Carr

THE world said that starting a church on the 13th August 1972 would be unlucky. We agree — for the Devil!

The only people whom we envisaged attending our first pioneer meeting were Pastor and Mrs. David Carr, Mr. and Mrs. G. Greenaway (treasurer), and Miss G. Farley (Church secretary), but 47 people turned up! All we had at that time was a morning family service held in the local community centre, but since then have added a worship service at 6 p.m.

Since the commencement of this new work, we have witnessed conversions, healings, and people delivered from demon possession, and the numbers have been quite consistent. Our Pastor has been able to get into local schools to preach and to write in the local press. We have provided a counselling service for the film "The Exorcist", which made such an impact that our Pastor was interviewed on two radio stations and appeared on BBC Television and also on the front page of The Solihull News. It's surprising how many people in our town have problems concerning occult practices. The Lord has opened a door for us to minister to them the message of deliverance in Jesus. This ministry has since spread.

Since coming into fellowship with Elim at the Conference in May we have experienced much blessing and have seen eight new people join the church. Our offerings have trebled and our building fund is beginning to look quite healthy. We are shortly adding a junior church and Sunday night youth meeting to our existing services. Please pray for this pioneer work as there is virtually no Elim support within Solihull.

PARKSTONE

Pastor: P. Cole

THE Parkstone church was already over-full when two coach loads (numbering 80) of members of the Yeovil assembly arrived on the evening of October 3rd for the induction to the pastorate of Pastor Peter Cole. His home church is Yeovil, hence the large body of support. He came to Parkstone from Elim Bible College where he stayed for an extra year as an English teacher.

The service was conducted by the District Superintendent, Pastor W.J. Maybin. The preacher, Pastor A.V. Gorton, spoke challengingly on the Ephesian church as depicted in Acts 19. A singing item was provided by some Yeovil members.

Welcomes were given on behalf of the Presbytery by Pastor E.J. Thomas and of the local church by J.B. Wellstead (Church Secretary). Pastors J. Osman, G.L. W. Ladlow, and P.T. Niblett and Vivian Fisher (Elim College staff) took part in the inspiring service attended by pastors and members from all over the South of England Presbytery, as well as representatives from as far afield as Wisbech (Pastor J.P. Barton) and Macclesfield, areas in which Pastor Cole had been concerned in outreach during his college period.

Special mention was made of the past 2¾ years faithful ministry by Pastor Stephen Hilliard, now the Pastor of the Glasgow church.

Though the extent of the number of visitors was acknowledged it was great to see the Lord's house overflowing and to enjoy the powerful singing of the hymns and preaching of God's Word. May God grant that this is a foretaste of blessings to come.

J.B. WELLSTEAD

WIGAN

Pastor: T.W. Jacobs

OCTOBER 5th was a date to be put into the diaries of our members, for this was the day when they would meet their new Pastor and his family, for Pastor John Seaman had announced that Pastor and Mrs. Terry Jacobs would be taking up the pastorate.

The church was open early on Saturday evening and the people filled the seats. There was an atmosphere of "I wonder what he is like"! Pastor Alex Tee, who conducted the induction service, opened with a hymn. As always when the Spirit of God moves over His people, a great sense of the presence of God was with us. Pastor J.A. Austin sought the Lord to unite the Wigan people and their new Pastor and his family in the bonds of Calvary love. After the Bible reading, the Wigan brethren sang "My Jesus I love thee".

A short word of welcome from the Presbytery was given by Pastor A.R.T. Whittall, who challenged both pastor and congregation to support each other in the work ahead, and to spend much time in earnest prayer and in studying the Word. It was pleasing to see so many people from other churches, especially from the new Runcorn and Skelmersdale churches.

Pastor Tee gave us a word from Exodus - "God wants men". In introducing the new minister, Pastor Tee paid a great tribute to our previous Pastor, John Seaman, for the hard work and labour of love that he had done in the past seven and a half years. As our new pastor spoke a note of humour came in when he said it would be a hard job to fill John Seaman's shoes, but, as he stood before God and the congregation, he made a vow to serve God and His people, to preach the Word in truth for the glory of God. As he spoke, the people, moved by the Spirit of God, lost their forebodings and I am sure that a desire to work together came over them.

The climax of the service was when Pastor and Mrs. Jacobs knelt before God and the visiting ministers laid hands on them and prayed with the congregation for the touch of the Master's hand and the Holy Spirit's power.

JOHN E. CANNELL

WHERE BUT TO JESUS?

*In this world filled with turmoil, with sin and unrest,
With its problems, its heartaches, its woe,
Where but to Jesus, compassionate Jesus,
Where but to Him would I go?*

*Where but to Jesus to find peace unending,
When around us the shadows grow dim,
Where but to Jesus, the Star of the Morning,
To find light unflinching in Him.*

*Where but to Jesus when hungry and thirsty
To the fold of the Shepherd I flee,
To feed in His pastures, to drink the still waters;
To thank Him for welcoming me.*

*Where but to Jesus when stricken with sorrow,
Just to rest in His strength and His care,
To find in His Spirit the balm for my healing,
His peace and His triumph to share.*

*Where but to Jesus when tired and lonely
And I'm longing for love and for grace,
I kneel at His feet and rejoice in the pardon
I see in His wonderful face.*

*In this world filled with turmoil, with sin and unrest,
With its problems, its heartaches, its woe,
Where but to Jesus, compassionate Jesus,
Where but to Him would I go?*

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

32. Jehovah-Nissi (Exodus 17:15)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THE cowardly attack Amalek launched upon Israel was not against the army, but against the weak and weary stragglers (Deuteronomy 25:17-18). Israel, upheld by Moses' prayers, fought back and overcame their attackers, so Moses erected an altar to Jehovah-Nissi: "The Lord our banner". The Lord went out before Israel against their enemies and, because He led, they would be victorious; no enemy could stand before them while their mighty God went before them.

In Luke 10 we are told that, when the disciples returned from a preaching and healing mission, they specially rejoiced because demons were subject to them. The Lord Jesus replied: "I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven"; so the disciples were victorious over demons because their Lord had conquered Satan and therefore the very gates of hell could not hold out against His Church. He has told us He will not leave nor forsake us, He is present where two or three meet in His name. If He is always with us, what power can stand against us? With Jehovah-Nissi going before us victory is sure!

There is to be a further manifestation of this glorious name. We see Israel today surrounded by hostile neighbours; the Bible warns that the nations shall gather to destroy her, but that the Lord will intervene for Israel's salvation (Zechariah 14:2; Jude 14). The Lord Jesus will return as King of kings and Lord of lords, and He will destroy both the physical and spiritual hosts of Satan (Revelation 19); Israel will recognise Him as the One whom they crucified (Zechariah 12:10), they will repent of their sin and find in Him cleansing and salvation (Zechariah 12:10-13:1); they will worship Him who goes out in triumph against their enemies.

As you and I walk in obedience to Christ, He will surely be with us; He will not let us battle alone against the powers of darkness, but will go before us as a banner goes before the army. In His mighty name we shall triumph over every enemy.

Thoughts on the book of Revelation

The Great Tribulation Chapter 7

by Charles J. E. Kingston

WORLD events show we are drawing near the end of this age. Violence erupts everywhere; rapid inflation saps the value of money; governments flounder in their endeavours to find a solution. Scripture shows that ripeness, both of good and of evil, marks harvest-time. Abraham could not inherit Canaan until the iniquity of the Amorites was full (Genesis 15:16). Christ will return when this world has become as violent and corrupt as it was in Noah's day. God is no respecter of persons or of nations; corrupt Western civilisation is doomed, unless we repent.

The breaking of the sixth seal gives warning of the near approach of the "Day of the Lord", which is preceded by the "Great Tribulation" (Matthew 24:21). The English word is from the Latin "tribulum", the sledge which was drawn over the wheat in threshing; the Greek word means pressure, affliction. Christians are promised tribulation in this world because of their faith, but Jesus evidently refers to something greater than the ordinary persecution which all Christians, of every age, have suffered. Called "the Great Tribulation" (the definite article ought not to be omitted; literally, "out of the tribulation, the great one" (Revelation 7:14), this period of persecution lasts about three and a half years. Antichrist, "that man of sin... who opposes and exalts himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped" (2 Thessalonians 2:3,4), will cause that "as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed" (Revelation 13:15).

144,000 Israelites sealed. verses 1-8.

The first to be effected will be the people of Israel. Both Jeremiah, who calls it the "time of Jacob's trouble" (Jeremiah 30:7) and Daniel, who promises deliverance for "everyone that shall be found written in the book" (Daniel 12:1), describe it.

Apparently, Antichrist will make a seven year covenant with Israel but will break it half-way through and then attack them. Finally, Christ, their Messiah, will come to their aid and deliver them at Armageddon (Daniel 9:27; Zechariah 14:2-4).

View across the vale of Esdraelon or Megiddo, looking towards Mount Tabor, twelve miles away

Prior to this, 144,000 of the tribes of Israel will have been sealed by God to preserve them both through the persecution of Antichrist and the judgments of God which follow. In an "inset" chapter the woman with a crown of twelve stars (which represents the twelve tribes) is preserved in the wilderness of three and a half years from Satan's attack (Revelation 12:14).

The seal of the living God is the Holy Spirit, who inwardly witnesses to our adoption into God's family. (2 Corinthians 1:21, 22; Romans 8:15, 16). In view of God's promise to pour out His Spirit amidst the cataclysmic end-signs, before the terrible Day of the Lord comes, this would seem to suggest that these 144,000 have received the Pentecostal blessing.

These 144,000 are Israelites, not Gentiles. Nor are they representative of the Church; twenty-nine times Scripture lists the tribes of Israel. It would be strange indeed if on this occasion only, it referred not to Israel, but to the Church. Israel's spiritual blindness is to be removed when the times of the Gentiles are fulfilled (Romans 11:25; Luke 21:24).

The Palm-bearing Company. verses 7:9-17.

These are mainly Gentile Christians, "of all nations"; wheresoever on earth they come from, in Heaven they all have one clothing, "white robes", promised to overcomers (Revelation 3:5; 15:2). They are in Heaven, "before the Throne". They have come "out of (the) Great Tribulation"; the promise that they shall hunger no more ties up with their refusal to receive the mark of the Beast, with the consequence that they are unable to buy or sell (Revelation 13:16, 17; 20:4). Martyred for their faith, they include the souls seen under the altar, when the fifth seal was opened; included also are those who have died and will yet die for their faith in God and His Christ in communist countries as well as those who will perish under Antichrist.

One question remains: Will the Church go through the Tribulation?

Will Christ come for the Church before or after the Great Tribulation? To answer this we must discern between the coming of Christ for the Christians and His coming at the battle of Armageddon. At the first stage, the dead in Christ will be raised, living Christians changed, and together be caught up to meet the Lord in the air (1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17). At the second stage, Christ will stand on the Mount of Olives (Zechariah 14:3, 4). Joseph Smith puts it thus: "There is, of course, only one coming of the Lord. It may be likened to the coming of a friend from America. You may go as far as Southampton to meet him and then accompany him to your home. So we will be caught up to meet our Lord in the clouds and after a space of time accompany Him to the earth".

The Greek word used for the meeting in the air (apantēsin) is used for an official welcome to a newly arrived dignitary. When Paul went towards Rome, after landing at Puetoli, "the brethren came to meet (him) as far as Appii forum" (Acts 28:15), and this word is used for their meeting. Just so will the Church be caught up to give the Lord Jesus an official welcome and then return with Him when He comes to set up His kingdom on earth.

The period of time between the two stages of Christ's Advent.

The question turns then on the period of time between the two stages in Christ's second Advent. Not, be it noted, whether there are in fact two stages; for Jesus must come for His people before He can come with them (1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17; Jude 14). If there be no time between, but one continuous, uninterrupted, coming of Christ then obviously the Church must go through the Great Tribulation, since it is after this that Christ returns to earth to the Mount of Olives.

Scripture teaches that two great events must take place after the rapture of the Church and before Christ comes at Armageddon. The saints have to be judged at the Judgment Seat of Christ (the Bema) to receive their rewards (2 Corinthians 5:10; 1 Corinthians 3:13-15); and the marriage of the Lamb to His Bride, the Church, has to be solemnised. Then, and not until then, Christ goes forth from Heaven to "judge and make war" (Revelation 19:7-11).

Therefore it seems necessary to allow some time-lapse between the Rapture of the Church and Christ's coming at Armageddon.

We are commanded to watch for Christ's Coming.

Jesus said: "Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come" (Matthew 24:42). If the Great Tribulation under Antichrist has to come first, then we should be watching for this; only when we see this event may we begin to watch for Christ's coming. Surely, this would make Christ's warning to watch for Him subservient to watching for the Antichrist. Both Christ and Antichrist have their "coming" (Greek, parousia, personal presence). But Antichrist cannot be revealed until "he who now restrains. . . be taken out of the way" (2 Thessalonians 2:6-9). Since the Restrainer is stronger than Antichrist it seems it must be God's power, as exercised by the Holy Spirit, through the Church. If this be the meaning, then Antichrist cannot be revealed until the Church is raptured.

Further, if Christ is to come for the Church after the Tribulation, how are we to explain Matthew 24:40 and 41? "One shall be taken, and the other left", which Jesus said will take place when He comes. Those "taken" (the Greek word is paralambano, to be taken alongside or received to something) are received to the Lord and the same word is used in John 14:3 where Jesus promised "I will come again and receive you unto Myself: that where I am, there ye may be also".

What, then, happens to those who are "left"? And we may ask: "Left for what?" Our Lord's cryptic reply: "Wheresoever the body is, thither will the eagles be gathered" (Luke 17:37) suggests that the "left" ones face the horrors of Armageddon, where the birds are called to clean the carcasses of the slain (Revelation 19:17-19). The "eagles" are vultures which the ancients reckoned to belong to the eagle kind.

To sum up.

It seems clear that Christ will return for His Bride, the Church, before Antichrist is revealed and before he initiates the final phase of the Great Tribulation. But this is not to infer that Christians in the West may have to suffer for their faith as many have, and are now suffering, in some countries. As was suggested above, the great multitude who come out of the Great Tribulation include martyrs of the past, present and future, but especially those who will suffer under Antichrist when he is revealed.

Presidential Perspective

by George Canty

I've given up trying to reduce success in church growth to a given formula. Some churches grow, despite everything—or the best part of everything. Some won't grow, despite everything.

We make judgments which are far too unconsidered and facile. "The pastor is a fine man". I expect he is. They mostly all are. But some fine men that I know of are having a tough time. And neither success or the lack of it prove who are fine men—you have to judge men on other grounds.

Some ministers make their name in one area, but almost lose it in another.

I have also given up predicting the sort of response one might expect in services from the character of the neighbourhood. Normally I would expect a working class area (I hate the term really) to be less inhibited, freer, more exuberant. Yet, in one such area I felt there was stodginess. Perhaps they were trying to overcome their working class environment by putting on a facade of propriety and respectability. The people told me how well their children were getting on—"but they don't come here any more". In fact some of the most pentecostal Pentecostals are middle class and well educated, in my experience.

My church visitation now having taken in dozens of varying areas, rural and urban, there is a pattern emerging in my mind. But not a formula. There is the occasional church which shows no sign of life—especially young life. Here they are convinced they can pray the people in (though they haven't, for twenty years), and that all converts must conform to their local church culture.

But generally our churches are out-reaching, watching every chance, with activities of a dozen sorts. This accounts for the steady increase in overall figures presented to us at Elim Headquarters. If there has to be a formula, it is simple—try everything and keep on trying.

It is a fact that some communities freeze Christians out. This made the disciples so mad they wanted to call fire down from heaven on such places. I know how they felt! It happened then and it happens now. Other places are quite a lot better. People want you. Local councils are pleased to help. Things just go.

The very uncertainty of what might happen encourages us. You never know. I've just been to a tiny village where a man decided that he would start a church, four years ago, in his own house. My Presidential visit found him leading a fine congregation in a Methodist chapel, which they soon hope to buy. Usually, if you can come into existence as an Elim, you can grow. You can't grow if you don't, anyway. What we would like to see is about a hundred people trying to start a new Elim every year. Many would not succeed, but that is no reason for not trying. Some would become powerful churches in due season. On the same day as I visited the village church, I visited a similar one which was quite a remote outpost. The lad leading had been there from the start. He used a heavily accented speech almost foreign to the district. But his sheer hard work, enthusiasm, and incredible dauntlessness had drawn around him a group of people whom I would never have dreamed would be interested.

Another thing to emerge in my thinking is the impact of the new Pentecostal meetings. These folk from the "respectable" background of the historic churches take it as part of Pentecost to raise their hands in prayer, to clap, to sing in the Spirit, to pray half the night, to expect healings and the word of knowledge, and never be in a hurry to get on with the programme. Some have flung over the traces and become perhaps too wild, not profiting from the records of early Pentecostals.

What these new Pentecostals take as Pentecost, I think is part of Pentecost, though not all of it. There should also be evangelism, hard work, Sunday schools, outreach and so on, but not without the pentecostal Pentecostal exuberance.

When, years ago, I wrote articles advocating letting people have freedom in the Spirit, some ministers said to me that their trouble was the opposite—they couldn't persuade people to be free. They liked to sit and be good and quiet, no matter how the pastor stirred them up. This still obtains in some churches, but others are no longer afraid of losing their reputation as nice people. When Anglicans and Baptists can sing and praise God for hours at a time, Elim folk are saying more and more, "This is what we want in our church".

This age does not respond to hot cakes gone cold. It is a pungent, vivid, ruthless age, and traditions are thrown in the distbin. The church which blazes, and considers nothing in its styles except to love God with all its strength and mind and heart—it will offend few people in these days. They expect Pentecostals to be pentecostal.

Trunk call

THERE are many ways of helping our missionaries but David Thompson of our Smethwick church has hit upon a very practical idea. He has been searching for tin trunks that can be very useful for missionaries going out to the field. Some of our readers may have spare trunks lying in their attics or garden sheds; with a bit of attention from a handyman they can have many years of useful service in a far off country where they are of special value. Even the toughest woodworms give up. If you do have a spare trunk please write either to:-

The undervalued Christ

by F. J. B. Sumner, Exeter

Please read Luke 7:36-50

THE PICTURE this passage gives us of this sinful woman, with Christ on one hand, and the Pharisee on the other, is another of those instances proving the gospel is a Book for all time. These two ways of dealing with sin are still with us; either the hard repulsion of formal righteousness, or the sympathy of divine love. Sympathy has wonderful eyes, but nothing is so blind as spiritual pride. Note here:—

An undervalued Saviour

The Pharisee could not perceive Christ's real nature and consequently undervalued it. He imagined that Christ's unencumbered accessibility to this woman arose from sheer lack of knowledge, when in fact it came from the greatness of His compassion. The forbearance of Christ had its source, not in ignorance, but in the deep, far-reaching infinite love, which wills not the death of a sinner, but that he should turn from his wickedness and live. It was this intense love which made Him ready, not only to rescue the lost and wipe away their tears, but also to pour out His own soul unto death on the cross to save them. We read the hearts of others by our own, and this self-righteous Pharisee was no exception. He was utterly unable to comprehend the Saviour who refuses to break the bruised reed, and whose joy over sinners repenting far transcends angelic rapture.

The Pharisee also made a fatal mistake regarding Christ's manner. If the idea of rescuing from sin ever entered a Pharisee's heart at all, it would be implemented by keeping the sinner as far away from him as possible, and thanking God with a selfish kind of thankfulness that he was not like him. The sinner must be made fully aware of his exclusion from the sympathy of all good men and no door of access can be opened until purity is restored. Any other way would seem to encourage transgression. Christ's way is the very reverse of this. He came from the Ivory Palaces that He might be near sinners—able to touch them and ready to be touched. He came to take their nature upon Him in the very likeness of sinful flesh, that they might feel His nearness and that He might “not be ashamed to call them brethren.” Here He draws the sinner near, allows her to clasp His feet, that she may feel she is in contact with God's infinite and saving mercy.

An undervalued sinner

The Pharisee made the mistake of thinking that as a sinner this woman ought to be despised. He only saw what was repulsive in her; had he confined his view to the sin, his feeling would have been right; unfortunately, he included the sinner. His was a look of pride, devoid of any pity, and pride, above all spiritual pride, is as cold as the polar ice. Such pride fails to discern a human soul with an infinite destiny; a precious gem encrusted with miry clay, yet still capable of reflecting the brightest rays of divine glory!

The Pharisee failed to see that new life had entered the woman's heart. A man who is so blind as not to observe the deep capacity of the old nature will hardly discover the dawning tokens of the new. Did it mean nothing that she was pressing close to Christ clinging to His feet, bathing them with her tears? All the outward signs were before him, if only he had known how to interpret them. These sobs and tears, the irrepressible emotion, are the cries of a new creature in Christ Jesus having found its way to the source of life and joy. Penitence was there, too deep for words; the broken and contrite heart which God will not despise. This woman displayed a loathing for sin which the Pharisee could not understand, and her glowing love ignored his frown in the irresistible attraction of the Saviour.

An undervalued salvation

The Pharisee revealed that he did not know the state of his own heart. Had he been better acquainted with it he would have found sufficient there for dissatisfaction. If not actually committing the very sins he condemned, he might have known that he possessed the seeds of them in his nature. If he was keeping them down by an inward struggle, this should have made him lenient; if cherishing a love for them, he was a publican wearing a cloak. Every unrenewed heart has the fire of corruption smouldering, though the flame may never be seen. The grace of God alone can extinguish the fire of any one sin, and even then the man is a brand plucked from the burning and ready to be rekindled. The man who is saved from sin is softened by the love that saves him. The man who is saved from sin by naked pride is as hard as adamant. He may be as near the sin in his heart of hearts as ever, Managing somehow to maintain a false outward character, he builds a shaky barrier against open sin by being exceedingly severe on sinners. External reformation brings vanity, pride and all uncharitableness—sins which, if not so disreputable in the sight of men, are utterly hateful in the sight of God.

The Pharisee failed to see that in condemning the woman, he was rejecting the salvation of Christ. If he could have established his point that it was unworthy of the Saviour to fraternize with sinners, what hope would there have been for him? Publican and Pharisee, open transgressor and moral formalist, can only enter heaven by the gate of free unconditional mercy. If the Pharisee had really known himself, and who it was who spoke to him, he would have taken his place beside this woman he despised so much, and in the words of another said: "Lord, I am not worthy that Thou shouldst come under my roof". He would have rejoiced in her reception as the ground of hope for himself and as a proof that Christ is "able to save to the uttermost all that come unto God by Him." May we all learn this important lesson.

Prayer and Praise

by F. H. Coleman

THE newly-anointed David went to visit his brothers who were serving in the king's army. He came to the battlefield in time to see Goliath issue his challenge to the army of Israel. No one took up the challenge however and David was filled with righteous indignation. He therefore took up the challenge himself, saying, "Is there not a cause?"

Is there not a cause today? Everywhere we see man in the grip of sin and under the power of Satan. So often the Church of Christ seems to stand helplessly by. We must take up the challenge today, for we know One greater than David who can help us. We must take up the challenge as David did, not encased in Saul's armour and wielding a heavy sword, but in the name of the Lord of Hosts, who is our Heavenly Father.

The Hebrides Revival started because two elderly ladies committed themselves to prayer every Saturday evening. One night as they were praying, they felt an urge to send to a Missioner in Glasgow, who set out for the Hebrides; when he arrived great things began to happen.

A poor Indonesian Pentecostal youth, with little education, when he saw the needs of the Islands of his country went, at God's command, from village to village turning the people to Christ. Missionaries ignored him because God was not using them. As the revival fires spread, God gave the missionaries grace to confess how wrong they had been. The fire entered their hearts and soon they too took the gospel message in the power of the Spirit to the people. Today, a mighty revival is sweeping through Indonesia.

There is a cause today. What can we do? Many can do little but pray, but even a little can accomplish much for God.

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

RECENTLY the national newspapers carried the story of a woman whose hearing was restored after years of deafness. A clothes-rack fell on her head and instantly she could hear. "After half a century of silence", said the woman, "it is like being born again. I have missed so much, but now every day there are new sounds to intrigue me".

When a person becomes a Christian they start to hear again. They hear God speak to them, not audibly, but in their inmost heart. The Bible describes this as being born again. Before, they may have believed in God in a vague sort of way, but He seemed so distant.

When they heard His voice and responded to Him, He became "closer than breathing, nearer than hands and feet". A whole new world opens up to those who become Christians. Our spiritual sight is restored. "Something lives in every hue, Christless eyes have never seen!"

God is seeking to speak to us all the time; when we read a Christian book or hear a sermon; through prayer and above all else when we turn to His Word. Too often, however, though God has restored the spiritual hearing of Christians, they frequently do not hear Him speaking to them because they do not listen. The Bible says: "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear!"

"Oh give me Samuel's ear,
The open ear, O Lord,
Alive and quick to hear
Each whisper of Thy Word;
Like him to answer at Thy call,
And to obey Thee first of all".

Is this your prayer?

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF BIBLE STORIES by Scripture Union, 47 Marylebone Lane, LONDON, W1M 6AX, price per copy £2.95 postage and packing 30p extra.

THIS is a splendid book of 270 pages of ten by twelve inches. There are 124 Bible incidents told in story form and ranging from the Creation to the new heaven and earth. The stories are told in simple yet captivating language and beautifully illustrated in full colour. The whole production is to be commended for its good quality and excellent presentation. It is one of the finest books of its kind I have ever read and is well worth the £2.95 which it costs. This book is most informative and would be a great help to any who work among boys and girls from the primary to the intermediate. I recommend all Sunday schools to purchase a copy. At the same time it would be ideal as a special award as well as a birthday or Christmas present. The Scripture Union have produced a fine book and I hope it will have a big sale.

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF BIBLE STORIES

NO OTHER BOOK in the world is so rich in great stories, or has meant so much to so many people of all ages and races. The Bible is unique. And here in The Encyclopedia of Bible Stories is the whole panorama of the Bible. The stories are retold with vividness and deep conviction, and with a simplicity and richness of detail that all members of the family will appreciate - with illustrations of proven, popular appeal.

Here you can meet the man who built a boat on the hillside, Jacob the cheat, Pharaoh's slaves like ants - "My ants," he said; the laughter that died on the lips of the Israelites as they saw the Egyptian army chasing them into the sea; the richly-dressed Queen of Sheba, riding on her haughty camel; and the focus of the whole book, Jesus Christ - the stories he told, the people he met, the cross he carried, the tomb that could not hold him, and the church he founded - the church that is people.

The whole story is here - from the empty world that awaited the footsteps of men to the city where sorrow and despair have been chased away for ever.

Seeds

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

MR. FARMER spent a long time digging and ploughing his field. At last it was ready for planting.

The next morning Mr. Farmer hurried through his breakfast, picked up his bag of seeds and went into the field. He worked until tea-time, walking up and down the field, planting the seeds in neat rows.

"That's a good job of work done!" he said to himself. "I'll have a good crop of wheat when harvest-time comes!"

As Mr. Farmer slept that night His jealous neighbour got to work. "So he thinks he will have a bigger harvest than I will, does he? I'll show him!", he said. He picked up a bag and crept out into the darkness. When he got to Mr. Farmer's field he opened the bag and took out some seeds, not of wheat, but of weeds, and scattered them all over Mr. Farmer's field.

Day after day, week after week, Mr. Farmer tended his field. He saw the young shoots appear, then the stems, but was unable to detect the weeds, for they looked just the same as the wheat. Only when the weeds were fully grown would he be able to see them.

One morning his assistant hurried from the field. "Mr. Farmer", he said, "I thought you planted the very best seed."

"Yes, I did".

"Well, take a look at these, Mr. Farmer. These are weeds! Poisonous weeds! They are growing among the wheat. The field is full of them. What shall we do, Mr. Farmer?"

"Oh, who could have done this?" Mr. Farmer cried. "Who could be so mean and spiteful?" We will have to gather up the weeds and burn them right away or they will spoil the wheat!"

The Son of Man is the Sower of good seed in the world. Those who love the Lord Jesus are the good seed, the harvest He will gather for His kingdom.

The devil is the sower of poisonous seed.. He is jealous of God's kingdom and seeks to spoil it. Day by day he scatters seeds of greed, spite and jealousy and would have the weeds of doubt and unbelief grow in the young life.

We must be careful that the weeds do not take root in our hearts and so spoil our lives for the Lord Jesus. While we are young we need to welcome the Lord Jesus into our hearts. He will sweep away all the weeds and help us grow strong and healthy.

GLEANINGS

Strong roots

by S. E. Petts

"He grew up . . . as a tender plant and as a root out of a dry ground" (Isaiah 53:2).

WHETHER it be honeysuckle or mistletoe it must have roots. Whether the host be earth or tree, roots are essential to ourward growth. When conditions are not favourable, for example when the earth is very dry, the seed sends its roots deeper in search of sustenance. This in time will make for a better, stronger plant. One reared in a hothouse and given all the moisture it needs, has a short root system and is apt to wither the first day it is planted outside, unless it is carefully protected. So it is with young Christians; those sheltered from the world whilst young, find endurance hard when they are subjected to an adverse environment. On the other hand, those who have had to care for themselves from very early on have found how unreliable others can be; when they find Christ they sink their roots deeply in their faith, and are the better able to endure the buffetings of an unsympathetic world. Let us not rely upon outward circumstances, however pleasant, but learn, even in dry earth, to be rooted and grounded in Christ. No external hardship or limitation will then hinder our strong growth in the likeness of Christ.

Fitly framed together

(Ephesians 2:21)

Dr. Valentine Cunningham's article "for the work of the ministry" which appeared in the Elim Evangel of October 19th, was both challenging and thought-provoking. I do not propose to enter the lists and do battle over the whys and wherefores, the for and against of church structure and procedure, but just to make a few comments. First of all I do acknowledge that God has the sovereign right to ordain and use the one He chooses in a particular ministry. The classic examples of Stephen and Philip in Acts 6:8 are ever before us, and we should never be so hide-bound in our conception of the Christian ministry that we should seek to bar all save the qualified worker from preaching the gospel.

I can look back over forty years in Pentecost and remember with joy the rich ministry of both pastors and laymen, evangelists and exhorters, men and women alike. The nine years I spent in Northern Ireland bred in me a great love for the expositional and strictly Scriptural ministry of the Word of God and an appreciation of so many able and gifted brethren who could teach and preach. On Sunday mornings it was the rule more than the exception, that the brethren of the Ulster Temple were free to minister the Word and this without any previous arrangement. Many were the blessings I received from their annointed preaching.

On the other hand I was reared in a well-established, I suppose so-called "traditional", Elim Church, and rightly or wrongly I didn't like it when our pastor was absent. Somehow things never felt the same, the shepherd was missing and particularly as a young believer, I preferred the stable ministry of a man of God I knew and respected. I must comment also on the spread of the neo-Pentecostal type of house meetings. I freely admit that these meet a need, particularly in areas where Pentecostal fellowship is lacking or where it is frowned upon by orthodoxy. Nevertheless there are dangers. Some groups tend to indulge perhaps to such an extent that the fellowship becomes too exclusive. Other groups I have known of develop into a holy huddle or a glory club and others allow wrong doctrine and practice to creep in through lack of proper supervision. I have also known other house-meetings whose members despise the ordinary church member regarding themselves in some way superior. Frankly I am of the opinion that there is much to be said for the broader spectrum of church life, and a bit of rough and tumble discipline keeps the believer humble and healthy in soul.

To those who today are advocating the abandoning of traditional church worship in buildings erected for that purpose, in favour of house-meetings and who cite the New Testamnet instances where believers met in houses for worship, I would say never forget that such were properly constituted churches. The words "the church that is in the house" should be carefully noted (Romans 16:5; 1 Corinthians 16:19; Colossians 4:15 and Philemon 2). Such churches were under the oversight of recognised Elders, for in every city Elders were ordained (Titus 1:5) these men were expected to "feed the church of God, shepherd the flock and have the oversight of the church" (Acts 20:28). These are the duties of a pastor, which name in the Greek means a shepherd.

Lest the article of Dr. Cunningham should give the impression that a paid ministry was the exception in the New Testament rather than the rule, I would suggest that a careful study should be made of the teaching on Elders in 1 Timothy 5:17-19, which in the N.E.B. reads: "Elders who do well as leaders should be reckoned worthy of a double stipend, in particular those who labour at preaching and teaching". It should also be noted that training for the work of the ministry is quite Scriptural according to 2 Timothy 2:2; Timothy was to impart his knowledge of the things of God to faithful men who in turn would teach others.

To sum up, let us give ample scope for all believers to minister in the Body of Christ; if house meetings are needed, let there be proper supervision and oversight by the Pastor or deacons, but above all let us endeavour to "keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace" (Ephesians 4:3).

A Father's dilemma

by Derek Green, member of our Youth Committee

I AM not usually a dreamer, at least dreams very rarely register. I am not usually sentimental, but I recently had an unforgettable experience.

I am the father of four children, the youngest of whom is just twenty months old. As I dreamed about him one night, I heard someone advise that it was now time to let him set out on life's journey alone. "Don't be foolish and waste your life caring for him, he's old enough to look after himself now! Don't upset yourself correcting him. Let him go his own way".

So, like any father keen to learn from the wise philosophers, I took the words literally. I took my little lad out on to the street. I crushed the feelings of love that sprang inside me, I told myself I must not be too sentimental. I wanted the best for my boy. They said he should be allowed to do what he likes and make his own way. I paused on the pavement (wrongly I suppose) to give him a few words of advice on the dangers he might have to face. I told him that life is out there, and it was time for him to find it for himself.

He was keen on the idea. The big wide world stared him in the face and beckoned him. There were gardens and trees, fields and forests, cars and lorries hurtling up and down the road. There were dogs and horses, and crowds of people. How exciting! He was off, up the road as fast as his little legs would carry him. I watched, wondering if this was really the right way to bring up a child. The voice of experience kept saying, "You must not weaken now. You must let him grow up the modern way. You cannot shield him all his life. After all he is nearly two years old and he should be allowed to choose for himself now. Think of all the worry you will save yourself if you let him go. Think of all the time and trouble it takes to bring up a child the old-fashioned way."

So I watched him toddle up the road in his plastic pants and stretch fabric rompers. "Life is out there, son, you find it!"

His pace quickened and he raced on and on into the distance. Suddenly I saw him stop (at least ten metres away) and he turned and looked at me; he obviously wondered why I was not going with him. He wondered why I didn't shout "No!" this time. He could not understand why I did not stop him running into the wide open road, as I had done many times before. His liberty became insecurity and he wasn't sure he liked it. I encouraged him, "Go on son; you will soon find the way. If you want to go to Sunday school I won't stop you. On the other hand if you want to steal or take drugs I'll not stop you either. It's a great life, go and find it!"

So he toddled off again. In the distance (perhaps some twenty metres away) he hesitated again, looking weary and rather lost. I suddenly realized my mistake. I rushed up to him and said "I'm sorry, son, I forgot to give you some money." I pressed a 10p coin into his hand and he looked with excitement at his new shiny toy.

I turned and walked back, encouraging him to get on his way again. Glancing over my shoulder, I saw the look on his face. I will never forget it. However, I remained loyal to my wise advisers. I told him again that he was old enough to choose for himself and after all, I had now given him some money and even pointed out the way of life. What more could a youngster expect from a busy father in this enlightened age?

I looked again. His tear-stained face, his outstretched arms, every centimetre of his little body seemed to say "Daddy I really do need you!"

Suddenly, I woke up, but the picture was still vividly on my mind. It was 3 a.m.! With tears in my eyes I glanced at the cot where the little fellow was lying peacefully asleep. I spent the next hour and a half making some important vows.

Revelation 15:1-8

"They sing the song of Moses . . . and . . . of the Lamb" (v.3).

IN THE song of Moses (Exodus 15), as in the song of the Redeemed, we can see the one purpose is to exalt the Lord who has triumphed gloriously. The melody and method may have changed slightly, but the great and marvellous works of the Almighty are ever the same. Our God knows no change, so "let us come before His presence with singing" (Psalm 100:2).

Tuesday, November 19th

Revelation 16:1-11

"Go your ways" (v.1).

WHICH way? Here in this passage we see the awfulness of wrath being poured out upon the heads of those who have gone their way. A righteous and holy God must deal with sin in His own way. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death" (Proverbs 16:25). But there is a way of escape from God's wrath: it is to love the Lord thy God. By simply trusting in Him and resting upon His finished work at Calvary, we can have peace and rest. "He is not willing that any should perish".

Wednesday, November 20th

Revelation 16:12-17

"Blessed is he that watcheth . . ." (v.15).

THE watchman is a very important person. Whether he is watching for danger, or watching for the return of a friend, there is a purpose in his task. Every child of God is exhorted, not only to "watch and pray, lest ye enter into temptation" (Mark 14:35), but also to "Look up (watch) for your redemption draweth nigh". Oh the blessed hope, Jesus, the soon Coming King! "Be ye therefore ready also: for the Son of Man cometh at an hour when ye think not" (Luke 12:40).

Thursday, November 21st

Revelation 17:1-18

"The Lamb shall overcome them . . ." (v.14).

HOWEVER many are of one mind, and although they may boast of power and strength, the Lamb is conqueror. It has always been so; even when they led Him as a Lamb to slaughter, it was that ultimately He should win the day and show forth His power. We can confidently sing, "I'm on the victory side, for Jesus is my Captain." Let us go forth and in everything we do for the Master. Remember that He will "never leave us nor forsake us". In Him, we too are more than conquerors.

Friday, November 22nd

Revelation 18:1-10

"... for strong is the Lord God" (v.8).

STRONG in judgment: and in justice. I have often tried to visualize the strength of the Lord. But then, I have only been able to measure using human comparison. How inadequate and miserably these fall short. He is strong in His love, His compassion, His thoughts and His ways. Our God knows no change, not even after His dealing with men for thousands of years. He is just the same today. Marvel of marvels, our God is as strong as ever. Fear not, for with Him every obstacle can be overcome.

Saturday, November 23rd

Revelation 18:11-24

"For in one hour so great riches is come to nought" (v.17).

WE have listed for us in this passage, many of the precious delicacies and luxuries of life. Linked as these are with the fall of Babylon, one is surely reminded of their worthlessness, compared with spiritual realities. "We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out" (1 Timothy 6:7). Blessings are promised when we begin to store up treasure in Heaven, so much in fact, that "there shall not be room enough to contain it" (Matthew 3:8).

Sunday, November 24th

Revelation 19:1-10

"Alleluia" (vv. 1,3,4,6).

FOUR times this universal word appears. Spontaneous gratitude flows from the lips when a heart has experienced salvation. The whole theme of our reading today is worship, and how lovely it is on this the Lord's day, which is set apart for worship. The modern trend is toward enjoyment, freedom, even desecration. Worship, as well as salvation, belong to the Lord. "Oh for a heart to praise my God. A heart from sin set free". "Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to Him" (v.7).

Our readers may be interested to note that these Scriptures are read every weekday at the office prayer meeting. Members of the staff meet each morning, when we remember our churches throughout the country as well as our workers overseas.

NEWS FLASH

23 MEN AND WOMEN ACCEPT JESUS CHRIST AS SAVIOUR AT ORDINATION SERVICE

13 PASTORS ORDAINED TO THE MINISTRY

Better than a wife

THE MEETING being over, Pastors Yona, Petro and Stephen were sitting with me in the shade of the Landrover, in which I live while teaching in the bush churches. We were discussing the subject of wives. "I don't understand" I protested, "the Wambulu women seem pleasant enough, they are quite good looking and I am particularly impressed by the modesty of their dress. Why is there so much strife between them and their husbands?" Petro answered me, "In our tribe cows are more important than wives. If you show that you are fond of your wife you will be despised. Men are particularly rude to their wives when visitors are present. A cow is of more value than a wife. If the wife does not pay a great deal of attention to the welfare of the cows; if she does not see that they are well, or check them in to the house in the evening, her husband will get very angry."

Such a woman is considered a bad wife. "Do you not see that the cows have returned? What sort of a wife are you?" he said, rebuking her. Sometimes he will make disparaging remarks about her family or say: "Your father knows nothing of cattle (he is uncivilised)."

Pastor Yona took up the story. "We ourselves are now Christians, but those who do not know our Saviour continue on in the darkness of tribal customs. If a man has no cattle it is a reproach to his manhood. In the beer-drinks he becomes the victim of insulting remarks. Until finally he angrily sets off for the sorcerer's village. 'How many cattle do you want?' asks the sorcerer. 'I will give you a poisoned-spell. A large bull will be the fee; if you want many cattle you must give your wife or your firstborn to die, or the loss of your right eye; only these will bring riches to you. The owner of a dying cow may take an oath with the sorcerer to exchange one of his family, giving them to die in the place of the cow".

Wife, cattle and children

Mzee Bull with Pastors Yona, Petro and Stephen out in the bush

Pastor Stephen interjected, "A neighbour of mine who has many cattle did that very thing when his calves were dying. He went to Gumbe and arranged with a sorcerer to transfer death from the cattle-fold into his house, to his eldest child. In the morning he dispersed his family on various errands. Then he sprinkled the poison powder in the part of the house in which the cattle had slept and ordered his son to clear out the dung together with the unseen powder.

"Shortly after, the boy was caught in a bush-fire and severely burned. The weeping mother watched over him until he died, the father openly rejoiced. We Christians had compassion on the mother and took the body of her son and buried him. When we returned to comfort her she told us the full story, ending with these tragic words, 'you see, my son was killed by his own father'. The father was well satisfied no another calve had died".

Pastor Yona concluded: "We of the Wambulu tribe have lost our way in complete darkness. We give our wives to die in exchange for cattle and then marry another girl. We who have seen the light of God brought by Jesus Christ have been taught to love our wives and children far more than cattle. Truly the living God be praised; He whom we did not know. God bless those who came from Britain to Mbulu land; God bless them greatly. The Christians who made it possible for them to come, how we praise God for them! We particularly remember the British ladies in our praises to God as we hear of their continual help to us here. May the Lord bless and guide them".

THE RECENT conference of district superintendents and Presbytery evangelistic secretaries held in Cheltenham was a meeting with a difference. Most of us have been to meetings where there has been a carefully chosen subject, an eloquent speaker and penetrating questions, yet when it has all come to an end we have wondered what has been achieved. This conference (if that is the right word—perhaps get together might have been a better phrase) was not an academic exercise but an intensely practical and deeply personal event.

The experience of years and the enthusiasm of youth were combined to make this a memorable meeting.

We may propound our theories of how men are to be reached for Christ but when all is said and done, in the end it comes down to the degree of personal dedication of the individual worker.
David Wilkerson, a young minister in America, one day decided that he was spending too long in front of the television screen; he devoted the time that he saved to prayer, the consequences of this can be read in The Cross and the Switchblade. Hugo Grotius (1583—1645) wrote about the dangers that ministers are subject to, when he spoke of one at the end of a long life:

"I spent my life laboriously doing nothing".

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER:
We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to Him will claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptist in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7.
THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE:
We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

EALING

Pastor: F.F.L. Frost

We praise God for His blessing upon the church's forty-fourth birthday celebrations at the beginning of September, when we welcomed Pastor and Mrs. J.T. Bradley as our guests. We began with a tea on the Saturday prepared by the sisters, who excelled themselves with the abundant spread, when 108 participated. We were also pleased to welcome Pastor and Mrs. E.R. Corsie and Pastor Lyndon Bowring and to have the support of a large contingent from Kensington Temple and other churches.

The celebrations co-incided with Pastor and Mrs. Frost's second anniversary at Ealing, during which time the work has progressed. From the beginning of the week-end, we were conscious of the Lord's presence. At the Saturday evening meeting Pastor Frost paid tribute to the loyalty and support that he had received from the deacons, other church officers and the members. Mr. L.W. Groves (Church Secretary) expressed the appreciation of the church to the Pastor for his untiring work and ministry in Ealing, and he presented Pastor Frost with a cheque. Mrs. Bradley and Mrs. Frost received bouquets. The three singing items by the Kensington Temple Choir brought great blessing, and Pastor Bradley's message, given in his unique manner, was very appropriate. His ministry continued throughout the Sunday with blessing and great uplift to all.

Six new members have just been received into fellowship.

PALMERS GREEN

Pastor: A.L. Hawkes

FOR a few days in August, one of our Sunday school teachers, Derek Hann, organised a series of special afternoon children's meetings. Filmstrips and Bible stories were given and the children were encouraged to participate in various forms of art work. One group were making a frieze by cutting pictures out of magazines, illustrating the subject of the broad and narrow way. Others made glove puppets and others were doing paintings and drawings. The local press took photographs and put an article in our local paper.

The climax was the Sunday evening service, when the children brought their parents to see their efforts, and to listen to the Good News of our Lord Jesus. Children can influence their parents to come to church more than anyone else and this venture confirmed this.

The first of a series of monthly week-night rallies, proved to be a blessing, Ian Smale chaired the meeting, and the preacher was Pastor Hawkes. The anointed singing of three sisters from Kensington Temple was a real uplift.

What an evening we had at the first harvest supper in our church. We wondered how many would come. It had been raining all day, and at 7.30 it was still coming down, but the people came. Friends whom we had not seen for some time, and new-comers who need Christ, especially two for whom much prayer had been made, brought the attendance to seventy. After a film pointing out the love that we need one for another, whether great or small, rich or poor, Ian Smale provided some singing items. The solos that Gwen from Newcastle brought stirred our hearts. Pastor Hawkes concluded with an invitation to accept Christ.

ISLINGTON

Pastor: A.L. Hawkes

ON September 1st, we commenced a month of evangelism by holding a "Neighbours' Tea Night". Invitations had been printed and were given out by the members, who worked very hard to bring their friends and neighbours. In spite of a heavy downpour of rain, about fifty came to enjoy the spread and seventy attended the service which followed. This was convened by the assistant pastor, Ian Smale, and the message was preached by Pastor Adrian Hawkes. One lady came back to the Lord. We are sure that this is the beginning of great things from God.

Missionary Conference at Slavanka

Report by A. Nicolson, member of our Missionary Council

THE 1974 Conference of the Elim Missionary Society was well and truly launched with an excellent evening rally at the Elim Pentecostal Church in Springbourne. A large and appreciative congregation created an atmosphere of enthusiasm and anticipation with its fine singing. This atmosphere was well sustained by the inspired singing of the West Wessex Choir under its leader Mr. Don House. Their pieces were well chosen and the standard of presentation was not only of a high musical quality but was under the anointing of the Spirit.

It was an evening of introductions and testimonies as missionaries from various fields and new candidates spoke of the work on their respective fields and their call to overseas ministry.

Sunday:— The day began with a devotional session in Slavanka's conference hall. Pastor A. Nicolson from Southend-on-Sea led the devotions drawing the attention of those present to the words in Genesis 24:13 and 26. After breakfast some of the missionaries and candidates as well as council members, went off to minister in the local churches. In Slavanka a communion service was conducted by Gerald Ladlow. Pastor George Miller, candidate for Guyana spoke on 'The Hope of Our Calling'. The evening service was led by the Missionary Secretary, Leslie Wigglesworth and the speaker was Stephen Huntly, candidate for Brazil, who reminded the congregation that we were to 'stand fast' not 'stand still'.

Monday:— Morning devotions were led by the Principal of our Elim Bible College, Wesley Gilpin whose theme was 'The Call of Moses'. This then was the 'Situation of the Call', the 'Circumstances of the Call' and the 'Consequences and Results' of the Call.

At 10 the Conference assembled to hear the first of the papers on the theme 'The GREAT COMMISSION'. This was presented by George Hillman, whose subject was 'Explaining The Great Commission', in which he delivered a comprehensive and thought provoking treatise on this important aspect of 'The Great Commission'. After a break for coffee there was a lively and productive discussion on the subject matter of the paper.

The evening rally, at Slavanka was convened by Pastor Gilpin and the speaker was Miss Olive Garbutt from Rhodesia. A young couple from our Portsmouth church, David and Ruth Newman, ministered in song. Miss Garbutt based her talk on Ephesians 6:10-18 emphasising the importance of the weapons of our warfare; the Holy Spirit's power, prayer, faith, and the blood of the Lamb. Miss Garbutt spoke of ways by which Satan exalted himself against the gospel using illustrations from her experiences on the field.

Tuesday:— Devotions were conducted by P.S. Brewster who gave an unusual message on the 'Silent Years of Christ', drawing a vivid picture of Jesus as the breadwinner of the home, of a young man who knew what it was to work with his hands, and one who had intimate knowledge of the 'intrigues' of family life.

The subject for today's paper was 'Answering The Great Commission' and this was given by Archie Nicolson, who spoke of the Privilege, the Motives, the Basic Requirements, the Preparation and the Ways and Means of Answering the Great Commission. The discussion which followed was both helpful and interesting.

Our Missionary Secretary convened the evening rally at which the speaker was Miss Jennifer Quirie from Zaire. Earlier in the rally Pastor Ladlow, Chairman of the Elim Missionary Council, announced the acceptance of Miss Quirie as an Elim missionary. Miss Quirie began with a brief word of testimony and then went on to speak of the difficulties and the blessings which she had experienced on the field. A delightful note (musically and otherwise) was struck when Pastor and Mrs. Wigglesworth joined Miss Quirie in a piece sung in the language of the people among whom all three had laboured for the Lord. Miss Quirie also showed some very interesting slides of her work.

Wednesday:— David Ayling was the leader in the morning devotions. Let me say in passing what a joy it was to have Pastor Gorman at the Conference and to hear him lead the assembled company in prayer. Pastor Ayling took for his text Daniel 6:10 and the words "As he had done aforetime". He spoke of Daniel's steadfastness in the face of the king's decree and proceeded to give us the reasons which lay behind Daniel's strength.

'Fulfilling the Great Commission' was today's subject presented by Pastor Leslie Wigglesworth who pointed out the change that had taken place in the life of the disciples. They had watched the Master at work and had seen His miracles. Now they had to go into all the world and do those things. Our Missionary Secretary showed us that much of the advanced work of today had very small beginnings. There was a timely warning in his statement. "Christians listen to the voice of politicians rather than the voice of Christ". Once again a profitable discussion followed.

Wednesday! Winton and E.W.M.A. What a combination and what a tremendous rally! The good folks of Winton with their Pastor and his wife provided everyone with a truly magnificent tea before the evening rally. As the time for the meeting to commence drew near the ushers had their work cut out to find seats for the new arrivals, in spite of extra chairs having been brought in. Mrs. Gladys Gorton Secretary for E.W.M.A. convened the meeting and Mrs. May Osman led in prayer. The Scripture reading was from Romans 10 and was read by Mrs. Backhouse. Musical items were rendered by the Springbourne Five and Pam Osman. It was indeed a ladies' night as one after another of our lady missionaries told of the tremendous help E.W.M.A. had been in providing vital equipment for their respective fields. Our latest recruits among the ladies for missionary work, Mrs. Hazel Miller and Mrs. Maureen Huntly were introduced and both gave their testimonies. Miss Alice and Miss Lillian Marshall were given a warm ovation by the congregation as Mrs. Gorton asked them to stand. Mrs. Ruth Wigglesworth, wife of our Missionary Secretary, drew a word picture of life in the earlier days when there was no electricity, or water supplies and no permanent roofs. Now, thanks to our fine band of sisters in the E.W.M.A. many of the fields have these facilities. Mrs. Ladlow spoke of the thrill of having an up-to-date water filter out in Ghana. Pastor Wigglesworth gave an overall picture of the way in which E.W.M.A. was providing much needed equipment.

Thursday:— Mrs. Gladys Gorton took for her text the words from Mark 9:23 'If thou can'st believe'. Our sister gave a challenging word on the 'If's of God'.

Pastor Ladlow's subject was 'Supporting The Commission' and in a well presented paper he brought out three main points. Prayerful Interest: Practical Interest and Personal Interest. The discussion which followed brought out much practical information, such as the cost of sending out missionaries today. It will cost £1,000 to send Pastor and Mrs. Huntly and their two children to Brazil.

The conference hall was filled yet again for another evening rally. The soloist was Mrs. Ladlow and her ministry was richly blessed. The speaker was Miss Anne Stephenson who captured the hearts of all present with her delightful frankness. Anne went on to tell of her work among the young people and the grown ups of the Indian communities in the area of the Transvaal where she lived. This was followed by the showing of some excellent coloured slides.

Friday:— Pastor T.W. Walker led the morning devotions and speaking on the three metaphorical illustrations used by Paul in 1 Thessalonians two Trustees (v.4) Nursing Mothers (v.7) and Fathers (v.11). Among several excellent thoughts I liked this one in particular, "In the Name of Jesus we have power of attorney".

News of Pastor Peter Hill's homecall was given to us and prayer was offered on behalf of his wife and their little boy.

Pastor Brewster delivered the final paper of the Conference and his subject was 'Extending the Commission'. We sat enthralled as he told of the wonderful way God was moving in other lands. Time passed all too swiftly but the speaker was asked to continue his paper after the coffee break. A fruitful discussion followed, during which the need for expansion at home and abroad was emphasised.

Friday evening was reserved for the new candidates and it was thrilling to listen to their testimonies and vision for the work to which God was sending them. David and Ruth from Portsmouth ministered again in song and the evening was brought to a fitting climax when hands were laid on Pastor and Mrs. Miller for their farewell service before going to Guyana.

Saturday:— We gathered for the final meeting and Mrs. Ruth Wigglesworth centred our minds on the precious offering of our wills to the Lord. Simply but with deep sincerity she spoke of the difficulties we face when confronted with God's will, pointing out that when we obey the will of God then it is as precious as that alabaster box of precious ointment.

There was the sound of cars starting up. Last minute handshakes and shouts of farewell. For me and I am certain others felt the same, this was a great conference. Let me finish this report with comments from one or two who very kindly expressed their views to me.

P.S. Brewster: "A very helpful and useful conference, with excellent papers. It is a pity that all our ministers did not have the opportunity of hearing the papers and discussions".

"A most challenging and heopful conference". (A Baptist minister).

Miss Herbert. . . The majority of people are 'old', if only younger people were able to join in a conference of this nature. The quality fo the conference was excellent".

Samuel Gorman: "A most enjoyable conference with ecxellent ministry and a deep sense of The presence of God, also splendid Christian fellowship".

Thoughts on the book of Revelation

The Beast and the False Prophet Chapter 13

by Charles J. E. Kingston

IN the story-flow of Revelation, carried by the seals, trumpets and vials, various chapters occur as insets. In which fuller details are given of some of the characters in the story. Chapter thirteen is such an inset.

The Bible foretells a world-system in the latter days, under a world-figure, variously called the Antichrist, the Man of sin, or the Beast (1 John 2:18; 2 Thessalonians 2:3; Revelation 13). The Antichrist is not Satan though he will receive his power from him; Satan has his evil trinity, counterfeiting the Holy Trinity of the Godhead. Satan, called the Dragon, is the unseen "father of lies"; Antichrist, called the Beast, is the "man of sin. . . the son of perdition"; the False-prophet, seals the worshippers of the Antichrist in imitation of the Holy Spirit who seals the true believers in Christ.

Antichrist's rise to power.

As a direct result of Satan's defeat in the war in the heavenlies, he is cast down to the earth and immediately begins the persecution of those who have "the testimony of Jesus Christ" (Revelation 12:9, 12, 17). To this end he calls forth the Beast from the tumultuous world situation of that day, signified by the sea (Revelation 13:1).

With all the problems facing the world, there is a growing need for a leader, who will be able to find the solution to world troubles. When the Beast arrives, his popularity will be so great that the world will sing his praises saying, "Who is like the Beast and who can stand against him?" (Revelation 13:3,4).

When Antichrist appears he will have the support of the heads of state, who are represented by the ten horns of the Beast. One of his first moves will be to conclude a seven-year agreement with Israel, probably offering his protection in return for certain concessions from their side. Half-way through this period he will break the covenant and attack the Israelis, endeavouring to compel the worship of his image, persecuting those who refuse (Daniel: 9:27;

Revelation 13:15).

Description of Antichrist's reign.

He is an individual, called "that man of sin" (2 Thessalonians 2:3) and cannot therefore be simply a religious system, or a secular state. His number, 666, is the "number of a man". Six is man's number, as three is God's and seven, the number of completeness. The repetition of man's number three times suggests the failure of Antichrist's effort to reach deity; each time he "falls short" (as we all do) of God's glory (Romans 3:23).

The deluded world will "believe a lie" and will, for a time, worship him. If it be thought unlikely that modern man would be willing to worship him, it should be remembered that Hitler, in his day, was almost deified; Mao, in China, is given worship, hymns are sung to his portrait and he is thanked by the Chinese for their meals as Christians thank God for theirs.

Antichrist will be endued with supernatural powers, imparted by that evil spirit inhabiting him, which "ascends out of the bottomless pit" (Revelation 11:7). During his reign of terror all will have to receive his mark, without which they will not be able to buy or sell. Many of the saints will be put to death, preferring to suffer rather than to face God's eternal judgment upon those who "worship the Beast and his image and receive his mark" (Revelation 13:7; 14:9-13). Speaking of the persecution in Russia, Solzhenitsyn says that the "fearlessness of those who have lost everything" encouraged him. "Own nothing", he counsels those who have been arrested. A food package, he warns, "transforms you from a free though hungry person into one who is anxious and cowardly . . . These material things will keep you from entering into the heavenly kingdom of the liberated spirit." ("Time", July 15th 1974).

With their present monetary difficulties, the nations of the world, are seeking a new solution to their problem. One suggestion is that gold as the basis of world currency be replaced by "Special drawing rights", each country being allocated a certain proportion which could be used to settle international debts and as collateral for loans. Another plan is for a World Tribunal to take over all possessions, all savings, etc.; every person would receive a certain amount of money and a number which would permit him to buy or sell. That is how near we are getting to the end of the age!

Today, master minds are at work, preparing the way for Antichrist. The conflict is between no-godism and God; between unrestrained self-indulgence and moral discipline; between the worship of man or the worship of God.

Antichrist's power limited.

The over-ruling sovereignty of God allows him only forty-two months (or three-and-a-half years, which are the final half of Antichrist's seven years' covenant with Israel). The shortening of this period of persecution is for the elect's sake (Revelation 13:5; Matthew 24:21,22).

Indeed, he cannot even be revealed to the world until "he who now letteth (restrains) be taken out of the way" (2 Thessalonians 2:6,7). As we suggested in the previous article, this must be the removal of the Church from this earth by the rapture. This will remove the "salt" which has hitherto prevented final and total corruption, and the "lights" which so far have prevented total world darkness. Some may object that since Paul told the Thessalonian Christians who the restrainer was, it was most probably the Roman secular power of that day. This, however, is open to a fatal objection; the "Man of sin" is to be destroyed by the "brightness of His coming" (2 Thessalonians 2:8). Antichrist's appearance on the world scene can only precede by a few years the second stage of Christ's second advent; he is, in fact, to be taken prisoner at the battle of Armageddon and then cast into the lake of fire; a thousand years later, both he and his false prophet are still there (Revelation 19:20; 20:10).

The False Prophet.

Antichrist has, as his assistant, a false prophet who will promote the worship of the Beast and his image; he will be in charge of the brand-marking of Antichrist's worshippers and of the liquidation of all who refuse. The method of death will be decapitation (Revelation 13:15-17; 20:4).

The False Prophet will be the head of a false system of religion in the last days which will embrace all false and formal religions under the one headship of Antichrist, who will demand worship for himself (2 Thessalonians 2:4).

The religious element in man cannot be suppressed; it may be perverted, but true or false, man must have a religion. The French Atheists of 1793 who pronounced against all traditional religion and sought to abolish God, knelt before the idols of liberty and equality. Abbé Barruel describes how, during the Revolution people prostrated themselves before an image of Mirabeau. Someone cried out; "Wretches, you are guilty of idolatry!" only to be told, "Kneel, or you shall die!"

There must come a "falling away first", the Apostasy, before Antichrist is revealed (2 Thessalonians 2:3). Present day godlessness, greed, unrestrained immorality and violence, show that this apostasy is already emerging. The Bible states: "in the last days perilous times will come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves . . . unholy . . . fierce, despisers of those that are good . . . lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God" (2 Timothy 3:1-4).

One further question remains to be answered. If the Church is to be raptured before the Antichrist is revealed, who are the "elect" and those who "have the testimony of Jesus Christ" (Matthew 24:22; Revelation 12:17)? The "elect" are those chosen by God, in whatever age they live. Thus God called "Israel, mine elect (Isaiah 45:4). In New Testament days, believers in Christ were called "elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ" (1 Peter 1:2). The rapture of the Church, comprising all "that are Christ's at His coming" (1 Corinthians 15:23), will leave behind many "having a form of godliness" (2 Timothy 3:5); many of these will repent of their formality and receive Christ sincerely. It is they, together with the elect nation of Israel, who will be persecuted to death by Antichrist.

Real care?

"I was hungry and you formed a humanities club, and discussed my hunger. Thank you!

I was imprisoned and you crept off quietly to your chapel in the cellar and prayed for my release.

I was naked, and in your mind you debated the morality of my appearance.

I was sick and you knelt and thanked God for your health.

I was homeless, and you preached to me of a spiritual shelter, of the love of God.

I was lonely, and you left me alone to pray for me.

You seem so holy, so close to God, but I'm still hungry, and lonely and cold. . . ."

Please read Matthew 25:34 and James 2:15, 16.

Attack and counter attack

Portrait of Martin Luther by Lucas
Cranach (1525)
City Art Gallery,
Bristol

ON October 31st, 1517, a German monk, Martin Luther, pinned up his 95 theses at the Castle church of Wittenberg. Radical though his attempts at reform were to be, he was by no means the first to call into question some of the doctrines of the Roman Church. There had been dissident views about the worldliness of the Church, the emphasis on money, the stifling of the spirit of inquiry and other abuses for some time; by 1517 the atmosphere in which change can be effected was present. Luther's efforts were to be of such magnitude that they altered the face of Europe.

German artists were enthusiastic in embracing Luther's teaching. In 1516, Durer, who had been working mainly on pictures of Mary, completely abandoned Catholicism for the teachings of this great reformer. A dear friend and supporter of Luther was Cranach, a prolific and successful painter. The Reformation may not have affected Cranach's style but it certainly affected his subject matter. 'Not merely did he paint several portraits of Luther and other close friends among the reformers; he was with them in disseminating the message of Christianity in its freshly revived form. Thus he is one of the first painters to take the incident of Christ encouraging the approach of little children, "for of such is the Kingdom of heaven". The subject was likely to appeal to those who stressed salvation, not through good works and pious practices but through God's grace (Article on Cranach, Sunday Times Supplement, December, '72). I feel that it is imperative for a balanced understanding of our faith that I stress here that the Reformation did not in any way affect the production of secular pictures. How well I remember the reaction of many of my friends who, upon my conversion, thought that my use of colour would become sombre and that I would wander around looking for things to cover up!

For the painters of the Reformation, Jesus had come to give 'abundant life' and they were entirely in agreement with Luther in that they felt it "far better to marry than to burn". The consideration of the arts as worldly arose from the tendency to look for holiness in a legalistic manner and owes its origin to the extreme Calvinism and Puritanism of the early seventeenth century.

The Protestant Reformation had of course come as a challenge to the authority of the Roman Catholic Church, which had hitherto held many under by force. Soon we see the Roman Catholic Church trying to reinstate itself with the Counter Reformation. Belgium and Spain was very much in the Roman Catholic world whilst Holland was deeply influenced by the Reformation.

One of the most successful painters of the Counter Reformation was Rubens. From 1616 he abandoned the classical elements in his style and took part wholeheartedly in the Roman Catholic programme of propaganda, which consisted in the main of devotional themes to Mary and the triumphs of the Martyrs.

Murillo (1617-1682), a Spanish painter of the Counter Reformation, painted themes demanded of him, i.e. lives of Spanish saints and domestic themes of the Holy Family. I feel that he is at his best in the series of narrative pictures, 'Christ healing the Paralytic at the pool of Bethesda', (1670-4), National Gallery London, being one of them. These are pictures that have a universal appeal in that they are free from Roman Catholic dogma. At his worst he produced a prodigious amount of 'The Virgin and Child in Glory', (1673), Walker Art Gallery, Liverpool, pictures which, although admirable for their skill, are shallow in content.

The Counter Reformation was barely successful in its endeavours to renew and reinstate Catholicism. The church which had been for so long almost the sole employer of the painter gave second place to the rich merchant princes, which is the reason for the mass secularization of artistic themes.

Hey! What are you doing with that pulpit?

by John Lancaster

JUST recently, on a visit to my home town, I entered a non-conformist church which I had last visited during the war years. Immediately I was aware that something about the building was different. The pulpit had been moved! It now stood on one side of the building, opposite the organ, and its place in the centre alcove had been taken by a simple "altar" graced by a cross and two beautifully arranged vases of flowers. The effect, aesthetically, was pleasing, and it may have been a matter of acoustics which had occasioned the change, but I must confess it gave me an uneasy feeling. It reminded me of what had happened to the building in Queensway, London, where some of the folks who now worship at Kensington Temple once met. During part of my ministry there we worshipped in a rented building which was eventually sold by the owners to the Roman Catholics. Entering the church some time later, I discovered that the beautiful pulpit had been taken away and in its place, with all its rich, sacramental regalia, stood an altar. It was symbolic. The Word had been replaced by the Sacrament, the authority of the Scriptures by the enactments of mystical rites and ceremonies.

It would, perhaps, be unfair to read too much into the motives of those who had moved the pulpit in that church in my home town, but it still troubled me. Did it reflect an attitude to the Word of God, or, at least, to preaching as such? Did it indicate a trend away from the centrality of the Scriptures to a more liturgical, sacramental form of worship? Was it an architectural cry for help which, in effect, was saying: "The pulpit has nothing to offer us, let us put it to one side"? Only those who were responsible for the change — and God Himself — know the real answers to those questions, but their implications are of such a nature that they embrace us all. What is our real attitude to the Word of God?

One must confess, of course, that when it comes to pulpits and preaching there may sometimes be good reasons for a change! Some pulpits are in the wrong position so far as acoustics are concerned; some are too narrow, others too high, and — especially in modern buildings — far too many are not high enough. As for preachers — well, many of us have to admit that we are no better than our pulpits! In some places the hungry sheep look up and are not fed, in others they are fed only on candy floss.

But when all is said and done, the preaching of the Word is a God-ordained means of imparting truth and ministering to the spiritual needs of the people of God. That fact in itself places a serious responsibility on the preacher. If he is ever to fulfil his calling he must seek the face of God and the anointing of the Spirit so that the ministry of the Word conforms to what God and the people have a right to expect. Prayerlessness, lack of study, careless repetition of other men's material and a failure to sense the real spiritual needs of the people are some of the reasons why preaching has failed to make its impact. But there is also a serious responsibility placed on the people. Whatever the shortcomings of the messenger, it is the message itself to which they must give their attention.

How often it is true in this, as in other things, that “we have not because we ask not”. We sometimes complain that we don’t “get anything” from the preacher and the reason is that often we have never really asked God to give him something for us. If it is necessary for the preacher to give himself to the Word of God and prayer (Acts 6:4), it is also necessary for the congregation to give themselves to receiving and applying the preaching of that Word (Acts 2:42). It cuts both ways.

Moving the pulpit is a dangerous thing. I speak of the pulpit not as a piece of furniture but as a symbol for the Word of God proclaimed and expounded in the life of the church. Pastor Joseph Smith once referred to the pulpit as a “coward’s castle” where the preacher could launch his arrows from a safe distance — “six feet above contradiction”, as someone else once put it, but it is not in these terms that I speak in favour of the pulpit. Rather, I refer to it as the sacred threshold where preacher and congregation alike expose themselves to the Word of God. Whether it be ornate, like the superb “John Knox” pulpit in the City Temple, Edinburgh, or the simple wooden chair on which a Sunday School teacher sits before her class, the “pulpit” in this sense the point of confrontation with the Scriptures, where people wrestle with the angel of Truth and limp away with the characteristic walk of the man who has felt the touch of God. To move it to one side is to make the church accentric.

Some pulpits have been moved to accommodate the choir, some to make the building more adaptable for youth work and others for a variety of seemingly good, practical reasons. Yet sometimes one has the uneasy feeling that even this physical removal expresses an almost unconscious attitude to preaching. Is there the hidden danger that the music of the church or its youth work become more important than the Word? We preachers must sorrowfully take our share of the blame in this, for we have often offered stale bread instead of fresh manna, but the fact remains that when the Word of God is relegated to a secondary place in church life a situation of grave spiritual danger has been reached.

Beyond the physical removal there are more subtle ways of putting the Word of God in second place. Sometimes the very format of our services does this. We have so many “items” in our services that the preaching — and sometimes even the reading — of the Word is almost an afterthought. Sometimes, too, our emphasis on what we call “the worshiptime” in our Sunday morning services deprives the assembly of the only opportunity it has of being exposed to the Word of God on an occasion when the majority of the believers are gathered together. There must be flexibility in this, of course, and an openness to the leading of the Spirit, but we need to recognise the danger of our “liberty” in worship doing to the preaching of the Word what the Sacramentalist’s altar does to the pulpit.

Some of the most disturbing words Jesus ever uttered were spoken to the learned Scribes and Pharisees — the “Bible students” of His day: “Ye have made the commandment of God of none effect by your tradition” (Matthew 15:6). Their man-made traditions, like some ornate scabbard, carefully protected them from the sharp, two-edged sword of God’s Word. The Word was read and expounded but its impact was softened by layers of protective interpretation. This, again, is moving the Word of God from its rightful place as the basis of belief and the standard by which behaviour is tested. While we must “earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the saints”, we must also learn to distinguish between what is basic Bible truth and what may be the traditions of men, commendable in their day but no longer applicable to the current situation, and we must be prepared to listen to what “the Spirit saith to the churches” and adapt our church life and personal life accordingly. To do this may be painful. It means stripping off the cosy garments of comfortable Christianity and being exposed to the surgery of the Spirit but it is the only way to spiritual health. Refusal to do it means moving the Word of God to one side — and the end thereof are the ways of death.

Fellow-preacher, what are you doing with that pulpit? Is it the stage on which you display your learning, the launching pad for your latest joke? Or is it the sacred place where you disclosed to the people what God gave you for them in the secret place of your fellowship with Him? “Lord, forgive us for some of the things we have said and done in the pulpit. Save us from ever entering it again except as anointed heralds of God”.

Deacons, what are you doing with the pulpit? Is your love for the Word and your submission to its authority apparent to the people you are elected to serve? Or are the contents of the next Deacon’s Agenda or the sub-clauses of the Constitution matters of greater concern to you than the things that God is trying to say to you in His Word? The former things are very important but the Word is supremely so.

Congregations, what are you doing with the pulpit? You say you believe the Bible from cover to cover — but do you obey it from day to day? Is it central to your life collectively and individually or has it been moved to one side?

The Word of God is the supreme authority for faith and contact. For that reason nothing must push it to one side. Whatever you do, don’t move that pulpit?

College Column

"The Lord saw me safely through"

by A. Forrest

IN a materialistic age it is easy to take money for granted, but Rhodesian Miles Hilton-Barber, now a student at Elim Bible College, put his trust in God at a time when many would have panicked.

He arrived in England at the beginning of term with 5p, but, when he first planned to set out, he did not have a penny to his name. The Lord provided, even when 25 years-old Miles found that in Switzerland someone had stolen what little money he had!

"The Lord spoke to me about coming to E.B.C. and, about a month before I was due to leave, I booked my air passage, but I didn't have any money," he told me. "About 650 Rhodesian dollars (£450) came in during the next few days, some from friends, some from people whom I had never met."

Miles, from Salisbury, Rhodesia, found the day before he was due to pay for his ticket that he still did not have enough cash. Then a woman quite out of the blue handed him some money and, when he had subtracted tithes from it, he found he had the exact amount for the air ticket!

"I sent a telegram to the College to say that I was on my way, even though I had not been officially accepted," he said. "But then I discovered that they would not let me have the ticket at a reduced student rate because I had no proof that I would be accepted by the College. The next day, I went in faith to get the ticket, even though they wanted eighty-eight more dollars, and found that someone had paid the extra money!"

"Other cheques came in, so that I had enough money for my first term at College. On the way I stopped at Switzerland, but at Geneva Airport all the money was stolen. Even so, I had a wonderful sense of peace."

The Lord brought to his mind a verse in the Bible which says: "The Lord gave; and the Lord has taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord:" (Job 1:21, RSV). Miles said: "It was very applicable. I just sat there thanking the Lord."

"A man whom I had never met gave me twenty American dollars. He told me that he felt that God wanted him to do it, even though he didn't have enough for himself." Later, at Munich Airport in Germany, Miles ran into more financial trouble when officials demanded extra money because his luggage was overweight. The Lord saw him safely through that barrier as well, this time prompting an official to let him on to the 'plane without paying the extra cash.

His next stop was Amsterdam, where he bought two bread rolls and almost ate away an important bus fare.

"When I got to England they gave me 5p for the Dutch money that I had!" added Miles. "God promises to supply all our needs, that is just what He did for me and I praise Him for it."

EVANGELISTIC ENTERPRISE IN SOUTH WALES

IN the Welsh Presbytery there has always been a great concern for evangelism, especially in helping to promote the work of God in areas where the churches are quite small. An effort involving the Presbytery in an extended visitation crusade for the Briton Ferry church is taking place.

Some weeks ago, in response to a request by the District Superintendent, nearly thirty people, including ministers from the Welsh Presbytery, arrived in Briton Ferry to begin a redecoration programme. The Briton Ferry church was completely cleaned and washed down inside and the whole of the outside repainted in one day. The idea of this "big brother scheme" was to help one of our smaller churches, not only in this practical way, but to prepare for a three months' visitation crusade. Each church in the Presbytery will be responsible for one week, during which that church will conduct house-to-house visitation and seek Sunday school enrolment of children in the area, the ministers being responsible for particular weekends. This idea could be shared by other Presbyteries and lead to further development of our work.

We give God thanks for this co-operative sense of evangelism and outreach that is evident in the Welsh Presbytery.

Talking organs?

...talk to Roland Friday at Sharon

Nationwide churches choose Sharon Music for their new and second hand electronic organs because Sharon offers selection and service second to none.

Over 200 successfully completed installations prove that no church is too big, too small, nor too far away to be beyond the Sharon service.

Advice and delivery are absolutely free and we can offer special finance facilities tailor made to help any church purchase the instrument of its choice. With over 200 organs always in stock Sharon have a selection second to none – and remember Hammond organs start at under £400.

So if you're talking organs – talk to the specialists – we're only a letter or telephone call away.

A unique opportunity...

With a current trend towards "automatic", and "easy play" features in so many organs the Hammond N100 has a welcome absence of such gimmickery and represents an ideal instrument for many churches.

The N100 produces adequate sound to fill most churches with a wide variety of tones and effects selected with simplicity of operation.

The famous Leslie Speaker completes a comprehensive specification.

At only £786 this Hammond is a fine and unique opportunity for your church to purchase a new organ through a special purchasing scheme available on this particular model. For full details send in the coupon or telephone Roland Friday on 0227 54848.

Temptations

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

ON Saturday, Andrew and his friends went for a walk in the nearby fields. They saw a big basket of eggs outside the farm gate. Above the eggs was a notice – FRESH FARM EGGS – 30p A DOZEN.

"There's no sign of the farmer", Tommy said.

"I expect He's having his tea", said Billy.

Tommy took an egg from the basket and put it into his blazer pocket. "The farmer won't miss it", he said.

"I want one as well", said Billy.

"So do I", said Simon.

Each of them took an egg and put it into his pocket.

"Aren't you going to have one, Andrew?", the boys asked.

"No", said Andrew. "It's wrong to steal".

"Go on!" they urged him. "No-one will find out".

"That doesn't make it right", Andrew told them.

"Oh don't be such a coward, Andrew. Take one!"

Andrew was very tempted. He rather fancied the big brown egg lying in the middle of the basket. But he knew in his heart that it was wrong to take things which didn't belong to him. To do so would mean disobeying his mum and dad, and, far more important, the Lord Jesus. How he wished that his friends did not do bad things, but he did not want them to think he was a coward. So he reached out and took an egg.

It was very wrong of the boys to tempt Andrew to steal; but it was equally wrong of Andrew to give in.

Temptation itself is not a sin. Jesus Himself was tempted (Matthew 4:1-11). We cannot understand the temptations of Jesus, but we do know they were big and awful. The temptations which come to us are very small in comparison. We really ought to be ashamed when we give in to them.

The Lord Jesus understands that sometimes we find it hard to resist temptation. Because He loves us, He wants to help us. He wants to save us from doing bad things.

Whenever you are tempted to do things which you know in your heart are wrong, remember that the Lord Jesus, who fought His big temptations long ago, is standing near, ready to help you fight yours.

GLEANINGS

The heavens speak

by S. E. Petts

"The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handywork. Day unto day uttereth speech . . . there is no speech or language where their voice is not heard. Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world" (Psalm 19:1-4). HERE, by the words 'declare', 'utter', 'speech', 'language', 'voice', 'words', the Psalmist is saying that all things both on heaven and earth actually praise their Creator. Astronauts now confirm that there is a music of the heavenly bodies. The Psalmist long ago declared that the morning stars sang together at Creation. Have you not heard the sunshine paint the autumn leaves with gold, or the clear moon cover the landscape with a tone of silver? Have you not listened to the rustling wind offering thanks from a harvest-field of corn, an altar ablaze for God? Does not the shadow of a cloud passing across a sun-bathed valley, or a dewdrop nestling in the velvet-soft petals of a rose speak to you of the need to give utterance to the joy that is within your heart towards the One who created you and made all things so fair? "Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness," as nature does, throughout all lands every day and night without fail. Let us not cease to praise and magnify God even as all creation does.

The glamour? of being a Pastor's wife

A YOUNG woman once said to me "It must be wonderful to be a pastor's wife, it must make living a Christian life so much easier for you". Far from it; little did she know of the background experience in our lives. A friend of mine is fond of saying that I am the background against which my husband shines, and I've found it no easy job being a background.

Every pastor needs someone to share the burden of the ministry and we wives can be a great help, or conversely a great hindrance in this respect.

Long ago I thought that God was calling me to the mission field, but He revealed that my calling lay in being a background. I had thought out what I should have to give up if I went out as a missionary and I was prepared for these sacrifices. I have found that the same sacrifices were necessary for me as a pastor's wife.

I had to leave my home, a house of my own choice and which I dearly loved, and live where ever my husband was called. My home had to be a witness for God at all times, a place of hospitality and open to whomsoever might call. I had to leave my parents and my own personal friends to live amongst strangers speaking with a different accent from mine. They had different ways and customs from those in which I had been brought up and I had to be careful not to offend at any point. How I missed being called by my Christian name and having a woman friend to talk to.

Our salary was dropped to less than half and we had to alter our diet to correspond with our income. My children had to be strictly brought-up, for they were the cynosure of all eyes. They had to forgo many little luxuries and pleasures in which their friends indulged.

I haven't been struck down with malaria or any other tropical disease, but the Devil has certainly laid a burden of physical suffering upon my body. Cancer is a dreaded word but my Lord has brought me through even that. Praise His name.

A pastor can, at best, be only a part-time husband and father; we have to lend him out so often. Like a doctor, he is 'on call' at all hours of the day and night. It was a constant grief to my little daughter that Daddy was always away at Bank holiday times, preaching the Word.

You think we are free from temptation? Far from it. We are constantly warring against principalities and powers. If the Devil can get us down, then he's half way to getting our pastor/husbands down too. There are many facets in our relationship with our husbands, we have to be wife, mother, confidante, friend, companion and most essential, a good listener. What do we do when our husband comes home after battling through a hard service and says "I feel I'll never preach again". Our family joke is that I tell mine "You're the best preacher in Elim". Then the smile breaks through as he says "Oh yeah?" It is bad for a pastor to think too highly of himself, so here we have to be gentle critics and bring him down to earth again. It must always be constructive and not destructive criticism and it's good to end up by saying "I love you anyway".

We have to be well dressed, but not too fashionable. We have to be ready to speak a word in season and out of season. Many sisters come to me with their problems and I love them to do so. It is a wonderful experience when God gives us the answer to a particular problem. We have to be good sick-visitors and take an interest in young, middle aged and elderly members alike; otherwise we are accused of being biased towards one particular group. We must take part in services, but not too much or that's wrong.

No one knows how many callers we have at our homes and phone calls too from folk in trouble. Pastor may be out visiting and we have to be able to cope. We have to act as unpaid curates, clerks, secretaries and housekeepers, but we do it all unto Him who gave Himself for us; and I for one would not change my lot. "Faithful is He that calleth you". What can you do to help? Pray for your pastor's wife, she needs your support.

One life is better than nine

by Pastor J. H. Peter Upton

THEY SAY that a cat has nine lives. If that is true, then I know how a black cat lost one of his. I ran him over.

It happened one evening last winter. I was driving steadily along a badly-lit street when this black cat rushed across the road in front of me. I didn't have time to think, much less to brake. There was a thud, the horror struck me. I had hit the cat. I was doing thirty to forty miles an hour, so the cat was sure to be dead. Many human beings have been killed by cars going much slower.

You can imagine my dilemma. What was I to do? It was late, and I had a call to make, I suppose I should stop and report the incident. Deciding to stop, I looked in my mirror and, to my amazement, I saw the silhouette of the black cat getting up and running off into the night.

The cat may or may not remember the incident, but I certainly do. He may have lost one of his proverbial 'lives' but you and I have a life that cannot be lost; the Bible calls this 'eternal life'. That is why I say that one life is better than nine. Our life is greater in quantity than the life of a cat and better in quality. The story means more than this, we can learn from that cat.

He was knocked down but he got up and carried on in the same direction as he was going before. I wonder how many young Christians are dealt such a blow that they stop, turn round, and go back the way they have come. As the road I was travelling was dangerous for that cat, so the Christian pathway is dangerous for us. The Bible describes it as a battle. Satan will seek to stop us or turn us back by any means he can. We need to realise that we are in a spiritual battle; every setback that comes is really just part of the battle.

The devil's greatest weapon is temptation. He even tempted Jesus. The epistle to the Hebrews tells us that Jesus, "was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin". (Hebrews 4:15). Temptation comes to every one of us; sometimes it seems as though we have been knocked down by a force much bigger than ourselves; we can however take comfort from the fact that "the Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations" (2 Peter 2:9).

It is difficult at times to realise that temptations are temporary. God will only allow us to be tempted to the degree we are able to bear (1 Corinthians 10:13). The same verse also tells us that when God allows us to be tempted He also makes a way for us to come through the temptation.

The cat got up and carried on, but I don't think he had much to look forward to. If he could do it, I'm sure that we can be encouraged to press on in the service of our King, for the joy that awaits us.

James, (1:12) says, "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love Him". When temptation comes, as it surely will, you may remember the black cat and keep on going. It is worth remembering the one who is your saviour both died and is risen again; He has promised, "I will never leave you".

Monday, November 25th Revelation 19:11-21

"...King of Kings, and Lord of Lords" (v.16).

IN THIS picture One stands out clear and pure. In the present age of impurity and permissiveness many of the earths 'kings' and 'lords' do not recognise His authority. There is a day coming when "every knee shall bow". Lord, hasten that day.

It behoves us as children of the light, to obey the injunction and pray "For Kings, and for all that are in authority; that they may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty. For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour" (1 Timothy 2:2 and 3).

Tuesday, November 26th Revelation 20:1-6

"...they shall be priests of God and of Christ. . ." (v.6).

THE High Priest of old stood daily in the temple on behalf of the people. Always standing before the altar, their work was never done. Here we are told that those who have a part in the first resurrection "shall be priests of God and Christ, reigning with him" (v.6). What a privilege; every child of God a priest unto God. However insignificant we may feel, God has a place for us all. "Lift up your heads". There's no reason to hang them down.

Wednesday, November 27th Revelation 20:7-15

"And whosoever was not found written in the book of life. . ." (v.15).

SHOULD we pass over this verse? I don't think so. The sad part is that there are some, whose names were not found written in this book. Their end was ultimate loss. Living however, as we do, in the day of grace, there is still time and opportunity to rescue some poor lost sinner. Let us "by all means save some", and so help to lead them to avoid the lake of fire. "He that winneth souls is wise". (Proverbs 11:30).

Thursday, November 28th Revelation 21:1-14

"And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes. . ." (v.4).

LIFE can be cruel and hard. The pang of death brings great sorrow. The heart of pain brings real tears; so often the cry echoes from our lips, "How long Lord?" The time is coming when the dawn will break and we shall behold Him. Then there will be no more sorrow, pain of suffering, these will one day pass away. Our final abode is already being prepared, by Jesus Himself. The One who knew far more about suffering and pain than any man, said; "I go to prepare a place for you, . . . that where I am, there ye may be also" (John 14:3). Are you ready?

Friday, November 29th Revelation 21:15-27

"...for there shall be no night there" (v.25).

IN this new city, where there will be no night. Isaiah, speaking of this time says: "Moreover the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of the seven days. . ." (Isaiah 30:26). If the light of the moon is to be as light as the sun is now; if the light of the sun is to be sevenfold, what a contrast between the present and the future. The only way to be certain of enjoying the unspeakable and eternal glories of this heavenly city, is to be sure our name is written in the Lamb's Book of Life.

Saturday, November 30th Revelation 22:1-9

"Worship God" (v.9).

NOT only with our lips, but from our hearts, and in our lives and actions we can be seen to worship Him. Praise is comely, and God delights in the praises of His people. Many a dark shadow of gloom has been removed, when the heart takes up this note of praise. With the promise of the certainty of His coming, we have every cause to worship God. If you engage regularly in worship and praise, you will find real benefit.

Sunday, December 1st Revelation 22:10-21

"And let him that is athirst come. . ." (v.17).

IT is customary for those in authority to say "go". In the majority of cases we find the Lord, with ever open arms bidding us to "come". Come for rest, Come for peace, Come and "take of the water of life freely" (v.17). It can never be the fault of our Lord if we find ourselves spiritual paupers. As we receive of the fulness of the Lord we are assured of a never ending supply. Are you "Drinking of the wells of Living Water".

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

33. Moses testimony—and ours (Exodus 18:8)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

CLEARLY Moses and Jethro had mutual respect; living together for forty years had not soured their relationship. Since they last met wonderful things had happened, and in a heart to heart talk, Moses gave his testimony to his father-in-law. He told Jethro all that the Lord had done to Pharaoh and Egypt for Israel's sake; all the travail that had come upon them by the way, and how the Lord had delivered them from their troubles.

Our testimony is similar to that of Moses, but even more wonderful. We can tell of our great deliverance: we were in bondage to Satan but slaves of sin, but the Lord Jesus gave His life on the cross in order to deliver us; by His death and resurrection He utterly broke Satan's power, delivered us from sin and gave us authority to become sons of God. We too can speak of trials, from the moment we were converted we commenced a spiritual warfare and God's Word warned us that trials and testing would come and that, by these means, God would prepare us for His presence. We know that we are rarely free from trials; to look for, or expect, a smooth path is against the warnings of the Bible; there can be no respite in this battle, certainly not when Satan is directing his forces against us. Yet still we can tell of our Mighty saviour: each trial that comes is an opportunity to prove his power; our trust in the Lord is precious to Him, and must be tested (1 Peter 1:7). If we trust Him in trial we shall praise Him in deliverance, because our mighty Saviour will cause all things to work for our good.

The Lord can use our testimony to cause others to rejoice (Exodus 18:9). We must not, therefore be obsessed by our trials, always complaining, for this denies our trust in the Lord and is dishonouring to Him. Our chief reason for telling of our trials should be to give praise to the Lord, and so we shall bring glory to Him, and encouragement to others.

Editorial

ONE of our readers pointed out to me that my note on the date of creation was a little misleading. I took his point. What he had done was to add the date 4004 B.C. to A.D. 1975, and of course he did not arrive at the figure of 6000. I was careful not to say that the Jehovah's Witnesses accept the date of 4004 (in fact they have a date a few years earlier than this). This was the figure that Dr. John Lightfoot gave. The fact is that I have several Watchtower books that give different dates. Some of these dates that were predicted have already been passed, so they have had to be revised.

The Bible warns us time and again against any attempt at date fixing. The human mind, however, is not satisfied; every form of subtle exegesis is tried in an attempt to get around the plain teaching of Scripture.

The problem that twentieth century Christians have to face is this. On the one hand they believe that as long as the Lord delays His coming, the door of grace is still open for men to repent and believe the gospel. On the other hand, there is the urgent need to keep this hope alive over a long period.

"Hope deferred makes the heart sick" (Proverbs 13:12).

In contrast, the New Testament says: "Every one who thus hopes in Him purifies himself as He is pure" (1 John 3:3 RSV).

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

Ordination Service report

by Frank Lavender

P. S. BREWSTER was speaking about Isaiah and the word which the Lord spoke to the young prophet when he offered himself for service; yet they were words which he also spoke to the thirteen men who were waiting to be confirmed in the ministry to which God had called them. Mr. Brewster warned the ordinands that they were coming into the ministry at a very difficult time, because they had to minister to a bankrupt nation and a violent people. There would be many pressures and temptations to leave the ministry, specially when people seemed indifferent to the message they brought, but they must preach on; when God calls to the ministry it is a total call, a life-long ministry from which only ill-health or death will release. Yet at the same time, there were also encouragements for those called by God. Isaiah was told that, although the majority of the people would be hardened against God's Word, a tenth would ultimately be saved; the preaching of the Gospel will likewise bring a response from the hearts of some hearers. These are the days of pentecostal outpouring as the Lord prepares the Church for His coming.

Elim News

Earlier, Mr. Brewster had told the congregation how, when he went to his first church, he had promised God that wherever he went he would make the Gospel clear to men and women. No one in the congregation could doubt that the preacher had kept his promise; he had given a splendid example for the ordinands to follow. The occasion was a cause for double rejoicing; on this night when some thirteen men were being ordained to the ministry, about twice that number turned to Christ in response to Mr. Brewster's appeal.

After Mr. Brewster's message the Field Superintendent, T.W. Walker, introduced the ordinands to the congregation. Each one gave a brief testimony, then affirmed their call in response to the searching questions put to them by the President, G. Canty. We would have liked to have heard more from those dedicated men had time permitted, and many of us wished we could have listened to Mr. Nugent, the oldest of the ordinands, speak about the inspiring work which has been built up under his ministry at Stockton-on-Tees.

Many other impressions come flooding to my mind as I think about that wonderful service. The warm fellowship and happy atmosphere as people gathered from many parts of the British Isles packing the Clapham church; folk came from as far away as Ireland, Stockton-on-Tees and Cardiff. The sympathy of the congregation rose as the President prayed for the family of a zealous young pastor, Peter Hill, who was recently called home. Ron Jones led us in prayer on the eve of his departure for Carrickfergus, Northern Ireland, to conduct a pioneer crusade. There was the happy news from the President that a brother in Ulster had sent money to help the new Elim "baby" in Epsom, following the recent crusade there. Running right through the service, was the inspiring, enthusiastic congregational singing. What a thrill it was to hear the splendid student choir from our Bible College singing pieces as varied as the old favourite: "Pentecostal fire is falling"; and the more modern: "Behold He cometh" with the discordant, sombre menace of its opening theme portraying coming disasters, but leading on to triumphant climax. We also appreciated the Bible College Quartette as they first sang their happy testimony: "If ever there was just one day", and then challenged us with their picture in song of: "Lonely faces".

The memory that will always remain with me, however, was the sight of our beloved John MacInnes, just home from Guyana, laying hands on his son Philip. I reflected on the fact that the same hands which first offered his son in dedication to the Lord were now laid upon him to separate him to the ministry; what a moment of solemn joy it must have been for John, and it seemed a fitting summing up of the family spirit of our work that had been so clearly revealed throughout the evening. And so we went to our homes thrilled, encouraged and challenged by what we had witnessed.

GLEANINGS

The Impression of Christ

by S. E. Petts

*"Ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit".
(Ephesians 1:13).*

ALONE in my room seeking inspiration for a sermon, I turned the pages of my Bible until I came to the familiar and well-loved fifty-third chapter of Isaiah, "All we like sheep have gone astray . . ." Here my gaze lingered; I saw the individuality of my guilt as I compared my life with Christ's. The vision of myself became less and less, until that of Christ filled the picture and I was filled with praise. Then the end of the text bore down on me, "and the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all." I saw this matchless, guiltless Son of God burdened with my sins, yet He smiled on me. This somehow was harder to bear than judgment. My eyes blurred, yet the vision was crystal clear. The tears ran faster and seemed to drown all sense of guilt, as joy such as I had never known filled my heart and flowed out of my being. Christ had been revealed to me as never before. I believe that I was sealed by the Holy Spirit at this time. Seals are made and impressed on soft wax attached to letters or bills and edicts to impress the identity of the sender on the recipient, so the Holy Spirit impressed the person of Jesus Christ on me at that moment.

CORNER FOR THE PREACHER'S WIFE

You may think it quite an easy task
And just a pleasant life ;
But really it takes a lot of grace
To be a preacher's wife.

She's supposed to be a paragon,
Without a fault in view ;
A saint when in the parsonage
As well as in the pew.

Her home must be a small hotel
For folk that chance to roam ;
And yet have peace and harmony—
The perfect preacher's home.

Whenever groups are called to meet
Her presence must be there ;
And yet the members all agree
She should live a life of prayer.

Her children must be models rare
Of quietness and poise,
But still stay on the level
With other girls and boys.

You may think it quite an easy task
And just a pleasant life ;
But really it takes a lot of grace
To be a preacher's wife.

GLASGOW

Pastor: S. Hilliard

ONE hundred and sixty members and friends gathered at a presentation dinner for Pastor and Mrs. W.W. Kelly on their retirement from the Elim ministry. As our own church hall was inadequate, a local Church of Scotland kindly granted us the use of their church hall.

After weeks of preparation the great day arrived. At 7 p.m. every guest stood to their feet and applauded as Pastor Kelly accompanied by his daughter, Myra, entered the hall. Pastor E. Garner commenced the evening's programme with a word of prayer and Grace. After a four-course meal, Mr. Ian Waddell read cards and telegrams from many friends in the British Isles, America, Canada, and New Zealand. Many guests then paid their tributes and respects to Pastor Kelly. They all spoke of his many Christian attributes, among them his kindness, faithfulness, and graciousness. During the short interval the many friends had a chance to renew fellowship with each other.

The programme which followed included solos, duets, quintets and readings. The younger children took part in singing some favourite choruses.

On behalf of her mother, who was unable to be present, because of illness, Myra accepted three beautiful floral bouquets from Misses Pauline Waddell, Valerie Hall, and Elaine Clark. Mr. Thomas Jack presented Pastor Kelly with a silver tea service and cheques which had been given by his many friends both old and new.

Pastor Kelly replied to the tributes and thanked everyone for attending the presentation dinner. He spoke of his pleasant stay in Glasgow for the past twenty-four years, and made mention of Mrs. Kelly's illness, which has lasted for twenty-eight years, but through it all, they have been conscious of the faithfulness of God.

The evening came to a close with the singing of "Great is Thy Faithfulness", and the benediction by Rev. H. Martin of the Church of Scotland.

In 1927 Pastor Kelly was asked by Principal George Jeffreys to join the Elim Movement. Known in Belfast as "The Boy Preacher", he was gifted by God with the ability to preach and expound the Scriptures.

After serving as minister in Elim churches in Ireland, Pastor Kelly came to Glasgow in 1928 where he was pastor for almost a year. He then went to Greenock, and then to churches in England, among them Huddersfield, Ilford and Birmingham, returning to Scotland in 1942 to our Edinburgh Church. In 1951 Pastor Kelly was appointed minister of the Glasgow church and for twenty-three years he faithfully ministered until his retirement.

Everyone who came in contact with Pastor Kelly was always impressed with his humility and with his concern for anyone who was ill. Although Mrs. Kelly has been ill for over twenty-eight years, never once was Pastor Kelly heard to complain about performing any pastoral duties. During his time in Glasgow it is doubtful if he missed more than a dozen services. Even when not feeling too well himself he would come to the church and minister to his congregation.

He always liked to encourage young people to participate in taking part in the services, and helped them tremendously in Crusader work, teaching them how to lead meetings and prepare sermons. Many Christian leaders throughout the world owe much to Pastor Kelly for the encouragement he has given them.

All the members and friends of the Glasgow church wish Pastor and Mrs. Kelly a very happy retirement and assure them that they will never be forgotten by us. We pray that God will continually be with them, keeping them free from worry and care.

Thoughts on the book of Revelation

The Day of the Lord Chapters 8 and 9

by Charles J. E. Kingston

THE breaking of the seventh seal opens the door to the last tragic world events before Christ takes over the kingship of the earth. It also completes the unsealing of the roll. Out of this come the seven angel-trumpeters and the seven angels with the seven last vials of wrath.

Silence in Heaven for about half-an-hour (John's timing), marks the importance of this event. All wait with bated breath for the beginning of the Day of the Lord.

The Day of the Lord

Scripture describes this as a day of judgment. In that day, "men shall go into the holes of the rocks . . . for fear of the Lord . . . when He arises to shake terribly the earth" (Isaiah 2:12-21); "the heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll . . . for it is the day of the Lord's vengeance" (Isaiah 34:1-8); "the day of the Lord cometh a day of darkness and of gloominess . . . (Joel 2:1,11); "Behold, the day of the Lord cometh . . . for I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle . . ." (Zechariah 14:1,2).

"Events in Israel are hastening towards this end", so stated an eminent Jew (Dr. Jack Friedman, now living in a monastery near Haifa): "From an economic, political, ideological and religious point of view, Israel is bankrupt . . . What is left? The intervention of God . . . In my view we are on the threshold of a tremendous spiritual revolution, a change of regime, the greatest that has taken place in human history." (reported in The Flame, November/December 1974).

When Israel served the Egyptians, Pharaoh oppressed them, and that was Israel's tribulation; when God directed ten plagues against their oppressors, that was Egypt's tribulation. There is a parallel here. The great tribulation, under Antichrist, brings the vials of wrath upon the kingdom and power of the Beast.

The Trumpet and Vial judgments are similar, in many respects, to the plagues of Egypt. The latter are historical and were real events; we must also expect these final plagues to be just as real. Indeed, God has declared His purpose to renew the Egyptian plagues in the last days, saying: "According to the days of thy coming out of the land of Egypt will I show unto him marvellous things" (Micah 7:15). It is unscriptural therefore to seek a symbolical meaning for the latter day judgment plagues.

The seven trumpets

When Israel warred against Jericho, seven priests bearing seven trumpets blew until the walls of the city fell down (Joshua 6:13-16). Thus, in Revelation, the seven trumpets are an indication that God is declaring war against Antichrist and his worshippers.

The first four trumpet judgments are mainly inflicted on natural objects: the earth, trees, grass, sea, rivers, the sun and moon and consist "of that judicial retribution on them that know not God, which arises from their own depravity and in which their own sins are made to punish themselves" (Alford).

Today, mankind spoil the environment, contaminate the air, foul the waters, waste energy and eventually doomsday will catch up with us. Many fear this and the trumpet judgments reveal it will come upon the world. Yet "God in inflicting them spares more than He smites: two-thirds escape in each case, while one is smitten" (Alford).

As is said above, some of these judgments are similar to the plagues in Egypt at the time of Moses. For instance, "the third part of the sea became blood" under the second trumpet; this is a larger calamity, but similar in kind, to that which befell Egypt under the first plague (Exodus 7:20). Some intimation of what this could mean was seen in the Gulf of Mexico in 1946/47. Called the red tide, this was composed of tiny microbes, which multiplied rapidly, ejecting a poisonous venom, which killed the fish and coloured the water brownish red. The shores of the Gulf were littered with an estimated half a million dead fish. It may have been an earlier occurrence of this red tide which caused the Nile to turn to blood and gave the Red Sea its name.

The woe trumpets

The last three trumpets are so named, because they are preceded by the heavenly proclamation of "Woe, woe, woe" (Revelation 8:13) which now affect mankind. Yet in judgment, God remembers mercy. It is one of the principles of God's providence that judgment is announced that it might be avoided. Jonah declared: "Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown!" Apparently, this threat admitted no easement; yet on Nineveh's repentance the judgment was stayed for 100 years. It should be noted that, in the necessity to proclaim judgment, the threat of judgment may produce repentance, and so be averted. We are to observe that God gives up the world to perdition with great reluctance.

The first trumpet of woe

On the sounding of the fifth trumpet, the bottomless pit, the abyss, the prison house of devil and demons, is briefly opened and a demonic plague bursts upon unregenerate mankind, tormenting but not killing them. The man of Gadara, afflicted by an unclean spirit, driven into the tombs, crying and cutting himself with stones, is a vivid picture of the torment such demons can produce in a person (Mark 5:3-5).

These demons have a king over them, Apollyon, who is the angel of the abyss. Evidently not Satan himself, he is one of the principle bad angels, as one writer has said: "This woe is obviously spiritual . . . the torment which accompanies it is not one that brings death, but makes the soul weary of life. These circumstances point to a great outburst of spiritual evil which shall aggravate the sorrows of the world".

The prelude of this plague can already be seen in the present day revival of witch-craft, Satanism and spiritism. This increase before the close of the age is foretold in Scripture: "The Spirit speaks expressly that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils" (1 Timothy 4:1).

The second trumpet of woe

The sixth trumpet blast looses an army of 200 million, prepared for the hour of the day, month and year. These are not to be added together, so as to give the length of time the plague will operate; it means simply that the event will take place at the hour of the day, month and year predetermined.

The location of the four bound angels (evidently not good angels), the river Euphrates, would suggest that we must look in that region for the scene of this judgment. Under the sixth vial judgment, Euphrates has to be dried up "that the way of the kings of the East might be prepared" (Revelation 16:12). Probably, there is a link between these judgments: the loosing of 200 million soldiers, with all the modern armaments of warfare, belching out fire, smoke and brimstone and the advance from the East (perhaps from China) to attack them.

The question arises whether this immense army is human or demonic. Under the first woe, the "locusts" that come out of the smoke of the abyss are definitely demonic by virtue of their origin. The difference in the second woe is that the origin of the 200 million is not stated; they suddenly appear in the region of the Euphrates. There is no hint they are other than human. The description of the "horses", having breastplates of fire with power in their mouths and tails, could well be a picture of modern tanks careering across the battlefield. Whether John saw them actually as horses or whether he sought to describe the modern horse of war, the tank, by the only analogy he knew, we cannot say. The slaughter of a third of mankind would see to suggest an atomic war.

The number of 200 million probably exceeded the entire world population of John's day and therefore could not have been fulfilled then. Indeed, John would not have known their number had he not been told (Revelation 9:16).

The third trumpet of woe

We turn to Revelation 11:14-19 for the description of the third woe. At the sounding of the seventh trumpet, thanksgiving in Heaven proclaims Christ as King of the world, as Judge of the dead, as the Destroyer of those who destroy the earth.

Then is the heavenly Temple opened (v.19) and out of the opened Temple come the seven angels with the seven vials of wrath (Revelation 15:5, 6).

The seventh trumpet gives not one blast only but extends over a period of time, called the "days of the voice of the seventh angel" (Revelation 10:7). Some students of prophecy would see the seventh trumpet to be the same as the "last trump" which will sound when Christ comes for the Church (1 Corinthians 15:52). If these two are identical, then the Church will go through the great Tribulation and also, incidentally, through part of the judgments of the Day of the Lord.

Nowhere, however, is the seventh trumpet called the "last", nor does the Greek word used for "last" (eschatos) necessarily mean there is nothing after it. For proof, see John 6:39, 40, where the resurrection of the saints "at the last day" is in view, whereas the rest of the dead are not raised until after the thousand years' reign of Christ, that is, after what Jesus called

Dr. Billy Graham this year celebrates twenty-five years of evangelistic ministry. He has preached to more people than any man in history. Though he was preaching before 1949 it was the remarkable success of the Los Angeles crusade that launched him in to sudden prominence particularly when several notable characters were converted.

BILLY GRAHAM

would not pray for him

by D. W. Cartwright

Billy Graham

In Los Angeles not far from where Billy Graham's great tent was pitched lived a thirty-eight-year-old disc jockey. He was a band leader and was quite a character, having made a name for himself on a commercial radio programme. More out of fun than for any other reason he announced that he was going to attend the 'revival' meeting. When the preacher said "there is someone here that is phoney" he rose from his seat and shaking his fist at the preacher he shouted a mouthful of abuse and made a noisy exit. Once he was outside he headed for the nearest bar where he got himself the first of a good many drinks. Finally at near 2 a.m. he made his way home where he woke his wife with the demand that she should pray for him. She did try but they got nowhere. "It is all that Evangelist's fault," said the man. "I think I ought to phone him up and tell him what I think."

Not everyone likes being woken at 2 a.m. but they were invited to the hotel right away. On reaching the door the man, Stuart by name, said "I want you to pray for me." "I will not", said the Evangelist, at which Stuart drew back his fist to hit the man. Before he could deliver the blow, however, the Evangelist said "come inside and I will tell you why."

"The trouble is that you know what you need but you want it the easy way. Are you prepared to give your whole life to Jesus Christ?" As the Evangelist spoke to Stuart in this way all the bitterness and all the resentment came out. There was a battle going on with his mind and his will. In the end he gave in and finally at 5 a.m. the matter was settled. He yielded his life to Jesus Christ. But even then the Evangelist still did not pray for him; now he prayed for himself and was converted. Not long afterwards he wrote a gospel song with the following chorus:

It is no secret what God
can do.
What He's done for others,
He'll do for you.
With arms wide open,
He'll pardon you,
It is no secret what God
can do.

This is how Stuart Hamblen was converted. As a result Billy Graham, the Evangelist, continued his campaign in Los Angeles and this proved to be a turning point in his career. From then on he went on to be the major Evangelist that he is today.

It would be good to have a major Evangelist to pray for you but it would be even better to pray one of the shortest prayers in the Bible for yourself: "God be merciful to me a sinner." (Luke 18:13.)

A question of authority

by John Lancaster

IT IS an astonishing fact that demons sometimes give Christ more respect than do His own disciples. The devils, says James, "believe and tremble" (2:19), whereas many of the saints believe and merely shrug their shoulders.

The Gospels frequently demonstrate the unquestioned authority of Christ. In the synagogue at Capernaum, for instance, the onlookers note that "with authority commandeth He even the unclean spirits and they do obey Him" (Mark 1:27), while after the stilling of the storm the astonished disciples stumble ashore murmuring, "Even the wind and the sea obey Him" (Mark 4:41). There is no more impressive testimony to His authority than that found in the words of the Roman centurion in Luke 7:7,8: "Say in a word, and my servant shall be healed, for I am also a man set under authority . . ." In effect he is saying, "As the commands I give to my men carry with them the power of Caesar, so the words You speak carry the supreme authority of God, even over disease."

The authority of Christ is thus acknowledged in the realm of spiritual beings, in the natural order of things and in the context of physical sickness, and these incidents, which are representative of many more, are vivid illustrations of the truth of Christ's claim in Matthew 28:18—"All power (Greek, exousia = "authority") is given unto me in heaven and in earth".

It is important, however, to realise that this authority is not merely the unquestioned right of quelling rebellion amongst the devils or the ability to manipulate the forces of nature. It is not the absolute authority of a despot who, by the sheer weight of his might, crushes all resistance, but rather an authority which owes its power to its own intrinsic moral worth. Christ's authority arises not merely from His achievements in creation or redemption, but from what He is in Himself as the eternal Son and living Word of God. It is because He can say "I am the truth" that His word carries the weight of supreme authority. So the psalmist sings: "Thou lovest righteousness and hatest wickedness: therefore God . . . hath anointed thee . . . above thy fellows" (Psalm 45:7). His Word is true because He is the Truth; His throne is invincible because He wields a sceptre of righteousness; His power is absolute because of the

of His character; His authority is unassailable because with Him there is not the slightest shadow of turning. He lives by the power of "an indestructible life" (Hebrews 7:16 RSV).

The authority of Christ, then, stems from His own very nature as the Son of God and as such it towers majestically above all other authorities, whether they be human, angelic or demonic. He has a name which is above every name and an authority to which all must bow and which ranges from the moral realm and the clash of wills to the material realm and the functioning of natural laws. Therefore He can stand before the men of His day and solemnly say: "It hath been said (in the Law of Moses) but I say . . ." (Matthew 5:21f), a statement which does not set aside the Law but extends it and adds the imprimatur of His own sanction to it. At one and the same time He makes the Old Testament the basis of His own ethic (Matthew 4:4,7,10) and yet is free to declare that He is the fulfilment of its prophecies (Luke 24:27) and the only key to its true meaning (John 5:39). He is not ashamed to declare that He Himself is greater than Moses, the Lawgiver, and, in a series of quite remarkable claims, greater than the Temple, Jonah and Solomon (Matthew 12:6,41,42). We are not surprised, then, when in the Apocalypse we discover that it is only "the Lamb as it had been slain" that has the authority to open the book and loose the seals thereof (Revelation 5:1-9), for it is only the Lord Jesus Christ who has the power both to disclose the purposes of God and to initiate their fulfilment.

It is one thing, however, to recognise the authority of Christ as a theological truth but, quite another to experience it as the dynamic principle of personal life;

one thing to exult over the fact that storms and demons and disease are subject to His control but quite another to admit that I, too, must be subject to Him in the details of everyday life. I am thrilled when I see Him intervene in history and bring the nations to heel, but not so pleased when He insists on “interfering” in my personal affairs.

Christ’s authority is exercised in many different ways in the life of the Christian. As a member of Christ’s Body, the Church, he is, or should be, subject to the

as it is transmitted through the pastors and teachers and other divinely-ordained ministries. (Ephesians 4: 11-16)—yet how often Christians are resentful if any correction or guidance is given to them. We love to sing “He is Lord”, but when He exercises that Lordship through the pastor or someone senior to us in the work of God we are hurt and sometimes even threaten to leave the church! The Word of the Lord as it comes to us through preaching or the Gifts of the Spirit, or sometimes through the wise counsel of another Christian, may often be a clear-cut expression of Christ’s purpose for us individually or collectively—but again, how easy it is for us to dismiss what we have heard as something we can afford to ignore. Instead of weighing what is said (1 Corinthians 14:29 RSV) we sometimes do not even listen.

Supremely, the authority of Christ is expressed in the Scriptures. Not only is He their subject and their interpreter, He is also their author. “I received from the Lord what I also delivered to you”, writes Paul (1 Corinthians 11:23 RSV). Again, to the Colossians he urges: “Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly” (3:16). Because of this the Scriptures stand as the final rule of faith and conduct. The truths they reveal about the nature and purposes of God, the principles of conduct they lay down and the explicit commands they enjoin, carry the full and solemn weight of the mind of Christ.

Why is it, then, that we so easily side-step the clear commands of Scripture? Why is it that so many believers are not baptized in water, even though the Gospel declares, “Repent, and be baptised”? Why is it that many believers ignore the Word of Jesus when He said, of Holy Communion, “Do this . . .”? Why is it that many Christians deliberately ignore New Testament teaching about being unequally yoked with unbelievers? Why is it that the disciples of Jesus are always trying to get round the plain teaching of His Word on matters involving personal relationships in family, church and social life? Why do we so often find ourselves saying “Yes, but . . .” when the principles of Scripture challenge what we are doing? Why is it that we, who are so insistent that the unconverted shall obey the gospel demand for repentance, want to water down the claims the gospel makes on us as disciples? Why is it that we, who pride ourselves on being “sound” fundamental, evangelical and pentecostal believers and who throw up our hands in holy horror when we see modernists tampering with the doctrines of the faith, will quite happily tamper with those same doctrines when they condemn the things we allow, the attitudes we adopt or the prejudices we cherish?

If the Bible is the Word of God, if it carries the authority of Jesus Christ, then we must be prepared to yield to its claims, not only in relation to the doctrines we believe but also with regard to the ethics of our daily life. “The Bible says” is not merely a slogan for evangelism; it must also be the basis for our personal behaviour. The true proof of our love for the Lord Jesus is not the emotional way in which we worship on a Sunday morning but our cheerful obedience to His will in the nitty-gritty of everyday life. “If ye love me,” said Jesus, “keep my commandments” (John 14:15). What happens at Sunday lunch-time may be more significant, from this point of view, than Sunday night. One thing is certain: the Lord Jesus Christ expects us not only to believe Him and sing to Him, but also to obey Him. Therefore He asks: “Why call ye me ‘Lord, Lord,’ and do not the things that I say?” (Luke 6:46).

the “last day” (Revelation 20:5). The “last trump” refers to the time of the end of this age; Robinsons’s Greek Lexicon says of 1 Corinthians 15:52: “The trumpet of the last day”.

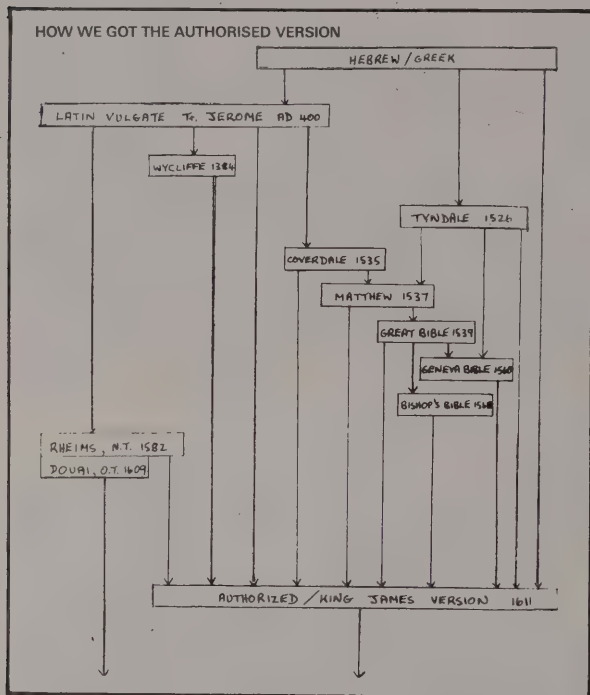

The “last trump” has reference to two Old Testament passages. Moses was instructed to make two silver trumpets. When one only was blown, the leaders of the people responded. However, when the second, or last trumpet, sounded the congregation resumed its march to the promised land (Numbers 10:4-6). Thus, when the “last trump” sounds, the saved of earth will rise to meet their Leader, Jesus, to journey to the heavenly land of promise.

The second reference is the “trumpet of the Jubilee” (Leviticus 25:9, 10). When this was sounded, every man returned to his family possession. When the “Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout . . . with the trump of God” then will be sounded the last Jubilee trumpet. Not only will the “dead in Christ” return to the possession of their resurrected bodies and the living Christians be changed into “the image of the heavenly” but also, by this last trump of Jubilee, will God declare the restoration of man’s alienated inheritance.

Quotable quotes about the Bible compiled by Dr. A. J. 'Monty' White

I DON'T know about you, but I am one of those people who make a note of quotes, interesting snippets and useful bits of information I think are worth remembering. Not only are the back pages of my Bible full of such writings but I also have a folder full of such things which I refer to now and then. I thought that I would share with you some of the jottings I have concerning the Bible.

The Bible contains sixty-six books, thirty-nine in the Old Testament, and twenty-seven in the New Testament, composed of 1,189 chapters, 929 in the O.T., and 260 in the N.T., containing 31,173 verses, 23,214 in the O.T., and 7,959 in the N.T. There are also 773,692 words, (592,439 in the O.T., and 181,253 in the N.T.); in the Bible composed of no less than 3,566,490 letters, 2,728,110 in the O.T., and 838,380 in the N.T.

As every Sunday Scholar knows, Psalm 119 is the longest chapter in the Bible, while Psalm 117 is the shortest. The shortest verse is John 11:35: "Jesus wept". I also have a note that Ezra 7:21 contains all the letters of the alphabet except J. Take a look for yourself.

Regarding the authority of the Bible, John Wesley wrote:

"The Bible must be the invention either of good men or angels, bad men or devils, or of God. It could not be the invention of good men or angels, for they neither would nor could make a book and tell lies all the time they were writing it, saying 'Thus saith the Lord' when it was their own invention. It could not be the invention of bad men or devils, for they could not make a book that commands all duty, forbids all sin, and condemns their souls to hell for all eternity. Therefore the Bible must be given by divine Inspiration."

I like this piece of logic which is worth remembering when reading 2 Timothy 3:16-17.

In view of the fact . . . the Bible is the Word of God, and is given by inspiration of God, it is worth noting the words of C.H. Spurgeon:

John Wesley

"The chaff of fiction, and the bran of the Quarterlies, are poor substitutes for the old corn of Scripture."

How we need to feed daily upon the Bread of Heaven! As Francis Bacon wrote concerning books:

Miles Coverdale

"Some are to be tasted, others to be swallowed and some few to be chewed and digested."
The Bible is the only book that can be really digested for it is the Christian's food—his living bread.

* * *

And when feeding upon the Word of God, Miles Coverdale has these words of advice for us:

"It shall greatly help you to understand Scripture if you mark not only what is spoken or written, but of whom and to whom, with what words, at what time, where, to what intent, with what circumstances, considering what goes before and what follows."

Indeed, hasn't someone said: "A text out of its context is a pretext"?

Always remember too that the Bible provides even for the man who drops his aitches, and allows him to say "Alleluia" instead of "Hallelujah".

I think too we should always remember that Providence is a Christian's diary, but not his Bible.

An interesting comment concerning men's beliefs was passed by Napoleon Bonaparte when he said, "It is strange what men can believe so long as it is not in the Bible".

Finally I love the old saying of John Robinson, Pastor to the Pilgrim Fathers: "God hath yet more light and truth to break forth from His Holy Word."

Don't let us ever think (or believe) that "we know it all" for as Scripture itself teaches us:

"For when for a time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God." (Hebrews 5:12).

A Testimony

from Joyce M. Quigley

WHILST I was expecting my second baby I started having trouble with my eyes. That was fourteen years ago. Two years ago I was admitted into hospital on two occasions for intensive care. After this I was prescribed drops every four hours through the day. Needless to say I suffered much pain and discomfort at that time!

Early this year, on one of my monthly visits for a check up, I was told quite bluntly that the doctors had done all that they could for me, and that my eyes were deteriorating fast. The thing that I had been dreading for years was about to happen. I would soon be blind.

Five weeks afterwards I went forward for prayer at the Selly Oak Elim Church. I had a tingling in my eyes, but for two weeks I did not know our prayers were answered because I was still receiving drops which blurred my vision. Again I went for my monthly visit. What a difference this time! The doctors were amazed; they thought that they were looking at the wrong notes.

The next week I had to go to see the consultant who discharged me and told me to stop using the drops. This month they asked to see me to find out how I was getting along without the drops. I have now been discharged from the hospital. To God be the glory! No words of mine can express the joy and gratitude I feel. The Lord has revealed Himself to me in such a wonderful way. He is my Saviour and my healer. Since then I have been baptized in the Holy Spirit, and now I want to serve Him faithfully until He comes.

The face of Jesus

(A Meditation)
2 Corinthians 4:6

by J. Alexander Wright

"Turn your eyes upon Jesus, Look full on His wonderful face".

A shining face. "His face did shine as the sun" (Matthew 17:2). So the disciples saw Him in transfiguration, as did John yet again, when an old man, on the island of Patmos. (Revelation 1:16), doubtless the same face Stephen saw, and was himself transfigured by the sight (Acts 6:15, 7:55-6). Saul of Tarsus was blinded by that "light of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ" (Acts 9:3).

A sad face. "A Man of Sorrows" (Isaiah 53:3,4) because "He carried our sorrows". He saw us in our folly and waywardness as straying sheep, preferring darkness to His light, building our life-houses on sand, and He was saddened.

A stained face. Stained with tears: tears for an individual's sorrow (John 11:36): "Behold how He loved him". Tears for a city (Luke 19:41). He foresaw the terrible judgment so soon awaiting her. Without doubt, He still sorrows over individuals and cities today. Stained with blood, in Gethsemane, when, "being in an agony, He sweat, as it were, great drops of blood falling to the ground" (Luke 22:44). Stained with blood, in the soldier's barrack room, when they pressed the cruel crown of thorns upon His brow. Stained with spittle, when they cast their foul saliva into His face (Luke 18:32; Isaiah 50:6).

A set face. "I set my face like a flint" (Isaiah 50:7). "He steadfastly set His face to go to Jerusalem" (Luke 9:51-3). Think of the set face of Christopher Columbus, "Today we sailed westward". Of Martin Luther, as he went to the Diet of Worms to be tried by earth's mighty ones; "were there as many devils as tiles on the roof-tops of Worms, I can do no other, God helping me".

A smitten face. "Marred beyond human semblance" NEB. Disfigured beyond recognition! "I gave my cheeks to them that plucked off the hair. I hid not my face from shame and spitting". This is what sin did to Him; sin which, someone said, is the uplifted hand of rebellious man that strikes the face of the Almighty.

A shrouded face. Shrouded by the napkin in the dark tomb of death, where tender hands had laid Him. The soldiers said He was dead, and the disciples believed likewise, but He arose from out the dead ones!

A seen face. Many saw it. "Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord" (John 20:20); "He was seen of five hundred brethren at once" (1 Corinthians 15:6).

"Whom having not seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see Him not, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of Glory" (1 Peter 1:8).

"I've seen the face of Jesus, He smiled in love on me;

It filled my heart with rapture, My soul with ecstasy;

The scars of deepest anguish were lost in glory bright;

I've seen the face of Jesus, It was a wondrous sight!

Oh! glorious face of beauty, Oh! gentle touch of care;

If here it is so blessed, What will it be up there?"
(R.S.438.)

"It doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when He shall appear, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is" (1 John 3:2).

We shall see that lovely face – some bright golden morning!

So you stayed away

It made some question the reality of Christianity.

It made some think that I was a pretender.

It made many regard my spiritual welfare and that of others as a matter of small concern.

It weakened the effect of the Church service.

It made it more difficult for the preacher to preach.

It discouraged the brethren, and therefore robbed them of a blessing.

It caused others to stay away from Church.

It made it harder for me to meet the temptations of the Devil.

It gave the Devil more power over lost souls.

It encouraged the habit of non-church going.

The man in chains

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

ONE evening Jesus and the disciples got into a fishing boat to cross to the other side of the Sea of Galilee. During the night there was a fierce storm. The wind howled and the waves roared, so that the little boat got tossed about; drifting off course, it came to rest on the shore of Gadara. When the disciples stepped out of the boat, they heard strange and horrible cries. They looked around and saw a giant of a man thundering towards them. He looked such a sorry sight, with his hair all tousled; standing bare-footed, he looked wild and dirty. No-one had been able to calm him. Men had tried to bind him with chains, but he broke them easily. Day after day, night after night, he wandered among the grave-stones, trailing the chains behind him, shouting and groaning and cutting himself with sharp stones. Everyone was afraid of him. The poor wretched man with the troubled mind scared them all away.

Jesus was filled with pity when He saw the man. "What is your name?" He asked.

The man did not know what his name was. Perhaps he did not have one. "Go away!" he told Jesus. "Stop tormenting me!"

Jesus did not go.

The man thought of the Roman army camped nearby. "Legion", he said; "my name is Legion!"

Jesus called the man to His side, and with a word, cast out the evil spirits which had possessed him. Immediately the man was changed. Gone were the horrible cries and the fierce look in his eyes. He was calm and happy, and his eyes shone with a new light. The chained man became the changed man.

Jesus got into the boat to go on His way.

"Please, let me go with you, Jesus!" the man implored.

"I want you to go home," Jesus told him; "I want you to be a witness for Me".

So, with a thankful and grateful heart the man went everywhere telling what Jesus had done for him. All the people listened and marvelled.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

34. Jethro's conversion (Exodus 18:10-12)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

JETHRO was the priest of a heathen religious system, and Moses long sojourn with him had not changed him. When reports reached him concerning Moses and Israel, he went to the camp of Israel to see and hear for himself; when he heard the testimony of Moses, he rejoiced with him. Jethro recognised that the Lord was no mere local deity, but the supreme God, who ruled both in heaven and on earth; so he became a worshipper of the one true God, offering a sacrifice as evidence of his changed heart. So, through the faithful testimony of Moses, his father-in-law was converted.

There are many instances of conversion following the witness of another: King Manasseh, when the words of some unknown prophets came to pass; Nebuchadnezzar, following the faithful testimony of Daniel; Andrew, when John the Baptist pointed him to the Lamb of God; Andrew then brought his brother, Peter, to Christ; Philip sought out his friend, Nathanael, and led him to Jesus; Philip the evangelist, pointed the Ethiopian eunuch to the Lord; the jailer was saved when he heard the testimony of Paul and Silas and witnessed the remarkable events in the jail at Philippi.

The Lord Jesus told the disciples: "Ye shall be witnesses unto Me" (Acts 1:8). Through such a constant testimony the world would be reached. This has been the divine method. Someone testified to me and I believed on the Lord Jesus Christ; having known the grace of God, I too became a witness and have had the great joy of seeing others turn to Christ. Even today this process is going on all over the world, the good news is being told in a multitude of tongues; sins are being forgiven and lives changed, as men and women believe the message and put their trust in the Lord Jesus. Are you bearing your testimony to the Lord and His saving grace?

MAN'S OPINION

By ARTHUR H. TOWNSEND

EVERY MAN has a right to his opinion, but his opinion may not be right.

He may think it is. He may feel very deeply about it, but this does not make it right.

When I first began writing for publication, I had the bad grace to denounce in part the "dream child" of a certain editor. I told him he was wrong. I said his work would never appeal to the intelligent minds of the reading public.

With much grace the editor replied: "Our decisions are not made by one man, but by a committee of competent persons. My personal opinion may be faulty, so I never trust it alone. I always like to get advice from others. One man's opinion is not always correct and dependable."

It proved to be the truth, for his publication has taken its place among the leading ones of our land. Since that time, however, the editor has accepted a manuscript of mine for publication in his magazine. He has a big heart. His personal feelings do not enter into his work.

I shall not, as long as I live, forget the lesson he taught me: "One man's opinion is not always correct and dependable."

How often the Lord's work has been hindered and weakened by one man's opinion! We read that Paul "withstood Peter to his face" (Galatians 2:11). Peter was wrong. His opinions and purposes were hindering the cause of Christ. Paul had to deal with him accordingly.

Why do pastors and Christian workers so often accept the undisputed opinions of one man? One man's opinions in their entirety are dangerous.

We should remember that no one is infallible. Often personal hurts and grievances—sometimes an old wound—enters into one's opinions. Never be swayed too greatly by the opinions of one man.

There is blessing in united counsel; there is blessing in fellowship.

How often pastors have singled out one man in their congregation or on the board and followed his advice more than that of others. God's work has been hindered and often blocked by such procedures.

Elisha, the prophet said, in the time of famine: "Thus saith the Lord, Tomorrow about this time shall a measure of fine flour be sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, in the gate of Samaria." A lord on whose hand the king leaned said to the man of God: "Behold, if the Lord would make windows in heaven, might this thing be?" (2 Kings 7:1, 2).

That man's opinion was wrong. He paid dearly for his unbelief. Elisha had heard from God; he was not moved by one man's opinion.

"One man's opinion is not always correct and dependable"—even if it is your own!

Men who once held to a certain course with bulldog tenacity, adamant in their opinions, are taking a different course today; their opinions are entirely changed. Opinions once accepted and adhered to have been discarded; and opinions once discarded are now accepted and adhered to, with blessing resulting and new vision inevitable.

Our opinions are often dangerous and apt to destroy rather than build up. Show me one infallible man, and I will accept his undisputed opinions. Until he can be produced, I shall remember the words of that editor: "One man's opinion is not always correct and dependable."

We need the fellowship of our brethren in Christ Jesus. There is no room in the economy of the gospel for the undisputed opinions of one man.

When we meet Christ face-to-face and see clearly, our outlook will be united as one, for we shall be perfect in Him. Christ will be ruling and reigning forever, and we shall rule and reign with Him in perfect agreement.

But until that time comes, let us remember that we need the counsel, fellowship, and experience of our fellow brethren. "In the multitude of counselors there is safety" (Proverbs 11:14).

Zechariah 1:1-21

"And the Lord answered . . . with good words and comfortable words" (v.13).

AS we listen to the politicians and statesmen of the world, their words are so often a condemnation of the other party. Very little good flows from their lips. So often it seems easier to condemn than to encourage. But not so with the One who is Truth. His words are words of comfort and strength, words that uplift and encourage. It is the good in man that He seeks to bring forth: "Whatsoever things are pure . . . lovely . . . of good report . . . think on these things" (Philippians 4:8). From the heart spring forth the words that can be a help or hindrance.

Tuesday, December 3rd

Zechariah 2:1-13

"Sing and rejoice . . . and I will dwell in the midst of thee" (v.10).

MUSIC and song gladden the heart of man, "and a merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance" (Proverbs 15:13), says the wise man. Singers had a very important part in the overthrowing of the enemies of Jehoshaphat and his people, for "when they began to sing and to praise, the Lord set ambushments against them (their enemies), . . . and they were smitten". The song of praise brings the victory, for the Lord inhabiteth the praises of His people. Rejoice and be glad—no longer be sad.

Wednesday, December 4th

Zechariah 3:1-10

"Is not this a brand plucked out of the fire?" (v.2).

EVERYONE brought to a saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ is a brand plucked from the burning. Fire is sometimes a frightening reality and so is sin; fire once ignited, spreads very quickly. This is a picture of sin in the heart. When the brand is plucked from the fire it is rescued from being consumed. We are reminded that, had we not been plucked from the fires of sin, they would have consumed us.

Thursday, December 5th

Zechariah 4:1-14

"Not by might, nor by power, but by My spirit saith the Lord of hosts" (v.6).

THIS is a well-known statement, quoted from many platforms. Does it apply today? Man has advanced in practically every field of research. Man has risen to be master of the world around him. He is still, however, in the hands of his Maker; in the realms of spiritual things, man's might and power must bow to the superior power of the Spirit of God.

Friday, December 6th

Zechariah 5:1-11; 6:1-8

"Then lifted I up mine eyes . . . and looked . . ." (v.9).

AS the prophet lifted up his eyes he was given a greater revelation. Such an attitude is a great help, for it teaches us to take our eyes off our earthbound circumstances and place them upon the Lord. The Psalmist said "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help" (Psalm 121:1).

The uplifted eyes will behold the light that shines brighter than the noonday sun. This light will brighten our pathway and guide us over the rough course of life.

Saturday, December 7th

Zechariah 6:9-15

" . . . Behold the man whose name is the BRANCH . . . He shall bear the glory, and shall sit and rule upon the throne . . ." (vv. 12,13).

WHEN our Lord's work upon earth was done, He ascended into Heaven and sat down at His Father's right hand. The tomb is now empty; the throne is occupied. All the glory for the work that He accomplished belongs unto the Lord of Hosts whose name is Jesus, the Branch. He shall rule with a rod that is truth, pure and just.

Sunday, December 8th

Zechariah 7:1-14

" . . . did ye at all fast unto me, even to me?" (v.5).

THIS is a very challenging question. For what purpose do we set aside time to fast and pray? That others might think we are spiritual, or because we have been called to do it? Or is it that the Lord of Heaven and Earth might be glorified: " . . . unto me"?

There is a time to fast and pray. The yoke is broken and the captive is set free by the One who has said, "Howbeit this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting" (Matthew 17:21).

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

Stop!

"I'M too busy"; "I must dash"; "Sorry, can't stop, I'm in a hurry". How often have you heard this said, and perhaps you have said the same yourself? To some degree we all seem to have got caught up in the mad rush of modern-day living. It is like a merry-go-round, but there's nothing merry about it; we want desperately to get off, but we can't.

This busyness of life is particularly tragic when it begins to effect our spiritual fervour. Take prayer, for instance. "I got up early one morning and rushed right into the day; I had so much to accomplish that I didn't take time to pray". How true that is of so many of us! Then there's the question of our allegiance to the church. How involved are we in its activities? Have we really time for this, or do business commitments, home duties, secular activities, all important in their rightful place, take prior claim upon our time?

In a way, time is like money; in fact we speak of time as we do money. We spend time, save time, use time, waste time, and so on. Time is a very valuable commodity, and if unwisely treated it soon becomes in short supply, causing us all sorts of frustration. The prayer of a well-known man was "Slow me down Lord". We need to remember that just as we are trustees of the money and goods we use during our life time, so, as Christians, we are to be good stewards of our time.

The book of Ecclesiastes tells us that: "For everything there is a season, and a time for every matter under heaven" (3:1). Does that mean that there is plenty of time for everything? No, but rather a God-given time for specific things; "a time to be born, and a time to die; . . . a time to keep silence, and a time to speak" (3:2,7). Is today God's time for you? "It is time TO SEEK THE LORD!" (Hosea 10:12).

"I wasted time; now time doth waste me" (William Shakespeare).

AS we write today, news comes through of the wonderful response to the television broadcast from the Bristol City Temple. I did not see the service myself, but talking to those who did set me thinking. The service, which was broadcast live, had to be carefully timed, as all radio and television programmes have to be. In spite of the need to watch the clock, nothing in the service was rushed; it was in fact a very good example of a service with dignity and freedom.

We rather hesitate to lay down any hard and fast rules as to the ingredients necessary to make a typical pentecostal service. We have been in meetings that have been very quiet, which nevertheless have been full of power. On the other hand, we have been in places where there has been plenty of noise but this has not been out of place.

We think that adequate time should be given to praise and worship. At the recent Swanwick conference one preacher said; "Worship is when you let God know how you feel; praise is telling men".

In a truly pentecostal meeting there should be a balance between praise and worship. Some people go to church just to be entertained, others go to do the entertaining! Some get nothing from a meeting because they give nothing to it.

With this thought in mind it might be good to read again 1 Corinthians 14, observing the careful balance between the experience of the individual and the needs of the whole body of the church.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands, and the anointing of the sick with oil.

we praise you for ever"*

Pastor Apau-Asante, National Leader Children's Movement (standing next to the young girl). Pastor Agyare, Pastor of Peki Assembly, next to Mrs. Mills. Presentation of Bible to girl who recited Mark 15.

by Margaret Mills

AS Assistant National Leader of the Church of Pentecost, Children's Movement, I am required to visit the eleven regions of Ghana to supervise the progress of this rapidly growing venture, which was commenced two years ago. I would like to share with you some of the highlights of an itinerary which we undertook recently.

We said goodbye to Kumasi as we set off to visit some of the regions on behalf of the Children's Movement. "Ermintrude", the first Green Shield Minibus to Ghana, was piled high with household goods and visual aid material. We are so thankful to the Lord for the generosity of His people who contributed to the purchase of this vehicle.

Our first stop was Eastern C region which lies just sixty miles south of Kumasi, up the beautiful Mpraeso scarp to Abetifi. Ruth, Judith and Erica were born in a hospital situated at the very top of this hair-raising scarp, so we were not strangers to this part of the country. The first children's meeting was held at Obo, where over 200 children were present. They brought singing items and recitations and then eagerly listened to a flannelgraph story. For many of these children, it was their first glimpse of a visual-aid Bible story. It would be impossible to go into details concerning all the meetings held in this region, but we are sure you will rejoice with us when we tell you that the numbers were never below 100 in any of the assemblies visited. Obo — 200 children; Kofi Dede — well over 100; Nkawkaw — 200 more. At Abetifi about 300 children gathered. We were shocked when we were told afterwards that the Sunday school in that assembly had only one teacher. Since our visit the pastor has been working hard. He has many assemblies in his district and throughout the area he has been conducting teaching sessions and seeking to recruit staff for the Sunday schools. At Kofi Dede, which is a village some miles down the scarp, we were told that all the children of the village attend Church of Pentecost Sunday school! We can well believe it. The children, clad in a uniform of black and white, marched through the village to the church. What a stirring sight. The Chief of Kofi Dede joined us later for a photograph; testifying to his approval of the work which these Sunday school teachers were doing for the community.

During our visit to this region, we were invited to minister at the regular Tuesday morning prayer meeting in the assembly at Nkawkaw. We were moved to find over 500 people gathered for prayer.

From Eastern C region we moved on over 150 miles to the Volta region, first stop Ho, the regional capital. We had opportunity to minister at several adult services and on the Sunday morning, crowds filled the church for the special children's service. A group of children were pointed out to us. These children, some quite young, had walked ten miles the previous night in order to make certain they would be in time for the morning service. That particular night Ghana changed from driving on the left to driving on the right-hand side of the road. It was uncertain how many vehicles would venture out on to the roads that weekend. These children made sure that they would have no transport difficulties.

Again in Ho, teaching sessions were held for the leaders, and Mrs. Siriboe, the Children's Movement National Secretary shared in the ministry. She is a very gifted lady and has her whole heart in child evangelism.

On to Peki, we were met by many children who proved to us that they had been following their lessons well and growing in the things of God. One girl about thirteen years of age recited the whole of Mark fifteen. We felt she deserved encouragement and so presented her with a Bible in her own language, Ewe. The National Leader of the Children's Movement, Pastor Apau-Asante, was with us on this occasion and he charged this young lady to learn the Bible from cover to cover.

Kadjebi, a further 100 miles north, is still part of the vast Volta region of Ghana. Here we found a small town but a large assembly. The one thing which commanded our attention in Kadjebi was the large number of young people aged from twelve to twenty. How I longed to be able to stay here to minister to these young folk. After witnessing the very efficient and sincere way in which the children's movement leader of the church conducted those in his care, I knew that my services were not required. How these young people thrilled us with their testimony in song and recitation. Every night for one whole week the church was packed, with children standing on piles of cement blocks outside the windows and crowding the doorway. One visit was made to a village some forty miles beyond Kadjebi, and once again there was a full church.

Teaching sessions for leaders and elders was held, and from this scattered district, over forty people attended this one-day session. One pastor from Togo and one of his elders attended and took back with them a large amount of visual aid material. Mind you, I must tell you that the Togo border is only a matter of three miles away from Kadjebi! Nevertheless this Children's Movement itinerary had a missionary flavour!

The crowning hour of the itinerary came on the last evening of our visit to Kadjebi. The Children's Movement held an open-air service in the town. We felt that there was a real struggle, as the enemy of the Church was seeking to hold fast those who were his. However, the victory was won in the Name of Jesus and eight people publicly confessed their need of the Lord.

We were snowed under with gifts of fruit, vegetables, eggs and live fowl. We had over 400 eggs given to us in one Region; a turkey in another. We never cease to be overwhelmed by the generosity of our Ghanaian brethren and sisters.

We arrived back home to Kumasi just one month after we set out. Since that time I have attended special meetings called by the Ashanti regional Children's Movement and would like to share with you some things I learned during these meetings. Several of the Sunday schools have held special children's prayer meetings. In one district whilst a children's prayer meeting was in progress a school teacher happened to pass the door of the church and, hearing children's voices, he went to see what was going on. As a result he went inside the church and gave his heart to Christ. In another district two children's open-air services have been held and four people came to Christ as a result. In one of the Kumasi Sunday schools the children have learned to tithe, and now want to know why they can't break bread as the adults do. They are planning to have special worship services, without the sacraments of course.

One indication of the growth of the Children's Movement over the past two years can be judged from the production of the quarterly teachers' handbook. This new venture commenced in May when an initial production of 600 copies were completely sold out. The next quarter saw 800 copies completely sold out. The present order is for 1,000 copies. On May 1st next year we are going over to an annual handbook.

There are so many things to tell. The words of Jesus are being heeded by our people here: "Let the children come to Me. Do not hinder them".

The Bible in the World

BIBLE PAPER SUPPLIES UNDER THREAT

Sugar has become hard to find. So has paper. In particular, the special paper used for Bibles.

For years the Production Department of the BFBS has bought its paper from three British Mills.

The only three in the country making Bible paper. Now two of them have amalgamated and the source of supply has been cut by 20%, which is a lot.

Bible paper is also made in France. But it costs a great deal more, 40% more. That's too much.

They say other foodstuffs besides sugar may become difficult to obtain. Nobody quite knows what Housewives, hospital catering departments, the whole food industry have to try to guess in advance and make what provision they can. It's the sort of headache now being experienced by the Production Department. Estimating in advance how much paper to order has never been easy. A particular Bible or New Testament in, say, an African language, after selling steadily for a number of years, can suddenly start to snowball. The sales rocket. An urgent request for more comes through to Bible House. The Production Department has to find the paper in a hurry.

Difficult in normal times, the task has become much more of a problem with the shortage of paper. Forward planning now has to be pushed further and further ahead. What will we be short of in the first quarter of 1976 — that's nearly eighteen months from now. Sugar? Beef? Butter? No housewife can begin to cope with that kind of question. But the Production Department has to try. Will there be a sudden urgent demand from Africa, or Asia, or the Pacific? Will a runaway best-seller zip through the stocks in Latin America and cables asking for an urgent reprint come to Bible House? We are now having to place orders for paper which will not be manufactured until the Spring of 1976. How can we do this, except by making a series of intelligent guesses based on admittedly unpredictable factors.

The hunger for God's word is as urgent as the hunger for food. The paper shortage is just another problem to be solved if that hunger is to be satisfied.

Thoughts on the book of Revelation

The false church and the true bride of Christ Chapter 17–19:10

by Charles J. E. Kingston

IN the Old Testament, true Israel is termed the wife of Jehovah; in the New, the true Church is the Bride of Christ. The false church is guilty of spiritual adultery, the forsaking of the true God for idolatry, whether it be of idols of wood or stone, or of flesh and blood, whether it be of golden images or of the love of money and of selfish ends. She is called: "Mystery, Babylon, the great, the mother of harlots and abominations of the earth" (17:5).

Ancient Babylon.

According to Genesis 10:10, Nimrod, Ham's grandson, built Babel. Josephus makes him the prime mover in the erection of the tower of Babel. This was a ziggurat, or stepped pyramid. Three motives led to the building; pride, vainglory and a determination to hold together (Genesis 11:4).

Nimrod, after his death, was worshipped as Marduk and his beautiful wife, Semiramis, who had a posthumous son by him, was worshipped with her child as the queen of heaven, the goddess of love and fertility. Under various names, Istar, Ashtareth, Astarte, Isis, Venus, her worship, after the confusion of tongues, spread over the known world. In Samuel's day the Israelites worshipped Ashtareth (1 Samuel 7:3) and as late as Jeremiah the Jews refused to give up burning incense "to the queen of heaven" (Jeremiah 44:15-18).

In 487 B.C. Xerxes sacked Babylon and the Babylonish priesthood sought refuge in Pergamos; its king becoming chief priest of the mysteries, Pontifex Maximus. Later, in 133 B.C. when Attalus, king of Pergamos died, his dominions were willed to the citizens of Rome and the title, Pontifex Maximus, passed to the Roman head of state.

When Constantine was converted in A.D. 313 he declared Rome in favour of Christianity; many pagans pressed into the Church which imported many of the pagan festivals and practices, including the worship of the queen of heaven, under the title of the Madonna and child. In A.D. 366, the Roman emperor Gratian, who was a Christian, refused the pontifical office, but in A.D. 378 the then Bishop of Rome, Damasus, assumed the vacant title, regarding himself as the High Priest, or supreme pontiff, of the Christian Church. This title is still retained by the Pope. The ancient Babylonish worship reappears in its modern guise.

Behind all false religions is demonic power. Sacrifice to pagan idols, said Paul, was sacrifice to demons (1 Corinthians 10:20). Heathenish worship, as well as its modern recurrence in various forms such as Spiritism, Satanism, Christian Science, Mormonism, Mariolatry, etc., are not only based on error but has an evil spirit background.

Modern Babylon.

John saw a woman, clothed in purple and scarlet, seated upon a scarlet beast. Evidently the same beast as in chapter 13, but now stained blood-red from the slaughter of the Tribulation saints, he is typical of that anti-God world power which began in Babel and culminates in the Antichrist of the last days. His picture is given to Daniel. "I saw. . . a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible and strong. . . it had ten horns. . . and behold there came up among them another little horn. . . in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man and a mouth speaking great things. . . then because of the voice. . . which the horn spake. . . the beast was slain" (Daniel 7:7-11).

This fourth beast seen by Daniel is prophetically the Roman power which in some form or other is to exist until the advent of Christ. It would be wrong, however, to assume that the revived Roman empire of the last days will be exactly co-extensive with the old boundaries, having the same frontiers, as Rome had in the heyday of its power, or indeed that it should have the same capital, Rome. As Erich Sauer puts it: "Even in the past the frontiers of the old Roman empire were not invariable, and in any case a kingdom remains the same kingdom even if its frontiers are extended far beyond their earlier limit and indeed if its capital is removed to another place." May not Russian communism, the worship of the state, instead of the worship of God, become the re-establishment of Babylonish world power and religion?

The Bishop of Wakefield (as reported in the Daily Telegraph October 23rd, 1974) feared that the growing power of an anti-Christian Left could force the Church underground by the end of this century. Eventually the apostate world church, towards which the Ecumenical movement for a world church is drifting, will be finally destroyed by those very kingdoms which at first supported her, God having "put in their hearts to fulfil His will" (17:16, 17).

The true bride of Christ. 19:1-10.

"After these things", that is, after the destruction of the false religious systems on earth, the marriage of Christ and His true Bride will take place.

A fourfold "Hallelujah" is heard in Heaven. The glorified saints praise God because of His righteous judgments; because He reigns; and because the raptured Church is to be married to the Lamb, the King's Son.

One question arises. Since Jesus commands us on earth to love our enemies, why are the saints in Heaven encouraged to praise God for His judgment on the harlot of Babylon (v.2, 3)? The answer is that on earth we do not see the complete picture and therefore must leave the final judgment to God, who judges righteously (Romans 12:19); that justice demands God should judge wickedness, else the rule of law breaks down. In Heaven the saints will understand as God understands and will see the rightness of all His judgments.

The heavenly bridegroom.

The Lord Jesus likened Himself to the bridegroom; He spoke of His second advent as His coming for His bride; and Christians are "espoused. . . as a chaste virgin to Christ" (Matthew 9:15; 25:1-13; 1 Corinthians 11:2). In the East a dowry is paid for a bride; Jesus died to obtain His, and purchased her with His own precious blood.

The bride of Christ.

She is composed of all truly born-again believers, that is, the Church of Christ. Some expositors would limit this number to a select company called "overcomers", but Scripture clearly states that those born of God, through faith in Jesus, the Son of God, are overcomers; and that Christ loved the Church and gave Himself for it. . . that He might present it to Himself as His Bride (Acts 2:47; 1 John 5:4, 5; Ephesians 5:25, 27, 32).

The bride's wedding attire. 19:7, 8.

"Clothed in fine linen", she has prepared herself for the wedding day. The gown she wears, woven on the loom of Calvary, is the garment of salvation, the robe of righteousness (Isaiah 61:10). Without this wedding garment there is only "outer darkness" (Matthew 22:11-14). Offered freely, this wedding garment is given to all who seek it, ask it, put it on.

The Marriage ceremony.

John did not see the marriage, neither was it explained to him, so he can only announce the fact. This accords with Eastern custom where the ceremony consists simply in receiving the bride into the bridegroom's home, this being an acknowledgment before witnesses that he has taken her to be his wife. A formal document was then signed in which the bridegroom undertook to work for her, to honour, keep and care for her. At His second advent Christ will return to His bride's home, the earth, to conduct her to the place He has prepared for her (John 14:2, 3).

The Marriage Supper.

The length of earthly time taken by the wedding feast is not stated. Eastern wedding celebrations often lasted a week (Judges 14:12). Will a week of earthly years pass during the festivities? Anyway, it could mean that some earthly time elapses during this event which precedes the final stage of the second advent. Then the Bridegroom and His beautiful bride, "not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing" will set out on the wedding trip to planet earth for the thousand years' reign together.

The guests at the Marriage supper.

John was told distinctly to write: "Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper of the Lamb". Who are these guests? Of course, the bride is blessed to be there but are there others too? Invited are the ten virgins, five of whom miss the wedding (Matthew 25:1-13). Then the King's daughter has virgins, her companions who follow her (Psalm 45:13-15). Added to these, there are also the friends of the Bridegroom, of whom John the Baptist ("notwithstanding he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he" Matthew 11:11) claimed to be one (John 3:29). Sale-Harrison suggests that these friends of the Bridegroom are the Old Testament saints, invited to the wedding feast, though not part of the bride, and considers that this factor throws much light on: "God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect" (Hebrews 11:39, 40).

"The Spirit and the bride say, Come".

"Even so, come, Lord Jesus".

Pastor: A.S.F. Horne

A WEEKEND of blessing was our privilege as we celebrated the ruby wedding anniversary of Pastor and Mrs. A.S.F. Horne. Many friends joined our Pastor and his household for tea on the Saturday. Willing helpers provided the best of refreshments. After cutting a specially-made iced cake, suitably worded for the occasion, Pastor Horne recalled some of the highlights of forty years of God's blessing upon his marriage.

Pastor Brian Horne gave a refreshing talk on the figure forty in Scripture. Films of some of the delights over the years were shown, followed by coloured slides presented by our secretary, Brother Collins, who on behalf of the church gave a gift to Pastor and Mrs. Horne.

The blessing continued over the weekend as we gathered around the Lord's Table and for the evening gospel service. Pastor Brian Horne's anointed, challenging messages and our Pastor's family singing will be long remembered.

THE CARRICKFERGUS PIONEER CRUSADE

with Ron Jones and Len Magee in Northern Ireland

WE have just returned from our first Communion service and I must confess that I feel much happier than when I set out this morning. One never knows quite what to expect at the first Breaking of Bread service on a pioneer crusade. There were over forty of us present, but more important was the very evident presence of the Lord. The congregation included an excellent group of men and an encouraging number of young people. It was thrilling to hear some of the new converts expressing their thanks to God in their own way.

We have just completed our second week of meetings in the Town Hall. Sunday night congregations have averaged 200 and weeknight numbers have been maintained at over 100. These numbers have been made possible because of the excellent support given by the Elim pastors and churches, especially during the first important week. My sincerest thanks go to them all. We are glad to say, however, that during the second week the number of local folk attending the services has increased and there is a spirit of expectancy.

Many are the folk, both inside and outside "Carrick", who have told us, "It is a very difficult town for the gospel. Even the great W.P. Nicholson could do nothing here". If we had heard that before, we might never even have started! Present circumstances in Ulster do not make things any easier. Just imagine arriving at the Town Hall for a crusade meeting only to find the door "straightly shut up". You knock and wait for the door to be opened and in you go—single file—and every lady must have her handbag looked into. Then the door is shut to await the next knock. Add to these factors the bomb scares almost every day, and you get some idea of the tremendous spirit of these Ulster folk. You will also appreciate how wonderful has been God's gracious help and blessing in this pioneer effort.

Our very first convert was a young married mother and, since her decision, she has had the joy of seeing her mother and her own two children decide for Jesus. This is just one of a number of families who have found new faith in God.

These first two weeks have been packed with opportunities and ministry, including open air witness in the centre of the town, coffee mornings in the homes of some of the local folk who have been greatly blessed of God. The attendance at these outreach efforts has been around twelve and at them there have been those who have made decisions.

The anointed singing of Len Magee has brought much blessing. One of the most encouraging things has been the comment of quite a number: "We have noticed the very sound Bible-based character of the whole crusade." Prayer has been made for the sick and there have been those who have told us that God has met their need. We have even been invited into a home to pray for the sick while we have been holding an open air service.

Len Magee and I have just another four nights here and then Pastor and Mrs. John Prentice continue the task of establishing Elim's newest church. The opportunities are many and the work that awaits them is quite tremendous—conducting services, visiting the new converts and many contacts, maintaining the successful coffee mornings and continuing the weekly open air witness. Please remember John and Sally Prentice and their two fine boys in your prayers that God will strengthen them, bless them and use them in the exciting task which now confronts them.

May I express my deepest thanks to all our Elim friends who have so kindly and faithfully remembered us in prayer.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

35. A new relationship (Exodus 19:3)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

ISRAEL was not saved from Egypt by keeping the law; in fact, until this time, God had given no law to them. Their redemption from Egypt was by the grace of God alone; He had simply called them to believe His Word and to obey specific commands such as sprinkling the blood of the Passover Lamb. By this same grace He had made a way for them in the wilderness, keeping them from harm, and providing food and water for their need.

At Mount Sinai the Lord revealed His intention that the people should enter a new relationship with Him. Israel was an imperfect people living in an imperfect world, so it was necessary for them to have laws to regulate their national and personal life. The laws of other nations were made by sinful men; but Israel would be unique because her laws would be made by God Himself. Israelites would henceforth be responsible to keep the laws of God; obedience would bring blessing, disobedience would incur punishment. A simple lesson was implicit in this new relationship, i.e., Israel had been saved by grace in order to live for the glory of God (Exodus 19:5,6).

We have had a more glorious experience of the grace of God than did Israel. Once we were under sentence of eternal ruin because of sin, but the grace of God reached our hearts, our sin was cleansed by the blood of Jesus and we became children of God by faith. Now we are free from the law of sin and death (Romans 6:22; 8:2), yet this does not give us liberty to do as we like, but freedom to serve the Lord in the power of the Holy Spirit (Romans 6:22; 8:3,4).. God's Word says: "You are not your own, you are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body and your spirit, which are God's" (1 Corinthians 6:19-20). We have been bought from sin's slavery by the precious blood of Christ, so our redeemed lives must reveal His Lordship and we must live for His glory.

Service without Thought of Reward

by Gordon A. Wright

PETER pricked up his ears. Jesus had just promised the Rich Young Ruler treasure in heaven if he sold his possessions and gave the proceeds to the poor. Peter had evidently been promised nothing. Without any thought of reward, he had willingly and gladly responded to Christ's call to follow Him. Peter could not understand why this man, who needed such inducement even to consider following Christ, was promised treasure in heaven. It was no use brooding over it; he would ask the Lord for an explanation: "Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed Thee: what shall we have therefore?" (Matthew 19:27).

Do you like Peter's question, or do you think it introduces a mercenary attitude into Christian service? Of course, there will be rewards for service both now and later. The Bible is quite explicit about that. But the promise of rewards was never intended to encourage self-interest by making us reward-conscious.

It is impossible to think of Jesus encouraging an attitude of mind in His followers that is foreign to His own nature. Jesus came to give, not to receive. He came to lay down His life for the salvation of the world. Could any life be so utterly unselfish? Paul beautifully sums up the self-emptying of the Christ: "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: Who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: But made Himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men: And being found in fashion as a man, He humbled Himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Philippians 2:5-8).

Far from appealing to our self-interest, Jesus appealed to the highest and noblest in man. He wanted workers who shared His vision; people of resolute will and tender heart who, having once committed themselves to His cause, would see the task through whatever the cost to themselves. He called for dedication, for unremitting labour, for sacrifice—even unto death. "If any man will come after Me," He said, "Let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever shall lose his life for My sake shall find it" (Matthew 16:24,25). Many other quotations could be given showing that our Lord did not neglect to set before potential followers the grim possibilities of serving Him. (Consider Matthew 10:34-38; Luke 9:57-62; John 16:1-2; and Acts 9:13-16).

Did our Lord give His evaluation of our service to help us to avoid becoming reward-conscious? "... When ye have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants: we have done that which was our duty to do" (Luke 17:10), unprofitable servants, not because we have hidden our talents, or slept under a juniper tree, or ran away from Nineveh, but when we have done everything expected of us. That is very humbling. God knows all about our incompetency, our blunders, our tactlessness. We can do nothing perfect. Rather than be reward-conscious, we should think of service as a privilege and of rewards as an overplus of grace.

How can we be reward-conscious when we are heirs to vast fortunes? "Son," said the Prodigal's father to the elder brother, "thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine" (Luke 15:31). Paul says that is what God is saying to us: "For all things are yours; Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life or death, or things present, or things to come: all are yours" (1 Corinthians 3:21,22). Is that not staggering? How can the mind grasp the greatness of our calling in Christ? Paul puts it even more plainly in Romans 8:17: "And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ." Because of the generosity of God, a fortune so vast that it cannot be calculated not even by astronomical figures awaits those who trust in the Saviour. In such circumstances, surely a grasping nature should be out of the question.

"What shall we have therefore?" asked Peter. Jesus gave him a most gracious reply: "There is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake, and the gospel's, But he shall receive an hundredfold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions; and in the world to come eternal life" (Mark 10:29,30).

How are we to interpret this answer of Jesus? Does it really mean that we shall receive a hundred times more of everything we sacrifice for Him? What an investment such sacrifice would be! But such an obviously false interpretation

would render the words of Jesus absurd and impossible of fulfilment. True, we could receive a hundred houses, but how could we have a hundred mothers? Jesus had come to form a new society of people: a holy nation, a spiritual priesthood, a brotherhood of love, a heavenly kingdom. "My mother and my brethren are these which hear the word of God, and do it" said Jesus (Luke 8:21). The disciples would discover new relationships that would last for eternity, and would receive hospitality in their journeyings; they would be more than compensated in one way or another for any sacrifice they make for their Lord.

But Jesus had no intention of misleading Peter. It was not going to be "roses, roses all the way". Jesus added, perhaps gravely, "with persecutions". We must never forget that. Let us not skip over it quickly because it sounds unpleasant. "All that live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution" (2 Timothy 3:12). So faithfulness in service would not necessarily produce all the good things in life; there would be adverse experiences as well.

The inclusion of "with persecutions" surely belies that Jesus was dangling the advantages of following Him before the disciples as a sop for service. There would be adversities as well as advantages, and no hint was given as to the ratio. That was a part of the undisclosed future. We know now that it varies immensely from place to place, person to person, and decade to decade.

Then Jesus rounded off His answer with the promise of eternal life in the world to come.

Was Peter confused by the answer Jesus gave Him? Houses, lands, friends, new relationships—that sounds fine; but why did Jesus quietly slip in "with persecutions"? Surprisingly, the adversities could outweigh the advantages. In any case, how can persecutions be a reward? Then there is eternal life in the world to come. But surely this is a gift, not compensation for sacrifice or reward for service. It is all so bewildering. So Peter kept quiet.

Did Jesus deliberately frame His answer this way to set Peter searching his heart, to jolt him out of his former commercial patterns of thought, and to save him from serving from the motive of self-interest?

The noblest souls are those who serve because they must. There is a refreshing spontaneity

about their activity. And the Lord notices it. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me" (Matthew 25:40). It came naturally to them to be kind and helpful to all who needed assistance whatever their social standing. Love never discriminates. A great compulsion directed their lives. They did what had to be done, and they were genuinely surprised to discover that they had been ministering unto the Lord.

Such selfless service often characterizes the early days of discipleship. We are so filled with love for God and so grateful for redeeming grace that, like Peter, we gladly follow the Lord with no thought of reward; but later, as we begin to hear about rewards, old Jacob stirs within us and we are tempted to put a wrong emphasis on them. We begin to ask: "What shall we have therefore?"

But such a magnificent change came over Peter's way of thinking. In his exhortation to the elders of the Church, though he refers to the crown of glory they will receive when the Lord appears, he went out of his way to save them from becoming ensnared by the love of worldly advantage and aggrandizement. He wrote: "Feed the flock of God . . . not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock" (1 Peter 5:2,3). The motive behind their service was not to be the love of financial reward, status or power, but love for God and man.

How did this change in Peter come about?

A tragic failure

became a turning point in his life. It pulled him up with a jolt and reminded him that he was moulded from common clay. The bitter memory of his denial tore him apart as he breakfasted with Jesus by the sea of Tiberias.

Three times Jesus pressed the question of Peter's love. Peter was grieved at such insistent probing. Surely the Master does not doubt me? Then the dam broke; with all the vehemence of his passionate heart he said: "Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love Thee" (John 21:17). That was what Jesus wanted to hear: a clear, unreserved avowal of loving commitment.

This opened the way for Jesus to confirm His earlier call to Peter by the Sea of Galilee to follow Him, and to outline Peter's future service and sacrifice. After commissioning him to attend to the affairs of the Church, Jesus made a solemn pronouncement that would have unbalanced a lesser character than Peter, but Jesus was able to make it because of the deep sincerity of Peter's avowal of love: "I tell you this in very truth: when you were young you fastened your belt about you and walked where you chose; but when you are old you will stretch out your arms, and a stranger will bind you fast, and carry you where you have no wish to go." He said this to indicate the manner of death by which Peter was to glorify God. Then He added, Follow Me." (John 21:18,19 N.E.B.).

Peter had come a long way since he asked Jesus:

"What shall we have therefore?" He saw that the highest and noblest in Christian activity stems from love. We have not far to look for the explanation. He had seen his Master bleed for sinners. There was no escaping the appeal of the love of Jesus: it called for dedicated lives through whom the love of God could fan out to embrace the world. Peter could not resist that appeal—he no longer looked for rows of houses in Jerusalem—instead, he laid his life on the altar for God.

From a Pastor's Study

The Slippery Bow

by A. Nicolson,
Pastor of our
Southend-on-Sea Church

IT ALL began with two bamboo canes in a world of make-believe. The little boy struck a professional pose, using one cane as a violin and the other as a bow. The fond mother watched this imposing demonstration and decided to send her son to a music teacher for tuition in the art of plying the violin. Progress was painfully slow, and no less painful were the sounds which were produced from this normally delightful instrument.

One day the lad noticed that his bow was rather dirty, so he decided to clean it with a very good brand of soap and water. The resulting cleanliness of the bow rather pleased the boy.

The piece to be practiced that evening was entitled "The bluebells of Scotland." It was disastrous! The bow slid all over the strings, darting here and there like a thing possessed, first to the right, then to the left and not a single note came from the violin. A chastened and wiser boy had learned an important lesson; one does not clean a violin bow with soap and water, no matter how good the soap may be.

Many people today try to clean up their lives by using religion, good works and social activities in the vain hope that their efforts will satisfy a holy God. We readily admit that many of their efforts are commendable; like the little boy's soap however those things are not right for the job. The only means of cleansing our lives from sin is the precious blood of Jesus, God's own beloved Son.

An appreciation of the late Pastor Lemuel Morris

THE funeral of Pastor Lemuel Morris took place at the Southampton Church, on Thursday, October 24th.

Until I came to Southampton, Lemuel Morris was but a name to me, but when I met him I found him to be a man who loved the Lord and fellowship with those who belonged to the Lord; he also had a great sense of humour. He was indeed a happy representative of the kingdom of God.

He was born in the Swansea valley, and was known as the boy preacher. His elder brother David, a missionary for over fifty years in South America, now lives in retirement in Cardiff.

His work in Elim, saw ministry in Rochester, Woolwich, as well as here at Southampton, where he spent several happy and eventful years. It was during his ministry here that the church suffered a direct hit by a bomb, on a Sunday evening. On that Sunday, for the first time, he was led to convene the gospel service in the afternoon, and in the evening, when the service would have been in progress, the bomb fell. How merciful God was to His people.

After Southampton, Pastor Morris served the Congregational Church for a number of years until failing health necessitated retirement from full-time ministry. He and his wife returned to Southampton to be near his daughter. During my stay here I came to know and love him.

We extend our sincere Christian love and prayers to Mrs. Morris and the members of the family

The man and his ministry

by Frank Rowley

THE greatest compliment that can be paid to any man is to say, "that man is a man of God". Pastor J.E. Moore is such a man. Born in Leeds in 1909, he was offered by his mother to the service of the Lord as she first cradled her baby son in her arms. Mrs. Moore had felt the call to India, but marriage and circumstances had pushed the call into the background; however, her peace with God was renewed as she offered her son in her place in service for God. How remarkably that prayer has been answered in the life of Pastor J.E. Moore. Educated at West Leeds High School, and moving into the working world with the old London Midland and Scottish Railway Company in their offices at Stourton, he was converted at nineteen after hearing the testimony of Pastor Charles Kingston's wife. In the early hours of the morning as a young man he gave his life to Christ. The prayers of a mother for her child resulted in a young man on his knees seeking repentance and salvation.

In the Bridge Street Church, he served as steward, Crusader Secretary, and Church Secretary prior to his call to the ministry at Bridge Street Church in 1941. After serving the five year probationary period, he was ordained as an Elim minister at the Bloomsbury Baptist Church, London in 1946. For thirty-three years he has faithfully served the Saviour and His people in Leeds. Over the years his Bible-based teaching ministry has been a source of salvation, encouragement, and inspiration to thousands. He has stood for God and delivered well over three thousand sermons, lectures and talks, dedicating an unknown number of children to the Lord, conducting many weddings, and officiating at the funerals of a great number. Many believers have gone through the waters of baptism in his safe hands. His leaking waders used in the baptistry have caused me to smile many times, for he is usually wetter than the candidates!

Pastor Moore is a gentle, loving man, who has given himself to prayer and to the ministry of the Word of God. His love is for his people young and old alike. His teaching ministry has opened up the untold treasures of God's Word in many series of studies. The Law of the Lord has continually been in his mouth. Joshua 1:8 sums up the ministry of Pastor Moore. As well as the responsibility of the Leeds Church, he serves as Chairman of the Leeds Evangelical Council; Chairman — Evangelical Council, Radio Leeds Committee; Elim National Radio and Film Committee; reference Council member of Ambassadors for Christ (Great Britain); Trustee of the Dimpleby Memorial Home; Founder Trustee of Chapletown Rescue Mission.

TWO little boys were trying to recall the tune of a newly-learned chorus. The words came readily to their lips but the melody eluded them. Triumphantly young Michael announced "It goes lovely to Yankee-doodle!"

This little incident hardened my resolve to write about a trend that has both troubled and perplexed me. I refer to the habit of changing tunes and of fitting unsuitable tunes to well-loved hymns. I attended a children's rally during November and enjoyed it very much. We sang with gusto and certainly the paraphrase of Psalm 23 sung to the tune of "The Happy Wanderer" went with a real swing. To supply the chorus of the tune we used the words "He lives, He lives, I know that my Redeemer lives", but somehow it did not seem to fit or blend with the theme of the lovely Shepherd Psalm. Much as I love a jolly, catchy tune, having lived in Scotland and known the very special place Psalm 23 has in their history and their hearts, I felt that "Crimond" was a far better choice. It is significant too, that children do respond to the more devotional types of music. I remember quite well that the children of a very rough area of Glasgow, when asked for a favourite chorus, invariably chose "He showed me His hands that were marred by my sinning", and sang it with deep reverence.

I must admit that Pastor Alex Wright is a man after my own heart, and I said a hearty amen to his exhortation concerning the switching of hymn tunes, in the EVANGEL dated October 26th. I agree with his comment that it is not good enough to jettison a tune just because it is unfamiliar or considered slow. A case in point is the rejection of the gracious tune set to hymn 572 in Redemption Hymnal, "Burn Fire of God" and the substitution of the well-known tune of "How great Thou art". This Swedish melody is ideally teamed with the words to which it was set and to my mind the two should always go together. We learned the words and the tune together, they were new and wonderful, and a precious blending of glorious verses and equally splendid music. Surely such a hymn is inspired by the Holy Spirit, who gives both words and music to bless and uplift the worshipping believer. So it is with all the most famous and well-loved hymns. They have been brought into being by prayer and waiting on God, and often in a remarkable way the tune has been married to the words.

Fanny Crosby was sitting one day in conversation with a friend when a Mr. Doane came in and announced that he had written a tune and wanted her to write some words for it. "Let me hear how the tune goes", replied the blind hymn-writer. Mr. Doane sat down at a small organ and played the melody, and at once Miss Crosby exclaimed, "Why that tune says, 'Safe in the arms of Jesus' I will see what I can do". Hurriedly she retired to another room and returning after half an hour she presented to Mr. Doane the words of the best known of all her hymns.

Safe in the arms of Jesus,
Safe on His gentle breast
There by His love o'ershaded,
Sweetly my soul shall rest.

The younger generation most probably consider that I am a square, for I cannot for the life of me see the value of the modern pop music, where the tune, with its pronounced beat and rhythm, predominates, making the words unintelligible. I sometimes wonder if we are any different from the world, when we make the words of our hymns subservient to the music. Surely our singing is for the purpose of worshipping our Lord and in such an act the words are of supreme importance. The principle of the New Testament to "sing with the understanding also" is incumbent upon us all.

Wake Up!

by Philip Niblett, Pastor of our Gosport Church

WHAT a world-shattering news item, given important coverage in many newspapers! The Osmonds arrived at Heathrow without a welcome from their fanatical fans. Why? Well the answer is simple, the fans weren't sure when they would arrive and so they weren't ready.

If they get such treatment and news coverage, I just wonder how the media will react to the return of JESUS CHRIST. I am glad that I won't be around to find out, but I wonder just how many are going to be caught unprepared.

The ignorant.

It is certain there are going to be many who just do not expect Christ to return. Their reasons are many. Some do not accept that He came the first time; others deny that He rose from the dead. Some think that our death is His return, while other misguided folk believe He came at Pentecost or the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70. Others suggest such dates as 1843 or 1844 or even 1914, and so we could go on. They are ignorant of the fact that He is yet to come. The Scripture declares: "... there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying 'Where is the promise of His coming?' for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation" (2 Peter 3:3,4).

The entangled.

So many people realise that Jesus will come again, but have become too entangled in their own viewpoint. They have made up their minds that certain things must happen before He can come, and that they can only happen in their way. I have my own view of prophecy (it is not exclusive to me though) but I realise that I could be wrong, and that things won't happen exactly the way I think. There are some though, who won't be persuaded, and for them Christ cannot come until after certain events take place. They are so entangled in their own views, that when Christ comes He will catch them unprepared. The story is told of a convention speaker who went round the afternoon gathering asking all the ministers he could find, if they thought that Jesus would return that day. The overwhelming answer was that they did not expect His return that day. That evening he took as his text "Be ye therefore ready also, for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not" (Luke 12:40).

The unconcerned.

Sadly, there are many who are not concerned whether Jesus comes or not. I can assure you that there was no reaction, good or bad, when I heard that the Osmonds were coming. Many people, some Christians included, have heard that Jesus is coming again and it has no effect on them. They are like the disciples who slept while Jesus was at a crisis hour of His ministry. Perhaps, in the crisis hour of this world, the hope of His coming is not making us live and witness as we should. In 2 Peter 3 we are told of the ultimate end of the world, and then a question is asked in verse 2, "Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness?" May the return of our LORD Jesus Christ make us like that.

"Blessed is the servant, whom his Lord when he cometh shall find so doing" (Matthew 24:46).

BOOK REVIEW

Divine Healing, by F. Roy Jeremiah, published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott, price 40p, postage and packing 6p extra.

THIS is a concise and gripping account of up to date supernatural divine healing, written in a most convincing style.

The book is happily balanced in its presentation of healing the spirit, soul and circumstances, as well as bodily malfunctions.

Many writers on this subject tend to dramatise and dwell over-much on the spectacular. The author never falls into this tender trap. One can hope that this fine little book will fall into the hands of the sceptic or those particularly having "a form of godliness and denying the power thereof". It will do them a power of good.

Monday, December 9th

Zechariah 8:1-23

"...Speak ye every man the truth to his neighbour; ..." (v.16).

THESE were the words of the Lord to His people, and very necessary words they are to us today. The message to the disciples was, "go and tell". As a result of this witness, the world was turned upside down. Christianity spread to all the then known world. This is still the method that God uses today; as we speak the truth to our neighbours we shall have, not only the satisfaction of being obedient to Him, but also of seeing His kingdom extended.

Tuesday, December 10th

Zechariah 9:1-17

"...Thy King cometh. ...And how great is His beauty ..." (vv.9 and 17).

AS we gaze upon our earthly rulers dressed in royal attire, their majesty and splendour may arrest our attention; what is that compared to the beauty and the loveliness of our coming King? "There is no beauty that we should desire Him" (Isaiah 53:1).

The lily in its glory, the rose with its fragrance, are found wanting as we behold His loveliness. The very fragrance of His love and the warmth of His affection provoke the cry "Even so, come Lord Jesus".

Wednesday, December 11th

Zechariah 11:4-17

"So they weighed for my price thirty pieces of silver" (v.12).

THE price of betrayal: we are taken immediately in thought to the scene outside the Garden of Gethsemane where our blessed Lord was betrayed for thirty pieces of silver. Judas betrayed Him for money, others betray Him by their attitudes toward Him, and by the words that flow from their lips. What is our attitude? "Lovest thou Me more than these?" Let us never be found betraying the Lord of glory.

Thursday, December 12th

Zechariah 12:1-14

"...and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced. ..." (v.10).

THIS passage stands out in this passage as a beacon on the seashore. These are prophetic words, foretelling of the time when His own people, who rejected Him at His first coming, shall see Him again. Through the eye of faith the redeemed (His own) are continually gazing upon Him, as they see Him as the express image of His Father's glory. The piercing and the suffering of the Son of God draw love and adoration from His children.

Friday, December 13th

Zechariah 13:2-9

"...The Lord is my God. ..." (v.9).

AFTER the refining has taken place and the master has finished his work, the precious article gleams and shines showing its value. It is only after the refining work of the Lord has taken place in our lives that we begin to value our possession and shine forth as the stars. The trials and battles of life cause us to appreciate the refiner and enables us to say "The Lord is my God".

We are, however, assured that in the midst of all such circumstance we are not alone, for He will not allow us to suffer more temptations than we are able to bear (1 Corinthians 10:13).

Saturday, December 14th

Zechariah 14:1-11

"And the Lord shall be King over all the earth. ..." (v.9).

"HE is Lord, He is Lord, He is risen from the dead and He is Lord, Every knee shall bow, every tongue confess, that Jesus Christ is Lord". What better words to express that day, that day when our Lord's feet shall rest upon the Mount of Olives, when with His attendants He shall return to reign over all, then King of kings and Lord of lords. Let us rejoice that our names are written in Heaven (Luke 10:20; Philippians 4:3).

Sunday, December 15th

Zechariah 14:12-21

"...Holiness unto the Lord" (v.20).

THE chorus of the great hymn written by Mrs. C.H. Morris reminds us that such a theme is "our watchword and song".

The redeemed of the Lord who have been brought out of bondage and sin have been also called unto holiness. "For God hath not called us unto uncleanness, but unto holiness" (1 Thessalonians 4:7). Without holiness no man shall see the Lord (Hebrews 12:14). "Take time to be holy, speak oft with thy Lord". We should endeavour to spend more time with the Lord and so cultivate that desire to be more like Him.

SO the world has come of age. Or at least, so some modern theologians would have us believe.

We pause after the shocking news of the explosions in Birmingham, and the equally barbaric events in the Middle East. We might well wonder if modern man is acting in human fashion at all, let alone whether his actions are those of a mature adult.

Has there ever been a time like this in human history? Have civilised men ever behaved in such a barbaric and inhuman way?

Men have been cruel before, but some of the crimes that are now being perpetuated are without sense or reason.

It may well be that a few stateless Palestinian Arabs and discontented Southern Irish men have a point to make. But what have religion or politics to do with the vicious acts to which innocent people are now subject?

We do not readily attribute to the devil actions that are clearly the work of men. The devil has sometimes been given credit for things that men are really responsible for.

The events of the past few months, however, have brought home to us by their very diabolical nature (especially as we have been reading the book of Revelation recently) that the motive force behind these actions has a deeper cause.

The devil has for centuries been going about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour (1 Peter 5:8), but we may well ask; "Is he more active now that he sees that his time is short?"

A special service was held among the pile of bricks and skeleton scaffolding of the partially completed new Elim Church, Dyfatty Street, Swansea. Officiating at the service were Edward J. Jarvis, resident minister, H. W. Greenway, emeritus executive member of the Elim Churches and R. Hunston, Pastor of the City Temple, Cardiff.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

Church Reports

SWANSEA

Pastor: E.J. Jarvis

OUR forty-fifth anniversary services began with a dedication ceremony in the precincts of our partly-built new church, about 250 yards from the old church. The builders made a pathway to the main church floor through what will eventually be the invalids' entrance and made temporary steps to the area where the future platform and pulpit will be. A goodly number of members and friends gathered on this wet afternoon as the new site was dedicated to the Lord for His glory and the extension of His kingdom.

Pastor Ray Hunston, D.S. of the Welsh Presbytery, and Pastor H.W. Greenway, our special anniversary speaker, both ministered at the ceremony after the congregation had sung praises to the Lord. The church secretary prayed the dedicatory prayer, asking God to bless His work in this church when it was completed. We then went back to the old church for a fellowship tea.

The evening service was blessed of God when both Pastors Hunston and Greenway spoke under the anointing of the Spirit. We were privileged to have the Swansea Christian Male Voice Choir under the leadership of Pastor W.Ll. Bell.

Sunday morning was another great service around the Lord's table when God spoke to us through the gifts of the Spirit and the presence of Jesus brought great blessing.

At the evening gospel service seven new members were brought into fellowship and a baby was dedicated to the Lord. Mr. Ken Evans, our church secretary, gave a short word to the church in which he said, "This will be the last anniversary service in this church building, reminding us of many of the blessings enjoyed in the old church. We look forward to even greater blessings in the new church." Pastor Greenway gave a gospel message and a spirit of conviction rested on the meeting.

The anniversary services continued over Monday and Tuesday when good numbers gathered each evening and Pastor Greenway brought to us two great messages on prophecy. All the services were convened by our local minister Pastor Edward Jarvis.

LEN R. HOBBS

PAISLEY

Pastor: E. Garner

GREAT blessing was experienced when our church held a thanksgiving convention to celebrate the clearance of the building debt. The Lord made it possible for us to clear a capital debt of almost £2,000 in the last eighteen months. Helped by gifts and a legacy from one of our dear founder members, our debt began to fall, and the members began to give sacrificially each week to the building fund. We felt that it was a great shame that so much of our gifts was being paid as interest to the building society, so twelve months ago a scheme was presented by which loans would be asked for from members so that the building society account could be closed and the loans from the members repaid within a period of three years. The response and the faithful giving have made it possible for the loans to be repaid in full within one year. This was the instigation of our thanksgiving weekend.

Our guest preachers were Pastors J.C. Smyth and T.W. Walker from Headquarters. With other guests of honour, Pastor and Mrs. F.W. Jones and Pastor A.B. Tee, they joined us for our thanksgiving banquet held in one of the town's hotels, when 116 sat for a splendid meal.

After the meal, Pastor Garner welcomed the guests. Pastor Tee commenced the programme of speeches and musical ministry. As the pioneer and founder of the Paisley church, who better to tell of how the Lord miraculously provided the excellent site for our building right in the town on the main street? How tremendous it was to hear of those early days. It was obvious how much Mr. Tee still loves Paisley. Mr. Wieland, our church secretary, ably led us through the various items, each of which brought its own blessing. Greetings from Pastor Smyth from Headquarters and from Pastor Jones on behalf of the Scottish Presbytery preceded a short word from each deacon and an endearing speech from our much esteemed brother, Peter Reid, a founder member and active worker throughout the years. A letter of greetings from Pastor R.B. Chapman, a former pastor of the Paisley church now in Africa, was read and Pastor T.W. Walker brought a brief message from the Scriptures and commended us to the Lord in prayer. The ministry in song by our members was truly blessed and the whole evening filled with a great spirit of fellowship and blessing.

The Greenock Elim Choir joined us on the Saturday evening and beautifully complimented the anointed ministries of Pastors Smyth and Walker. As we met on the Lord's Day a spirit of expectancy was met by a deep sense of the Lord's presence. The Word was thrilling. Another thanksgiving touch was added when Robert and Catherine Stevenson brought little Mark Andrew, their firstborn, to the house of the Lord for dedication. Robert is one of our deacons.

At the final service on the Monday evening, nearly 200 friends gathered for an evening enriched with the dedicated talent of the Clydebank Elim Choir, the Choralettes, Bathgate Timbrel Band, and Robert Abbott. The meeting was convened by Pastor Walker and a clear, forthright presentation of the gospel was given by Pastor Smyth. At the conclusion Pastor Garner thanked all those who had prayed and worked to make the weekend such a blessed time.

HALIFAX

Pastor: T.J. Stevens

AS we celebrated the fourth anniversary of the opening of our new church building, almost 100 people enjoyed an anniversary tea on the Saturday. The service which followed was attended by nearly 200, including friends from local churches and the West Yorkshire Presbytery, and visitors from as far afield as Anglesey and Guernsey. The service was convened by our Pastor. Soloists were James Roberson and Mrs. M. Wall. Our guest preacher, Pastor D.W. Anthony, thrilled us with his able ministry. Our hearts were inspired as the congregation excelled in singing choruses and hymns. On Sunday we gathered round the Communion table and again enjoyed Pastor Anthony's ministry.

On Sunday night our church seemed to be almost full. Lella and Reka Molnar from Bradford sang with great conviction. Pastor Anthony's message challenged us to serve the Lord with greater dedication and love. The concluding Convention Rally on Monday night was the climax. Our minor hall was packed to capacity and the mighty presence of God was a real blessing.

DAVID BRIERLEY

SILVERDALE

Pastor: D.S. Williams

AT our ladies' weekend recently, Mrs. C. Horner's ministry certainly left its mark, and presented a challenge. The Friendly Hour Choir contributed very effectively to all the services. The final service, held in the United Reformed Church (kindly loaned), was attended by associate churches. A surprise item was effectively rendered by the sisters' trio. Refreshments were served at the close of these very well-attended services.

We were very pleased to have Pastor R. Morrell as the guest speaker at our harvest services. His ministry was very well received. The children, always an attraction on these occasions with their various items, along with the youth choir, very ably assisted. To complete a very successful weekend one precious soul was saved.

It was a pleasure to welcome Pastor Leslie W. Green on his first visit to the Silverdale Church for a series of meetings on "Pentecost today". We were soon to taste of the wealth of experience from the lips of this servant of God. It was not long before we saw Pentecost in action. Seven were baptised in the Holy Spirit. A young lady, deaf in one ear from the age of thirteen, now hears perfectly in both ears. These meetings were a means of great blessing. The attendances were very good. Various items were supplied by the local church and by the Crewe Church. It was also a great opportunity for Pastor Green to proclaim Pentecost over Radio Stoke-on-Trent. The meetings were convened throughout by Pastor D. Williams.

WORTHING

Pastor: L.W. Tranter

FOR two weeks there was great activity in preparing for our Harvest Supper, and in passing on invitations by word of mouth. Pastor Tranter on coming to the church to see the harvest display found a goodly company of members and friends gathered to honour him and to commemorate his fourteen years of faithful ministry at the Worthing Church and thirty-two years in the Elim Ministry.

Towards the end of the meal, Pastor and Mrs. Tranter cut a lovely cake, inscribed with the words, "Occupy till I come". The Pastor was presented with a soft, brown, leather weekend case filled with some of the things that he enjoys. Mrs. Tranter was presented with a picture over which was written a text, together with a gift voucher. Jayne Tranter was also presented with a gift voucher.

The choir opened the time of fellowship after the meal with the piece, "No Name on earth has meant so much to me", which they had sung at Pastor's induction service. Gwilym George sang "Opened for Me", before we enjoyed a time of testimony to the goodness of God and the blessing received through the Pastor's ministry. The two Davids sang a duet entitled "It's Real", followed by the choir singing "Jesus is coming again".

The film "Test of Faith" followed by a fitting meditation on Psalm 145 concluded this happy occasion.

BELFAST, Ulster TemplePastor: D.J. Ayling

THE largest ever fellowship evening held by the Ulster Temple took place when we celebrated Pastor D.J. Ayling's twenty-five years in the Elim Ministry. After a varied programme of solos, speeches, a recitation and musical item, the Secretary presented Pastor Ayling with a leather briefcase, after which Mrs. Ray Hanna presented Mrs. Ayling with a canteen of cutlery.

We had the pleasure of Pastor Ayling's parents with us. Mr. Ayling Senior most suitably responded. Before settling down to enjoy the good things provided by the ladies of the church, our treasurer, Mr. F. Burke, presented cheques to two of our young people who were going to Elim Bible College. The chairman, on behalf of the church session and members of the assembly, wished Pastor Ayling many more happy years of service for the Lord in the ranks of Elim.

HASTINGSPastor: E. Dainton

THE Pastor's Second Anniversary was a very happy occasion when about fifty members and friends enjoyed a bountiful tea. We were joined by Pastor and Mrs. J. Lancaster and Pastor E. Gibson-Smith, who brought greetings and good wishes from their churches. Expressions of gratitude for all their united efforts and faithful ministry were made to Pastor and Mrs. Dainton by the church Secretary. These were followed by presentations, a gift token to the Pastor and a box of fruit to Mrs. Dainton. Both stated that their desires were to serve their people and to see the work of God prosper.

The evening service was well attended when friends from local churches and from Eastbourne were present. Items were given by our own ladies' choir. The guest speaker was Pastor J. Lancaster. His word proved to be inspiring and challenging.

L. CRIPPSCLACTON-ON-SEA*Pastor: P.K.G. Rose

DURING the past few months God has blessed our fellowship and numbers and offerings have increased. The right hand of fellowship has been given to several new members. Several of our young people have been baptised in the Holy Spirit. Our minister recently celebrated his first anniversary when he was presented with a cheque by our treasurer, Mr. P. Emmerson.

A new Hammond organ was recently purchased in memory of Pastor and Mrs. H. Burton Haynes who were with us for twelve years. We are very grateful to God's people for their generosity in meeting the cost of this beautiful organ. It was a joy to have a visit from the Chelmsford choir and to hear their organist give a recital on the new organ.

At our recent baptismal service ten adults and two teenagers went through the waters and the church was packed for this occasion.

Thoughts on the book of Revelation

The Battle of Armageddon Chapter 19:11-21

by Charles J. E. Kingston

IMMEDIATELY after the wedding supper, Christ and His Bride set off on their wedding trip to earth. There they meet the opposition of the Antichrist and his subject kings and their armies. The moment has come for the final step in the taking over of the kingdoms of the world by Jesus Christ. Satan once offered our Lord the kingdoms of this world by the easy way of one act of obeisance to himself. But all the devil's offers are phoney and a lie; our Lord chose the hard, but right way, of death to redeem our lost inheritance.

The mighty Conqueror vv. 11-16.

John had a glimpse through a door into heaven, but now heaven itself is opened; "then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven" (Matthew 24:30). How glorious is He, King of kings and Lord of lords, wearing the many diadems of royalty! His eyes are a flame of fire with intense indignation at the indignities His people have suffered at the hands of the wicked. Out of His mouth goes the sword of the Spirit, for with the spirit (or breath) of His mouth He will destroy Antichrist (2 Thessalonians 2:8).

The armies which follow Him 6:14.

He does not come alone on this second stage of His second advent. He is married now and His Bride, the raptured, glorified Church is with Him. His mighty angels, too, accompany them (2 Thessalonians 1:7,8).

They ride on horses. Their Captain is mounted and so are they. The Bible speaks of supernatural horses, for instance, the chariot and horses which carried Elijah to heaven and later protected Elisha. Power is an abstract quality, incapable of being seen; the shape (to become visible) will be best shown by the living forms we are familiar with. To John, heavenly power had the appearance of war-horses.

The armies are clothed in white linen, not warrior's armour, nor do they have weapons of war. Christ bears the only sword and He alone uses it.

The arrival on earth.

Not mentioned in this passage but clearly stated by Zechariah (14:1-4), Christ and His armies will arrive upon the Mount of Olives in fulfilment of the promise: "This same Jesus . . . shall so come in like manner as you have seen Him go into heaven" (Acts 1:11). So great will be the impact of His arrival that Olivet will split assunder.

The sight that will greet them will be a captured and half-destroyed Jerusalem, following the attack upon it by the nations. Then the Lord will "go forth and fight against those nations".

The Battle of Armageddon 6:17-21.

Evil forces will gather the nations to battle; three unclean spirits come out of the mouths of the dragon, the Beast and the false prophet (Revelation 16:13-16). Evidently, devil-inspired lies and speeches will deceive the people and lead them to their destruction at Armageddon (2 Thessalonians 2:9-12).

Many Scriptures foretell this last great battle. "The earth shall reel to and fro like a drunkard . . . in that day the Lord shall punish the host of high ones that are on high and the kings of the earth upon the earth. And they shall be gathered together as prisoners are gathered in the pit" (Isaiah 24:19-23). This will take place when the Lord shall come to reign in Mount Zion. Fallen spirits will also share in the judgment of that day. Daniel prophesies that Christ, like a great stone, will fall upon the feet of the man-made image of political power, breaking it to pieces (Daniel 2:44, 45). Joel foretells a mighty outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon all flesh (the beginning of which we are now experiencing) before the Day of the Lord and then describes the battle before Christ will reign (Joel 3:9-17).

Russia's part in Armageddon.

According to Dr. Billy Graham the world is heading towards racial suicide. He said, "I fear that affluent living and the telly have acted like a narcotic and blinded us to what is about to be unleashed before the century is finished". Unless we have a religious revival in the next ten years freedom will not survive (reported, Daily Telegraph, November 19th, 1970). With four years gone we have not much time left!

Dame Irene Ward stated in Croydon just over five years ago: "Unless we are very careful Russia could win a war without firing a shot. If she could create economic chaos in this country and if Communism could successfully infiltrate this country's industry it could become impossible for Britain to earn a living." (Croydon Advertiser, May 9th, 1969). Five years later we are seeing this happening!

On May 1st, 1766 an organisation was formed, called the Illuminati, launched by a group of atheists and free-thinkers under the leadership of Adam Weishaupt, who was dedicated to the idea of a one-world state. The programme to accomplish this involved the abolition of all governments, of all private property, of all family life and the abolition of all religion. Later, this idea was taken over by Karl Marx and is Communism's aim today.

According to Ezekiel's prophecy (chapters 38 and 39), Gog, the prince of Rosh, which many think refers to Russia, will come out of the north parts and will attack Israel "in the latter years" (38:8). But God says, "I am against thee, O Gog" (38:3). For fifty years Russia and her satellite countries have been dedicated to atheism. Richard Wurmbrand describes how religious prisoners are subjected day and night to a blaring loud-speaker which repeats: "Communism is good. Christianity is stupid. Why not give it up?" Communism has dared to shake its fist in the face of God. In His own time He will intervene on behalf of Israel, Gog's armies will be self-destroyed or by the powers of nature, unleashed in atomic warfare (Ezekiel 38:21,22; Zechariah 14:12). Seven months and a company of grave-diggers will be needed to bury the slain (Ezekiel 39:12-15).

Russians relationship to the European Confederacy.

Scripture reveals that there will be ten kings, or kingdoms, at the end of this age who will receive power with the Beast-Antichrist. Together they will wage war against Christ at Armageddon (Revelation 17:12-14; Daniel 2:44,45). As we have seen, Russia and her satellites are also to attack Israel and to be destroyed by Christ. May not these two be, in reality one? Is it not within the realm of possibility that Russia and her present nine satellite allies may prove to be the ten-kingdomed confederacy of the last days? If this be so we are much nearer the coming of the Lord than we may think.

As was suggested in a previous article, the extension of the frontiers of a nation does not alter its identity. The iron legs of Nebuchadnezzar's image, representative of the iron rule of Rome in the days of her power, peters out in the last days to iron mixed with miry clay in the feet of the image. One would expect the spread of these feet and toes to cover more floorspace than that previously occupied by the legs! At any rate the U.S.S.R. has within its borders some of the territory originally held by the Roman empire. At the present moment, Italy teeters on the brink of communism; West Germany is obsessed with the idea of uniting with communist East Germany.

The Psalmist speaking of the second Advent of Christ and His reign on earth, says: (Psalm 2:1-12), "Why do the nations assemble tumultuously and the people meditate a vain thing? (margin). The kings of the earth set themselves . . . against the Lord, and against His Anointed (Christ), saying, Let us break their bands asunder and cast away their cords from us". But God will laugh at their puny efforts to resist Him. He has determined to set His only-begotten Son as King in Zion and to give Him the uttermost parts of the earth for His possession.

The result of the Battle 6:20,21.

The complete triumph of Christ and His armies is assured. First, an angel calls the vultures to clean the carcasses of the slain (19:17,18). Almost identical words are used of the slaughter of the armies of Gog (Ezekiel 39:17-20), which perhaps may tie up the two battles.

Then the two leaders, the Beast and the false prophet, are taken captive. Reserved for them is the condign punishment of the "new thing" meted out to those rebels of another age, Korah, Dathan and Abiram, who went alive into the pit (Numbers 16:30-33). These are "cast alive into the lake of fire" (19:20).

Last, the rebel armies, gathered to war against Christ, are killed by the word-sword that proceeds out of His mouth. Like Sennacherib's army which lost 185,000 men who died in their sleep (2 Kings 19:35), these perish when Christ smites "the earth with the rod of His mouth" (Isaiah 11:4).

Hallelujah! Jesus shall reign when "all things that offend and them which do iniquity" are gathered out of His kingdom (Matthew 13:41-43).

What is Truth?

by R. Hunston, Pastor of our Cardiff Church

A NEW description has come into vogue in recent weeks; it is called “credibility”. We read of a “credibility gap”. We are told that this politician or that statesman is assessed on his credibility; which means “Can you believe him or not?”. These words of cynicism were said against a similar background.

Pontious Pilate was not averse to political expediency himself, in fact he resorted to it, for ultimately Jesus was crucified. His moral character seems to have been scarred by his life, for he felt no qualms about putting a man to death if he washed his hands first. He knew that the mob who had brought Jesus to him had procured witnesses who were flagrantly false. Against the background of false witnesses and the pressures of political intrigue, Jesus spoke about the truth, and this man just curled his lip, looked at the howling mob outside — the false witnesses, political pressures and intrigues — and said, “What is truth?”

In many ways we face a credibility gap in our modern society. Disillusionment has produced a cynical attitude in so many people’s lives and their reaction, if not the same words, is certainly the same attitude, “What is truth?”. In a society that has a credibility gap we need to know what truth is.

The Bible says four things about the credibility gap. Firstly, “Truth is fallen in the streets” (Isaiah 59:14). The Bible says here that there seems to be no equality in life. Some seem to have everything while others have nothing. Some seem to get on and others do not. When men look at these things, the lip of cynical attitude curls and says, “What is truth?”. The Bible states that, when men depart from God, truth has fallen in the streets,

The next verse goes further to say that “truth faileth”, that there are times when evil men seem to prosper. “He that departs from evil is become a prey”, in other words, the man who will not stoop, who will not bend his conscience and his moral character, seems to go under, and cynically in that kind of society it is said, “What is truth?”.

The third thing that the Bible says of the credibility gap is that “truth is perished” (Jeremiah 7:28), that truth seems to have gone. When we find a nation, a community, a family or an individual who will not listen to the voice of God, then truth perishes and a suspicious, cynical attitude prevails.

The fourth thing that the Bible says of the credibility gap is found in Daniel, in a prophetic statement, that “truth is cast down”. Daniel here is speaking not of his own day, but of days that were to come. When men throw truth to the ground and still go on and prosper, there arises the biggest credibility gap that any society can know, and yet we are told that this will be the situation in the last day.

This prophecy of the last days speaks of the practice of evil. The tragedy today is not that men do not practise what they preach, the tragedy is that they preach what they practise. There are those today who would bring down the very columns of our human society, who would shatter the foundations of God-ordained laws, who would dissolve God-ordained prohibitions and would destroy God-given standards, and this is our society. We need to know what is truth, and into this fetid atmosphere steps One who says, “I am the way, the truth and the life”. Jesus Christ bridges the credibility gap. He says “I am the truth”. What then is truth?

It is not the putting together of even the most sacred events that God has ever done. It is not merely the record of history or even Christ’s death, resurrection and ascension. Truth is Jesus Christ. TRUTH IS A LIVING GOD SPEAKING TO A MAN. Jesus said that His purpose in coming was to bear record of the truth; it was at that moment that Pilate turned away from Him. He is God’s final, complete word of truth. He is living, vibrant, throbbing, changing, transforming truth, Jesus Christ the truth of God. The Bible clearly tells us that truth is this: “Who will have all men to be saved and to come unto the knowledge of the truth, for there is one God and one mediator between God and men, and Man Christ Jesus who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time” (1 Timothy 2:4). Truth is God who wants all men to be saved. Truth is that, whatever the situation, God is there, whatever the problems God is there. Jesus Christ plumbed the depths of all human sorrow; here you see the truth is tears. He wept at the grave of Lazarus. The cry of the broken-hearted, the moan of the sick, the heartache of the bereaved, the scream of the tortured, the sighs of the oppressed, the groanings of the depressed, are all found in Him who is the truth, He is acquainted with grief.

TRUTH IS A LIVING GOD CONCERNED WITH HUMAN PROBLEMS. The problems of grief, need, the broken hearted, of our own nature and our own sinful beings are the concern of God. The message of truth is that God is interested in every human problem and especially in the sin problem of every man and woman. He remakes moral failures because he changes men and women who have slipped down the scale of human society and makes them "to sit among princes". He not only takes men and women who have failed morally, but he also takes men and women who have failed spiritually "and He makes again".

The Bible says concerning Jacob after his miserable failure that God appeared again unto Jacob. Jonah ran away from God, and forgot his ministry. He was plunged into the depths of the sea, but "the word of the Lord came unto Jonah the second time". Jeremiah had to be shown a potter who made a vessel again. Of Samson, for all his miserable failures, as he was blind in Gaza, a figure of ridicule, who was once a giant of faith, it is said: "howbeit his hair began to grow again". Truth is that God can take a failure and make him again.

TRUTH IS A LIVING GOD ACTING IN HUMAN LIVES. Jesus Christ was always against all manner of deceit, lying and anything that is untrue, but when the truth of God's willingness was attacked, then emerged His flashing anger. We are apt to see Him only as an artist paints Him — with serenity. He always had serenity and gentleness, but there were times when His eyes flashed like fire, when His words were as sharp as a surgeon's scalpel, when His brow was furrowed with anger, and anger shone in His face. When it was questioned whether God was willing to receive Gentiles, Jesus became angry. In the outer court of the Temple, where the Gentiles should have been free to worship, was a market. Jesus drove them out, because the place where the Gentiles could come had been turned into a market, as if God wasn't interested in Gentiles. His face flushed, His eyes grew hard, and He took a whip and threw over the money-changer's tables, He drove the beasts and the people out, and, in majestic, angry tones, He said, "My Father's house shall be a house of prayer".

A woman came into the synagogue who was bound together; in no way she could lift up herself. The compassion and love of Jesus went out to her. He stepped across and released that woman and healed her. For the first time for many, many years, she straightened and she stood, and Jesus' eyes were alight with joy. Suddenly there was a murmuring: "He shouldn't have done it, it is the Sabbath. He should have waited: she should have waited". The anger of Christ rose, His face flushed, and He said, "Which one of you on the Sabbath day doth not release his ox or his ass and take them to watering? Ought not this woman whom Satan hath bound be loosed from her infirmity?" Jesus was angry when people thought that God wasn't willing to receive the needy.

The Bible speaks of truth working in us, of truth effectually working in our experiences "until Christ be formed in you". Since truth is a Person, it is obvious that regeneration is that truth is in us. Truth isn't knowing what Jesus did, it is receiving what He did. Truth isn't knowing the power of Jesus in His life, truth is knowing the power of Jesus in our lives. Truth is a person — Jesus Christ!

What we owe to the Reformation

by J. C. Ryle

The Reformation delivered England from gross religious ignorance and a spiritual darkness that might be felt.

NO doubt there was a professing Church of Christ in the land when Henry VIII ascended the throne, a Church abounding in wealth, and garrisoned by a whole army of Bishops, Abbots, Friars, Priests, Monks, and Nuns. But money and clergymen do not make a Church of Christ, any more than "men with muskets" make up an army. For any useful and soul-saving purposes the English Church was practically dead, and if St. Paul had come out of his grave and visited it, I doubt if he would have called it a Church at all. The plain truth is, that it was a Church without a Bible, and such a Church is as useless as a lighthouse without a light—a candlestick without a candle. Except a few scattered copies of Wycliffe's translation of the Vulgate, there were no English Bibles in the land, and the natural consequence was that priests and people knew scarcely anything about God's truth and the way to be saved.

As to the Clergy, as a general rule, their religion was the merest form, and scarcely deserved to be called Christianity at all. Most of them were pitiful turncoats without a conscience, and were ready to change sides in religion at a word of command. In fact, they did so no less than four times—once under Henry VIII, once under Edward VI, once under Bloody Mary, and once more under Elizabeth.

The immense majority of the clergy did little more than say masses and offer up pretended sacrifices—repeat Latin prayers and chant Latin hymns, which of course the people could not understand—hear confessions, grant absolutions, give extreme unction, and take money to get dead people out of Purgatory.

Preaching was utterly at a discount. As Bishop Latimer truly remarked, "When the devil gets influence in a Church, up go candles and down goes preaching." Quarterly sermons were indeed prescribed to the clergy, but not insisted on. Latimer says that while mass was never to be left unsaid for a single Sunday, sermons might be omitted for twenty Sundays in succession, and nobody was blamed. After all, when sermons were preached they were utterly unprofitable, and latterly to preach much was to incur the suspicion of being a heretic.

To cap all, the return that Bishop Hooper got from the rich diocese of Gloucester, no barbarous and uncivilized corner of England, when he was first appointed Bishop in 1551, will give a pretty clear idea of the ignorance of the pre-Reformation times. He found that out of 311 clergy in his diocese, 168 were unable to repeat the Ten Commandments, thirty-one of the 168 could not say in what part of the Scripture they were to be found, forty could not tell where the Lord's prayer was written, and thirty-one of the forty did not know who was the author of the Lord's Prayer.

As to the laity, it is not too much to say that the bulk of them, except in the hour of trial, sickness and death, had no religion at all. Even at such seasons as those there was no one to tell them of the love of God, the meditation of Christ, the glad tidings of free salvation, the precious blood of atonement, and justification by faith. They could only send for the priest, who knew nothing himself and could tell nothing to others, and then at last they received absolution and extreme unction, and took a leap in the dark. "The blind led the blind, and both fell into the ditch."

To sum up all in a few words, the religion of our English forefathers before the Reformation was a religion without knowledge, without faith, and without lively hope—a religion without justification, regeneration, and sanctification—a religion without any clear views of Christ and the Holy Ghost. Except in rare instances it was little better than an organized system of Mary-worship, saint-worship, image-worship, relic-worship, pilgrimages, almsgivings, formalism, ceremonialism, processions, prostrations, bowings, crossings, fastings, confessions, penances, absolutions, masses and blind obedience to the priests. It was a huge higgledy-piggledy of ignorance and idolatry, and serving an unknown God by deputy. The only practical result was that the priest took the people's money, and undertook to secure their salvation, and the people flattered themselves that the more they gave to the priests, the more sure they were to go to heaven. As to the grand cardinal question, "What must I do to be saved?" probably not one Englishman in fifty could have given you half as good an answer as an ordinary Sunday school child would give in our own day. Such was the ignorance which was scattered to the winds by the English Reformation.

The Reformation delivered England from the most grovelling, childish and superstitious practices in religion.

I allude especially to the worship of relics. Destitute of the slightest Scriptural knowledge, our forefathers were taught by the priests to seek spiritual benefit from the so-called relics of dead saints, and to treat them with divine honour.

At Reading Abbey, in Berkshire, the following things among many others were exhibited by the monks on great occasions, and most religiously honoured by the people: an angel with one wing—the spear-head which pierced our Saviour's side—two pieces of the Holy Cross—St. James' hand—St. Philip's stole, a bone of Mary Magdalene, and a bone of Salome.

At Bury St. Edmunds, in Suffolk, the priests exhibited the coals that roasted St. Laurence, the parings of St. Edmund's toe nails, Thomas à Becket's penknife and boots, and as many pieces of our Saviour's cross as would have made, if joined together, one large whole cross. They had also relics whose help was invoked at times when there was an excessive growth of weeds or an unusually heavy fall of rain!

In the Midland Counties, superstition was just as bad as in the South of England. Strype records that at St. Mary's Nunnery, in Derby, the nuns had a piece of St. Thomas's shirt, and that it was worshipped by women expecting their confinement. At Repton Monastery the bell of St. Guthlac was held in special honour, and people put their heads under it to cure the headache.

Records like these are so amazingly silly, as well as painful, that one hardly knows whether to laugh or to cry over them. But it is positively necessary to bring them forward, in order that men may know what was the religion of our forefathers, in the days when Rome ruled the land, before the Reformation. Wonderful as these things may seem, we must never forget that Englishmen at that time had no Bibles and knew no better. A famishing man in sieges and blockades has been known to eat rats and mice, and all manner of garbage, rather than die of hunger. A conscience-stricken soul, famishing for lack of God's Word, must not be judged too hardly, if it struggles to find comfort in the most debasing superstition. Only let us never forget that this was the superstition which was shattered to pieces by the Reformation. Remember that. It was indeed a day of deliverance.

JESUS

*The only name that stills my fears,
That gives me rest and peace,
That comforts me when I am sad
And bids my tears to cease,
The only name—His precious name,
The lovely name of Jesus.*

*The only hands that guide my way
That clasp me in His love,
That lead me on through darkening gloom,
To that sweet rest above,
The only hand—His nail-pierced hands
The lovely hands of Jesus.*

*The only smile that brings me peace,
That makes my sad heart glow,
That tells me of a love so deep,
A love I'll always know,
The only smile—His gracious smile,
The lovely smile of Jesus.*

*Oh why not speak the precious name,
And clasp those nail-pierced hands,
And why not know that gracious smile,
As He before you stands,
The only one—the sinless one,
My blessed Saviour— Jesus!*

by Mary Whitfield

"I'm going back to England! I'll see my mother for the first time in fourteen years. I'll find my niche in England and I'll be content."

AT THE age of seven, Len Magee found himself alone, being hustled aboard a huge ship bound for Australia. On arrival, five and a half weeks later, he was transported to a farm where he was to spend the next ten years. He enjoyed his life there except for one thing—church!

"Every week I had to go to church. I'd rather work than go to church. On the night I was confirmed, eight of us were stealing chocolate from the shop; that's how much it meant to me".

Len left the farm at seventeen and swore that he would never go to church again. On finding a job with the railway, he learned from a clerk, how to gamble and drink and began to see what people were really like.

"They started to let me down. I saw how dishonest people were and that I was very much alone in the world. Eventually I joined a group in Orange and out of about nine others we became the most popular band. I knew now what it was like to have friends and be popular, but inside I was desperately lonely!"

Drugs came next. Nick, Len's best friend, turned on. Six months later, someone offered Len a joint and so "I turned on and got stoned. It was the most fantastic experience of my life. From that moment I was psychologically hooked!"

"We got into Buddhism and all that went with it such as looking at each others' auras, studying books on mysticism as well as hypnotism. My mind became more and more messed up. My friend stuck his head in the gas oven and later ended up in a mental hospital after a 'cocaine bomb'. I'll be next, I thought. "Why am I not happy and content?"

It was at this point that Len Magee decided to come back to England and so his odyssey to reality began. After working at a mining camp in the desert for seven months to save enough money, he flew to Singapore. A week later he began a trip up through India to Nepal in the Himalayas.

"By the time I reached Katmandu I'd missed being killed a couple of dozen times. It's legal to take drugs in Nepal, so I did. I went through all the Buddhist temples and saw Buddhism as it really was—a big fizz! The people were just the same there as anywhere else. But the trouble was—so was I".

On arriving in England in 1968, he discovered that his mother had had two nervous breakdowns since he had last seen her. Of course it didn't help things when he told her that he was on drugs. So much for the contentment that Len Magee hoped to find.

"I wanted to die! I mean that with all my heart!" At this point he did something that was quite incredible— "I picked up a Bible out of the cupboard, blew the dust off it and started to read Genesis chapter 1. For three nights I went back to my room to read the Bible, and as I read I became aware that God was holy, that the Bible I was reading was holy and that I was sinful, that I was vile and filthy. I didn't understand it all, but I knew that if I died right then and had to stand before God, I would feel more comfortable in a place called Hell!

"Lord! If You are there, save me! I said. I got down on my knees with tears streaming down my face. LORD—SAVE ME!

"My mind was in torment. I was sick and oppressed, poor and needy; but those are the people Jesus came to save. As I prayed those words I was filled with God's Spirit. My mind was healed, my body was healed, but most of all, my spirit was healed. That part of me that had been dead became alive and I was re-united to God because of the Lord Jesus. He flooded me with peace and joy (and I've still got it).

"That's only the beginning of my testimony. Since then God has cared for me, provided for me and called me into His service".

Len's mother saw the change in Len after that and became a Christian herself. She experienced the same thing as Len did and as every other person has who truly has found Jesus. The Bible says that "If any man is in Christ, he is a new creation. Old things are passed away and all things become new", that "There is no condemnation to those who are in Christ Jesus".

Young person, you don't know what life is until Jesus comes into your life. Older person, you don't know what peace is without Jesus. You don't know what your future is without Jesus. Jesus loves you. He cares for you.

An Appreciation and an Appeal by P. S. Brewster

OUR Brother Donald Gee, well known as an elder Statesman in the Pentecostal movements and a very wise Christian minister, became the Editor of the magazine known as PENTECOST. For a number of years he gave the news of what God was doing around the world. His reports of Pentecostal movements, independent evangelists and evangelical outreach were outstanding. The magazine was very much appreciated.

When Brother Gee died, the magazine was allowed to lapse, so that for several years there was no official magazine for the World Pentecostal movements.

In Dallas in 1968, the unanimous decision of the Advisory Committee was confirmed by the World Pentecostal Conference, that there ought to be a magazine to carry the news and the doctrine of the Pentecostal movements. At the request of the Advisory Committee, which was confirmed by the Conference, I was requested to become the Editor. I was already very busy with my church as well as campaign and Executive work, but I saw the great value of communication between the movements, and therefore I accepted the challenge. By the goodness of God, and by the support of the movements around the world, sixty-four countries are now being reached; the magazine is now going to many strategic parts of the religious world.

I want to express my sincere gratitude and appreciation to everyone in the Pentecostal world who is helping in the sale and distribution of WORLD PENTECOST.

When I accepted the responsibility of being the Editor, I was requested to allow no exaggeration whatsoever to go into the magazine, and also to be extremely fair in the distribution of space to all Pentecostal movements. These have tried to do.

I WOULD SINCERELY APPEAL TO EVERY PASTOR IN THE BRITISH ISLES TO PLACE AN ORDER, NO MATTER HOW SMALL, SO THAT THE NEWS OF WHAT GOD IS DOING WILL REACH OUR PEOPLE IN OUR CHURCHES. This will help me to spread the testimony, and I covet most sincerely your help.

Please send your order to:

WORLD PENTECOST MAGAZINE OFFICE, THE CITY TEMPLE,
COWBRIDGE ROAD,
CARDIFF, WALES.

The magazine costs 25p with a special discount for bulk orders over five.

Thank you in our Lord's name.

The visitor

Matthew 7:7-12

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

IT WAS almost midnight when the visitor called. "Come in", said Mr. Jones. "Sit down and make yourself at home. Mrs. Jones poured a drink for the visitor, then called her husband aside. "How can I prepare a meal?" she asked. "We have no bread left. What shall I do?" "Don't worry", Mr. Jones told his wife. "I'll borrow some from my friend".

Mr. Jones put on his coat and went out into the dark empty street. He walked to the corner and knocked in his friend's door.

"Who is it?"

"It's me!" said Mr. Jones.

"What's the matter?"

"Can you let me have some bread?"

"Do you know what time it is? Go away!"

Mr. Jones banged on the door. "Please, John, let me have some bread. I have a visitor. He's come a long way and we've nothing to give him".

"Don't bother me now. I'm too tired!"

"Oh, please help me out, John. Just one loaf will do".

"Surely you don't expect me to get up in the cold and hunt around in the darkness for bread at this time of night?"

John sat up in bed and rubbed his eyes. "I'll never get any sleep at this rate", he sighed. "But he is my best friend. I can't let him down".

He threw off the blankets and went to the cupboard. He took out three small loaves, put them in a bag and gave them to his friend.

Jesus is our Friend. There is nothing He will not do for us. He is never too busy or too tired to listen to our prayers. If we get into the habit of turning to Him at all times, to share with Him our happiness and our hopes, we will not be afraid to turn to Him when we need His help.

We must not be disappointed when our prayers seem to go unanswered. Mr. Jones did not go away the first time his request was refused. He kept on knocking and pleading; he knew that his friend would not let him down. Likewise, we must be persistent in our prayers. The Bible tells us to "pray without ceasing". When we do, we show Him that we are sincere and earnest in our desire. Just like a true friend who will not let us down, Jesus promises to give us all we need — and more.

Thoughts from the Book of Exodus

36. Easy Promises (Exodus 19:8)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

ISRAEL'S reaction to the new relationship was prompt; they enthusiastically promised to obey the Lord. We might say, "Praise the Lord! that is how it should be", yet there seems something brash and self-confident about their words. Their history does not suggest that they would be any more likely to keep their promise than their fathers had; after all were they not descended from the supplanter, Jacob? Had not past events shown them to be unstable and unreliable? They were still not humble, so they made an easy promise.

Following the death of Moses, Joshua was made leader of Israel. The people had assured him: "As we hearkened unto Moses. . . so will we hearken unto you"; remembering how they treated Moses, this easy promise ought to have worried Joshua. Israel's history is one of rebellion and broken promises. Jeremiah declared, "You have not obeyed the voice of the Lord in anything for the which He has sent me unto you" (42:21). The Lord Jesus said, "How often would I . . . and you would not" (Matthew 25:37). Stephen stated, "You have received the law by the disposition of angels, and have not kept it" (Acts 7:53). Even today, after their re-gathering, Israel remains proud and unrepentant.

The good news of Christ involves far more than, "Smile Jesus loves you"; the Gospel proclaims Jesus as Saviour and as Lord (Romans 14:9). Before we were converted we were in rebellion against the Lord, but then we asked Him to cleanse our sin and forgive our rebellion. It is unthinkable that we should ask for the King's pardon in order to continue in sin and rebellion; accepting His pardon must involve accepting His Lordship, and the promise that we will turn from sin to serve the Lord (1 Thessalonians 1:9). Israel, of course, had one real problem; they knew the Law but had no power to keep it! Christians have a remedy provided, for the Lord Jesus promised the Comforter to make us strong (John 14:16); opening our hearts to Him we are given strength to obey God (Romans 8:1-6).

The Rainbow

DURING the very stormy weather we experienced in mid November, my husband came into the house, and although he was rather raindrenched and windblown he announced in a cheerful tone, "I've just seen something wonderful". He went on to describe how, against a background of grey storm clouds he had gazed upon the delicate outline of Salisbury Cathedral, with its splendid spire, and over it in perfect symmetry was a beautiful rainbow. As I thought of this scene, I remembered the great landscape artist John Constable who painted the famous view of the Cathedral with a rainbow, arching the sky, placing on record for posterity just such a scene. I wonder though, whether the artist with his keen perception saw in it a spiritual dimension of the same significance as my husband did.

He shared his thoughts with me and we rejoiced together, so now I share them with my readers. In a storm-tossed and gloomy world stands the Christian Church, like the Cathedral, at the mercy of the hostile elements all around. Yet, like the Cathedral, it stands secure against the ravages of time. The Church ever points heavenwards as does the tapering spire of the Cathedral, pointing men to God, directing their eyes to the rainbow of promise. What brighter message could we receive, what sweeter vision could gladden our sight, than the rainbow fashioned from the elements over which we have no control, yet spelling out for all to see the faithfulness and dependability of God?

I have always been impressed by the solemn covenant made by Almighty God to Noah (Genesis 6:18, 8:11-17). This was the very first covenant between the Creator and the created; the seal of that covenant was written in the sky and, as the Scriptures relate, it was to be set in the heavens throughout all generations. Thus the rainbow has been a constant reminder to succeeding generations of the promise made by God. From the eternal heavens, God surveys the bow He placed there and He renews His pledge, not only to mankind but to every living creature. Likewise we gaze upon the seven-hued arch with wonder and delight, and if we are true believers we rejoice in the steadfast promise shining there.

In a world which man has tried to fill with so many ugly things, let us ever appreciate the lasting beauties of creation and say a heartfelt amen to the words of Joseph Addison the famous writer and politician, written nearly 300 years ago. The words were written after meditating on Psalm 19.

The spacious firmament on high,
With all the blue ethereal sky,
And spangled heavens, a shining frame,
Their great Original proclaim.
Th'unwearied sun, from day to day,
Doth his Creator's power display;
And publishes to every land
The work of an almighty hand.

Soon as the evening shades prevail,
The moon takes up the wondrous tale,
And nightly to the listening earth
Repeats the story of her birth:
Whilst all the stars that round her burn,
And all the planets in their turn,
Confirm the tidings as they roll,
And spread the truth from pole to pole.

What though in solemn silence all
Move round the dark terrestrial ball;
What, though no real voice nor sound
Amidst their radiant orbs be found:
In reason's ear they all rejoice,
And utter forth a glorious voice,
For ever singing as they shine:
"The hand that made us is divine".

Chocolate soldiers

by David S. Williams, Pastor of our Silverdale Church and Youth Commissioner of our West Midlands Presbytery

IF there is one thing that can cause a minister or youth leader to feel frustrated is to see young people living defeated Christian lives. Some Crusaders turn up at meetings when they feel like it; when they are there, they refuse to participate. The only words that they say as they leave the premises express criticism.

Young people are not the only guilty parties. It's amazing how many older Christians just don't want to grow spiritually. They seem to enjoy sitting back and letting the Devil rock them to sleep. They get into a rut and don't want to be disturbed. The only difference between a rut and a grave is the depth. If an ordinary, healthy child, after receiving correct nourishment, did not grow, we would soon take it to a doctor for a thorough investigation. If there is something wrong spiritually, we must come to the great Physician. He will see the symptoms, diagnose the problem, and give us the prescription that will bring about the cure.

As Christ looks at you, what does He see? Does He see a chocolate soldier instead of a soldier of the cross? The outline is recognisable. It looks well wrapped and solid. Its content is sweet with the right ingredients, but it is easily knocked over and breaks. It melts if left in the sun. It disappears when consumed.

Some Christian young people are like this. They talk and look like Christians. They seem to be stable, but when the enemy comes in the form of temptation or when the heat and pressure of life get on top of them, down they go, flat on their faces, dejected, defeated, disillusioned. Many never get up again.

This is not what God intends. He wants us to stand up and fight. He has given us the armour. (Ephesians 6). The best form of defence is attack. Paul gives us the secret of a successful Christian life: "God be praised. He gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, my beloved brothers, stand firm and immovable, and work for the Lord always, work without limit, since you know that in the Lord your labour cannot be lost" (1 Corinthians 15:57, 58, N.E.B.). The cliché says that the Devil finds work for idle hands, so don't give him a chance. You may have tried to witness, but have failed. Don't give up; feel encouraged that your labour in the Lord is not futile. It is never wasted. Stand steadfastly, immovable — like the Rock of Gibraltar. Don't run away and hide. Don't be afraid. Remember that God is on your side. Instead of being conquered, become a conqueror. God reminded Joshua to be strong and very courageous. "Be not afraid, neither be dismayed, for the Lord your God is with you wherever you go", He said (Joshua 1:9). The battle is not yours, but God's.

If you feel like a chocolate soldier, it may be because you have been on the receiving end of God's blessing every time and you have given nothing out. The Dead Sea has an inlet but no outlet, resulting in stagnant, lifeless water. This is why so many young people live miserable lives, with no joy, but with dissatisfaction with everyone and everything, defeated. The answer is to let the Holy Spirit take control of your life and flow through you like a river, fresh, living, refreshing, sweetening your whole being. You will notice such a difference. Your life will take on a new dimension. Your Crusader leader and pastor will see the difference. Your church will feel the impact as you stand up like a soldier, prepared to do battle against sin, self, Satan and all the powers of evil, witnessing day by day.

Remember that it's not by your might, but by His Spirit that you will gain the victory. May God enable you to enlist many more people in the ranks of the King's Army.

Monday, December 16th

Malachi 1:1-14

"... from the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same My name shall be great..." (v.11).

NAMES mean a tremendous lot to us. We endeavour to maintain, in our families, the names of parents and grandparents. We do this in order to perpetuate their memory. His Name surpasses all others. There is power in His Name for He is great. There is victory in His Name. There is promise of a full supply. His Name is an everlasting Name. He knows no change nor end—His Name is Great. "All that thrills my soul is Jesus".

Tuesday, December 17th

Malachi 2:1-17

"... the priest... for he is the messenger of the Lord of Hosts" (v.7).

THE people are reprov'd for their evil habits and for failing to give glory unto the Lord. Sin grieves the heart of God, both hidden and open sin. Where sin abides, no glory can be brought to the Lord. The cry of the messenger of the Lord is, "Turn ye; turn ye His people". Freedom from sin makes a cheerful heart. A cheerful heart in turn makes a glad countenance, and this in turn brings glory unto the Lord. The Lord loveth a cheerful people, as well as a cheerful giver. In His way there is delight.

Wednesday, December 18th

Malachi 3:1-15

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse... and prove Me now... if I will not open the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing..." (v.10).

GOD wants to open the windows of heaven and pour down a blessing so great that we shall be overwhelmed by it. The key that opens those windows is in our hands: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse". His rightful due is our ALL. All that any of us have is what we have first received. The storehouse is the place where we are fed, and receive help for our souls.

Thursday, December 19th

Malachi 3:16-18; 4:1-6

"But unto you that fear My name shall the Son of righteousness arise" (v.2).

THE fear of the Lord is a tremendous incentive. Not only does one flee from the wrath of judgment to come, but the prospects of eternal reward gives a far greater incentive. No more sorrow—no more tears, one glimpse of His face, the prospect of reward, this is eternity.

When we've been there ten thousand years,
Bright shining as the sun,

We've no less days to sing God's praise
Than when we first begun.

Friday, December 20th

Luke 1:1-13

"... Fear not" (v.13).

A NEW book opens and the words that stand out in this opening passage are needed for us all. Whether from the Lord, an angel or any other, the comfort that this phrase bestows surpasses all others.

Man is prone to fear: fear of the past, the present and the future. We may rest assured that there is not only a promise, but the power, behind this "Fear not". All the resources and authority of heaven are behind these words. Whatever this day holds out for you, fear not, but stand in the strength of the Lord.

Saturday, December 21st

Luke 1:14-25

"And Zacharias said... whereby shall I know this..." (v.18).

IT MUST have been a tremendous surprise to this aged priest to receive a visit from the Angel Gabriel. He had ministered daily in the temple for many, a long year, but had never seen an event like this. Then it happened! From his words we see a measure of unbelief. The miracles of God seem to bring doubt to some peoples' minds. But He is the "Same today as yesterday!" The limitless Christ is still the God of miracles and longs to visit His people with signs and wonders.

Sunday, December 22nd

Luke 1:26-38

"For with God nothing shall be impossible" (v.37).

THE thrill of the words nothing impossible: the miraculous virgin birth shows the truth of these words. Neither before nor since has such a wonderful event taken place. Modern science with all its knowledge and ingenuity cannot match our God.

His Son is called Jesus, for He shall save His people from their sins. "He shall be great... and of His kingdom there shall be no end" (vv. 32 and 33).

Our minds cannot fathom the plan and purpose of God, but we know His salvation works.

The call to our partners in the "HELPS" Scheme is for . . .

The Elim Pentecostal Church, Evesham

PASSING through Evesham, Worcestershire, many times, the minister of our church there now, J.R. Brown, saw little evidence of evangelical activity. A desire grew to explore the possibility of a work for God there through an Elim witness. Pastor Brown learned of two brothers, George and Fred Walker, who lived in Evesham, and who received THE ELIM EVANGEL regularly. EVANGEL readers will be familiar with the poems of F.D. Walker. Pastor Brown wrote requesting a meeting with them. Four Pentecostal Christians turned up. Weekly house meetings were arranged and 15 Henry Street, Evesham, became the first meeting-place in January, 1971.

Numbers grew. After many inquiries a small hall at the Amateur Operatic Society's rehearsal rooms, one mile out of town, was found. In May, 1971, Sunday meetings began there. Interest increased and souls were saved. The masonic building in the town centre became available and our pastor negotiated for its use on Sundays and Tuesdays and once a month on Saturdays. Meetings started at this more advantageous venue in December, 1971. In May, 1972, the Conference accepted the Evesham church as a full Elim Pentecostal Church.

Desire for greater outreach led to J.C. Smyth, our Administrative Secretary, being invited to conduct a tent crusade on the Meadow in the centre of the town. Atrocious weather with torrential rain and intense cold — at the beginning of June! — were experienced, but God's blessing was in evidence and there were some decisions. In February of this year, the local Evesham Journal reported that the Brethren Assembly's building was to be demolished for redevelopment. An approach was made to the trustees and a lease to Elim has been arranged. The roof, walls and interior need extensive work, but it is the only available hall — and it is right in the centre of the town. To save money, much of the interior work will be done by members, but the outlay will still be considerable.

Last month, the children's outreach was extended. In a room in the new Evesham Youth Centre, over 150 youngsters between nine and thirteen recently attended. It is hoped to influence the teenagers and coffee bar workers at this youth centre.

The weekly prayer meeting continues in a house as there is no hall obtainable.

God's blessing and a wonderful sense of His presence are evidenced in all the meetings.

Friends in the "HELPS" Scheme are asked to contribute a minimum of £1 twice a year and the call now is to help EVESHAM. The only other appeal this year raised over £1,750 for Middleton.

If you are a member of our "HELPS" Scheme, you will have heard from the Field Superintendent directly through the post. We look forward to receiving your gift to help Evesham.

If you are NOT in the "HELPS" Scheme, please consider completing the form below.

THIS weeks issue is devoted to the subject of Christmas.

For the Christian believer, the event that is celebrated at this time has a very special significance. The world regards the Christmas holiday as an occasion for merrymaking and uses it as an opportunity for self-indulgence.

We need to look again at the unique event to see it in its total relationship to the other festivals of a Christian calendar. Dr. A.M. Ramsey, who recently retired as Archbishop of Canterbury, delivered a series of lectures in America in 1959. In these he dealt with the development of Anglican theology between 1889 and 1939. Writing about the Oxford Movement in the Church of England, he pointed out the weakness of the religion that laid too much stress on the Incarnation (From Gore to Temple, 1960 pp. 27-29).

The events that are celebrated at Christmas find their purpose and meaning at Easter and Whitsun. It is essential to believe that Christ is come in the flesh (1 John 4:4); we need to have a proper conception of the person of the Son of God. On the other hand we must never forget that He did not merely come to live amongst us to give us an example, for such a pure and spotless life would have served to increase our condemnation.

The same Scriptures that tell "He was manifest in the flesh" (1 Timothy 3:16), also tell us that He said: "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and give His life a ransom for many" (Mark 10:45).

The dominant note in apostolic preaching was not so much that He has come, but rather that He gave Himself — God raised Him from the dead.

Now we worship, not only Him who was born, but Him who says; "I am He that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore" (Revelation 1:18).

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

BETHLEHEM - the place of His birth

by Christopher Gornold Smith

A FEW years ago when Bethlehem was controlled by the Jordanians, the Moslem Arab police were called to the Church of the Nativity to separate the Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox priests who were fighting over who had the right to perform a ceremony in the Holy Place at that moment during Christmas. "Peace on earth, good will toward men!" What a world of difference between the outward forms of ecclesiastical ceremonial and the warm, compassionate spirit of the Saviour.

A visit to Bethlehem can be a shattering experience. The smell of incense, the glimmer of candles, the intoned ritual, is this what we came for? On the floor a silver star bears the Latin inscription: HIC DE VIRGINE MARIA JESUS CHRISTUS NATUS EST. "Here Jesus Christ was born of the virgin Mary". Priestcraft seems to have taken over the very spot where He was born. With wretched disappointment we turn to go.

This kind of emotional experience is common among Evangelicals visiting Bethlehem. But what exactly did we expect? In fact there is much we can learn from this little town, even from the Church of the Nativity. Let's stop for a moment and have a look at the place.

Clinging to a limestone spur in the hills of central Judea, Bethlehem lies on the north-south road which runs the length of Palestine's spinal column, to the north via Jerusalem and Bethel into Samaria, to the South via Hebron and Beersheba to the Negeb. It was on the road from Hebron that Jacob's wife Rachel died in labour at the birth of Benjamin, and her tomb still stands by the road venerated by Jew, Christian and Moslem. In those days the town was known as Ephrath (Genesis 35:16-20), but in most of Biblical history it was Bethlehem — the House of Bread.

During the era of the Judges, the House of Bread became the house of famine, so Elimelech, his wife Naomi, and their two sons went into the land of Moab on the far side of the Dead Sea. About ten years later two pitiful figures crossed the Jordan valley in the opposite direction and struggled uphill through the brown wilderness. For Naomi it was the return journey; for her daughter-in-law, Ruth, it meant venturing into a foreign country. Later, with the fields and houses of Bethlehem as a backcloth, the beautiful drama unfolded. Through her marriage to Boaz, the kinsman-redeemer, not only was Ruth fully adopted into Israel, but both of them became a vital link in the genealogy of the great king David, and ultimately of Messiah Himself (Matthew 1).

In Bethlehem, David was secretly anointed king by Samuel (1 Samuel 16). Some time later the town was captured and garrisoned by the Philistines (2 Samuel 23:13-17). However, David eventually subdued not only the Philistines but all the surrounding nations, and captured the Jebusite stronghold of Jerusalem. Now he had a capital worthy of Israel, and because it was his personal holding it became known as the City of David. In Luke 2:11, "the city of David" refers to Bethlehem as his hometown, but this is exceptional; the term is usually reserved for the Holy City. The distance between them is about five miles.

The Fields of the Shepherds just below the town are still pointed out to pilgrims. Whether it was just there they heard the angelic announcement, who can tell? It cannot have been far from the traditional place. Again, it is impossible to be sure of the exact spot where Jesus was born. It must have been known to the early Christians, and about A.D. 150, Justin Martyr tells us that it was a cave. This would fit local conditions perfectly. The limestone spur contains a number of caves, and it was not uncommon to build dwellings in which the upper room was for family use and a lower semi-subterranean section for the animals. It is just such a small grotto which lies below the Church of the Nativity.

In the fourth century, the Emperor Constantine professed Christianity. Whether from true conversion or for political objectives, who knows? His mother, the Empress Helena, made a pilgrimage to the Holy Land in A.D. 326, and promoted the erection of a church to mark the birthplace of Christ. Fragments of its mosaic floor still exist below the present floor level.

The basilica as it stands today dates from the sixth century. Yet the style of the pillars is that of the fourth century, so it is probable that they are from the original structure and were reused. This rebuilding took place during the reign of Justinian and Theodora which commenced in 527. They were a remarkable couple. The daughter of a bear-keeper at the Constantinople hippodrome, Theodora was a small, slender girl with piercing eyes, delicate features and a pale skin. This one-time actress and notorious courtesan whose adventures had brought her as far as north Africa, suddenly gave up prostitution and returned to Constantinople. There in her early twenties she married Justinian who was nearly twice her age. The Empress was a devoted and faithful wife, and, probably remembering her old profession, cleared the capital of prostitutes, placing them in a hostel called the Nunnery of Repentance. Justinian made blasphemy and gambling illegal. His tireless administration and ceaseless vigilance earned him the name of the "many-eyed" Emperor. As we glance upward we remember that in 1482 Edward IV supplied oak for the forests of England for the restoration of the church roof.

We return to the small cave with its silver star — a symbol of national pride, religious intolerance, and bloodshed. In 1740 a treaty between the French and the Turkish Sultan gave the Roman Catholic monks of Bethlehem the right to possess a key to the main door of the Church of the Nativity, two further keys to the doors of the Sacred Manger, and the right to place in the cave a silver star bearing the insignia of France. For over a century it was a dead letter. Then in December 1852, the French coerced the unwilling Turks into compliance. The keys were handed over, and the silver star was placed in the grotto. Riots broke out. Orthodox priests were killed in the struggle. The Russians accused the Turks. The political power keg was ready, and this was the spark. It resulted in the senseless carnage, the untold human misery, the horror and shame of the Crimean War.

Yet the story of that star will be repeated in miniscule this year, when drunken drivers will speed to their own deaths, maiming and killing others at the same time — because it's Christmas! On a million greetings cards Baby Jesus will glow like a little incandescent bulb in the golden straw. The blue and white silk Mary will sit amidst the Persil-washed lambkins. The incense will swing in the Church of the Nativity, and the rival priests may glower at each other. And shall we forget the One who was born on the dung-sodden floor in the stench of the cave?

Almighty God, King of the Universe, Lord of the quasars and the cosmos, Messiah of Israel, Light of the Gentiles, teach us humility. Teach us to love one another as You have loved us.

The Diet

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

MRS. BROWN took off her shoes and stepped on to the scales. "Oh dear!" she cried. "Oh, dear me".

"What is the matter, mummy?", asked Simon.

"Just look how heavy I am! Twelve stones and two pounds." Mrs. Brown sighed. "I really must do something about my weight".

"Why don't you go on a diet, mummy?" enquired his sister.

"Oh, I will," said Mrs. Brown. "I must!"

Mrs. Brown collected a suitable diet sheet from her doctor and followed its instructions very carefully. She avoided all the fattening foods, like biscuits, cakes, chocolates and potatoes. At times she longed for a bar of her favourite peppermint chocolate, but she told herself, "No! I will have a tomato instead".

Mrs. Brown did exercises, too. Every morning she did her breathing exercise before the open bedroom window, and every afternoon she did her knees-bend-arms-raised exercise.

At long last, after many months of dieting and exercising, Mrs. Brown got on the scales.

"Come and look!" she cried excitedly, "Look what the scales say!" she exclaimed to the family.

"Nine stones and eight pounds, mummy," said both the children.

Mrs. Brown was so pleased. All the hard work had been worthwhile. She looked much smarter, and felt much healthier.

The Lord Jesus wants all His children to grow into strong and healthy believers. There is a diet for us to follow. We must feed upon the Scriptures for our strength, just as He did. We must read God's precious Word every day. It is good and pure food, indeed, it is the Bread of Life. Just as Mrs. Brown avoided fattening foods, so we must be careful that we do not fill our lives with selfishness and jealousy, bad thoughts and deeds, for these will hinder our progress. Like Mrs. Brown, we must have exercise, too. We must serve our Saviour by living and working for Him every moment of every day.

They just didn't want to know

by John Lancaster

"He came to his own home, and his own people received him not."

John 1:11 R.S.V.

MIND YOU, there were some knowing looks round the well at Nazareth. "She" had gone off to Bethlehem with that carpenter. Said it was because of the Census. Very convenient! Caesar certainly saved them some awkward questions about the baby that was due.

In Bethlehem it was a bit different. Nobody knew them, and anyway the place was full of visitors. Everyone was too busy to bother. There had been a nine-day wonder about a yarn the shepherds had told — but then, shepherds have plenty of time to dream. Miracles don't happen, do they? Not now. Moses, perhaps? Elijah and Elisha, may be. But not us. It can't happen here.

A bit of a scare in Jerusalem, though. But that's politics of course. Old Herod's bound to be a bit jittery — governing this Province is like being caretaker of a volcano. Still, the answer's easy — put the boot in. What are a few battered babies as the price for power? Their mothers will soon stop screaming.

Rome, did you say? Athens? Corinth? Alexandria? Not a clue! Didn't even know it had happened. Well, after all, a carpenter's son born in a cowshed — not much to make a song and dance about, is it?

In a way, you can understand it. After all, if someone came round to your house this morning and said that Christ had come you'd treat them with the same scepticism you reserve for Jehovah's Witnesses, Mormons and soap powder adverts. Yes, I know you are conversant with "What the Bible teaches" and you can recognise the "signs of the times", but, you see, that is exactly what a lot of those people thought, too. That's one reason why they didn't know — or want to know — when He came.

Have you ever had the infuriating experience of talking to someone who is so full of himself that even when you did get a word in edgeways — when he stopped for breath — he carried on afterwards where he left off, as though you had said nothing? That is what happened to God that first Christmas. He "spoke" to the world in His Son (Hebrews 1:2), but the world was so preoccupied with itself that it did not "hear" that Word (John 1:10). Jesus, the living Word of God — God's supreme self-disclosure — came into the world He had created but that world did not recognise Him. Absorbed in itself and its own affairs — political conquest, commercial success, the pursuit of knowledge, the craving for sensual satisfaction and a thousand and one other things — the men of the world did not even know He had come. It will be the same this Christmas. The clattering roar of self-interest, like the sound of millions of pneumatic drills, will drown the voice of God in a frantic world.

The next verse of John's great Prologue is even more disturbing: "He came to his own home, and his own people received him not" (verse 11, RSV). There are two wonders here. First, that He should be willing to acknowledge this moral slum as "his own home". The "young Prince of Glory", as Isaac Watts called Him, "became flesh and lived for a while among us" (NIV), not shrinking from sharing the poverty and grimy squalor of our broken-down existence. The other wonder is that those to whom He so lovingly came slammed the door in His face. They just didn't want to know.

The world "did not recognise Him" because it was preoccupied with itself; His own "did not receive Him" because He did not fit in with their pre-conceived ideas of what the Messiah should be. In the sensitive lines of George MacDonald:

*"They were all looking for a king
To slay their foes and lift them high;
Thou cam'st, a little baby thing
That made a woman cry".*

The disturbing thing is that many of the people who slammed the door in His face did so for reasons they considered to be theologically sound. Many of them were "prophetic students" with strongly held views about the Golden Age of Messianic rule. But when the fulfilment of prophecy did not coincide with their system of interpretation they rejected it. They "received Him not" because He did not conform to their particular school of thought. Their attitude and its consequences are a warning to all who put a particular system of theology or prophetic school above the Word of God itself. God give us the grace to recognise and hold to essential Bible truth and the humility to recognise that on matters where the Bible is not emphatically clear our school of thought is not more inspired than the reticent Scriptures.

The reasons for His rejection were many. His birth, though lowly, challenged the sin and selfishness, the naked lust for power, the arrogant self-righteousness, the complacency, the smuttiness and smugness, the shallowness and callousness of His day, and many of His contemporaries, as Yeats puts it, "Were vexed to nightmare by a rocking cradle". The same challenge faces us. The sinlessness of Jesus shows up our soiled lives. His wholeness reveals our brokenness. The teaching of Jesus reveals the truth about God and sheds its searching light upon what we really are. His cross, savage and splendid, repelling yet compelling, demands our souls, our life, our all.

Talking about his work as a conductor, Sir Malcolm Sargent once said that he preferred the applause that greeted him as he walked on to the rostrum than that which followed a performance. "It helps me," he said. "You haven't got to fight against an unwilling listener". Any preacher knows the importance of rapport between himself and his listeners for without it there is no communication. The tragedy is that so few are really prepared to listen to God. At the first Christmas men ignored the living Word; this Christmas millions will ignore the written Word. On the first Good Friday angry men tried to bludgeon the living Word into silence. Very few would want to go that far today, for in some things we are more genteel, or, at least, more subtle. But our polite indifference is just as cruel. Studdert Kennedy has mirrored this in one of his poems:

*"When Jesus came to Birmingham they simply passed Him by,
They never hurt a hair of Him, they only let Him die;
For men had grown more tender, and they would not give Him pain,
They only just passed down the street, and left Him in the rain".*

You don't have to kill the messenger to silence the truth. All you have to do is switch off. When God spoke that first Christmas men were too preoccupied or too prejudiced to listen; they neither recognised nor received Him. They just didn't want to know. It'll be the same this Christmas, too — for millions. But what about you? Christian, are you listening to Him? Unsaved friend, will you give God your attention? No, will you do more than that — will you yield to His claims? At least listen to this: "To all who received Him, who believed in His name, He gave power to become Children of God" (John 1:12, RSV). To fail to hear that is to lose everything.

Points for Preachers

by J. Alexander Wright

An Outline

The Gospel according to the Angels.

Luke 2:1-20

1. Banishes fear. "Fear not. . .". Fear of death, judgment, God.
2. Brings joy. "Glad tidings of great joy". To God, to Christ, to sinners.
3. Presents a Saviour "Christ the Lord".
4. Glorifies God. "Glory to God in the highest".
5. Gives peace to earth. "Peace on earth". Personal, local, universal.
6. Changes mankind. "Men with whom He is pleased" RSV. The natural men cannot please God. Christ did. Believers can.

An Exposition

"Two—or three"

Matthew 18:20

The Schofield Bible heads this verse, "The simplest form of a local church", to which we reply, "Nothing of the sort!" Surely these two or three are acting apart from the church, (v.17)? The words were spoken of those couples who gather for the settlement of a quarrel or dispute, like Euodias and Syntyche (Philippians 4:2), Paul and Barnabas (Acts 15:39), or even a husband and wife (1 Peter 3:7). And the third one? Why, surely the blessed peacemaker? (Matthew 5:9).

Dr. F.W. Boreham in The Luggage of Life said, "A blind man can always tell when there is a poor congregation. The minister invariably quotes a certain text, 'Where two or three are gathered in My Name, there am I in the midst of them'. But the text is as much out of place as the missing worshippers. We have no right to drag it in, drearily, dolefully, dimly, whenever the empty pews are particularly conspicuous. It is not an apology for human absence. It is a triumphant proclamation of the Divine Presence! 'There am I'".

An Incident

The longest Lecture ever given.

Professor Thomas Hasselbach, of the University of Vienna, lectured on the first chapter of Isaiah daily for forty-two years: (1453–1495); and before he died expressed his vexation that he had been unable to exhaust his subject.

Talking organs?

..talk to Roland Friday at Sharon

Nationwide churches choose Sharon Music for their new and second hand electronic organs because Sharon offers selection and service second to none.

Over 200 successfully completed installations prove that no church is too big, too small, nor too far away to be beyond the Sharon service.

Advice and delivery are absolutely free and we can offer special finance facilities tailor made to help any church purchase the instrument of its choice. With over 200 organs always in stock Sharon have a selection second to none – and remember Hammond organs start at under £400.

So if you're talking organs – talk to the specialists – we're only a letter or telephone call away.

A unique opportunity...

With a current trend towards "automatic", and "easy play" features in so many organs the Hammond N100 has a welcome absence of such gimmickery and represents an ideal instrument for many churches.

The N100 produces adequate sound to fill most churches with a wide variety of tones and effects selected with simplicity of operation. The famous Leslie Speaker completes a comprehensive specification.

At only £786 this Hammond is a fine and unique opportunity for your church to purchase a new organ through a special purchasing scheme available on this particular model. For full details send in the coupon or telephone Roland Friday on 0227 54848.

Please send me further details of the Hammond N100 and the special purchasing scheme available with this model.

The Nativity, as seen through the eyes of the artist

by Robert Clarke,
N.D.D., A.T.D.

Botticelli's "Adoration of the Magi" (1472-73)

DURING the fourteenth century, the nativity became a popular subject for painters and manuscript illuminators in that it gave plenty of scope for splendid retinues and exotic costumes. It has often been handled from a purely ascetic standpoint, and a comparison of Botticelli's four attempts at the Adoration of the Magi will illustrate what I mean. His first painting (1472—National Gallery, London) is the least formal of all his attempts at the subject. It is reminiscent of International Gothic painting, in that it converts the humble birthplace into an elaborate setting. The picturesque details of monkeys, deer and a dwarf, only serve to detract from the greatness of the event.

In his second version (1476—77—Uffizi, Florence), we have a picture which is an obvious commission, in that the grouping around the Virgin and Child consists of a number of portraits of famous Italian nobles. It was quite common place in those days to use religious scenes as a portrait gallery of Florentine nobles. Thus, we ought to have been a profoundly religious scene is transformed into a family pageant. Vasari, a contemporary critic has identified the kings, one of them being Cosimo de Medici, and another his son, Giovanni.

Botticelli's later attempts at the subject were far more successful, both as works of art and as religious paintings; the regal pomp is lessened and irrelevant detail is discarded. The worshippers are now handled in such a way that they enhance the Mother and Child and we are left in no doubt as to his reason for painting the picture.

A. P. Johnston

REV. JOHN HALL is a full credentialled minister of the Assemblies of God in America and lives in a ranch home in Springfield, Missouri, next door to the General Superintendent of the Assemblies of God, U.S.A. Rev. John Hall has specialised for many years in prophetic teaching and has made a huge chart, which is very professional and has been drawn up by skilled artists, to show the dispensations and the prophetic fulfilment from the Word of God. He is in great demand in America, especially for churches who love the Word of God. He could be considered controversial, but he certainly creates tremendous interest in the Bible and would seem to have chapter and verse for all his statements. He will be conducting the morning Bible Studies at the Elim Pentecostal Conference to be held on May 10th-17th, 1975. If every visitor brings a Bible, it will be very interesting to spend the whole week studying the Bible.

L. WIGGLESWORTH needs no introduction to the Elim Pentecostal Church members. His name is well known amongst Pentecostals, having come from an old established Pentecostal pioneering family, his grandfather being the internationally known Smith Wigglesworth. Mr. Wigglesworth was a missionary to Zaire from 1933 until 1954 when he had to return home because of ill health. In 1964 he was appointed to the Headquarters Office of Missionary Secretary. He is a member of the Radio Committee of the Elim Pentecostal Churches and also of the Evangelical Missionary Alliance.

JOHN HALL is a licensed preacher with the Assemblies of God in the U.S.A. He is frequently known as "Big John Hall", the Gospel singer of North America. He is a very tall, well built man and has a magnificent voice and is received in all types of meetings with great approval. He sings the old gospel songs and also the newer type of songs for the young people. He is widely travelled and sings in all the major conventions and seminars throughout the United States. He is about middle age, is married with a wife who also sings with him and also is a gospel singer in her own right and their home is in Texas. He will be singing every evening at the Elim Pentecostal Conference in Pontin's Holiday Camp, Morecambe to be held on May 10th-17th, 1975.

D. QUAY was converted in 1934 and baptised in the Holy Spirit in 1938. He began his ministry in Assemblies of God in 1943, first of all working for Home Missions and very soon afterwards entering the pastoral ministry. He is the minister of the Assembly in Bedford. He was the first Pentecostal minister to broadcast on the B.B.C. in July 1952, having been connected with radio work for many years. He was the Radio Producer for the Assemblies of God for some time and is now the representative and producer of I.B.R.A. in this country. He is the Founder and Director of the Dorothea Trust which cares for the aged. He also serves on the Executive Council of the Assemblies of God.

JOHN C. SMYTH entered the Elim Bible College in 1953. After four years pastoring in churches he was appointed accountant to the Movement. He has since been appointed to the Headquarters office of Administrative Secretary. He holds positions on the Executive Council and several committees of the Elim Pentecostal Church.

A.P. JOHNSTON is a son of Ulster. His forthright exposition of the Word of God, so characteristic of his background, has endeared him to the congregations he has successfully shepherded in his years as an Elim Pastor. He is at present in charge of the Elim Church, South Shields, one of our newest Churches. Mr. Johnston was accepted as a Probationer in 1948 and was ordained in September 1955. He has ministered in 14 Elim Churches and held Committee appointments in various district Presbyteries.

- 3 Personal Accident.
- 4 Personal Liabilities

A leaflet giving all the terms and conditions of the cover will be sent to you when we acknowledge receipt of your deposit.

ACCOMMODATION AND AMENITIES

Double chalets contain one double or two single beds. Treble chalets contain one double and one single bed. Four type chalets contain one double and one two-tier bed or two single beds. Should double-bedded chalets be fully booked it is understood single beds will be acceptable.

It is important when application is made for accommodation for more than one person, that the relationship is inserted in the appropriate space overleaf so that the most suitable type of chalet available can be allocated. If only one person is applying, or any of the members of a party cannot be accommodated together, it is understood that he, she or they will be agreeable to sharing accommodation (separate beds) with other guests of the same sex. Please state in 'Accommodation Required' column if double or single beds are preferred.

Tennis, Swimming, Putting, Table Tennis, etc., etc., are all available to our guests free of charge.

We regret that we are unable to accept dogs or other pets, but we will be pleased to recommend suitable local kennels.

Guests are expected to bring their own soap and towels.

Please note that special diets cannot be catered for.

PAYMENT OF BALANCE

For all bookings the balance of account, including VALUE ADDED TAX, must be sent to the camp fourteen clear days before the commencement day of the holiday to confirm the reservations. Payment should be made by cheque or Postal order. Cash should not be sent under any circumstances.

CONDITIONS OF BOOKING

The Management reserves the right to decline acceptance or to expel any visitor for conduct detrimental to the camp or to the comfort of other visitors.

The Company is relieved from liability should the accommodation or amenities not be available due to circumstances beyond its control and deposit will be refunded in full.

To prevent the possible introduction of contagious and infectious diseases, guests are required to advise the Company, before the date of the proposed holiday, if any of their party have recently suffered or lately contacted others suffering from contagious or infectious complaints, in which event it is understood that they will agree to cancellation of their booking and that on production of a Medical Certificate, their deposit will be refunded in full.

Neither Pontin's Limited nor the individual Company operating or managing the holiday camp nor any associated or subsidiary company thereof shall be liable for any personal injury, loss or damage, direct or indirect, loss or damage to any property, including motor vehicles, motor cycles and the like, however caused, sustained by or occasioned to any person (including persons under the age of 18 years) whose name or names appear on the Reservation Form, whether resulting from or caused by the negligence, default, wilful act, omission or otherwise of Pontin's Limited, the individual company operating or managing the holiday camp, their servants, agents or concessionaires, or of guests, residents, or invitees.

IMPORTANT. A deposit of £2.50 per adult and £1.25 per child under 13 years is required for the week or part week booked
WE AGREE TO ALL THE ABOVE CONDITIONS

Signed by all the persons over 16 years listed overleaf.

Date.....

In view of the possibility of much higher costs due to circumstances beyond our control, it may be necessary to add a surcharge to the tariffs above. Any such surcharge will be notified before 1st April and will be subject to the Price Board's approval and only in such exceptional circumstances will it exceed £1 per person per week.

Botticelli's "Mystic Nativity" (1501)

THIS is Botticelli's final painting on the theme of the Nativity, and this has the deepest religious significance.

Whereas the earliest versions had been an excuse for secularization, this painting is theological in that its theme is one of reconciliation and redemption. The angels carry olive branches as a symbol of peace. Angels embrace men as a symbol of reconciliation, while three stricken devils represent the overthrow of Satan's dominion.

This picture was produced after the death of the famous Dominican friar, Savonarola, and bears the influence of his teaching and martyrdom.

Piero Della Francesca's "The Nativity" (active 1439-92)

THIS painting is the product of a mind that worked on a basis of geometry that was unequalled in his day, and there is a superb use of a cool, austere colour and sense of spatial relationships.

All unnecessary and superfluous matter is illuminated from this picture, and any sense of the accident is non-existent. Here is captured the redemptive, for-ordained plan of God in action; although the feeling that the event happened in a space time existence is lost. The figures look as though they are unable to move out of their postures and really belong to another world. This is of course one of the strengths of the angels in that their supernaturalism is captured by this unreality rather than with wings and halos.

The theme of this picture is that of worship. The angels are singing the first Christian hymn, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men", but this is only part of the symphony for the whole of nature is participating.

REMBRANDT was one of the greatest religious painters. Religious art was almost unknown in seventeenth century Holland, except for occasional works by historical painters. Rembrandt was the exception to the rule and painted religious works all his life. The Middle Ages was the age of realism in art, and the artist attempted to faithfully record what the eye could see. Rembrandt, however, recorded not only actuality, but what he knew to be true. In The Adoration of the Shepherds, we not only have a depiction of how the scene probably looked, but also the spiritual meaning behind the event. In this painting there is a stable and there are shepherds; both are standing in space and time. It is an honest recording of the humble surroundings of the birth, and poor people who visited that place. Yet behind it all there is the feeling that here is far more than the merely commonplace. Behind the humanity and humility of the scene, there is the greatness of the event — the incarnation of the second person of the Godhead.

God's Gift and our Debt

by P. S. Brewster, Secretary-General

IN the celebration of Christmas, with all the wonder of giving and receiving of gifts and the beauty of the carol singing plus the excitement of packed churches, we must pause to remember the origin and the teaching of CHRISTMAS DAY.

God sent His Son into the world to die for our sins. Jesus did heal the sick, He did come to redeem Israel, He did come to teach men how to live and how to die, yes, He did come to show us the required moral standards. He showed great compassion on all people, but I feel we must return to the simple truth that Christ CAME TO DIE.

Our great Elim family in this country and around the world is exceedingly loyal to their local churches, their ministers and also the Movement to which they belong. Far above all loyalty to Movement and church, however, we must be essentially loyal to the simple truth that Jesus, God's Son, came into the world to reconcile men to God. Equally, God has given us the message and ministry of reconciliation. That word "reconciliation" is one of the greatest words in the Bible. It implies bringing together and making peace between man and God and also man and man.

To win a soul for Jesus Christ and then to see that convert around the Communion table worshipping God is indeed a beautiful sight, both to God and to man. To have the realisation in your soul that you have helped, have played a part in winning someone to Jesus Christ is a joy and a contentment that nothing else on this earth could ever equal.

The wise man in the Old Testament said, "He that winneth souls is wise".

The year 1975 is the Elim Diamond Jubilee year. As is well known, "jubilee" means a new beginning, a new liberty and freedom.

With our great message and ministry of reconciliation in the Elim Movement let us minister to the unsaved and to the backsliders and with the help of the Holy Spirit lead them to Jesus Christ as their Saviour and Baptiser in the Holy Spirit.

The gift of eternal life is within the reach of all. Jesus died for the whole world. The Apostle Paul said very simply, but decisively, "I am a debtor to all men". That one phrase alone could possibly be his masterpiece; it is a classic. Paul felt that he was so honoured by God to be the recipient of the gift of eternal life. So thankful was he to be called an apostle, that it dawned upon him that, while he lived, he owed a debt to pass on the message. God had done so much for him and had revealed so much to him that he felt this spiritual obligation to all mankind.

In the midst of festivities let all our great Elim Movement seek to lead someone to Jesus Christ and so fulfil their personal debt. Practically the last words in the Bible are, "The Spirit and the Bride say come and whosoever will may come".

Three Christmas "Fear nots"

by O. G. Miles

IT HAS been said that there are 365 "Fear nots" in the Bible, one for every day of the year. I have never investigated the accuracy of the statement, but I do know that there are three comforting "Fear nots" in the Christmas Story which have often been a great blessing to me.

The World urgently needs this threefold message today. There is cause for fear on every hand: strikes, lawlessness, immorality, self-seeking, with everybody following the dictates of their own desires. Without doubt, the spirit of anti-christ is already at work in the world, and "Men's hearts are failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth" (Luke 21:26).

Yet, to all who will pause and heed, the glorious message of Christmas is clearly sounding forth once again.

The first "Fear not" was to the shepherds.

"Fear not: for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy" (Luke 2:10). The Shepherds represent the busy, ordinary folk; this amazing revelation came to them as they were engaged in their normal daily occupation.

How comforting to know that God's messenger will come to us even in the monotony of the common task and will quietly assure us that the Heavenly Father cares. We may be hemmed in by a score of problems and there may appear to be no way of escape, but the God-sent message pierces through all the gloom.

"He hath delivered; He does deliver and He will yet deliver."

Remember, He is acquainted with all your ways. He knows the path you tread, and when the foreboding future would tend to overwhelm and depress you, He speaks His gracious, "Fear not", assuring you that all will be well. So, believe and trust the message.

"Cast your burden upon the Lord and He will sustain you."

"Fear not," said the Angel, "I bring you good tidings of great joy."

The second "Fear not" was spoken to Mary.

This time the message was more personal. The Angel knew her name. "Fear not, Mary: thou hast found favour with God" (Luke 1:30). What fears must have gripped her mind at this time. By a miraculous act of God this young unmarried woman was found to be with child. We can understand her feelings. She must have been battling with many distressing thoughts as the Angel told her of God's will concerning her. The neighbours, her friends, Joseph, what would they think?

Well, God had the complete answer. The gracious tender, overruling, "Fear not," from heaven would still every doubt. "Fear not, Mary: the Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God."

I wonder if some of my readers are bearing some inward grief during these days of festivity: problems maybe that you cannot talk about; secret burdens that are locked up in the depth of your soul.

May I remind you that the Lord knows your name and your circumstances, even as He knew Mary's.

John 10:3 says, Jesus calleth His own sheep by name, and leadeth them. So, He would call you by name and speak His wonderful "Fear not" to heal your wounded spirit.

"Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by name; thou art Mine. When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee, when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee. For I am the Lord thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Saviour" (Isaiah 43:1-3). Therefore, beloved friends, as God draws near to us during this precious season of the year and speaks His glorious "Fear not" to us all, let us cast every care upon Him, for He Himself careth for us.

Let's celebrate Christmas

HOW do you feel about celebrating Christmas this year? Has the ever-deepening gloom of 1974 made Christmas preparations go sour on you? In spite of attempts at jollity and festive gaiety is there a lurking fear that with the threat of further inflation, unrest in industry, I.R.A. bombs, overseas hunger and want, a traditional Christmas is an impossibility? Can we shut our eyes or close our hearts to the plight of mankind, and waste money in self-indulgence? I certainly can't; I would not go on a spending spree, yet I do intend to celebrate the birth of the Saviour by going to His house and worshipping Him, remembering that it was to just such a sad and cruel world that He came.

The angels and the shepherds rejoiced, the wise men worshipped, and I too shall rejoice and worship, realising how evil and forsaken this world would have been if the Lord Jesus had never stepped down from Glory. Another cause for rejoicing is the assurance that we are one Christmas nearer to Christ's return. The indisputable fact of His first coming, with the fulfilment of every prophecy concerning that great event, causes me to believe He will return as He promised. So let's celebrate Christmas! We long for, and dream of, a better world, where the peace and joy associated with the Christmas message will be known when the desire of all nations shall come.

Listening to a comment on the recent Hudson Report it was said, "We want someone, somewhere, to give us a lead and to boost our morale"—exactly, and God has His Man—the Lord Jesus. Dr. William Barclay in his comments on the Gospel of Matthew states, "Jesus is the answer to the dreams of men. It is true that so often men do not see it so. They see the answer to their dreams, in power, in wealth, in material plenty, and in the realisation of the ambitions which they cherish. But if ever men's dreams of peace and loveliness, and greatness and satisfaction, are to be realised, they can only find their realisation in Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ and the life he offers is the answer to the dreams of men."

Handel's immortal Messiah will be sung again this Christmas, and the glorious chorus of "Unto us a Child is born," will delight our ears. We associate these words with the first coming of Jesus, but we cannot stop there, for the prophecy would be incomplete. Here are the words from Isaiah 9, in all their clarity and astounding import: "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment: and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this". What a King! What a kingdom, what a government and what a peace, well may we cry, "Even so, come Lord Jesus!"

Let us all remember
When our faith is running low,
Christ is more than just a figure
Wrapped in an ethereal glow—
For He came and dwelt among us,
And He knows our every need,
And He loves and understands us,
And forgives each sinful deed—
He was crucified and buried,
And rose again in glory
And His promise of salvation
Makes the wondrous Christmas story
An abiding reassurance,
That the little Christ Child's birth
Was the beautiful beginning,
Of God's Plan for PEACE on EARTH.

Are you really committed?

by George Miller, Elim missionary in Guyana

WE thank God for committed Christian young people. We have many in our Crusader ranks. Are you one? Check your commitment on these two counts.

Commitment to Christ

Take the apostle Paul for an example. Christ was his life: "For to me to live is Christ". Here is commitment at its highest. Let us not aim any lower. Now, how committed are you? Tick and think.

What place does Christ have in your life?

1st ☐ 2nd ☐ 3rd ☐

Do you try to do those things which please Him?

yes ☐ not really ☐

Can you honestly say, "Thy will be done?"

yes ☐ no ☐ not sure ☐

How much time do you give to Him?

much ☐ little ☐ very little ☐

One Crusader remarked, "I can't get to the morning service". It was because he was paid double time on Sundays. God got no time; he got double time. He was a committed Christian!

Commitment to the Church

If you are really committed to Christ you will also be committed to His Church in your local Elim Church. I know a group of young people who meet in a house fellowship purely because they don't believe in the Church. The Bible says that Christ loved the Church. So must we. How committed to your church are you? Tick and think.

How often are you there? Are you there in spirit, or in body as well?

How many meetings do you attend each week?

Sun. morning ☐ evening ☐ prayer meeting ☐

Bible study ☐ Crusaders ☐ other meetings ☐

Are you a member of your church?

yes ☐ no ☐ If not, why not ask your pastor today?

Are you active in the life of your church?

Various outreaches ☐ Task Force ☐

S. school ☐ ministry ☐ other things ☐

Do you tithe into your church?

yes ☐ no ☐ give a tip ☐

Well—are you committed? If not, why are you not? Make a total commitment to Christ now. Christ deserves it; your church needs it. Anything less will rob you of God's best and will hinder your church from fulfilling God's purpose in your community. Be-ware of being just an onlooker. You can become so used to looking on that involvement never registers.

This generation calls for total commitment and total involvement. You will never be your best for God otherwise. Commitment is an act of the will. Will you say today, "By Thy grace I will!"?

THREE CHRISTMAS "FEAR NOTS"—from page 14

The third "Fear not" came to Joseph.

"Joseph, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife" (Matthew 1:20). Joseph's fears were not so much for himself, but for his wife.

There are some dear people who carry tremendous burdens for others. Mothers often carry a deep concern for their children. Christian wives sometimes spend hours on their knees, praying through many tears for the conversion of their husbands.

As we anticipate the near return of our blessed Lord. We contemplate that thrilling moment when we shall see Him face to face. The Bible says, "We shall be like Him." But sometimes we are arrested in our thinking; we remember our many loved-ones, and friends who are not ready to meet Jesus. I have no doubt that at such times God lays upon us all a very real passion for the lost. We pray and work as never before in order to lead someone to the Saviour.

Maybe this Christmas-time God will give you an opportunity to speak a word for Him; if God has given you a concern for the salvation of others, remember He has also given an encouraging promise.

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." (Acts 16:31).

As we conclude our Christmas meditation together, may I point out that the Shepherds, and Mary and Joseph all emerged into a wonderful place of victory and spiritual enrichment.

The Shepherds glorified God.

Mary said, "My soul doth magnify the Lord."

And the Lord appeared to Joseph.

Ye fearful saints fresh courage take,
The clouds ye so much dread,
Are big with mercy, and will break
In blessing on your head.

A.D. Sandford

Monday, December 23rd

Luke 1:39-56

"... My soul doth magnify the Lord" (v.46).

THE blessed of God must surely magnify Him. Here the two women who meet together have both received the promise of a son. Mary's news was brought by the Angel; Elisabeth's came via Zacharias.

Their conversation would be centred around the goodness of God. Their hearts must surely have burned within them, for they are favoured indeed. Mary cried out, "My soul doth magnify the Lord!"

Should our expectancy, our conversation, be any less than theirs? As a privileged people who are washed in the blood, we are also kept by the power of God. Let us keep looking for that blessed Hope. We too can say, "Magnify the Lord".

Tuesday, December 24th

Luke 1:57-80

"And his father Zacharias was filled with the Holy Ghost, and prophesied saying..." (v.67).

HOLY men spake as they were moved by the Spirit of God. In this prophecy we see promise of greater things.

The long-awaited Messiah was about to be born; Zacharias, having already known the miracle of God in his home, was now spelling out the ministry and purpose of the coming of Christ.

This ministry has never failed. God's purpose is still "to give knowledge of salvation... by the remission of sins... to give light to them that sit in darkness..."

"Oh taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in Him" (Psalm 34:8).

Wednesday, December 25th

Luke 2:1-20

"For unto you is born this day... a Saviour which is Christ the Lord". (v.11).

AMIDST the hubub of the crowded city, the greatest event in all history took place.

Although there was no room for Joseph and Mary in the inn, God's plan was fulfilled.

The promise concerning the Messiah reached back to the time of man's fall (Genesis 3:15). The one who came, was none other than the very Son of God Himself who was prepared to leave the glories of Heaven and come to live in a sin-cursed earth.

May we always remember that He was born to die. Although at this time we are celebrating His birth, we should remember how closely it is linked to Calvary.

Thursday, December 26th

Luke 2:21-40

"... and the grace of God was upon Him" (v.40).

WHAT grace He showed when He faced the world of accusers. Jesus needed the grace of God to see Him through. How often we hear it said, "I gave him a piece of my mind, and showed him where he stood". How much better it would have been if a little grace had been exercised. This can turn away wrath and bring peace in place of discord.

Grace 'tis a charming sound,

Harmonious to the ear

"Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt" (Colossians 4:6).

Friday, December 27th

Luke 2:41-52

"They found him... both hearing and asking questions" (v.46).

THE Master teacher, who came from God, who is also divine, is here asking questions. In this we see his humanity and deity. As a human seeking to increase knowledge of the situation, and endeavouring to understand these educated doctors; we also see His deity when he seems to rebuke His mother and father with those words "wist ye not that I must be about my Fathers business?"

He knows our physical needs, but He also has the power in Himself to meet them.

Saturday, December 28th

2 John 1:1-13

"That we love one another" (v.5).

THIS injunction stands out as a beacon. Hate, strife, envy and malice bring untold misery. Love brings tremendous blessing. To love our enemies as we love ourselves is not easy, but the love of Christ which is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost constraineth us (2 Corinthians 5:14). Love will conquer, while hatred brings defeat. To turn the other cheek is not the idea of the man of the world, but if it is the Christian's motto, it can only bring joy to the soul.

"Charity (love) suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not..." (1 Corinthians 13:4).

Sunday, December 29th

3 John 1:1-15

"Beloved, follow not that which is evil, but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God: but he that doeth evil hath not seen God" (v.11).

ANOTHER year is almost past; looking back in retrospect has its advantages. Have I always done things which pleased Him? Have I stumbled? Yes, He was there to pick me up.

Could I learn from my mistakes? Yes, follow closely after Him, seek always that which is good, and remember that "the steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord" (Psalm 37:23).

He will shield and protect them that are His. Let's keep our eyes upon Him and He will keep from evil.

This is the final contribution from Mr. Sandford. We thank him for his contribution. The writer of the new series commencing next week is William McCandless, Pastor of our Lisburn Church, Northern Ireland.

Christmas - from the other side ...

by Malcolm Frith, A.C.A., L.Th. (Lon).

ON Sunday it was my joy to meet a sister from our South Shields Church, recently arrived in New Zealand. How different her first New Zealand Christmas is going to be compared with the traditional English Christmas in mid-winter with snow and frost and roaring fires.

For the majority here, Christmas is not only a time of Christmas celebration, but it is also a time of school and work holidays — a time for relaxation and enjoyment after exams and other pressures. This is mainly due to Christmas on this side of the world falling in mid-summer with long sunny days and warm water enticing many to swimming and boating.

In church the weeks before Christmas are busy with end of year activities — the Sunday school anniversary, prize giving and Christmas party; the young people's breakup; the church Christmas party, a banquet; and so it goes on! And of course for parents with school age children it is also one hectic round of end of year school events.

Then suddenly the weeks of frenzied activities are a thing of the past. The last function has been attended, school is over, holiday pay has been drawn and ahead is the wonder of Christmas time. Many homes will have a small pine tree as a Christmas tree. The Salvation Army and other bands will ride the streets playing carols as the sun sets and darkness falls.

Then it is Christmas morning — day break here occurs about 4 a.m! All too soon it is time for the family service. This year, as in recent years, our church will be joining with the other four Pentecostal churches in the Wellington city area, for a united service. And for the next few Sunday evenings, with so many holidaying, united services will continue.

Yes Christmas is spent so differently in the Southern Hemisphere with masses basking on the beaches, but under the clear evening sky the stars will shine as they did the night Christ was born. The wonder of God become flesh will still be with us. Carols and bells will tell out the news, "Glory to God in the highest"; "for unto you is born this day a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord". Indeed, as you retire on Christmas Eve, we will already be rejoicing in the blessings, joy and celebration of our Christmas. May it be a truly Christ-centred one for us all — in whatever part of the world you read these words.

Editorial

WE stand at the close of another year in which the prospects in the economic field look extremely grim. All the planners and economists are giving gloomy predictions for 1975.

During the recent bread shortage which was brought about by the bakers' strike, housewives discovered that within a few days not only was bread scarce, but flour also became unobtainable. This, of course, is not a new situation; sugar, salt and several other commodities are in short supply, and in some instances the position has been aggravated by panic buying and unnecessary hoarding. I did just wonder what would happen if word got around that Bibles were going to be scarce. Would there be a sell-out?—I hardly think so, and yet I clearly remember that when the New English Bible came out, literally thousands of people flocked into bookshops all over the country in the few weeks after publication, and the Publishers were unable to meet the demand. But where are these Bibles today, and how many people are reading them?

In times of scarcity what should be the attitude of the Christian? In times of adversity, what should our reaction be? We do not go along with those who suggest that life for the Christian should be a bed of roses. One only has to read the Epistle to the Hebrews or 1 Peter, to know that this is not the case. Some believers may well have hard times. The Psalmist said, "I have been young, and now am old; yet I have not seen the righteous forsaken or his children begging bread". We may have queued for bread, but we have not had to beg for it.

The church at Philadelphia (Revelation 3:8-13) stood in a strategic position on a great plain, beyond which lay wild and barbarous tribes. The city commanded a highway which led from Europe to the East. It was to this church that John, as the messenger of the risen Christ, wrote, "Behold, I have set before you an open door" (Revelation 3:8). Taking these same words, let us go to the task that God has given us to do. Difficulties there may be, but the opportunities that present themselves to us today are greater than they have been for many a year. The New Year is our year of Jubilee. Let it be a time of renewed zeal in our work for God.

FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF THE ELIM PENTECOSTAL CHURCH — 1. THE BIBLE: We believe that the Bible is the inspired Word of God and that none may add thereto or take away therefrom except at their peril. 2. THE TRINITY: We believe that the Godhead eternally exists in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost and that these three are one God. 3. THE CHURCH: We believe that the Church consists of all persons who have been regenerated by the Holy Ghost and made new creatures in Christ Jesus. 4. THE SAVIOUR: We believe that all have sinned and come short of the glory of God and that through the death and risen power of Christ all who believe can be saved from the penalty and power of sin. 5. THE HEALER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Healer of the body and that all who will walk in obedience to His will can claim Divine Healing for their bodies. 6. THE BAPTISER: We believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost and that this Baptism with signs following is promised to every believer. 7. THE COMING KING: We believe in the personal and pre-millennial return of our Lord Jesus Christ to receive unto Himself the Church and afterwards to set up His Throne as King. 8. THE FRUIT: We believe that every believer on the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour should produce the ninefold fruit of His Spirit: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. 9. THE GIFTS: We believe that the Church should claim and manifest the nine Gifts of the Holy Spirit: Wisdom, knowledge, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment, tongues, interpretation. 10. THE MINISTRY: We believe that God has given some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the Body of Christ. 11. THE FUTURE STATE: We believe in the eternal conscious bliss of all true believers in Christ and also in the eternal conscious punishment of all Christ rejectors. 12. THE ORDINANCES: We believe in the following ordinances: Partaking of bread and wine in memory of our Lord's death, baptism by immersion for believers, the laying on of hands and the anointing of the sick with oil.

London Crusader Choir

DIARY NOTES

BRIGHTON and Oxford Elim churches welcome the choir for special celebrations, including broadcasts on BBC local radio transmitters. In addition to items by the choir, directed by Pastor Douglas Gray, Pastors F.A. Hodge and J. Hyde preached with clarity and evangelical thrust. Pastor F.J. Slemming was also the preacher and Pastor W.M.E. Plowright the radio gospel soloist. Special mention should be made of the delightful items by the Brighton Sunday school scholars.

Following these visits the choir were active in London, presenting music with a message in the Metropolitan (Spurgeon's) Tabernacle and Caxton Hall, Westminster. Moving into Essex the choir ministered in a great festival of song in the historic church at Waltham Abbey which was crowded with hundreds of listeners from far and wide. Southend-on-Sea welcomed the choir for a week-end of evangelism. Crowded churches in Lancing, Maidstone and Barking have witnessed moving scenes of evangelistic outreach, resulting in the salvation of precious souls. Reading prison and the local Elim church were visited with much appreciation and spiritual uplift.

Elim Pentecostal Church, Northampton

by Sam Brooks

LITTLE did the town of Northampton think what the results of the Elim crusade would be when the advertisements began to appear on hoardings and in the newspapers in April, 1967. Now Elim is probably the best known church in the town and the best attended. Certainly it has had a tremendous impact on the spiritual life of Northampton.

The crusade opened in the Carnegie Hall in the centre of the town. From the very beginning the hall was well filled every night. Special divine healing meetings were held before the evening meetings and wonderful healings were manifested. That they were real and lasting is witnessed to by many who are now members of the church and who received the divine touch in their bodies, but most of all in their souls.

Perhaps the most outstanding healing was of a young child with a rare, incurable blood disease who was, humanly speaking, doomed to an early death. From the moment he was prayed for, improvement was seen, and, though the healing was gradual, it amazed the specialists who treated him and he is now a normal, healthy schoolboy.

The greatest blessing was the message of salvation which reached many souls and transformed lives, including those of the writer and his wife. The evening meetings were full of power and the Holy Spirit was clearly filling and inspiring evangelist Alex Tee and his team. Every message was direct and challenging; no-one could be ignorant of the gospel or of their great need of salvation. The singing of visiting choirs and the joy and sincerity of everyone who took part were a joy to see and hear.

The crusade was for two or three weeks, but, such was the response, that it was decided to start an Elim Church in Northampton, so the meetings continued for a further three weeks until we were fortunate enough to rent the Mission Hall, Abington Square, the former spiritual home of Ned Weeks. A rapid work of renovation got the building ready and it was officially opened in the May, 1967.

We were very grateful to have as first pastor, John M. Cuthbert. The first Sunday morning service saw only twenty-three in the congregation, but this rapidly increased until now there are over six times that number and many more at the evening gospel rally. Upwards of seventy gather for the Tuesday prayer meeting and the Thursday Bible Study.

The majority of the members are converts from the crusade and from subsequent gospel outreach in different parts of the town, not to mention personal witness and invitation. Often they are from little or no religious background, but there are those from almost all denominations, including Roman Catholics. Every Sunday the gospel is preached in power and hardly a week goes by without some soul or souls turning to Christ. A very encouraging feature is the high proportion of young people. They are keen workers among their own age groups in the town,

John M. Cuthbert

often holding barbecues, coffee bars and get-togethers to reach those who would not come to a church meeting.

The first series of Bible Studies were devoted to the Baptism in the Holy Spirit, a subject which was quite new to most of us. The wisdom of this was seen in the enthusiastic response and dramatic results. Many were filled with the Spirit and the life of the church increased accordingly. Soon the gifts of the Spirit were manifested and the anointing has continued and increased over the years.

Northampton is an expanding town. Vast areas have been demolished and massive new office complexes are taking the place of rows of old terrace houses. The population is moving out of the centre where the Mission Hall is situated. Then came the announcement that part of a new road scheme would pass right through the building. A new building was needed and God wonderfully provided. A Methodist church in a populous part of the town came on the market. Elim's bid was accepted, despite strong competition from secular interests.

The months prior to moving into the new building were filled with hectic activity. Years of neglect had left a toll of wet rot, dry rot, leaks and disrepair that required hundreds of man-hours to deal with. Everything that could be done by the members of the fellowship was done, and the rest was undertaken by tradesmen. Sacrificial giving supplied the money for the purchase price of £12,700, and much of the cost of the repairs and renovations has also been met. It was a great day when Pastor Alex Tee fittingly declared the new building open and conducted the inaugural meetings, on Saturday, September 7th, 1974..

No time was lost in reaching out to the many people in this well-populated area. Already many have been contacted, hearts touched and bodies healed. Pastor Alex Tee's call to fuller dedication at the opening service has produced a ready response. Regular door-to-door work takes place every Sunday afternoon; Sunday school has been replaced by all-age Christian education and about fifty adults gather for Bible study and discussion besides the normal children's classes. Sunday evening services see few empty places in this church which holds 300. May the day soon come when there are not enough seats for all who wish to come in. We can always build a balcony!

We cannot thank the Lord enough for the wonderful things that He has done for so many people in bringing Elim to Northampton. Every member would need to write a book to tell of all the blessings, healings, deliverances and miraculous dealings in their lives. The thing which strikes every visitor, saved or unsaved, is the atmosphere of Christian love which pervades the whole church.

"By this shall all men know that ye are My disciples, if ye have love one to another" (John 13:35).

Alice Stripp

BUCKINGHAM PALACE, Parliament, the concentrated banking area of Leadenhall and Threadneedle Street, and miles of business premises, shops, and warehouses alive with activity and wealth — London from Hammer-smith to Dockland, that was the first part of my journey. I left it behind.

Close to the Thames estuary I found the little Elim at Hadleigh, where Alice Stripp had been carried in. To the millions of the Metropolis unknown. The few square yards under this roof had been almost all her world, apart from her family. There she had poured out herself in heart-love, labour, and worship. She had scrubbed the floor, played in her simple fashion for the services, cared about the small details of the hall, as her prior concern, for years and more years, listening to the ministry of her pastor husband and others. Then she was not, for God took her. Her most ardent effort had brought no vast social change. Her impact was never community-shaking. Things went on as usual. "To what purpose is this waste?" as Mary's critics said of her spilled ointment?

Alice, just an ordinary loving wife and mother, helping her husband to earn a living, and spend his spare time as pastor of the Hadleigh Elim, died at sixty-one. She could forget the agitations of a great city, because she knew the ultimate purposes of life, and she expressed her discovery in the peace of her church. She could smile and shrug off the fever of worldly restlessness. The lust for power, money and fame, the political strife, the black hatreds and suspicions, the childish differences of mighty nations, the mean-mindedness which leads to terror, war, and fear. With such things she had nothing to do. She was no part to any of it. Her aims were without personal interest. She lived for the love of God, doing what she could for all, because she had seen her Saviour's face.

At fourteen her secret soul first went out to God. The Lord became the portion of her inheritance. While others sought life in the streets of human ambition, she had found it at Calvary. Within her soul the search was over.

Like a link in a chain, she never gave way. She was part of that cable of sanity, sacrifice and unselfishness without which the world would slide into final ruin. Women like Alice save our world. While others publish their fierce manifestos and scream their protestations, she lived out life as it should be lived. She proved her creed. She drew life from above and not from circumstances. She made the world's frenzied activities look fussy and ridiculous.

That is why I crossed London to be present at her funeral. Saints don't all live in caves at Bethlehem or monks' cells in Clairveaux. We find them nearer home. Somehow I think that Alice Stripp's cleaning of the church floor at Hadleigh, Essex, is going to count for a lot more in the end than most of the speeches on the floor of the House of Commons, or cleaning up fortunes made on the floor of the Stock Exchange.

Whether it does or not, it counted more for Alice, and brought her a profound contentment that neither speeches nor fortunes could have brought her. She had chosen the better part, and it shall not be taken away from her.

Elsie Irene Alice Stripp, the wife of Pastor Ron Stripp, of the Elim Pentecostal Church, Hadleigh, Essex, was called into the presence of her Lord on November 28th. She had suffered a depressing illness for some time. She was a true pastor's help and wife, and the mother of two fine sons, Bernard and Graham. Pastor Stripp himself has also been critically ill, and his renewed care of the church at Hadleigh calls for our loving appreciation and prayers that he will be upheld and strengthened for the task which he now faces without the dear one who had been so long at his side.

St. Helens Crusade Report

EIGHT years ago, Pastor Jack Tetchner retired from the ministry and went to live at Southport. He was asked to look after the struggling Assembly in St. Helens. On the first Sunday, there were only four people in the morning meeting and ten at night. The congregation consisted of all women, except one man,

Mr. Brian Atherton, who is now treasurer and organist. The small building which was built nearly thirty years ago was cleaned up and painted, and Pastor and people began to pray.

Mr. Tetchner retired for the second time at the age of seventy-five, leaving to his credit and the glory of God, a lovely church building seating two hundred, complete with a nursery and other rooms. A wonderful foundation has been laid by a hard-working Pastor godly deacons, and a praying congregation.

On Saturday November 2nd, an induction service was held for the new minister, David Tinnion; amongst representatives from other churches, were sixteen young people from Driffield, Mr. Tinnion's previous church. Before the induction service a carcade was led around the town by Pastor Alex Tee who was due to open a Crusade in the Town Hall on Sunday night. Up to the present time two hundred people have signed decision cards, and twenty-three have asked to be baptised. Several miracles have also taken place and the services have been full of joy as well as tears, as people have been both saved and healed. The local papers sent a reporter along to the meeting, and they published a photograph on their front page of Mrs. Owens, who was healed on the first Sunday evening.

Pastor Alex Tee writes; "People have been-healed almost every night during the Crusade. . . .people coming in leaning on walking sticks, have been running up and down the aisles".

Mrs. Nash brought her two year old boy and he was wonderfully healed. Mr. Leonard Worthington writes to say that he has been healed of sinus trouble. Another man had to be restrained from breaking his walking-stick when he was instantly cured. The following report appeared in the St. Helens Reporter.

A ST. HELENS housewife who has been plagued with arthritis for five years, discovered what it was like to be free from pain on Sunday evening.

Nearly 300 people witnessed the drama when the Rev. Alexander Tee, laid his hands on her head and asked God to heal her.

Minutes later, Mrs. Harriet Owen's permanent limp was gone, the right side of her body stopped aching, and she was able to jump, run and walk freely. Mr. Tee, minister of the Evangel Temple at Southport, was conducting the first service of a two-week Evangelistic Crusade. Mr. Tee, asked the sick and crippled members of the audience to come out to the front of the service, at St. Helens Town Hall, so he could lay hands on them and anoint them with oil.

Hobbled

Mrs. Owen, 57, of Windleshaw Road, Dentons Green, said: "I hobbled out to the front of the hall. Mr. Tee put his hands on me and anointed me with oil. He said 'Lord touch her', and I felt a warmth I had never felt before. Then all my pain was gone, and I did a little run on my bad leg. I even trotted down the Town Hall steps at the end of the service". —

They can't take Him away

IT was Friday, the day I normally set aside for visiting one of our local hospitals. Amongst others, I particularly wanted to see a dear old lady who for long years had been a diligent member of my church. It was always an inspiration to talk and pray with her. She had a deep-rooted faith in God, which obviously stood her in good stead amid the many perplexing storms of life. I invariably discovered that when I sought to minister to her the tables were turned as, out of her rich experience, I found her ministering to me. As I stood by her bedside on this occasion, she said, "Get a chair, Pastor, and sit down. I've got something important to say to you". It was a drab little ward, accommodating about eight senior citizens and furnished with little but the bare essentials.

As soon as I was seated in the uncomfortable upright chair, she began her sad story. She had no relatives or near friends in whom to confide. This was a case where the faithful pastor had not only to be a preacher of the good tidings, but also a patient, unhurried listener to the heart-aches and troubles of another. He must always be ready to sympathize and enter into a situation which could sound trivial to the listener, but is often gigantic to the person concerned.

This lady had been in hospital for a long time and with tears in her eyes she opened her heart to me.

"Pastor", she said, "they have told me today I shall not be able to go home any more. You see", she continued, "I've no one to look after me at home and I need constant attention, so I shall have to spend the rest of my days here". I almost shuddered as I looked again at the dreary room. Try as I would, I felt I could never fully understand the inward grief that had come to this dear saint of God. It was almost like receiving a life sentence. I tried to comfort her as tenderly as I could and assured her I was very sorry to hear what she had to say. "Ah, but Pastor", she went on, "that is not all. They have also told me my little home has been sold up. All my little treasures have gone. I've nothing left now".

As you may guess, I was deeply moved by what I had heard. In spite of my long years in the ministry, in circumstances of this kind, I am afraid I still get emotionally stirred, and as I listened to this moving story tears came readily to my eyes.

In a flash this dear woman saw my tears and instantly appeared to have a concern for me. She had a terrific burden of her own to carry, but she did not want it to weigh heavily on me. She laid her hand on mind and said with much feeling, "Never mind, Pastor".

I have often reflected on this: it was she who had to stay in hospital; it was she who had lost all her possessions, yet she was telling me not to be upset. What an amazing woman she was. But allow me to finish what she had to say. I have never forgotten this, and have used it scores of times in seeking to help others.

In spite of the crushing information she had just received and all the foreboding prospects, she testified with a glowing face and an unruffled peace, "Never mind, Pastor, I've still got Jesus".

That to her was the solution to all her worries.

She said it again with stronger emphasis, "I've still got Jesus and they can't take Him away, can they?" She then lay back in the bed, with her head upon the pillow and with the perfect trust of a little child, she recited, "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want".

I saw her several times after that, before she went to be with Jesus, but she never wanted to talk about her troubles again.

She eagerly awaited the comforting message I would bring her from God's Holy Word and rejoiced in it.

It seemed to me, every time I saw her, she was becoming more and more detached from the things of the world and more and more attached to heavenly things. She would frequently say, "Make sure, Pastor, you say a little prayer before you go". She had found a wonderful hiding place in God. How true are the words of the old hymn,

"When all around my soul gives way,
He then is all my hope and stay".

During my long years in the Christian ministry, I have learned some of the greatest truths, not from the many commentaries on my book shelves, but from the lives of these lovely saints of God, who maybe have had little of earthly riches, but have been abundantly rich in the things of God.

The anchor we have in God will always hold secure, even in the greatest storms of life.

What we owe to the Reformation

by J. C. Ryle

The Reformation delivered England from the degrading tyranny and swindling impostures of the Romish priesthood.

IN THE last days of the Pope's supremacy in this land, the laity were thoroughly "sat upon" by the clergy, and could hardly call their souls their own. The power of the priests was practically despotic, and was used for every purpose except the advancement of true religion. I like the frogs in the plague of Egypt, they made their way everywhere, both in the palace and the cottage, met you at every turn of life, and had a finger in every transaction. They interfered by the confessional between husbands and wives—between parents and children—between masters and servants between landlords and tenants—between subjects and sovereigns—between souls and God. Obey them and you might do anything, and commit any sin. Resist, and you had no safety either for property or life.

One great object, which they steadily kept in view, was to enrich the Church and fill the pockets of their own order. To accomplish this end they employed many devices. Sometimes they persuaded tender-hearted, affectionate persons to give money to get the souls of their relatives out of purgatory, by procuring masses to be said for them. Sometimes they advised weak people to give huge sums to the shrine of some favourite saint, such as Thomas à Becket at Canterbury, in order to merit heaven by good works. Sometimes they induced dying sinners to give vast tracts of land to abbeys and monasteries, in order to atone for their bad lives. In one way or another they were continually drawing money out of the laity, and accumulating property in their own hands. "In fact," says Burnet, "if some laws had not restrained them, the greater part of all the estates in England had been given to religious houses".

As to the gross and ridiculous impostures which the priests practised on our ignorant forefathers before the Reformation, the catalogue would fill a volume. I cannot do more than supply a few specimens.

At the Abbey of Hales, in Gloucestershire, a vial was shown by the priests on great occasions to those who offered alms, which was said to contain the blood of Christ. This notable vial was examined by the Royal Commissioners in Henry VIII's time, and was found to contain neither more nor less than the blood of a duck, which was renewed every week.

In the city of Worcester there was a huge image of the Virgin Mary in one of the churches, which was held in special reverence. This was also examined by the same Royal Commissioners, in order to ascertain what it really was. But when it was stripped of certain veils which covered it, it turned out to be no image of the Virgin, or of any woman at all, but the statue of some old Bishop.

At Boxley, in Kent, a great crucifix was exhibited, which received peculiar honour and large offerings, because of a continual miracle which was said to attend its exhibition. When the worshippers before it offered copper coin, the face of the figure on the cross looked grave; when they offered silver it relaxed its severity; when they offered gold it openly smiled. In Henry VIII's time this famous crucifix also was examined, and wires were found within it, with which the attendant priests could move the face of the image, and make it assume any expression they pleased.

He who desires to pursue this disgraceful subject any further will find it fully handled in Calvin's Inventory of Relics and Hobart Seymour's Pilgrimage to Rome. He will learn there, that all over Europe things were shown as holy relics, so manifestly false and fictitious, that the priests who showed them can only be regarded as cheats and rogues, who in this day would be sent to the treadmill or obliged to pick oakum. Wood of the true cross, enough to load a ship, though we know one person alone could carry it—thorns professing to be part of our Saviour's crown of thorns, enough to make a large faggot—at least fourteen nails, said to have been used at the crucifixion, though we know four must have been sufficient—four spearheads, said to be points of the spear which pierced our Lord's side—though of course it had only one—at least three seamless coats of Christ for which the soldiers cast lots, though there could only have been one—all these are only select specimens of the profane and vile inventions with which Romish priests imposed on people before the Reformation. They must have known that they were telling lies, and yet they persisted in telling them, and required the ignorant laity to believe them. Once more I remind you that for deliverance from this miserable system of priestly tyranny and priestly imposition we are indebted to the Reformation.

The Reformation delivered England from the worst plague that can afflict a nation, I mean the plague of extreme unholiness and immorality among the clergy.

The lives of the clergy, as a general rule, were simply scandalous, and the moral tone of the laity was naturally at the lowest ebb. Of course, grapes will never grow on thorns, nor figs on thistles. To expect the huge roots of ignorance and superstition which filled our land to bear any but corrupt fruit would be unreasonable and absurd. But a more thoroughly corrupt set than the English clergy were in the palmy days of undisturbed Romanism, with a few brilliant exceptions, it would be impossible to imagine.

The parochial priesthood became unhappily notorious for gluttony, drunkenness, and gambling.

"Too often," says Professor Blunt, "they were persons taken from the lowest of the people, with all the gross habits of the class from which they sprang—loiterers on the ale-house bench—dicers, scarce able to read by rote their paternoster, often unable to repeat the Ten Commandments—mass priests who could just read their breviaries, and no more—men often dubbed by the uncomplimentary names of Sir John Lack-Latin, Sir John Mumble-Mattins, or Babbling and Blind St. John. In fact, the carnal living and general secularity of ministers of religion were proverbial before the Reformation." (History of the Reformation, p. 66.)

I might tell you of the shameless covetousness which marked the pre-Reformation priesthood. So long as a man gave liberal offerings at the shrine of such saints as Thomas à Becket, the clergy would absolve him of almost any sin. So long as a felon or malefactor paid the monks well, he might claim sanctuary within the precincts of religious houses, after any crime, and hardly any law could reach him. Yet all this time for Lollards and Wycliffites there was no mercy at all! The very carvings still extant in some old ecclesiastical buildings tell a story in stone and wood which speak volumes to this day. Friars were often represented in these carvings as foxes preaching with the neck of a stolen goose peeping out of the hood behind—as wolves giving absolution, with a sheep muffled up in their cloaks—as apes sitting by the sick man's bed, with a crucifix in one hand and the other in the sufferer's pocket. Things must have been at a low ebb when the faults of ordained ministers were so publicly held up to scorn!

Romantic young men and sentimental young ladies may mourn over the ruins of such abbeys as Battle, and Glastonbury, and Bolton, and Kirkstall, and Furness, and Croyland, and Bury, and Tintern. But I venture to conjecture that many of these houses are more useful now in their ruined condition than they ever were in the days of affluence and prosperity. Monasteries and nunneries were frequently sinks of iniquity.

All monasteries and nunneries were not equally bad. I admit that there were religious houses like Godstow nunnery, near Oxford, which had a stainless reputation. But I fear these were but bright exceptions which only proved the truth of the rule. The preamble of the Act for Dissolution of Religious Houses, founded on the Report of Henry VIII's Commissioners, contains broad, general statements which cannot be got over. It declares "that manifest sin, vicious, carnal, and abominable living, is daily used and committed in abbeys, priories, and other religious houses of monks, canons, and nuns, and that albeit many continual visitations have been had, by the space of two hundred years or more, for an honest and charitable reformation of such unthrifty, carnal, and abominable living, yet that, nevertheless, little or none amendment was hitherto had, but that their vicious living shamefully increased and augmented."

After all, there is no surer receipt for promoting immorality than "fulness of bread and abundance of idleness" (Ezekiel 16:49). Take anywhere a number of men and women, of any nation, rank or class—bind them by a vow of celibacy—shut them up in houses by themselves—give them plenty to eat and drink, and give them little or nothing to do—and above all give them no Bibles, no true religion, no preaching of the gospel, no inspection, and no check from public opinion, and if the result of all this be not abundant breach of the Seventh Commandment, I can only say I have read human nature in vain.

I make no apology for dwelling on these things.

Painful and humbling as the picture is, it is one that in these times ought to be carefully looked at, and not thrown aside. I do not want men to pass severe judgment on our poor ancestors, and say they were all lost. We are not their Judge. To whom little light has been given, of them little will be required. But I do want modern Churchmen to understand from what the Reformation delivered us. Before we make up our minds to give up Protestantism and receive back Monasticism and the "Catholic system," let us thoroughly understand what the state of England was when Popery had its own way unchecked and uncontrolled. My own belief is, that there never was a change so imperatively needed as the Reformation, and that no Englishmen ever did such good service to their country as the Reformers.

But what shall we say of the modern proposal, to give up the principles of the Reformation, and to return to the communion of the Church of Rome?

What shall we say, indeed! I say the man who makes such a proposal must have taken leave of his senses, or be utterly ignorant of the facts of history. Are we to return to a Church which boasts that she is infallible and never changes—to a Church which has never repented of her pre-Reformation superstitions and abominations—to a Church which has never confessed and abjured her countless corruptions. Are we really to go back to gross ignorance of religion—to childish immorality? Is this the Catholic land of promise? Shame on us, I say, if we entertain the idea for a moment! Let the Israelite return to Egypt, if he will. Let the prodigal go back to his husks among the swine. Let the dog return to his vomit. But let no Englishman with brains in his head ever listen to the idea of exchanging Protestantism for Popery, and returning to the bondage of the Church of Rome. No, indeed! We owe a debt to the Reformation for having delivered us from an enormous mass of evil.

The Secret Message

HIGH up in the hills of Galilee was the village of Nazareth, a shabby little village of narrow, crooked streets, school, fishmonger's, synagogue and carpenter's shop. The carpenter's name was Joseph. Each day, as he made his furniture, ploughs and cattle-yokes, he thought of his sweetheart, Mary, a quiet, home-loving country girl who lived down the street. From the window above his work-bench, Joseph saw Mary pass by on her way to draw water from the well. He waved to her. Mary smiled and waved back. They went for walks in the hills, and made preparations for their wedding day. Joseph told Mary about the home he was preparing for them next to his workshop. Mary told Joseph about the long white dress she was making. They loved each other very much, and they both loved God. Sometimes they talked about heaven above them. They wondered about the great Hope of Israel Who would come from that world one day.

One night, as Mary knelt by her bedside to pray, an angel stood before her. "You are highly favoured, Mary", the angel said. "The Lord is with you. You shall bring forth a son and shall call His name Jesus".

What startling news for Mary! The humble peasant girl had been chosen by God to be the mother of Jesus!

Mary did not sleep that night. She lay awake thinking, and wondering about the great and wonderful secret the angel had told her.

Mary and Joseph were married in the little village, and after the ceremony Joseph took his bride to the new home he had so lovingly prepared. Joseph knew the secret of the angels' message. They thought about the Child who was to come from heaven, to love and to save the world. They wondered how they would care for Him; how they would train Him and teach Him. They wondered if He would be like the other boys who lived in Nazareth. They did not fully understand the meaning of the angel's message, but they kept the great and wonderful thoughts in their hearts, and they looked forward to the day when the great Hope of Israel would at last be fulfilled.

The secret which the angel brought from heaven also concerns us. It is the story of the greatest Gift ever to be given. The Gift of God's only Son, our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

ANOTHER SLANT

by Ken Smith, Pastor of our Erdington Church

DO YOU remember my comments about the Baptist Church and the question of the Pentecostal experience? I thought of this when a member of the Brethren told me recently of one of their assemblies not a mile from our Church, where in the prayer meeting recently a lady stood to her feet during the prayer session and spoke in tongues! Imagine that, and in a Brethren assembly; a brother, not known for his eloquence, gave a most beautiful interpretation, to the consternation of some of those who were gathered for prayer. Wisdom prevailed, in that one of the leading elders counselled that it ought to be accepted, knowing the people who had ministered in this manner. This ought to stir our own people to seek earnestly spiritual gifts; but one does rejoice in this ever widening manifestation of spiritual power and ministry. How Pentecostal is your Church, or for that matter, how Pentecostal are you?

I was saddened, however, to be told by this brother that he had only once been to one of our assemblies and that was some years ago, where he heard an American evangelist state that unless one had spoken in tongues one was not converted. On hearing this, the man walked out, and only with the manifestation in Brethren circles has his interest been revived. He was obviously sensible, in that he fully realised what the evangelist had said, and of course disagreed very much with the interpretation given to Scripture on this point. I wonder that the minister of the Church, a most respected man now with the Lord, did not refute this argument, for I certainly would have done so, in all conscience. There are many believers, born again of the Spirit, who have not received the Pentecostal experience, and what a lot they miss, but in our zeal to encourage them to seek the experience let us beware chance we fall into error, and cause offence, and put them off seeking this blessing.

After the work of renovation we did some years ago at Burton on Trent, which some may remember, I, for one, would consider that there are very few buildings which cannot be made to look reasonably decorative, and more important weatherproof. Why is it that so often, in homes, and assemblies, it is the inside that receives more attention than the outside, which is subject to the elements? I guess that most Elim ministers have had to grapple with buildings in need of repair, which sometimes calls for more ingenuity than re-building, yet in hearing of our Norwich Church, which, in the early years, had more than a score of meeting places, I felt we ought to appreciate our property much more. New buildings can be prohibitive price-wise; if we can maintain the property we have, unless the place is too small — what a blessed problem that is for any pastor and diaconate. We are at the moment, at Erdington, busily re-glazing, and decorating, and how grand it is to be receiving orders instead of giving them! One thanks God for brethren who have ability in the material line, and one is happy to serve under their direction. It is according to one's ability that we must serve, and to me, whose fingers seem all thumbs, it is delightful to see the adept manner in which some brethren have tackled the work, for altering an existing building often presents more complex problems than starting from scratch. I was promoted from creosoting the fence to painting the cloakrooms, so I must be learning! Getting sufficient paint to decorate the Church freely from a local paint manufacturers, and the glass at cost, certainly helped us financially.

It is wonderful to read of the generosity of the people of God in the Old Testament when they had to be restrained from giving, for the need was met. Enough and to spare for others, is a grand situation, and the Church Aid scheme in Elim, to which churches contribute, is worthy of support, for it gives extra help to churches, who are prepared to help themselves maintain their property. After all, is not the condition of the house of the Lord some reflection of our estimate of the Lord Himself? Cleanliness is not so much next to godliness, but should be part of it, as an expression of our worship. God does not put a premium on dirty, dishevelled buildings, as a sign of spirituality, for He is worthy of the best we can give. I sought to encourage the older folk in our Church, in that they too can have a part in the work in their giving and praying. David was not given the privilege of building the Temple, but sought to prepare the materials for it. Praying and paying

37. The Glory of the Lord (Exodus 19:18)

by F. Lavender,
Pastor of our Croydon Church

THIS was a day which the Israelites never forgot! They had certainly seen the power of the Lord in the plagues which brought them deliverance from Egypt, and also in the fiery, cloudy pillar, which led them through the wilderness. But on that day they had an awe-inspiring view of the glory and majesty of God. Mount Sinai was ablaze with His glory; the earth shook and trembled, and the frightened Israelites cried out in terror. Moses had known the presence of the Lord in the power of His Word, yet even he confessed, "I exceedingly fear and quake" (Hebrews 12:21).

The revelation of the majesty of the Lord always overwhelms men. When the glory of God filled the temple, as it's dedication, the priests could not stand to minister (2 Chronicles 5). Isaiah the prophet was distressed and filled with shame when he saw the Lord (Isaiah 6). The godly Daniel, fell on his face, trembling with fear, because of the glory of the Lord (Daniel 10). Saul of Tarsus was prostrated on the Damascus road when he saw the risen, glorified Christ (Acts 9). The beloved John, saw the glory of Christ and fell at His feet as one dead (Revelation 1). The power of Christ's second advent will destroy the antichristian armies (2 Thessalonians 2:8). To see the blazing glory of God would be destruction to sinful men; yet God has purposed that men shall both see and share His glory! He has opened the way into His presence by the death of His Son; He gives us power to become His sons when He takes our sin away (John 1:12).

We who are believers have not been brought to Mount Sinai, to enter with fear into a covenant we cannot keep. Hebrews 12:22 says, "We have come to Mount Zion, the City of the living God"; we are citizens of the heavenly Jerusalem, inheritors of the glory of God, and fellow-citizens with the saints in that place where Jesus is King. We are told to come boldly to the throne of grace, into the very presence of the majesty and the glory of God. There we shall find grace, not destruction, in His glorious presence (Hebrews 4:16).

Pause for Thought

by Trevor Partington,
Covenant Hall, Stafford

THE other day I read the book, One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovitch by Alexander Solzhenitsyn. Because I knew something about the author of the book, I read it with great interest. The paper-back seemed to take on new meaning.

A young lady started to read a paper-back but she found it very boring and she eventually cast it aside as unreadable. That night, however, she went to a party where she became attracted to a young man who she discovered was an author, and what is more, he turned out to be the author of the very book she had discarded. When she returned home, she immediately opened that paper-back and started to read it again. Was it boring and unreadable now? Certainly not! It gripped her straight away, for now she knew the author.

It's like that with the Bible. We Christians have come to know the author, and therefore, whilst to others this book may seem dry, and even meaningless, to us it is the very Word of life. Some Christians, however, have to confess that their Bible reading has become somewhat infrequent. Somehow the delight of reading God's Word has left them.

My wife went away recently, and I was left on my own for a whole fortnight to cook the meals! But my problem was very much eased by the fact that she left me a menu for every meal. By following this I got a balanced diet. It was much easier to follow that menu, rather than say to myself:— "Now, what shall I have to eat today?" My appetite for eating would soon have dried up if that had been the case!

Is your Bible reading of the "Now what shall I read today?" variety, or do you have a planned menu when you approach the food of God's Word? Do you read it constructively with the help of Bible reading notes? If the Word of God has lost its edge for you, then try some notes. I'm sure it will make a difference.

are just as vital as painting and plastering, are they not? You may be more æsthetic than I am. I cannot easily get through in worship with cold feet, or a North Pole gale round my ears, can you? In fact we have installed ventilators that eliminate draughts, and I am sure that will please everyone. It was good to know the counsel of architects, when interviewing, on these matters, and I found them most ready to advise. Working together seems to me to be just as blessed as worshipping together.

Powder and Jam

IT hardly seems possible that four years have passed since I returned from the country of Ghana, West Africa. It almost seems like a dream that the way has been opened for us to return (D.V) in January 1975. Once more I have the task of sorting out letters, papers and cuttings, endeavouring to be really ruthless in the disposing of them. I am a horder by instinct, so it is a painful business. I hate parting with birthday cards, get well cards with their messages of loving concern, the first Christmas and Easter cards made by my children and grandchildren, and the very special letters giving the highlights of our family saga.

You may call me sentimental, but what is this life if we do not savour its richness, love, laughter and tears to the full? I have a weakness too for collecting picture post cards, brochures and guide books wherever I go, and thereby I can re-live the sights and scenes of so many lovely places. You may say, "Poor soul, what a useless conglomeration she must possess, what a fund of unnecessary knowledge she must have acquired!" Alas! this is only part of my guilt, for I discovered the circlet of gold flowers I wore as part of my head-dress when I was a bride. I also found the tiny baby gown, tucked and featherstitched by my mother so long ago. I found in the sideboard the wedding favours which had adorned the wedding cakes of my two daughters, and so I could add to the list, photos galore, my school badge, my diaries and the first little books I read to our children. The oldest of these had been in my mother's family for many years and is truly Victorian in character; as a child it both fascinated and yet terrified me.

The title is very apt "Powder and Jam" and the pictures illustrating the poems are exceedingly graphic. They depict Wee Winnie Wankie, who would never use a hankie. Rosy Toots, whose pink soft cheeks turned to livid green, because she would not eat her vegetables. Lucy Mary Priscilla Stead came to a sticky end, because she made a fuss when sent to bed, that "Once when Nurse had shut the door, she shook herself right through the floor!" Worst of all the sad fate of Silly

Billy who disobeyed his mother, who on the way to school, left the foot path and ran in the road only to be knocked down by a motor car. To this day I am fascinated by the picture of Billy flattened out on the road, long and white, as if he's been ironed out by a steam-roller! Of course, there are happy poems and humorous ones too. As I sort out my treasures and souvenirs and prepare for our new life in Ghana, I admit to myself that life is made up of powder and jam.

Difficult and even unpleasant experiences come to us all, lessons must be learned and correction given, yet there are sweet and blessed times and our Heavenly Father has given us the capacity for enjoyment. So often the corrective powders of life are made palatable for us by the jam of humour and good-will. The salvage collector will get a bumper load this week when I have a grand clearance. After all, I have so many happy memories which need no tangible reminders. Life must go on; if we dwell too much on the past our minds become stale.

As the hymn-writer encourages us, we must "Praise Him for all that is past, And trust Him for all that's to come". Surely, that is the correct balance? We ever realise that God is not restricted by what we have known of Him, for He has many new and wonderful things to reveal. Our God delights to surprise His people with new blessings, so for myself, as well as for my readers, I turn to the Scripture:

"Remember ye not the former things, neither consider the things of old. Behold I will do a new thing; now it shall spring forth; shall ye not know it? I will even make a way in the wilderness and rivers in the desert" (Isaiah 43:18,19).

This will be our sister's final contribution to this page. She will be going with her husband in January to serve the Lord in Ghana. We thank Mrs. Laddow for her faithfulness in writing this page week by week over a long period. We have received many letters from our readers expressing appreciation of our sister's contribution, and we hope that she will still be able to write an occasional piece for us. May God richly bless her in this new sphere of service.

Our new writer for this page is Mrs. May Osman, wife of Pastor Jack Osman from our Springbourne Church. We look forward to her contributions, the first of which will be in the issue of January 4th, 1975.

Let God amaze you

by Ray Hughes, Pastor of our Pontypridd Church and Youth Commissioner of our South Wales Presbytery

PETER was seeking God and had fasted in order to have undisturbed meditation on what was the will of God for him. Peter had sought a place of isolation in which to be alone with God. When God spoke, however, the one to misunderstand and even rebel was Peter (Acts 10). He was amazed. The Lord was gracious and led him to know, not only that "God is no respecter of persons", but also that God's servants are not to respect persons because of their racial or religious backgrounds. It is not the background from which a man comes, but the future to which a man is directed with which God is concerned.

As a young minister, in Yorkshire, I was taught the lesson that we not only have amazing grace to save us, but an amazing God to surprise us. Money was tight, with a thousand and one demands on the church income. It was suggested that we should build a wall round the church to prevent it looking like an island surrounded by a sea of weeds which was constantly being sailed by dogs and children. I saw the need, but also knew the lack of cash. "Let's have faith", said a deacon, so, with more fear than faith in my heart, we started to build. With the wall half up, the cash ran out. I thought, "We will be a laughing-stock", but the church officers had special prayer about the embarrassment. The next day, a letter was pushed under the door of the church. It was from an invalid lady, unknown to anybody in our church, asking if I would call to see her. This born-again Anglican lady gave me enough money to finish the wall with some to spare, saying, "I have always taken an interest in that little church and have prayed for it every day." I must admit that I was amazed, but I was able to praise the Lord, for Nehemiah's God was my God and I had learned the lesson that "Faith . . . without works is dead".

Spiritual gifts are wonderful witnesses to the living Lord, yet once I received an interpretation to a message in tongues that I was too shocked to speak out. While the congregation waited for the Lord to edify the church I was having an argument with Him. "Lord, I can't say this; this is a direct message and not for the whole church", I prayed, but still the words came. At last, apologising that I had never received such an interpretation before, I started. The message declared that there were two people there who had been seeking God's will and that, despite His leading, they were still unsure that He would have them to step out. They should take up the work that the Lord had shown them, for He was with them. I was sweating with the effort of saying words which my better judgment told me were too direct, but, after the Benediction, a married couple in mid-life told me that for weeks they had felt called to work with a certain society, but had been delaying their decision. This unusual utterance proved to be the final assurance of God's leading. I was amazed and humbled that the living God had led not only them, but me.

Pastor Robert D. Bradley was leading our Smethwick Church in the midst of threatened and long-delayed redevelopment plans. Minor hall facilities were very limited, so a plan, using several existing walls, was made to build a minor hall. "You will never get planning permission", was the often-repeated logic, which, in the light of imminent demolition, was reasonable. Planning permission was obtained, however, and the building was completed, mainly with volunteer labour. It was used for a time and when a compulsory purchase order to enable road widening came, a very good figure was obtained for the additional facilities. Isn't God amazing?

Why not let God amaze you? Follow the leading of the living Lord. Allow the sovereign Spirit to have His way. We have an amazing God.

Monday, December 30th

Jude 1-16

"Even as Sodom and Gomorrha . . . are set forth for an example. . ." (v.7).

HERE is a reminder that the One with whom we have to do is a God of judgment. The Lord has declared Himself firmly against sin of any sort. The cities of Sodom and Gomorrha stand as warning to every nation and individual, that God will not tolerate evil for ever. Let us pray today that our country will heed this warning and turn from its permissiveness and aggressiveness (for which the cities of the plain were judged) and "return unto the Lord. . . for He will abundantly pardon" (Isaiah 55:7).

Tuesday, December 31st

Jude 17-25

"Now unto Him that is able to keep you from falling. . ." (v.24).

WHAT a blessed truth this is! Left to our own devices we would surely fall, as the snares and traps of the enemy are both numerous and devious. We do have a certain degree of responsibility in that we are to keep ourselves "in the love of God" (Jude 21) and are to keep ourselves pure (1 Timothy 5:22). Thank God, however, we are not left in the sinful atmosphere of this world to fend for ourselves, for we "are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation" (1 Peter 1:5).

Wednesday, January 1st

Genesis 1:1-19

" . . . the first day" (v.5).

HOW fitting that we should read of the first day of Creation on this the first day of a New Year. Traditionally, resolutions are made on this day, most of which are never kept. Have you ever made a vow to God which you have failed to honour? Perhaps, at one time, you dedicated your life to Christ, but, through time, other interests usurped His position as King of your life. Why not make a fresh start today? Renew your vows. Lay your life on the altar for God. Make this "the first day" of a blessed new experience in Christ.

Thursday, January 2nd

Genesis 1:20-31, 2:1-3

"So God created man in His own image" (v.27).

ADAM, the first man, was "the figure of Him that was to come" (Romans 5:14). As such he bore the image of God and exercised dominion over all other created beings (v.28). Christ, the Second Adam, was "the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature" (Colossians 1:15) and His dominion is such that "He is able even to subdue all things unto Himself" (Philippians 3:21). As God's visible representative in the universe, the first Adam failed, but Christ did not! He enables us to see God perfectly in a Man! See John 1:14.

Friday, January 3rd

Genesis 2:4-25

"But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it" (v.17).

THE Cross of Christ is referred to in the Scriptures as a tree (1 Peter 2:24). Man was forbidden to eat of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil because it would bring death to him. Now, man is invited to come to the tree of Calvary because there he will find life. Jesus said, "Whoso eateth My flesh, and drinketh My blood, hath eternal life" (John 6:54). By "eating" man lost his spiritual life, and only by "eating" can he regain it. "Taste and see that the Lord is good".

Saturday, January 4th

Genesis 3:1-20

"Now the serpent was more subtil. . ." (v.1).

CHRISTIANS often make the mistake of underestimating the power of the devil. We must remember that he is our constant enemy who "walketh about, seeking whom he may devour" (1 Peter 5:8). He casts doubt on the Word of God (v.1), misquotes it (v.4), and beguiles with temptation (v.6). His methods haven't changed much since the Fall. He tried the same tactics on our Lord (Matthew 4:1-11), and he will try them on us. Our Lord defeated him - so may we! "Resist the devil, and he will flee from you" (James 4:7).

Sunday, January 5th

Genesis 3:21-24; 4:1-16

"But unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect" (v.5).

CAIN'S offering of the fruit of the ground (v.3) was rejected by God, because Cain thought he could approach God on his own merits. He was bringing to God the labour of his own hands, and this was not acceptable. There is only one way by which man can come to God and that is through faith in a substitute for sin. Abel approached God through a slain lamb (v.4 Hebrews 11:4) and he found acceptance. We can only come to God through Christ, the slain Lamb of Calvary. There is no other way. (Hebrews 7:25).

"They'd never miss me!"

by T. W. Walker, Field Superintendent

SHE was enduring a bitter time of physical testing and nervous strain as she said it. "They'd never miss me!" was her statement to her pastor. Disappointment, frustration, plaintiveness were all in her remark.

But she was wrong!

You have only to read 1 Corinthians 12 to know that she was wide of the mark. Every member and supporter is important and plays a vital part in the growth of the Church both locally and universally.

We prove time and time again that it is the concerted effort of the whole Movement that gets things done for God. Only last February I stood before the Elim Pentecostal Church in Tanga, Tanzania. It was moving to recall that this lovely building was erected as a result of gifts of pennies and sixpences (old ones) by Elim Sunday school children and Crusaders in the British Isles.

A growing number of people are realising that our Forward the Faith Foundation is a means of usefulness for them in the matter of Christian stewardship. Open new churches we must. There can be no argument about that. There is no need to tell you about the rapidly rising costs of everything and the Lord's work cannot avoid the atmosphere and environment in which it works. Have difficulties ever been a reason for doing nothing or for retraction? In such a time as this we must do MORE evangelism, open more churches, not less.

There are several ways in which you can very materially help. Under the excellent Forward the Faith Foundation scheme a gift of £5 from every Elim member would provide the capital to pioneer five new Elim churches and to maintain them for the first year.

EVANGELISM is the work of making known the wonderful news of what the Lord Jesus is able to do for men and women in spiritual need. As Christians it is our responsibility to see that this news is dispensed to all men everywhere. Elim has been reputed throughout its history for its evangelistic zeal. It was incubated in the atmosphere of campaigns and has retained that vital life stimulant throughout. The cost of pursuing this policy in hiring halls, publicity, cartage, evangelists' expenses and so forth has risen enormously in recent years. This must not be allowed to restrict the spread of the glorious truth because without this knowledge men and women will perish eternally. With this in mind we invite you to invest in this FOUNDATION which is dedicated to the cause of EVANGELISM.

Investments may be made in the Good Stewardship Fund. A Fund of £50,000 would yield a minimum of £2,500 per annum for evangelism, and deposits as low as £50 are accepted.

Your kind interest and prayer support will be deeply appreciated. If you wish to find out more, please complete the details below. It is as the whole Elim Family share in such enterprises that towns and villages in the British Isles where there is little or no witness will be reached by Elim for God.
